these ABOUT-THOD THE JESUS

² There were seven sacred festivals in Israel: the Passover, Firstfruits, Pentecost, Blowing of Trumpets, Day of Propitiation, Tabernacles, and Ingathering. The latter two were both held on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, so that both are referred to here as "Tabernacles". These festivals were typical of God's great dealings with His beloved people Israel. The Passover sets before us the death of God's Lamb. Hence Christ could not be killed at the festival of Tabernacles, for it was not the proper time. Firstfruits typifies His resurrection. Pentecost, fifty days afterward, foreshadowed the work so called in the book of Acts. Blowing of Trumpets and the Day of Propitiation will have their antitypes in the dread judgment period before the thousand years. Tabernacles and Ingathering are the happy harvest festivals, picturing their fullness of blessing in the millennial kingdom. See Lev. 23; Nu. 28¹⁶; 29; Deut. 16; Neh. 8:13-18; Zech. 14¹⁶⁻¹⁹.

This was one of the three times in each year that all the males in Israel were required to appear in the temple in Jerusalem. They were to bring a gift on each occasion. This suggests the three great gifts of God for Israel. At the festival of unleavened bread He gave Himself as the Passover Lamb. At the festival of Pentecost He gave the holy spirit. At the future festival of Tabernacles He will give them the bountiful harvest of His millennial reign. See Deut. 16^{15,18}.

⁶ With the foregoing in view, the action of our Lord is full of meaning. It was not the Passover, hence He could not go up openly and invite death. The time for that had not yet been fulfilled. Still, in obedience to the law, and as a private Israelite, He must go, for in Him must both the letter and the spirit of the law be fulfilled.

It is significant that, while we often read of the Passover, only this once is the festival of Tabernacles brought before us, and now He refuses to go. There is no true Tabernacle festival for Israel until after the true Passover has been slain and all the other feasts have had their fulfillment. In all His acts He was consciously in line with God's revelation.

⁷ And after these things Jesus walked in Galilee, for He did not want to walk in Judea, seeing that ² the Jews sought to kill Him. Now the Jews' festival of Tabernacles ³ was near. His brothers, then, said to Him, "Proceed hence and go into Judea, that your disciples also should be beholding your works ⁴ which you are doing. For no one is doing anything in hiding and he is seeking publicity. If you are doing these things make yourself ⁵ manifest to the world." For neither did His brothers believe into Him.

⁶ Jesus, then, is saying to them, "My time is not as yet present; yet your time is always present, ⁷ ready. The world cannot be hating you, yet it is hating Me, seeing that I am testifying concerning it ⁸ that its acts are wicked. You go up to this festival. I am not going up to this festival, seeing that My time has not as yet been fulfilled. ⁹ Now, saying these things to them, He remains in Galilee.

¹⁰ Yet as His brothers ascend to the festival, then He also ascended, not apparently, but as though in hiding. ¹¹ The Jews, then, sought Him at the festival and said, "Where is ¹² he?" And there was much murmuring about Him among the throngs. These, indeed, said that "He is good," yet others said, "No—. But he is deceiving the ¹³ throng." Howbeit no one spoke boldly concerning Him because of fear of the Jews.

¹⁴ Now at length, midway of the festival, Jesus ascended into the ¹⁵ sanctuary and taught. The Jews,

 15 THE SACRED-place AND TAUGHT MAR-

¹⁰ Here we have the test of a true teacher. The greatest of all Teachers could easily have formulated a philosophy of His own before which all the wisdom of the ages would sink into insignificance. He could have eclipsed Socrates and Plato, discounted Confucius, silenced all the sages. Yet He did not originate a single doctrine, formulate a single principle, invent a single saying of His own. Though the embodiment of truth, He did not claim to be its source, but only its channel.

"My teaching is not Mine, but His Who sends Me" is the disclaimer of the only One Who ever was qualified to teach the truth. It is the highest achievement of the truth seeker to discover that there is no truth outside of God, and originality is inevitably false unless it conforms with truth already immanent in God—which destroys its originality. Truth is one. Its source is God. Its expression is found in Him Who is the Word of God. Happy is the teacher who distrusts his own thoughts, and discards his own theories, and seeks to submerge his own personality by a constant and continuous contact with the living oracles of God! "My teaching is not Mine" will not be a reluctant, humiliating admission, but an exultant and eager desire to give God the glory for truth beyond our powers of apprehension and utterly foreign to our native faculties.

¹⁹ Sinning men are the same today as ever. The truth is always the signal for strife. This is especially so among those who consider themselves the sole depository of truth. We need not suppose that these Jews had a bad conscience in seeking to kill One Who seemed to be undermining their religion. We know that Saul of Tarsus opposed Him conscientiously. So today, Christendom still crucifies the truth, while loud in its professions of loyalty to the Bible. Indeed, so thoroughly has error saturated the atmosphere that it is practically impossible for any one to view the truth except through the haze of error with which each is surrounded. Only continual contact with God's Word will avail us. Only a close acquaintance with the facts of the originals will save us from the prevailing apostasy.

then, marveled, saying, "How is this one acquainted with letters, ¹⁶ not having learned?" Jesus, then, answered them and said, "My teaching is not Mine, but His ¹⁷ Who sends Me. If any one should be wanting to be doing His will, he will know concerning the teaching, whether it is of God or I am ¹⁸ speaking from Myself. He who is speaking from himself is seeking his own glory, yet He who is seeking the glory of Him Who sends Him, this One is true and there is ¹⁹ no injustice in Him. Has not Moses given you the law? And no one of you is doing the law! Why are you seeking to kill Me?" ²⁰ The throng answered, "You have a demon! Who is seeking to ²¹ kill you?" Jesus answered and said to them, "I do one act and ²² you all are marveling. Therefore Moses has given you circumcision (not that it is of Moses, but that it is of the fathers) and on a sabbath you are circumcising a man. ²³ If a man is getting circumcision on a sabbath lest Moses' law should be annulled, do I raise your bile, seeing that I make a whole man ²⁴ sound on a sabbath? Be not judging by a view, but be judging just judgment." ²⁵ Some of the Jerusalemites said, then, "Is not this He Whom they ²⁶ are seeking to kill? And lo! He is speaking boldly! And are they saying nothing to Him, lest at some time the chiefs truly know that ²⁷ this is the Christ? But we are aware whence this man is, yet whenever Christ may be coming, no one is knowing Him, whence He is."

²⁸ Perhaps nowhere is the utter futility of human efforts to frustrate God's plans so evident as in this scene. It was God's definite counsel that they should slay Him. This they were all too eager to do. But the feast of Tabernacles was not the fit time for His sacrifice. So He boldly enters the sanctuary, the stronghold of His enemies. The Pharisees send deputies to arrest Him, but they simply do not do it, being restrained by an irresistible reluctance which they could not account for themselves. Like Daniel, He was in the lions' den, but God had shut the lions' mouths.

God uses human wrath for His own ends and restrains its activities to accord with His purpose. He has all his enemies on a leash beyond which they cannot range. Satan himself is limited, and allowed to do only that which will eventuate in good. So it proved in the case of Job, and who can doubt that his case was typical?

³³ When the deputies come to arrest Him, He is not disturbed, but calmly gives an outline of what will happen to Him in the future. It was still six months until the Passover, and He knew they could not arrest Him till then. So He says "Still a little time I am with you." Nor does He acknowledge that they will be successful in taking Him then, for it is His permission, not their power, that accomplishes it. So He simply says "and I am going to Him Who sends Me."

³⁴ The statement "where I am you cannot be coming" cannot be taken as their everlasting reprobation, for He uses the very same words to His disciples on a later occasion (13³³). Indeed, the form of the verb is the present active "be coming", not the indefinite "come". Even the unbeliever enters the presence of Christ in the resurrection of judgment.

³⁵ The Jews, in our Lord's day, were scattered all over the known earth, but were especially numerous in Egypt. Alexandria rivalled Jerusalem as a center of Jewry, but its culture was strongly Greek.

²⁸ Jesus, then, cries in the sanctuary, teaching and saying, "You are acquainted with Me also, and you are aware whence I am, and I have not come from Myself, but He Who sends Me is true, with Whom ²⁹ you are not acquainted. Yet I am acquainted with Him, seeing that I am from Him, and He has commissioned Me." They sought, then, to arrest Him, and no one laid a hand on Him, seeing that His hour had not as yet come.

³¹ Now many of the throng believe into Him, and said, "When Christ should come, He will be doing no more signs than this Man does!"

³³ Jesus, then, said, "Still a little time I am with you, and I am going to Him Who sends Me. You will be seeking Me and you shall not be finding Me. And where I am there you cannot be coming."

³⁵ The Jews, then, said to themselves, "Whither is He about to go, that we shall not be finding him? He is not about to go to the dispersion of the Greeks and teach the ³⁶ Greeks? What is this word which he said, 'You will be seeking me and you shall not be finding me, and where I am you cannot be coming'?"

³⁷ Now on the last, the great day of the festival, Jesus stood, and cries, saying, "If any one should be thirsting, let him come to Me and drink. He who is believing into Me, according as the scripture said, out of his bowel shall gush rivers of ³⁹ living water." Now this He said

A prophet, in the Scriptures, is not primarily one who predicts the future, but one who has a message from God. It is a well-nigh universal rule that God's message and its bearer must first be refused. Indeed, the "Prophet like Moses" must follow the footsteps of the type, and, in his first efforts to save His people He must be opposed by the people themselves. This shows us that we must not lay too much stress on human "responsibility" (a term unknown to the Scriptures), for, if the Jews had received the Lord, He would not have been the true Prophet. They were obliged to reject Him!

⁴¹ "Galilee of the nations" and especially the town of Nazareth, were held in contempt by pious Jews. The term "Nazarene" is a term of reproach, never used by His friends. From it could come no Christ. Messiah must be born in Bethlehem, the city of King David, and as they should have known, the birthplace of his greater Son. Let us never be guilty of calling Him a Nazarene, and thus class ourselves with His worst enemies and murderers.

concerning the spirit which those believing into Him were about to get. For holy spirit was not as yet given, seeing that Jesus was not as yet glorified.

⁴⁰ Among the throng, then, hearing of these sayings, they said, ⁴¹ "This truly is the prophet!" Others said, "This is the Christ!" Yet they said, "For Christ is not coming out of Galilee! Did not the scriptures say that Christ is coming of the seed of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David ⁴³ was?" There came, then, to be a schism in the throng because of ⁴⁴ Him. Yet some from among them wanted to arrest Him, but no one laid hands on Him.

⁴⁵ The deputies, then, came to the chief priests and Pharisees and they said to them, "Wherefore did ⁴⁶ you not lead him?" Now the deputies answered, "No man ever ⁴⁷ speaks thus!" The Pharisees, then, answered them, "Are you also deceived? Does anyone from among the chiefs believe into him, or from ⁴⁹ among the Pharisees? But this throng that knows not the law is accursed."

⁵⁰ Nicodemus is saying to them (who formerly came to Him, who ⁵¹ is one of them), "Is our law judging a man, except it should first be hearing from him and may be knowing what he is doing?" ⁵² They answered and say to him, "Are you also out of Galilee? Search and perceive that out of Galilee is no prophet being roused."

⁸¹² Again, then, Jesus speaks to them, saying, "I am the light of the world. He who is following Me should under no circumstances be Pharisees, then, said to Him, "You are testifying about yourself. Your 14 testimony is not true!" Jesus answered and said to them, "And if I should be testifying about Myself, My testimony is true, seeing that I am aware whence I came and whither I am going, yet you are not aware whence I am coming 15 or whither I am going. You are judging according to the flesh: I 16 am not judging any one. And yet if I should be judging, My judgment is true, seeing that I am not alone, but I and the Father Who 17 sends Me. Yet in this law also of yours it is written, that 'The testi-18 mony of two men is true.' I am the One testifying about Myself, and the Father Who sends Me is testifying about Me."

 19 They said, then, to Him, "Where is your father?" Jesus answered and said, "You are not acquainted with either Me or My Father. If you were acquainted with Me, you should be acquainted with My Fa-20 ther also." These declarations He speaks in the treasury, teaching in the sanctuary, and no one arrests Him, seeing that His hour had not as yet come.
 21 He said, then, again to them, "I am going and you will be seeking Me, and you shall be dying in your sin. Where I am going you cannot 22 be coming." The Jews, then, said, "He will not be killing himself, seeing that he is saying, 'Where I am going, you cannot be coming' 23 ?" He said, then, to them, "You are of that which is below, I am of that which is above: you are of this 24 world, I am not of this world. I

⁵³ And they went each to his home.
 8 Now Jesus went to the mount of Olives.'

² Now early He again came along into the sanctuary, and the entire people come to Him. And being seated, He taught them. ³ Now the scribes and Pharisees are leading a woman who has been overtaken in adultery, and, standing her in the midst, ⁴ they are saying to Him, "Teacher, this woman has been overtaken and detected in adultery. ⁵ Now in our law, Moses directs that such are to be stoned. What then are you saying?" ⁶ Now this they said to try Him, that they may have something to accuse Him of.

Now Jesus, stooping down, wrote with a finger in the earth. ⁷ Now as they persisted asking Him, He unbends and said to them, "Let the sinless one of you first be casting a stone at her." And, stooping again, He wrote in the earth. ⁸ Now those hearing it came out one by one, beginning with the elders, to the last.

And Jesus was left alone, the woman also being in the midst. ¹⁰ Unbending, Jesus said to her, "Woman, where are they? Does no one condemn you?" ¹¹ Now she said, "No one, Lord!" Now Jesus said, "Neither am I condemning you! Go! From now on be sinning no longer!"

⁵³⁻¹¹ As this passage is not contained in any of the three manuscripts on which the CONCORDANT VERSION is based, it could not be included in our text. Two leaves of Alexandrinus are lost at this point, but a careful calculation of the number of lines shows that the lost leaves did not contain this story. Besides, the evidence of ancient versions and other manuscripts is so much against its retention in the text that no editor gives it a place, unless within brackets.

Nevertheless, the story is so fully in harmony with the grace of Christ that we question whether it could have any other source. Hence we are constrained to class it among the many things which He did of which there is no inspired record, and give the Greek and sublinear, as well as a version, so that no one may have cause to complain of its omission.

said, then, to you, that you shall be dying in your sins. For if you should not be believing Me that I am, you shall be dying in your sins."

²⁵ They said, then, to Him, "Who are you?" Jesus, then, said to them, "What I am speaking also to ²⁶ you from the beginning. I have much to be speaking and judging concerning you, but the Father Who sends Me is true, and what I hear from Him, these things I am ²⁷ speaking to the world." They know not that He said this to them of the Father.

²⁸ Jesus, then, said to them again that "Whenever you should exalt the Son of Mankind, then you will know that I am, and from Myself I am doing nothing, but, according as My Father teaches Me, thus I am ²⁹ speaking. And He Who sends Me is with Me. He does not leave Me alone, seeing that I am always doing what is pleasing to Him." At ³⁰ His speaking these things, many believe into Him.

³¹ Jesus, then, said to the Jews who have believed in Him, "If you should be remaining in My word, ³² you are truly My disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will be making you free." ³³ They answered Him, "We are Abraham's seed, and we have never been slaves of anyone. How are you saying that 'You shall be becoming free'?"

³⁴ Jesus answered them, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you that everyone who is doing sin, is a ³⁵ slave of sin. Now the slave is not remaining in the house for the eon. The son is remaining for the eon. ³⁶ If, then, the Son should be making you free, you will be really free.

²⁰ Nothing would so swiftly and surely prove the undoing of an impostor as the claim that he always pleases God. Of all living, only One has been able to stand such a severe test. In the mouth of any one else the claim to perfect obedience would sound preposterous. The very assumption itself would be displeasing to God and derided by men. It would be a proof of spiritual pride. But in His mouth it was perfectly natural. Instead of taking exception to it they seemed struck by the fact and what it involved, and, as a result, believed on Him.

This is one of the glories of Christ which makes Him a solitary figure in the annals of mankind. There have been philosophers and good men, but the best have not been flawless. Indeed, they do not dare to claim absolute perfection. Yet we see this apparently humble peasant of Palestine challenging a hostile world to discover in His acts a single word or work which does not glorify God and benefit man. Whoever should dare to criticize Him condemns himself.

⁴⁴ All sin, in the Scriptures, seems to be traced back to the Slanderer or Satan. Adam sinned at his suggestion. He is the father of all that is false. Being a creature of God, it has been a perplexing problem to account for him without incriminating God Himself. It is usual to insist that he was created perfect and, at a later stage, fell into sin. But this is no real relief. The impulse to sin, in that case, came from without instead of within, and it, in turn, demands an explanation. The Slanderer sinned from the beginning. He was a murderer from the beginning. The Scriptures plainly teach that he was created a Slanderer and a Satan.

The solution of the ultimate source of sin lies in its nature. Sin is essentially a mistake. It means to miss the mark, to fall short of a given standard. With this definition in mind, it is easy to see how God could create a creature to sin, if that were necessary to the fulfillment of His purpose. He would not be making any mistake in doing this. He would not sin. On the contrary, if He created Satan perfect, and had no intention or desire that he ³⁷ I am aware that you are Abraham's seed. But you are seeking to kill Me, seeing that there is no

³⁸ room for My word in you. I am speaking of what I have seen with My Father. You also, then, are doing what you hear from your father."

³⁹ They answered and said to Him, "Our father is Abraham." Jesus answered them, "If you are children of Abraham, you would be doing the works of Abraham. Yet now you are seeking to kill Me, a Man Who has spoken to you the truth which I hear from God. This ⁴¹ does not Abraham. Yet you are doing the works of your father."

They say to Him, "We were not begotten of prostitution! We have one Father, God!"

⁴² Then Jesus said to them, "If God were your Father, you should have loved Me, for I came forth and am arriving out of God. For neither have I come of Myself, but ⁴³ He commissions Me. Wherefore you know not My speech, seeing that you cannot hear My word.
⁴⁴ You are of your father the Slanderer, and the desires of your father you are wanting to do. He was a man-killer from the beginning, and has not stood in the truth, seeing that truth is not in him. Whenever he should be talking of that which is false, he is talking of his own, seeing that he is a ⁴⁵ liar, and the father of it. Yet I—seeing that I am speaking the truth, ⁴⁶ you are not believing in Me. Is anyone of you exposing Me concerning sin? If I am telling the truth, wherefore are you not be-should sin, then God did make a mistake. The sinfulness of Satan is the strongest evidence of the sinlessness of God.

The essence of God is love. It demands exercise. God must be made known. He will be a Saviour; His purpose demands the presence of sin. He makes a medium—the Slanderer—to inject the virus into creation. He rescues His creatures and gains their affection. He banishes sin. Sin is His servant. He will justify all sin when He has made it a means of bringing His creatures into heart intimacy with Himself.

⁴⁶ What a challenge to the self-righteous Jews! They claimed a sinless God for a father, yet hated His sinless Son. Without any pretentious effort whatever, He calmly went His way without making a single misstep!

⁵⁸ The Jehovah Who appeared to Abraham was none other than the Word, which now, having become flesh, was speaking to his apostate descendants. God Himself is invisible. The One that Abraham saw was in the form of God before He descended into the likeness of man (Phil.2⁶). It is important to note that the Logos became flesh. It had an existence previous to this apart from flesh. It had a form, human in appearance, because humanity was created in its likeness. As Elohim, He appears to Adam in the garden, and even after his expulsion. As El Shaddai He appeared to Abraham, and gave him the promises. As Adonai He appeared in Isaiah's vision, pronouncing Israel's doom.

fore you are not hearing, seeing that you are not of God."

⁴⁸ The Jews answered and say to Him, "Are we not saying ideally that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?"

⁴⁹ Jesus answered and said, "I have no demon, but I am honoring My Father and you are dishonoring Me. Now I am not seeking My glory. There is One Who is seeking and judging. Verily, verily, I am saying to you, if anyone should be keeping My word, he should under no circumstances be beholding death for the eon."

⁵² The Jews said to Him, "Now we know that you have a demon. Abraham died, and the prophets, and you are saying, 'If anyone should be keeping My word, he should under no circumstances be tasting death for the eon.' Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? And the prophets died. What are you making yourself?"

⁵⁴ Jesus answered, "If I should be glorifying Myself, My glory is nothing. It is My Father Who is glorifying Me, of Whom you are saying that He is your God. And you know Him not, yet I am acquainted with Him, and if I should be saying that I am not acquainted with Him, I shall be a liar like you. But I am acquainted with Him and ⁵⁵ I am keeping His word. Your father Abraham exults that he may become acquainted with My day, and he was acquainted with it and rejoiced."

⁵⁷ The Jews, then, said to Him, "You are not yet fifty years, and ⁵⁸ you have seen Abraham!" Jesus said to them, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you, ere Abraham ⁵⁹ came into being, I am." They

Why was this man born blind? The Jews took it for granted, as many do today, that all evil comes from sin, and that every one is responsible for his own condition. This is absolutely false. Evil and sin are not outside of God's plan. They are essential to the highest happiness of the creature and the greatest glory of the Creator. This man's case was a concrete example. His healing was not because he was blind, but he was blind in order that he might recover sight, and thus God's acts may be manifested and God Himself may become known. This is true of all evil and all sin. God has introduced it into the world in order that He may display His attributes in coping with it and in removing it when its mission has been accomplished. The experience of evil and sin is transient; the memory of it will never pass away, but will always remain as the essential background apart from which God's goodness and grace never could be revealed. God's heart would always remain hidden apart from evil and sin.

If this man's blindness had never been removed it would have revealed God's impotence and hate. So, if evil and sin are eternal, they will throw their darkest shadow upon the character and feelings of God, and thus defeat the very object for which they exist. But they are not eternal. Sin will be repudiated at the conclusion of the eons (Heb.9²⁰). Only in this way can the works of God be manifested. It is useless for us to blame our parents for our sin, for they also inherited it. Even Adam could point to Eve and Eve to the serpent. We should rather thank God for it, and rejoice in the glory that it brings to God.

pick up stones, then, that they should be casting them at Him. Yet Jesus was hid and came out of the sanctuary. And coming through the midst of them, He went and thus passed by.

⁹ And, passing along, He perceived a man blind from birth.
² And His disciples ask Him, saying, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he should be born blind?" Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but it is that the works of God may
⁴ Saying these things, He spits on the ground and makes mud of the spittle, and anoints the eyes of the blind with the mud, and said
⁵ to him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam" (which is, being translated, "commissioned"). He came away, then, and washes, and came, observing.

¹⁰ They said, then, to him, "How, then, were your eyes opened?" He answered and said, "The Man Who is termed 'Jesus' makes mud and anoints my eyes, and said to me, 'Go to Siloam pool and wash.' Coming away, then, and washing,
¹² I recover sight." And they say

The blind man represents Israel. Why were they blind? Paul tells us in the eleventh of Romans. God locks all up together in stubbornness, that He may be merciful to all (Ro.11³²). Because they were blinded they refused their Messiah and thus made it possible for God to pour out the riches of His grace on the nations. Their blindness makes it possible for Him to save them with a great salvation when He once again takes them to Himself, and thus He engages their affections. Those who see, revile Him. The blind man worships Him.

⁶ Before healing the blind man He increases his blindness by covering his eyes with mud. What does this mean? It corresponds with His treatment of Israel. He finds the nation blind, but instead of healing them then, He fulfills the saying of Isaiah, "He has blinded their eyes and callouses their heart, lest they may be perceiving with their eyes, and should be apprehending with their heart, and turn about, and I should be healing them" (12⁴⁰). Siloam means "commissioned". He continually referred to Himself as the One Whom God had sent. When the Lord appears in glory, then they will wash in Siloam and see Him Who has been commissioned by God for their blessing. The blind man's spiritual recovery corresponded to his physical healing, for he said "Except this Man were from God, He could be doing nothing" (³³).

¹³ The Pharisees were the blindest of the blind. Though the most zealous and religious of all the Jewish sects, their self confidence and hypocrisy made them the bitterest enemies of Christ and the truth. They claimed to be the spiritual leaders of the nation, hence receive the greater judgment. They boasted that they were not blind like the rest so that their sin remained. The disciples were confident that either the blind man or his parents had sinned; the Lord shows them that to him "Where is that one?" He is saying, "I am not aware."

¹³ They are leading him, who once ¹⁴ was blind, to the Pharisees. Now it was on a sabbath day that Jesus makes mud and opens up his eyes. ¹⁵ Again, then, the Pharisees also asked him how he recovers sight. Now he said to them, "He places mud on my eyes, and I wash, and ¹⁶ I am observing." Some of the Pharisees, then, said, "This man is not from God, seeing that he is not keeping the sabbath." Yet others said, "How can a man who is a sinner be doing such signs?" And there was a schism among them.

¹⁷ They are saying, then, again to him who once was blind, "What are you saying about him, that he opens your eyes?" Now he said ¹⁸ that "He is a prophet." The Jews, then, do not believe about him, that he was blind and recovers sight, till they summon the parents ¹⁹ of him who recovers sight. And they ask them, saying, "Is this your son, of whom you say that he was born blind? How, then, is he at present observing?"

²⁰ His parents, then, answered and say, "We are aware that this is our son and that he was born blind.

²¹ Yet how he is now observing, we are not aware, or who opens his eyes we are not aware. Ask him. He is of age. He will be speaking

²² about himself." His parents said these things seeing that they feared the Jews, for the Jews had already agreed that if anyone should be avowing Him to be Christ, he should be put out of the

the Pharisees are the real sinners. This they soon demonstrate by their attempt to prove that His gracious act was not in accord with God's holy law. They had corrupted the law by their tradition.

¹⁶ It is notable how many of our Lord's recorded signs were done on the sabbath. Doubtless this indicates the fact that their antitype is to be found in the sabbatism which comes at His epiphany. When man ceases work, then is the time for God to act. Man's struggles hinder His operations and obscure the glory which invests His deeds. How blind the Pharisees were to this great truth is apparent from the fact that some of them actually insisted that the Lord Himself was the sinner! How far astray are all of man's perceptions! The disciples supposed it must be the blind man or his parents, the Pharisees fasten guilt on the Lord, but only He sees the truth, that the religious, self-righteous Pharisees are blind sinners above all the rest.

²⁴ The double testimony given to the Pharisees may be a premonition of the second witness to the truth which was given to the nation, as recorded in the book of Acts. There also they give Moses and the law a place above our Lord and His apostles, who were "illiterate and ordinary men" (Ac.4¹³), not fit to teach scholars like themselves! But what the blind man lacked in scholarship he more than made up in common sense and spiritual discernment. He is amazed at their ignorance!

³⁴ "They cast him out." This was most dreaded among the Jews, for it meant social as well as religious ostracism. How painful it is, even now, to be cast out of religious organizations, for it has all the semblance of being cast off by God Himself. But today, even as it was then, it usually is a token of divine favor such as the Philipians enjoyed (Phil.1²⁹), and leads to a more intimate and precious acquaintance with our Saviour. Indeed, we should deem it an exalted privilege to suffer for and with Christ and His truth. There is no higher token of His regard or surer way to His reward than association with Him in His rejection.

say that "He is of age. Inquire of him."

²⁴ A second [time], then, they summon the man who was blind and they say to him, "Give the glory to God. We are aware that this man is a sinner."

²⁵ He, then, answered "I am not aware if He is a sinner: one thing I am aware of, that, being blind, at present I am observing."

²⁶ They said, then, to him, again, "What does he do to you? How does he open your eyes?"

²⁷ He answered them, "I told you already, and you do not hear. Why, then, are you wanting to be hearing again? Are you also wanting to become His disciples?"

²⁸ Now they revile him and said, "You are a disciple of that one, yet we are disciples of Moses. We are aware that God has spoken to Moses, yet this man—we are not aware whence he is."

³⁰ The man answered and said to them, "For in this is a marvelous thing, that you are not aware whence He is, and He opens my eyes! We are aware that God is not hearing sinners, but if anyone should be a reverer of God and doing His will, him He is hearing."

³² From out of the eon it is not heard that anyone opens the eyes of one having been born blind. Except this Man were from God, He could be doing nothing."

³⁴ They answered and say to him, "You were wholly born in sins, and are you teaching us?" And they cast him out.

³⁵ Jesus hears that they cast him out, and, finding him, said to him, "Are you believing into the Son of Mankind?"

The sheep runs were usually in wild, unfrequented spots, infested by bold Bedouin robbers and by wild beasts, such as the jackal, the hyena, the bear, the leopard, and the lion. David battled with a lion and a bear while he kept the sheep of his father (1 Sa. 17³⁶). For this purpose the shepherd had a stout oak club (A. V. "rod") about two feet long, with a large knob on one end studded with heavy iron nails. The other end had a noose for his wrist to help him hold it, or for fastening to his leather girdle when not in use. The shepherd had this club and a crook (rod and staff), one for the sheep's enemies, the other for the sheep themselves. With one he led them, with the other he defended them, even at the risk of his life.

³⁶ He answered and said, "And Who is He, Lord, that I should be believing into Him?"

³⁷ Now Jesus said to him, "You have also seen Him, and He Who is speaking with you is He."

¹⁰ Verily, verily, I am saying to you, he who is not entering through the door into the sheepfold, but is climbing up elsewhere, that one is a ² thief and a robber. Now he who is entering through the door is the ³ sheep's shepherd. To him the door-keeper is opening, and the sheep are hearing his voice, and he is summoning his own sheep by name and ⁴ is leading them out. And whenever he should be ejecting all his own, he is going in front of them and the sheep are following him, seeing that they are acquainted ⁵ with his voice. Now under no circumstances will they be following an outsider, but they will be fleeing from him, seeing that they are not acquainted with the voice ⁶ of outsiders." Jesus told them this proverb, yet they know not what it was that He spoke to them.

⁷ Jesus, then, said to them again, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you, that I am the Door of the

The Psalmist insists that "We (Israel) are the people of His pasture and the sheep of His hand" (Psa. 95⁷. See also Ps. 74¹; 77²⁰; 78^{52,70}; 79¹³; 80¹). Isaiah foretells the time when He shall feed His flock as a Shepherd (Isa. 40¹¹). Jeremiah pronounces a woe on the spiritual shepherds in Israel and predicts their return out of the countries whither He had driven them (Jer. 23¹⁻⁴). Ezekiel speaks at length of the nation under this figure (Eze. 34¹⁻²⁴). Now our Lord takes up the same metaphor and announces Himself as the true Shepherd of Israel.

This figure is carried through the Circumcision epistles. Peter is especially commissioned to feed His sheep (21¹⁶) and exhorts his readers to do the same. This figure is never used of the nations in the present economy of grace, except in the faded metaphor "pastors". It is a figure peculiarly adapted to the kingdom, for the true King is a shepherd, as David was. Instead of His people guarding and gorging Him, He feeds and defends them. Our translators have actually rendered the verb "rule" on four occasions (Mt. 26; Un. 2²⁷; 12⁵; 19¹⁵). The nations, as such, are figured by wild beasts, such as a lion, a leopard, or a bear. Our relation to Christ is far more intimate than even the tender Eastern shepherd toward His sheep, for He is our Head, and we are members of His body. The actual body of Christ is the only living form from earth in the heavens and it is the picture of our celestial place and dignity, as well as our vital contact with our Head.

³ John the baptist was the door keeper who opened the door to the true Shepherd. Many another has come claiming to be Israel's shepherd, but they did not come in God's appointed way.

⁴ The Eastern shepherd never drives his sheep. He calls them. They will not follow a strange voice.

¹⁶ The dispersion, outside the land, was reached by Peter (1 Pet. 1¹), in his two epistles.

⁸ sheep. All that ever came before Me are thieves and robbers, but the ⁹ sheep hear them not. I am the Door. If anyone should be entering through Me, he shall be saved, and will be entering and coming out and will be finding pasture.
¹⁰ The thief is not coming except that he should be stealing and sacrificing and destroying. I came that they may be having conian life, and having it superabundantly.

¹¹ I am the ideal Shepherd. The ideal shepherd is laying down his soul for the sake of the sheep.
¹² Now the hireling, not being the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, is beholding the wolf coming, and is deserting the sheep and fleeing. And the wolf is snatching them ¹³ and is scattering the sheep. Yet the hireling is fleeing, seeing that he is a hireling and is not caring about the sheep.

¹⁵ According as the Father knows Me, I also know the Father, and I am laying down My soul for the sake of the sheep.

¹⁶ And other sheep I have which are not of this fold. Those also I must be leading, and they will be hearing My voice, and they will be becoming one flock, one Shepherd.

¹⁷ Therefore the Father is loving Me, seeing that I am laying down My soul that I may be getting it again.
¹⁸ No one is taking it away from Me, but I am laying it down of Myself. I have the right to lay it down and I have the right to take it again. This precept I got from My Father."

²² The Dedications must refer to the rededication of the temple, after three years' profanation by Antiochus Epiphanes, in the days of Judas Maccabeus, for Solomon's temple was dedicated in the seventh month, which was about the autumnal equinox, Zerubbabel's temple was dedicated in the twelfth month, the beginning of spring, but Judas Maccabeus held his dedication for eight days, beginning on the twenty-fifth day of the seventh month—in the midst of winter. Besides, neither Solomon nor Zerubbabel made it an annual celebration. Josephus tells about it in his Antiquities, book XII, chapter 7. He takes his account from the first book of Maccabees, IV, 36-59, and the second book, X, 5-8.

This festival was not of divine appointment, and mars the great series of seven festivals which are a prophetic forecast of Israel's history. These are in two groups, one of which has been fulfilled, and one still future. The Passover, Unleavened, Firstfruit, and Pentecost are history now. Trumpets, Propitiation, and Tabernacles will be fulfilled when Israel is again in God's reckoning. After the millennium, which is the antitype of Tabernacles, there will not be a rededication of the temple. On the contrary, the temple and its worship will be superseded by reconciliation where no ritual is needed.

The Dedications was a sentimental, human anniversary, which never would have been instituted had the people not been blind to the marvelous meaning of Jehovah's perfect series of festivals. It is usually called the feast of Lights. Such it was to the blind man! But to the Jews as a nation, this light—human amendment of the law and the ritual—was darkness, and how great was their darkness! If our faith is in man and his works, how futile it is!

The many church festivals of today are like the Dedications, without foundation in truth, however they may appeal to religious sentiment. God's festivals were filled with spiritual significance and force, which now demands the non-observance of days and set seasons.

¹⁹ Again there came to be a schism among the Jews because of these words. Now many of them said, "He has a demon and is mad. ²⁰ Why are you hearing Him?" Yet others said, "These declarations are not of demons. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?"

²² Now there came to be the Dedications in Jerusalem, and it was winter. And Jesus walked in the sanctuary in the portico of Solomon. The Jews, then, surround Him, and they said to Him, "Till when are you lifting our soul? If you are the Christ tell us boldly."

²⁵ Jesus answered them, "I told you, and you are not believing. The works which I am doing in the name of My Father, these are testifying concerning Me. But you are not believing, seeing that you are not of My sheep, according as I said to you.

²⁷ My sheep are hearing My voice, and I know them, and they are following Me. And I am giving them eternal life, and they should by no means be destroyed for the eon, and no one shall be snatching them out of My hand. My Father, Who has given them to Me, is greater than all and no one is able to be snatching them out of My Father's hand. I and the Father are one."

³¹ Again, then, the Jews bear stones that they should be stoning Him. Jesus answered them, "Many ideal acts I show you from My Father. Because of which act ³³ of them are you stoning Me?" The Jews answered Him, "For an ideal act we are not stoning you, but for blasphemy, and that you,

³⁴ The term "gods" is translated "judges" in Ex. 21^a; 22^{a,9,9}, where it refers to men. But our Lord does not appeal to this, but to Psalm 82^a where the context clearly excludes men. The mighty spiritual powers of wickedness who overrule the affairs of mankind are called sons by God Himself. Even Satan is called a son of God (Job 1^a). He is called the god of this eon (2 Co. 4^a). Now if God said to him and his hosts, "Ye are gods", notwithstanding the fact that they failed to right the wrongs of earth, how much rather shall He have called Him God Who shall disposses them? To Him God says (Psa. 82^a):

Rise, O God! Judge the earth,
For Thou shalt be allotted all nations.

He had been undoing the deeds of these sons of God and doing all that was foretold of Him before their very eyes. And yet they thought they were not blind!

¹ The rousing of Lazarus from among the dead is the seventh and last sign in John's account. Each succeeding sign finds the nation on a lower level. At the marriage feast of Cana they lacked the joy and gladness of the kingdom; the infirm man at Bethesda's pool lacked power; the disciples on the sea, tossed by the tempest, lacked peace; the blind man lacked sight; but Lazarus lacked life. The apostasy of the nation had developed to such a degree that death was the fittest symbol to describe them.

This is the condition of Israel in the latter days, as the prophet Ezekiel saw them in the valley of dry bones (Eze. 37³). The question is asked, "Shall these bones live?" And the bones are roused from death, and enter the land of Israel.

⁴ The cause of Lazarus' infirmity was not sin, as in the case of the man at Bethesda. It was the necessary prelude to the manifestation of His glory. Indeed, the Lord deliberately delayed His departure in order that he should die. So He deals with Israel. Their great cry is "Till when?" (Isa. 61¹). Their restoration to life is postponed until they are beyond all hope, until their resurrection, spiritually as well as physically, is manifestly the work of the Lord.

being a man, are making yourself God."

³⁴ Jesus answered them, "Is it not written in your law, that 'I said
³⁵ you are gods'? If He said those were gods to whom the word of God came (and the scripture cannot be annulled), are you saying to Him Whom the Father hallows and dispatches into the world that 'You are blaspheming,' seeing that ³⁷ I said, 'I am the Son of God'? If I am not doing My Father's ³⁸ works, do not be believing Me. Yet if I am doing them, and if you are not believing Me, be believing in the works, that you may be knowing and believing that the Father is in Me and I am in the Father.'" ³⁹ Then again they sought to arrest Him, and He came out of their hand.

⁴⁰ And He came away again to the other side of the Jordan into the place where John was formerly baptizing, and He remains there. ⁴¹ And many came to Him, and they said that "John, indeed, does not one sign, yet all, whatever John said concerning this One was true." ⁴² And many believe into Him there.

⁴ Yet Jesus, hearing it, said, "This infirmity is not to death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God should be glorified through ⁵ it." Now Jesus loved Martha and

¹¹ Repose is the favorite figure of death in the Scriptures. Only four times is it used of the actual repose of sleep (Mt. 27⁵²; 28¹³; Lu. 22⁴⁵; Ac. 12⁶). Fourteen times is it found in its figurative sense (Jn. 11^{11,12}; Ac. 7⁶⁰; 13³⁶; 1 Co. 7³⁹; 11³⁰; 15^{6,18,20,51}; 1 Th. 4^{13,14,15}; 2 Pt. 3⁴). It is used of both believers and unbelievers (1 Co. 7³⁹). It likens death to that beneficial aspect of sleep which restores us to physical vigor and vitality. Death itself is an enemy, so we must look to the resurrection as the true inspiration for this figure. This is beautifully pictured in the case of Lazarus. Had he actually found repose in sleep he would doubtless have recovered. But his death amounted to no more than this after the Lord had restored his life by resurrection.

Of his experience in death we are told nothing, for this figure precludes the thought. Normal sleep is itself without sensation, and "the repose of sleep" is unbroken oblivion until the awakening.

¹⁵ We know that the Lord was fond of Lazarus (³). How strange, then, to hear Him say "Lazarus died. And I am rejoicing . . .!" We might have said, "I am sorrowing." It is our privilege, also, to look about us on all the distress and disaster and death and rejoice, not in the calamities themselves, but in the glory which will accrue to God when He deals with them. It is only as we see God's beneficent purpose in our trials that we can really endure them with joyfulness.

¹⁷ The four days may suggest the time during which the nation lies lifeless, before the resurrection of the day of the Lord. First they were under the law, and this dealt out death. Then came the personal ministry of Messiah which showed them to be but a corrupt corpse. The rejection of the apostolic testimony in the Acts leaves them still worse. They become most offensive in the day of wrath.

⁶ her sister and Lazarus. As, then, He hears that he is infirm, then, indeed, He remains two days in the place where He was.

⁷ Thereupon, after this, He is saying to His disciples, "We may be going into Judea again." The disciples are saying to Him, "Rabbi, the Jews now sought to stone Thee, and art Thou going there again?"

¹⁰ Yet if anyone should be walking in the night, he is stumbling, seeing that the light is not in him."

¹¹ He said these things, and after this He is saying to them, "Lazarus, our friend, has found repose, but I am going that I should be awakening him out of sleep."

¹² The disciples, then, said to Him, "Lord, if he has repose, he shall be saved."

¹³ Now Jesus had made a declaration concerning his death, yet they suppose that He is saying it of the repose of sleep.

¹⁴ Jesus, then, said to them boldly, then, "Lazarus died. And I am rejoicing because of you, that you should be believing, seeing that I was not there. But we may be going to him."

¹⁵ Thomas, then, who is termed "Didymus", said to his fellow disciples, "We also may be going, that we may be dying with Him."

¹⁷ Jesus, then, on coming into Bethany, found he had been in the tomb four days already. Now Bethany was near Jerusalem about fifteen

²⁵ The striking phrase "and the Life" is the clue to the great truth here unfolded by our Lord. To His assertion that "Your brother will be rising" Martha assents, for she knew that all would rise "at the last day". But this falls far short of the truth. There are two resurrections. One He called "the resurrection of life", the other "the resurrection of judgment" (5²⁹). As resurrection necessarily implies life, it will be seen that the word "life" is used in an intensified sense. The "resurrection of life" imparts eonian life, while the resurrection of judgment leads to eonian death.

Our Lord is seeking to comfort Martha by that best of all consolations, the vivification of all His own at His presence, long before "the last day", at the very commencement of the millennial eon. Seventy-five days after His glorious epiphany He will rouse the saints in Israel and commence their righteous reign over the earth. "Happy and holy is he who has a part in the former resurrection: over these the second death has no jurisdiction, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will be reigning with Him the thousand years" (Un.20^a).

The saints of this present economy of transcendent grace will be given life even before this, as explained in 1 Th.4 13-18; 1 Co. 15⁵¹⁻⁵⁵; Eph.1¹²; Phil. 3²⁰. The presence, or parousia, of Christ spreads over a period of time, in which all His own are called out of death to eonian life.

Only three resurrections lead to immortality. First, that of Christ Himself, second, that at His future "presence" including those who are His, and, lastly, all mankind, at the consummation, when all will be made alive (1 Co. 15²²⁻²⁶). This great truth is the only real comfort in the presence of bereavement. Christ never stood in the presence of death without vanquishing it. He is the Life! Since this life beyond the reach of death is imparted only on these three occasions, it follows that every other resurrection is not a "resurrection of life". Those raised in the past and those at the great white throne are still subject to death. They are not made immortal until the consummation, when death is abolished, and life is the portion of all.

²⁰ Martha, then, as she hears that Jesus is coming, meets Him. Yet Mary was seated in the house.

²¹ Martha, then, said to Jesus, "Lord, if Thou wert here, my brother would not have died. But even now I am aware that whatever Thou shouldst be requesting of God, God will be giving to Thee."

²³ Jesus is saying to her, "Your brother will be rising."

²⁴ Martha is saying to Him, "I am aware that he will be rising in the resurrection in the last day."

²⁵ Jesus said to her, "I am the Resurrection and the Life. He who is believing into Me, even if he should be dying, will be living. And everyone who is living and believing into Me should by no means be dying for the eon. Are you believing this?"

²⁷ She is saying to Him, "Yes. Lord, I have believed that Thou art the Christ, the Son of God, Who is coming into the world." And saying this she came away and summons Miriam, her sister, covertly, saying, "The Teacher is present and is summoning you."

²⁹ Now as she hears, she was roused swiftly and came to Him.

³⁰ Now Jesus had not as yet come into the village, but was still in the place where Martha meets Him.

³¹ The Jews, then, who are with her in the house and are comforting her, perceiving Mary, that she rose quickly and came out, follow her, supposing that she is going into the tomb that she should be lamenting there.

³² Mary, then, as she came where Jesus was, perceiving Him, falls at His feet, saying to Him, "Lord, if Thou wert here, my brother would not have died!"

We have here a touching example of the experience recorded by the apostle Paul: "as sorrowful, yet ever rejoicing" (2 Co. 6¹⁰). Or, in our Lord's case, we should reverse it, for He rejoiced first of all, yet felt for His friends who had not His faith. It is a mistake to suppose that confidence in the ultimate benefits of sorrow will put us out of sympathy with it. It is intended to stir our emotions. It is designed to touch us to tears. Otherwise, it would fail to accomplish the object for which it exists. Our sorrows and heartaches are none the less real because we know their glorious outcome. All their ultimate value lies in their contrast with the tearless felicity for which they are a preparation.

³⁹ Of the three who were raised from the dead by our Lord, Jairus' daughter had scarcely started to go to corruption (Mk. 5³⁵⁻⁴²), the widow of Nain's son was on the way to his burial (Lu. 7¹¹⁻¹⁶), but Lazarus had been dead long enough to be offensive to smell and to sight. No wonder Martha objected. Who wishes to see the gruesome spectacle of a corrupting corpse? How their hearts must have marveled at His words "you should be viewing the glory of God."

The glory of God in such ghastly association! Yet such is the only place its full effulgence can be manifested. This is one of many examples which are given us in the Scriptures, which illustrate the essential and beneficial function of evil in the universe. It reveals God. All those deepest and most ³³ Jesus, then, as He perceived her lamenting and the Jews coming with her lamenting, mutters in spirit, and disturbs Himself. And He said, "Where have you placed him?"

They are saying to Him, "Lord, come and see."

³⁵ Jesus weeps.

³⁶ The Jews, then, said, "Lo! how fond of him He was!" Yet some of them said, "Could not this One, Who opens the eyes of the blind, make it that this man also should not be dying?"

³⁸ Jesus, then, again muttering in Himself, is coming into the tomb. Now there was a cave and a stone was laid on it. Jesus is saying, "Take away the stone."

³⁹ Martha, the sister of him who is deceased, is saying to Him, "Lord, he is already stinking, for it is the fourth day."

⁴⁰ Jesus is saying to her, "Said I not to you that, if you should be believing, you shall be viewing the glory of God?" They, then, take away the stone. Yet Jesus lifts up His eyes and said, "Father, I thank Thee that Thou hearest Me. ⁴² Now I was aware that Thou art hearing Me always, but because of the throng standing about I said it, that they should be believing that ⁴³ Thou dost commission Me." And, saying these things, He clamors with a loud voice, "Lazarus! Come out hither!" And he who has died came out, bound feet and hands with winding sheets, and his countenance had been bound about with a handkerchief. Jesus is saying to them, "Loose him and let him go!"

⁴⁵ Many of the Jews, then, who come to Mary and gaze at what ⁴⁶ Jesus does, believe into Him. Yet precious excellences which spring from love would be buried within His breast, unknown and unappreciated, if evil did not force it to the front. If Lazarus had not died, we would not have known of Christ's compassion and His tears. Even Mary had not learned this lesson yet, though she had sat at His feet and listened to His teachings. His heart was most touched by her complaint "Lord, if Thou wert here, my brother would not have died!" Did she know that He had delayed His coming?

It is the great problem that baffles men today put into a simple simile. Why does God allow evil? Why does He not hasten to remove it? All that is needed is His presence. But He delays. His delay confirms the great truth that evil as well as good is from Him. It is the necessary foil for the display of His glory. It is the essential ingredient of future bliss. Good cannot be known and appreciated except in the presence of evil. It needs a dead, loathsome, fetid corpse to flash forth the effulgent love of God.

⁴⁹ The high priest's prophesy is another clear indication of the overruling and sovereign power of God. His enemies fulfill His will even when they are most opposed to His plans and purpose, as they see it. The very arrogance of the chief priest reacts on himself. Not only the Sanhedrin, whom he accused of crass ignorance, but he also was unaware of the great truth which his lips uttered. How pitiable is man's "free will" in the hands of such a God! Man is utterly at the mercy of his heredity and environment, and these are beyond his control. God alone decides the factors of which our lives are composed and hence He is the final Arbiter of our deeds and destiny. Once we know Him we would not have it otherwise.

⁵³ How vivid are the contrasts in this account! Christ has proclaimed Himself as the Life, both by word and by deed. From that day, then, they plan that they may kill Him. They deliberately decide to murder the One Who not only has life in Himself, but Who is to give life to all mankind!

⁵⁵ "The Lord's Passover" (Ex.12²⁷) has become "the Passover of the Jews"! The Lamb was not there.

some of them came away to the Pharisees, and told them what Jesus does.

⁴⁷ The chief priests and the Pharisees, then, assembled the Sanhedrin and said, "What are we doing, seeing that this man is doing many signs? If we should be leaving him thus, all will be believing into him, and the Romans will come and take away our place as well as nation."

⁴⁹ Now a certain one of them, Caiaphas, being the chief priest of that year, said to them, "You are aware of nothing, neither account that it is expedient for us that one man should be dying for the sake of the people, and the whole nation should not be destroyed." Now this he said, not from himself, but, being the chief priest of that year, he prophesies that Jesus was about to die for the sake of the nation, and not for the sake of the nation only, but that He may be assembling the scattered children of God also into one. From that day, then, they plan that they may kill Him.

⁵⁴ Jesus, then, no longer walked boldly among the Jews, but came away thence into the country near the wilderness, to a city termed Ephraim, and there He remains with His disciples. Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many ascended into Jerusalem out of the country, before the Passover, that they should be purifying themselves. They sought Jesus, then, and said to one another, standing in the sanctuary, "What do you suppose? That He may not come to the festival at all?" Yet

¹ We are now treated to a beautifully symbolic picture of the three-fold phase of resurrection life. The saints shall serve Him as Martha did. They shall share with Him, as Lazarus. They shall worship Him, like Mary. In these degenerate days we have forgotten that there is need of one thing, and that is not service or sacrifice, but of sitting at the feet of our Lord and hearing His Word. Service has its place, but it is not, as Martha thought, the great need. God can get servants. He has many much more powerful than we are. He can make the very elements do His bidding. He is looking for worship, and true worship comes only from the heart attuned to His grace. Martha served, as she always did, though she had learned not to be worried by its details. Mary no longer sits at His feet but worships there, and "wastes" a woman's prized possession on them, and wipes them with a woman's glory. It is the most exalted act of any of His disciples. Like us, they were usually after blessing for themselves, instead of seeking to give Him what His heart craves. It is not what we get but what we give to God that fulfills the purpose for which He formed and favored us. Let us become so enamored of His excellences that we, too, shall waste our most precious possessions in worship at His feet. Nothing is too good for Him! Nothing is lost that serves to express our adoration, nothing is wasted that conveys our love.

But worshipful response is impossible apart from the preparation of heart which comes only to those who search the treasures of His Word. The discoveries of His wisdom and grace alone can constrain the heart to the impulsive and uncalculated displays of lavish affection which are His delight. One heart, responding to His love, is better than all the service and ceremony of a myriad of slaves driven by fear or favor.

the chief priests and the Pharisees had given directions that if anyone should know where He is, he should be divulging it, so that they should be arresting Him.

¹² Jesus, then, six days before the Passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was who had died, whom Jesus rouses from among the dead.

² There, then, they make a dinner for Him, and Martha served. Now Lazarus was one of those lying back at table with Him.

⁴ Now Judas of Simon Iscariot, one of His disciples (who is about to be betraying Him) is saying, "Wherefore was not this attar disposed of for three hundred denarii [about $47.07, £9 13s 9d] and given to the poor?" Now this he said, not that he cared about the poor, but that he was a thief and bore the coffer, having also what was cast into it.

⁷ Then, said Jesus, "Let her be, that she should be keeping it for the day of My burial. For you have the poor with yourselves always, yet Me you have not always."

⁹ The vast throng, then, from among the Jews, knew that He is there. And they came, not because of Jesus only, but that they might become acquainted with Lazarus also, whom Jesus rouses from among the dead. Yet the chief priests also plan that they may be killing Lazarus also, seeing that, because of him, many of the Jews went, and believed into Jesus.

¹² On the morrow a vast throng, who are coming for the festival,

7 While facing the terrible ordeal of death our Lord found no fellowship with His disciples in the sorrows before Him. Like Peter, they could not entertain such a thought. But it seems that Mary alone, of all His friends, had learned to believe His words. She looked forward to His death and the tomb. Is it any wonder that she is first at the tomb on the resurrection morning and first to speak to the risen Christ?

12-19 Compare Mt. 21:4-11; Mk. 11:7-19; Lu. 19:35-40.

15 See Zech. 9⁹.

21 Perhaps the surest index of the spiritual state and experience of believers is the way in which they use the name and titles of our Lord. The prevalent use of His personal name is shocking to the spiritual ear. Only His enemies and those unacquainted with Him, as these Greeks, addressed Him or spoke of Him familiarly by the name given Him at His birth. Those who knew Him and had learned to love Him always gave Him a title suited to the occasion. He was Teacher to His disciples, Adept, or Doctor, in reference to His wisdom, Lord or Master to His slaves, and Christ or Messiah to His loyal subjects. To them He was Jesus the Christ, in humiliation. To us He is Christ Jesus, in glory. Surely it is a small thing for us to speak of Him as He deserves! Let us not degrade His high dignity by using His human name without at least one of the titles of His glory.

23 It seems that here we have a preview of the coming kingdom. He enters Jerusalem in triumph exactly, to a day, as foretold by Daniel the prophet (Dan. 9²⁵). The indignant Pharisees acknowledge that the world went after Him, and even the Greeks seek His acquaintance, as the nations will come up to Jerusalem in the millennial kingdom.

There is no intimation that the curiosity of the Greeks was satisfied. In the kingdom they will have their place, but before that, immediately athwart His path, is the death that will open the way for the blessing of all. The Greeks must wait until the grain of wheat has died.

hearing that Jesus is coming into Jerusalem, got fronds of palms and came out to meet Him. And they clamored, saying, "Hosanna! Blessed is He Who is coming in the name of the Lord!" and "the King of Israel!"

14 Now Jesus, finding a little ass, is seated on it, according as it is written,

15 "Fear not, daughter of Zion!
Lo! Your King is coming sitting on an ass's colt."

16 Now His disciples do not know these things, at first, but when Jesus is glorified, then they remember that these things were written of Him and they do these things to Him.

17 The throng, then, which was with Him when He summons Lazarus out of the tomb, and rouses him from among the dead, testified.

18 Therefore, also, the vast throng meets Him, seeing that they hear that He has done this sign. Then the Pharisees say among themselves, "You are beholding that you are benefiting nothing. Lo! the world went away after Him!"

20 Now there were some Greeks among those going up that they should be worshiping in the festival.

21 These, then, approached Philip from Bethsaida of Galilee, and they asked him, saying, "Lord, we want to become acquainted with 22 Jesus." Philip is coming and telling Andrew, and again Andrew and Philip are coming and telling 23 Jesus. Yet Jesus is answering them, saying, "The hour has come that the Son of Mankind should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I am saying to you, except a kernel of wheat, falling into the earth, should be dying, it is remaining alone, yet if it

²⁵ We fail to feel the force of this if we confound the soul with life. We could hardly say, in verse 27, "Now is My life troubled", yet it is the very same word. The soul has to do with sensation. Some forms of life, as plants, have no soul, or sensation. He who is fond of his soul will shrink from discomfort and suffering. He will not endure the affliction which precedes the kingdom. He will lose the joy and blessedness of the reward. He who hates his soul will not allow any sorrow to stand between him and faithfulness to God.

³¹ "Now is the judgment of this world" suggests that God was, at that time, about to judge mankind. But He did not. Judgment still waits. It is the world that was doing the judging. This is confirmed by the same form of the word in "the judgment of gehenna" (Mt. 23³³), "the judgment of God" (2 Th. 1⁵). See also Un. 14⁷; 16⁷; 18¹⁰; 19². The world would hardly judge Satan, so the Chief here spoken of must be Christ Himself. This title is used again in 14³⁰ and 16¹¹, where further evidence is given that our Lord is speaking of Himself. The judgment is His exaltation on the cross, for it was a reference to the manner of His death. So it was that the throng understood the term. We should not give one of His titles to Satan. Christ is the world's Chief.

should be dying, it is bringing forth much fruit. He who is fond of his soul is destroying it, and he who is hating his soul, in this world, shall be guarding it for eonian life.

²⁶ If anyone should be serving Me let him be following Me, and where I am, there My servant also shall be. And if anyone should be serving Me, the Father shall be honoring him. Now is My soul disturbed. And what may I be saying? 'Father, save Me out of this hour'? But because of this I came into this hour. Father, glorify Thy name!" A voice, then, came out of heaven, "I glorify it and shall also be glorifying it again!"

²⁹ The throng, then, which stands and hears it, said, "It thunders!" Others said, "A messenger has spoken to Him!"

³⁰ Jesus answered and said, "Not because of Me has come this voice, but because of you. Now is this world's judging. Now shall the Chief of this world be cast out. And I, if I should be exalted out of the earth, shall be drawing all to Myself." Now this He said, signifying what death He was about to be dying.

³⁴ The throng, then, answered Him, "We hear out of the law that the Christ is remaining for the eon, and how are you saying that the Son of Mankind must be exalted? Who is this Son of Mankind?"

³⁵ Jesus, then, said to them, "Still a little time the light is among you. Be walking while you have the light lest the darkness should be overtaking you. And he who is walking in the darkness is not aware whither he is going. As you have the light, be believing into

³⁸ Our Lord has now come to that stage of His ministry which was so graphically described by His namesake, Isaiah. His public ministry is at its close. He hides Himself. As the prophet continues (Isa. 53²⁻³):

He has no shapeliness or honor,
And, seen by us, He is no sight to be coveted.

He is despised and shunned by men,
A Man of pains and knowing illness,
And, as One concealing His face from us,

He is despised, and we take no account of Him.

³⁹ Outside the Scriptures we hear much of human responsibility, and that those who reject the light deserve the judgment they have invited. This passage makes us pause. These men had heard the most powerful of all preachers and seen the most marvelous of all miracle workers, yet we are distinctly told that they could not believe. The reason given is that the Scriptures must be fulfilled. God's purpose demands a measure of unbelief as well as of faith. He looks up all in stubbornness that He may have mercy on all (Ro.11³²). To damn these men who could not believe with irretrievable and irrecoverable ruin is unthinkable of God.

⁴⁰ Isaiah's message of doom to Israel is always quoted when their apostasy has passed repair. It divides our Lord's ministry and the accounts given of it into two distinct and different epochs. He begins His proclamation of the kingdom and continues until its rejection. Then, after quoting the sixth of Isaiah, He speaks to His own of His suffering and death. See Mt. 13¹³⁻¹⁵. In the Pentecostal era we see the same. The kingdom is proclaimed to the whole nation once again, but when their rejection is irrevocable, Paul quotes from Isaiah and seals their doom for the eon. This rejection is the basis on which the present secret economy of transcendent grace has been established.

the light, that you may be becoming sons of light."

These things speaks Jesus, and, coming away, He was hid from them. Yet, having done so many signs in front of them, they believed not into Him, that the word of Isaiah, the prophet, may be fulfilled which he said,

"Lord, who believes our tidings?

And to whom was the arm of the Lord revealed?"

³⁹ Therefore they could not be believing, seeing that Isaiah said again,

⁴⁰ "He has blinded their eyes
And callouses their heart,
Lest they may be perceiving with their eyes,
And should be apprehending with their heart,
And turn about, and I shall be healing them."

⁴¹ These things Isaiah said, seeing that he perceived His glory, and speaks concerning Him.

⁴² Howbeit, likewise, of the chiefs also many believe into Him, but because of the Pharisees they avowed it not, lest they should be put out of the synagogue, for they love the glory of men rather than even the glory of God.

⁴⁴ Now Jesus cries and said, "He who is believing into Me is not believing into Me, but into Him Who sends Me. And he who is beholding Me is beholding Him Who sends Me. I have come into the world a Light, that every one who is believing into Me should not be remaining in darkness.

⁴⁷ And if anyone should be hearing My declarations and not be maintaining them, I am not judging him, for I came not that I should be judging the world, but that I should be saving the world. He who is repudiating Me and not get-

³ The majesty of humility is seldom so splendidly set forth as in this passage. First we have His high place in reference to the world. All is in His hands. Then we are told of His relation to God. Did not such dignity and power entitle Him to the highest esteem? Yet, as such, He stoops to the meanest humility.

ting My declarations, has that which is judging him: the word which I speak, that will be judging ⁴⁹ him in the last day, seeing that I speak not from Myself, but the Father Who sends Me, He has given Me the precept, what I may be saying and what I should be speaking. ⁵⁰ And I am aware that His precept is eonian life; which, then, I am speaking, according as the Father has declared to Me—thus am I speaking."

¹³ Now before the festival of the Passover, Jesus, being aware that His hour came that He may be proceeding out of this world to the Father, loving His own who are in the world, He loves them to the consummation. And at the coming of dinner, the Slanderer having already cast into the heart of Judas, of Simon Iscariot, that he may be ³ betraying Him, Jesus, being aware that the Father has given all into His hands, and that He came out ⁴ from God and is going to God, is rising from dinner and is laying down His garments, and, getting a cloth, He girds Himself.

⁵ Thereafter He is draining water into a basin, and begins washing the feet of the disciples and wiping them off with the cloth with which ⁶ He was girded. He is coming, then, to Simon Peter. And he is saying to Him, "Lord, art Thou washing my feet?" Jesus answered and said to him, "What I am doing you are not aware at present, yet you will know after these things."

⁸ Peter is saying to Him, "Under no circumstances should you be washing my feet for the eon!"

Jesus answered him, "If I should not be washing you, you are having no part with Me."

⁹ Simon Peter is saying to Him,

"The most menial service the Lord could perform for them was the washing of their feet. No wonder Peter protested! He has not fully learned the lesson that the Lord is abasing Himself even to death, before His exaltation. He is giving them an example which has had very few followers among His disciples. Those who have aspired to be teachers and masters have not stooped to lowly service, but have held to high honors and dignities. The true slave of Christ, in this day of grace, will emulate the example of our Lord as set forth by Paul in his Philippian epistle. There he traces His descent from the form of God down to the death of the cross. God will see to His exaltation.

It was not only a lesson in humility but a condition of fellowship. Not being under pure grace or having been justified as we are, but having only a probationary pardon, fellowship with Christ depended on continual confession and cleansing (1 Jn. 19). The daily washing of the priest at the laver (Ex. 30¹⁹⁻²¹) was absolutely essential to continued communion, but it was not necessary that they be bathed as at their consecration (Ex. 29⁴).

18 It is very evident that the Lord chose Judas—he was one of "the elect"—for the purpose of betraying Him. He knew him from the beginning, and now He quotes the prophecy which foretold his act and sets forth most vividly the extreme treachery of it. According to the custom of the orient, those who partake of food together are enjoined by the most sacred obligations from doing harm to one another. The great depth of Judas' degradation is not in the betrayal alone so much as in his previous privileges and position of trust. It is one of the marvels of our Lord's life that He never "betrayed" Judas to the other disciples. He treated him as the rest, and so successfully concealed his true character from them that, at the very last, they did not guess why he went out, neither did they understand what our Lord said concerning him. His treatment of Judas is worth copying.

"Lord, not my feet only, but the hands also and the head!"

10 Jesus is saying to Him, "He who is bathed has no need except to be washing the feet, but is wholly clean. And you are clean, but not all." For He was aware who is betraying Him. Therefore He said that "You are not all clean."

12 When, then, He washes their feet, and took His garments and leans back again, He said to them, "Do you know what I have done to you? You are shouting to Me 'Teacher!' and 'Lord!' and you are saying ideally, for I am. 14 If, then, I, the Lord and Teacher, wash your feet, you also ought to be washing one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that, according as I do to you, you also may be doing.

16 Verily, verily, I am saying to you, a slave is not greater than his lord, neither an apostle greater than He Who sends him. If you are aware of these things, happy are you if you should be doing them! Not concerning all of you am I speaking, for I am aware whom I choose. But that the scripture may be fulfilled,

'He who is masticating bread with Me
Lifts up his heel against Me.'

19 Henceforth I am speaking to you before it is occurring, that you should be believing, whenever it should be occurring, that I am.

20 Verily, verily, I am saying to you, whoever is taking any one I shall be sending, is taking Me, yet he who is taking Me is taking Him Who sends Me."

21 Saying these things, Jesus was disturbed in spirit, and testifies and said, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you that one from among 22 you will be betraying Me." The

³⁰ The day of Christ's ministry was done. Now it was night, the time when man does no work, but when the authority of darkness is most active. Not Judas, or the chief priests, or the scribes or Pharisees were the most malignant opponents of Christ. They, like Judas, were but puppets in the hands of His unseen spiritual adversaries. He was the One Who would crush the serpent's head; but He was also the One Whose heel the serpent would bruise. And now was the time. Satan uses all his arts and exerts all his power to crush Him. The cross is not merely the crisis of man's enmity to God. It is the culmination of the enmity of the spirit world as well. It is not confined to earth. It is the moral center of the universe.

disciples, then, looked at one another, perplexed about which one ²³ He is saying it. Now one of His disciples, whom Jesus loved, was lying back in the bosom of Jesus.

²⁴ Simon Peter, then, is nodding to this one to ascertain whoever he may be of whom He spoke, and is saying to him, "Whatever did He say? About whom is He saying it?" That one, then, leaning back thus on the chest of Jesus, is saying to Him, "Lord, who is it?"

²⁵ Then Jesus is answering and saying, "It is that one to whom I, dipping in the morsel, shall be giving it to him." Dipping in the morsel, then, He is taking it and giving it to Judas of Simon Iscariot.

²⁷ And after the morsel, then Satan entered into that one. Jesus, then, is saying to him, "What you

²⁸ are doing do more quickly." Now no one of those lying back at table

²⁹ knew why He said this to him. For some supposed, since Judas had the coffer, that Jesus is saying to him "Buy what we have need of for the festival," or that he may be giving something to the poor.

³⁰ Then, on getting the morsel, he straightway came out. Now it was night.

³¹ When, then, he came out, Jesus is saying, "Now is the Son of Man glorified, and God is glorified in Him. If God is glorified in Him, God also shall be glorifying Him in Himself and shall straightway be glorifying Him."

³³ Little children, I am still with you for a little time. You shall be seeking Me, and, according as I said to the Jews that 'Where I am going you cannot be coming,' at present I am saying it to you also.

³⁴ A new precept am I giving to you, that you be loving one another, ²⁴ As our Lord is about to leave His beloved disciples, He compresses His ministry into one new precept—love. That was to be their law and their life and make them a light in the world. This should characterize His saints in this gracious economy in an even greater degree, for we have quaffed far deeper draughts of grace than His disciples ever tasted.

² The temple in Jerusalem was the Father's house. In the walls were many abodes for the priests and Levites who officiated in its precincts. There is no hint anywhere in the Scriptures that the disciples go to heaven. A celestial destiny was not revealed until the apostle Paul was in his Roman prison. Then he first made it known in his Ephesian epistle. But it is not for the saints of the Circumcision. All their blessings are heavenly in character and, like the new Jerusalem, come down out of heaven, but they are all enjoyed on earth. Only those in the present secret economy of God's grace are blessed with all spiritual blessings among the celestials. The Circumcision enjoy the days of heaven on earth. Hence Christ comes again and is with them in the kingdom.

⁷ Christ's usual character in this evangel is the Word of God. Here, however, He gives us a glimpse of Himself as the Image of the Father. No man can see the invisible God. But surely the disciples had seen all the attributes of the Father manifested in Him, as He loved them and led them, taught them and fed them, giving them all the care and keeping of little other, according as I love you, that ³⁵ you also be loving one another. By this all shall be knowing that you are My disciples, if you should be having love for one another."

³⁶ Simon Peter is saying to Him, "Lord, whither art Thou going?"

Jesus answered him, "Where I am going you cannot follow Me now, yet you shall be following subsequently."

³⁷ Peter is saying to Him "Lord, wherefore cannot I follow Thee at present? I will lay down my soul for Thy sake."

³⁸ Jesus is answering "You will be laying down your soul for My sake? Verily, verily, I am saying to you, under no circumstances should the cock be crowing till you will be renouncing Me thrice."

14 Let not your heart be disturbed. Be believing into God, and be be-

² lieving into Me. In My Father's house are many abodes, otherwise I should have told you, seeing that I am going to make ready a place ³ for you. And if I should be going and making ready a place for you, I am coming again and I will be taking you to Myself, that where ⁴ I am, you also may be. And you are aware where I am going, and you are aware of the way."

⁵ Thomas is saying to Him, "Lord, we are not aware whither you are going, and how can we be aware of the way?"

⁶ Jesus is saying to him, "I am the Way and the Truth and the Life. No one is coming to the Father except through Me. If you had known Me you would have known My Father also. And henceforth you know Him and have seen Him."

children. He was not the Father, but the Father was in Him, and could be seen nowhere else. But this glimpse of the Father is (as is fitting in this account) most evident in His words and works. These were not His own, but the Father's.

¹² We have here an intimation of the marvelous miracles accomplished by the apostles and others in the Pentecostal period, following His ascension, and also of the still greater marvels which will inaugurate the kingdom in the future. The spiritual blessings of the present are in reality far greater than any of these, but they were not in view at this time, for they were a secret, hidden in God, and could not be even hinted at until Israel's final failure was assured.

¹⁴ These words have proved a snare to many. They have requested much in His name which has not come to pass. This seems to reflect on His faithfulness. The difficulty vanishes when we see that this is not for the Uncircumcision (Ro.15⁹). Far higher truth is ours. It is set forth in Phil.4⁶. We make our requests known to God with thanksgiving, and leave them with Him to act upon as His love determines, not as we dictate.

¹⁶ The Lord Himself was the Consoler of the apostles while He was with them. Now that He was about to leave they would not only need the consolation He had given them, but a special measure to make up for His absence as well. It is most touching to see, as the dark shadows of the cross are crowding His soul, that He is not concerned for His own relief, but for the sorrows of His beloved disciples. The spirit He had promised after His glorification (7³⁹) was to be a living spring, but, in view of the sorrow so soon to engulf them, it is now called a consoler, for this would be its first function.

It is called "the spirit of truth" in contrast to "the spirit of deception" (1 Jn. 4⁶). The world seeks comfort in its false philosophy but God's saints find consolation in the truth. The spirit of deception is that false flood of spirit force which is sweeping the world on to the worship of the anti-christ. The spirit of truth is its opposite.

⁹ Jesus is saying to him, "I am so much time with you and you do not know Me, Philip! He who has seen Me has seen the Father, and how are you saying, 'Show us the Father'?" Are you not believing that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me? The declarations which I am speaking to you, I am not speaking from Myself. Now the Father remaining in Me, He is doing His works.

¹¹ Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father in Me, otherwise be believing Me because of the works themselves. Verily, verily, I am saying to you, he who is believing into Me, the works which I am doing, he also will be doing, and greater than these will he be doing, seeing that I am going to the Father. And whatever you should be requesting in My name, this I shall be doing, that the Father should be glorified in the Son. If you should be requesting anything in My name, this I shall be doing. If you should be loving Me, you will be keeping My precepts.

¹⁶ And I shall be asking the Father, and He will be giving you another consoler, that it, indeed, may be with you for the con; the spirit of truth, which the world cannot get, seeing that it is not beholding it, neither is knowing it. Yet you know it, seeing that it is remaining with you and will be in you.

¹⁸ I will not leave you bereaved: I am coming to you. Still a little and the world is beholding Me no longer, yet you are beholding Me. Seeing that I am living, you also are to live. In that day you shall know that I am in My Father, and you in Me, and I in you. He who has My precepts and is keeping them, he it is who is loving Me.

He told them that the declarations which He spoke are spirit and are life. It is the spirit that vivifies (6⁰³). Hence we may take it that the impartation of the spirit, after His vivification, when He inflated and said "get holy spirit!" (20²²), corresponds to the impartation of the breath of the living to Adam (Gen. 2⁷), so that he became a living soul. In this way the last Adam showed Himself a life imparting Spirit (1 Co. 15⁴⁵).

Pentecost was not the reception of holy spirit to give life, but its baptism for cleansing, its filling for utterance, and its coming on for power.

The reception of holy spirit was dependent on repentance and baptism in the evangel of the kingdom (Ac. 2³⁸). In Samaria, the gift waited on the prayer and imposition of the hands of the apostles (Ac. 8¹⁵⁻¹⁷) according to the authority which the Lord conferred on them when it was first given (20²³). In the present economy of transcendent grace it is the portion of all who believe (Eph. 1¹³). It is an earnest of all the spiritual possessions which are ours in Christ Jesus, among the celestials.

²⁸ In the East they do not say, as we do, "I am going", but rather "I am going and returning" when speaking of an ordinary journey. So the Lord assures them that He was not about to leave them permanently, but only for a while.

³⁰ When our Lord spoke of Himself in relation to the world He often used the third person. Witness the Son of Man (9³⁷). See also 7¹⁸; 9³⁷. He is the Coming One, for Whom all creation waits. Yet, when He came, the world had nothing at all in Him. It rejected His chieftainship just as Israel also rejected His messiahship and "there is nothing for Him" (Dan. 9²⁶). None of the glories pertaining to Him were allowed by Israel and He will not assume them until He comes again in power and glory as revealed in the Unveiling, when He appears as the White Horse Rider, crowned with many diadems, the King of kings and Lord of lords (Un. 19¹¹⁻²⁶). He, and not Satan, is the Chief of the world. This title occurs only in this account. See 12³¹ and 16¹¹.

Now he who is loving Me will be loved by My Father, and I shall be loving him and shall be disclosing Myself to him."

²² Judas (not Iscariot) is saying to Him, "Lord, and what has occurred that Thou art about to be disclosing Thyself to us and not to the world?"

²³ Jesus answered and said to him, "If anyone should be loving Me, he will be keeping My word, and My Father will be loving him, and We shall be coming to him and making an abode with him. He who is not loving Me is not keeping My words. And the word which you are hearing is not Mine, but the Father's Who sends Me.

²⁵ These things have I spoken to you remaining with you. Now the consoler, the holy spirit which the Father will be sending in My name, that will be teaching you all, and reminding you of all that I said to you.

²⁷ Peace I am leaving with you. My peace I am giving to you. Not according as the world is giving to you am I giving to you. Let not your heart be disturbed, neither let it be timid. You hear that I said to you, 'I am going and I am coming to you.' If you loved Me, you rejoiced that I am going to the Father, seeing that the Father is greater than I. And now I have declared it to you ere it is occurring, that, whenever it should be occurring you should be believing.

³⁰ No longer shall I be speaking much with you, for the Chief of the world is coming, and in Me it has nothing at all. But that the world may know that I am loving the Father, and according as the Father directs Me, thus I am doing. Rouse! We may be going hence.

³¹ What grace is there here! The world judges Him and casts Him out, so He immediately uses their hatred to reveal the love of God to Him and to them. Indeed, here we have love's greatest triumph. Men could not do worse or God better. His love needed their hatred for a foil and makes good use of it to emerge into the open where all the world can see.

¹ The fig, the olive, and the vine are used by God to picture the political, the spiritual, and the social blessedness of Israel as a nation. He brought a vine out of Egypt, cast out the nations, and planted it. It filled the land, but was destroyed (Ps. 80⁸⁻¹⁰). The vineyard of the Lord of Hosts is the house of Israel (Is. 57). Jeremiah laments that Jehovah had planted them an excellent local variety, yet they had turned into a foreign vine by their unfaithfulness and their joylessness (Jer. 2²¹). Jotham, in his parable of the trees, tells us that grape juice gladdens both God and mortals (Jud. 9¹³). But Hosea cries "Israel is a vacant vine. The fruit is equivalent to it" (Hos. 10¹). Israel failed to gladden either God or mortals. Christ came and did both. He is the true Vine. The fruitless branches, those who remained not in Him, are taken away. His own are cleansed by the belief of the truth. All gladness for God or mortals must now come through the Messiah.

⁵ He now restates the truth as to the vine. Only those with Him are the branches. Israel as a nation has no part in Him.

^a The salvation proclaimed by our Lord and the twelve apostles was probational. There was always the danger of "drifting by" (Heb. 2¹). They were His house if they retained the boldness and glorying of the expectation confirmed unto the consummation (Heb. 3⁰). They could withdraw from the living God (Heb. 3¹²). Many of those once enlightened fell aside (Heb. 6⁴⁻⁶). Such are those who did not remain in the vine, but withered and were destroyed. We, however, are not in the vine, but members of the body of Christ. and the members of a body cannot be lopped off like the branches of a vine. We are saved by grace, and do not depend on our own abiding, but

15 I am the true grapevine, and My

on His power and love. We are vitally and organically a part of Christ Himself. He would be maimed by the excision of members of His body. How thankful we should be that we are not branches in that vine!

¹² As the Lord had explained in His kingdom proclamation, the whole law was included in the one word, love. Love to God and love to man is far more than all the precepts of the law. So, in His final charge, as He is about to give them the greatest example of love the universe has seen or ever will see, in the offering of His soul to God for the sin of the world, He presses home to their hearts the excellent way of love.

Paul, in his appeal to us, the Uncircumcision, lays even greater stress on love. We have no law, no precepts. But love remains, and conduct in accord with love needs no law, but soars far above all its righteous demands.

¹⁶ Too often is salvation made a matter of the sinner's choice. This sadly mars the full and clear apprehension of God's love which it is intended to reveal. All active effort in redemption is the outflow of divine love, and is entirely on God's side. All the sinner's activity is a hindrance. He would choose any one but God. His part is a passive or a negative one.

This basic truth is much more forcibly revealed later on in connection with the call of the nations. We were chosen by God in Christ before the disruption. Sin itself was subsequent to His choice of us. Hence, sin, either past or present, cannot affect God's purpose for us, or our acceptance of His grace. He chooses, He calls, He glorifies. He does not give man his choice or a chance. He has the wisdom and the power to impel men to fall into line with His purpose no matter what their natural inclination may be. All human experience confirms the divine declaration that He it is Who is operating in us to will as well as to work for the sake of His delight (Phil.2:13). Man can carry out his own will only so far as it accords with the purpose of God. When men rage against God, He uses their wrath as far as it is useful to His plans. The remainder of their wrath He restrains.

¹⁵ No longer am I terming you slaves, seeing that the slave is not aware what his lord is doing. Yet I have declared that you are friends, seeing that all that I hear from My Father I make known to you. You do not choose Me, but I choose you, and I appoint you, that you may be going away and be bringing forth much fruit, and your fruit should be remaining, that whatever you should be requesting the Father in My name, He will be giving it to you.

¹⁷ I am directing you in these things that you may be loving one another. If the world is hating you, you know that it has hated Me before you. If you were of the world, the world would be fond of its own. Now, seeing that you are not of the world, but I choose you out of the world, therefore the world is hating you.

²⁰ Remember the word which I said to you, 'A slave is not greater than his lord.' If they persecute Me, they will be persecuting you also. If they keep My word, they will be keeping yours also. But all these things will they be doing to you because of My name, seeing that they are not acquainted with Him Who sends Me.

²² If I came not and speak to them, they had no sin. Yet now they have no pretense concerning their sin. He who is hating Me is hating My Father also. If I do not the works among them which no other one does, they had no sin. Yet now they have seen also, and they have hated Me and My Father also, but that the word written in their law may be fulfilled, that 'They hate Me gratuitously.'

If we make "the Chief of this world" a title of Satan we involve ourselves in a maze of difficulties. If the world or God had judged Satan, how would that convict the world? And he certainly has not been judged yet. Christ is the great Chief of the world. He was judged and crucified by it. We question whether any sane man, today, will justify its action. The world has been convicted or convinced by the spirit of truth even though it knows it not.

¹¹ The three occurrences of the title "Chief of this world" (12³¹; 14³⁰; 16¹¹) are most difficult and contradictory if assigned to Satan, but clear and consistent if connected with Christ.

²⁶ Now whenever the consoler which I shall be sending you from the Father should be coming, the spirit of truth which is going out from the Father, that will be testifying concerning Me. Now you, also, are testifying, seeing that you are with Me from the beginning.

¹⁶ I have spoken these things to you that you may not be snared, ² for they will be putting you out of the synagogues; but the hour is coming that every one who is killing you shall suppose he is offering divine service to God. And they will be doing these things to you seeing that they know not the Father nor ⁴ yet Me. But these things have I spoken to you that whenever their hour should be coming you may be remembering them, seeing that I told you.

Now I did not tell you these things from the beginning, seeing ⁵ that I was with you. Yet now I am going away to Him Who sends Me, and not one of you is asking Me, 'Whither art Thou going?'

⁶ But, seeing that I have spoken these things to you, sorrow has filled your heart.

⁷ But I am telling you the truth. It is expedient for you that I am coming away, for if I should not be coming away, the consoler will not be coming to you. Now if I should be gone, I shall be sending him to ⁸ you. And coming, that will be exposing the world concerning sin and concerning righteousness and ⁹ concerning judgment: concerning sin, indeed, seeing that they are ¹⁰ not believing into Me; yet concerning righteousness, seeing that I am going to My Father and you are no ¹¹ longer beholding Me; yet concerning judgment, seeing that the Chief of this world has been judged.

¹² The words of our Lord preserved for us in the four accounts of His life come very far from giving us all that He had to say. They were sadly limited by the incapacity of His hearers. Even His closest disciples could not understand some of the simplest facts, simply told. They would not listen to the story of His supreme sacrifice. His temporary departure was a puzzle to them. As the great galaxy of truth subsequently revealed depends on His shameful death and glorious exaltation for its very foundation, how could they begin to understand?

Hence it will be seen that the transcendent truths of scripture should not be sought in the words of our Lord, but in the subsequent utterances of the spirit of truth. Furthermore, much could not be revealed until Israel had once more definitely refused the proclamation of the kingdom by the apostles, as recorded in the book of Acts. This, and the fact that the spirit is given a much larger place in Paul's ministry than ever before, leads us to look in his epistles for the supreme revelation. And a thorough study will convince us that this is so, for he it is who reveals those secrets which enabled him to "complete the word of God" (Col. 1²⁵). He takes us back before Genesis (Eph. 1⁴), and brings us far beyond the Unveiling (1 Co. 15²⁴).

Any system of theology which plays our Lord's words against Paul's, or does not recognize the predominant place of Paul's epistles for the present, is in practical opposition to the plain statement made by our Lord Himself. Much of what our Lord wished to say He has spoken through His apostles, by means of that spirit of truth which would enable them to apprehend what would otherwise be beyond them.

The great apostasy of the present time is largely fortified by the refusal to heed these clear declarations of the Lord Himself. The truth especially given for the nations is ignored and the truth intended only for the Circumcision, more especially that taught by our Lord, is wrested from its place and forced into a position for which it was never intended.

¹² I have much to say to you still, but you are not able to bear it at present. Yet whenever that may be coming, the spirit of truth, it will be guiding you into all the truth, for it will not be speaking from itself, but whatever it should be hearing will it be speaking, and it will be informing you of what is coming. That will be glorifying Me, seeing that it will be getting of Mine and informing you. All, whatever the Father has, is Mine. Therefore I said to you that it will be getting of Mine and informing you.

¹⁶ A little, and you are beholding Me no longer; and again, a little, and you shall be seeing Me."

¹⁷ Some, then, among His disciples said to one another, "What is this that He is saying to us, 'A little, and you are not beholding Me, and again, a little, and you shall be seeing Me?' and that 'I am going away to the Father'?" They said, then, "What is this 'little' of which He is speaking? We are not aware of what He is speaking."

¹⁹ Jesus, then, knew that they wanted to ask Him, and He said to them, "Are you seeking with one another concerning this that I said, 'A little, and you are not beholding Me, and again, a little, and you shall be seeing Me'? Verily, verily, I am saying to you that you shall be lamenting and wailing, yet the world will be rejoicing: yet you shall be sorrowing, but your sorrow shall become joy. A woman, whenever she may be bringing forth, has sorrow; seeing that her hour has come, yet whenever she should be bearing the little child, she no longer is remembering the affliction because of the joy that a human being was born into the world. You, then, also, now, in-

²⁷ There is a common but false feeling that God is a stern Judge but Christ a lenient Saviour. This is very wrong, for Christ is but a reflection of the Father. Christ Himself in His time will be a Judge and deal out justice. But let us not imagine that He came to appease God's wrath entirely of His own volition. All that He did was in obedience to the will of God and in order to display the heart of God. It is a sure sign of true spiritual progress when we are enabled to look through Christ to the God that He portrays.

³ The knowledge of God is not given as the definition of eonian life, but eonian life is imparted that they may be knowing Him. Eonian life is life during the eons of Christ's reign and glory. Two methods are used by Him to acquaint His saints with Himself. First, they are left to taste the sorrows of sin at a distance from Him. Then, in the eons of the eons, in glorious fellowship with His Son, each high tide of bliss will mark some new discovery of His love, some fresh token of His affection.

deed, will be having sorrow, yet I shall be seeing you again, and your heart shall be rejoicing, and your joy no one shall be taking away from you. And in that day you will not be asking Me one thing.

Verily, verily, I am saying to you that anything you should be requesting the Father in My name, He will be giving it to you. Hitherto you request nothing in My name. Request and you shall obtain, that your joy may be filled full.

²⁵ These things have I spoken to you in proverbs. The hour is coming when I shall no longer be speaking to you in proverbs, but shall be reporting to you boldly concerning the Father. In that day you will be requesting in My name, and I am not telling you that I shall be asking the Father concerning you, for the Father Himself is fond of you, seeing that you have been fond of Me, and have believed that I came out from God. I came out from the Father and have come into the world. Again, I am leaving the world and going to the Father."

²⁹ His disciples are saying to Him, "Lo! now Thou art speaking boldly, and Thou art speaking no proverb. Now we are aware that Thou art aware of all and hast no need that any one may be asking Thee. By this we are believing that Thou camest out from God."

³¹ Jesus answered them, "At present you are believing. Lo! the hour is coming and has come that you should be scattered, each to his own and you may be leaving Me alone. And I am not alone, seeing that the Father is with Me. These things have I spoken to you that you may have peace in Me. In the world you have affliction. But, courage! I have conquered the world."

⁴ The charge against all mankind is that all sin and are wanting of the glory of God (Ro. 3²³). God guarantees to give glory and honor and incorruption to all who endure in good acts. Our Lord is the only one who can claim the reward. He is the only one who glorified God on the earth. He is the only one who accomplished the work God gave Him. Hence it seems perfectly natural for Him to demand glorification. Yet He does not ask for the glory His work deserves, but the glory which He had before the world is. He leaves His reward with God Himself. The saints will be a precious part of it.

⁶ Hebrew names were usually most expressive of character, life or ministry. Even we speak of a good or a bad "name", referring rather to character than sound or significance. Among the Jews the name of their God was given the honor due to the deity, hence it was never pronounced. Christ manifested God's name by displaying His attributes in His life and conduct.

It is a precious thought to consider the disciples as a gift from the Father to His Son. As such, He valued them, not for their own sakes alone, but because of the Giver. It is this interweaving of human lives into the affections of God and His Christ which should give us the greatest cause for confidence and comfort. Our little lives are bound up with the love of God for His Son and the Son's response to the Father. As He says (¹⁰), all His belong to God, and all God's are His. It is a great thing to have a God. But it is a much greater to know ourselves as the valued possession of God and His Beloved.

¹⁰ Glory consists in the esteem in which we are held by others. In the world Christ had no glory then, but in His own He was esteemed more than ever was the lot of man, and it has come to pass that, even in the world that rejects Him and repudiates His teaching, His name is placed upon the pinnacle of moral glory.

¹¹ It seems evident that, in spirit, the Lord is beyond the cross. There it was that He finished His work (*), and until then He was still in the world.

¹⁷ These things speaks Jesus, and lifting His eyes to heaven, He said, "Father, the hour has come. Glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son should be glorifying Thee, according as Thou givest Him authority over all flesh, that every one whom Thou hast given to Him, to them He should be giving eonian life. Now this conian life is that they may be knowing Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ, Whom Thou dost commission.

⁴ I glorify Thee on the earth, finishing the work which Thou hast given Me, that I should be doing it.

⁵ And now glorify Thou Me, Father, with Thyself, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world is. I make manifest Thy name to the men whom Thou givest Me out of the world. Thine they were and Thou givest them to Me, and they have kept Thy word. Now they know that all, whatever Thou hast given Me is from Thee, seeing that the declarations which Thou hast given Me I have given them, and they took them, and know truly that I came out from Thee, and they believe that Thou dost commission Me.

⁹ I am asking concerning them. Not concerning the world am I asking, but concerning those whom Thou hast given Me, seeing that they are Thine. And all Mine are Thine, and Thine Mine. And I have been glorified in them. And I am no longer in the world, and they are in the world, and I am coming to Thee. Holy Father, keep them in Thy name in which Thou hast given them to Me, that they may be one, according as We are. When I was with them in the world I kept those whom Thou hast given Me in Thy name, and I

¹⁹ That holiness, or sanctification, is not essentially a cleansing from sin is evident from this statement, for our Lord would not cleanse Himself from His own sin, for He had none, and He was not cleansed from, but bore, the sins of others. When the priest was consecrated, his hands were filled with the sacrifice. Real holiness consists in a positive occupation with the things of God, rather than a negative absence of sin.

²² The unity existing between the Son and the Father is here defined, for He desires the same oneness for His disciples. It is a unity of spirit and a community of interests which characterized the early disciples. This is the unity which exists between the Son and the Father. There is no thought of identity. How distinct they were in will, which is the vital element in personality, was to be seen a little later, in the garden of Gethsemane, where the will of Christ was not in line with God's. The cross was not His will, but the subordination of it to His Father.

²³ It is with awed hearts and unshod feet that we enter into the pure precincts of God's love to His Son. We feel most unworthy to listen to such sacred secrets. Before the disruption, before sin or sorrow or a single sigh had sent its shadows across this scene, God's love for His Son had its birth. He came into the world, not to win God's love, but in response to it. His whole ministry was an exhibition of it, and an appeal for a suitable response. Now He reveals its fullest force, when He declares that God loves them as He loved Him. Few of His followers at that time, or even after the enlightening aid of the spirit that He had promised, entered into the fullness of this marvelous manifestation of God's affections.

guard them, and not one of them was destroyed except the son of destruction, that the scripture may be fulfilled. Yet now I am coming to Thee, and these things am I speaking in the world that they may be having My joy fulfilled in themselves.

¹⁴ I have given them Thy word. And the world hates them, seeing that they are not of the world, according as I am not of the world. I am not asking that Thou shouldst be taking them away out of the world, but that Thou shouldst be keeping them out of the wickedness. They are not of the world, according as I am not of the world. ¹⁷ Hallow them by Thy truth. Thy word is truth.

¹⁸ According as Thou dost dispatch Me into the world, I also dispatch ¹⁹ them into the world. And for their sakes I am hallowing Myself, that they also may be hallowed by the truth. Yet not concerning these only am I asking, but also concerning those who are believing ²¹ into Me through their word, that they may all be one, according as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be in Us, that the world should be believing that Thou dost commission Me.

²² And I have given them the glory which Thou hast given Me, that they may be one, according as We ²³ are One. I in them and Thou in Me, that they may be perfected in one, and that the world may be knowing that Thou dost commission Me and dost love them according as Thou dost love Me.

²⁴ Father, whom Thou hast given Me, I will that where I am they also may be with Me, that they may be beholding My glory, which Thou hast given Me, seeing that ⁸ Darkness is the day, for evil doers. The Lord worked in the day. Satan fears the light. Even in the night they need a squad of soldiers and armed deputies to take a gentle, unarmed Man and His timid disciples. His simple words cast them to the earth. He calmly orders them to leave His disciples alone. It would seem that He was in authority, rather than they.

⁴ We must look behind the scenes to appreciate the tremendous issues involved in this betrayal. The cohorts of darkness were in command of Satan. The one who had deluded Eve in the garden of Eden was bruising the heel of the woman's Seed. He had managed to enlist mankind against Him. Christ Himself had called the Jews children of their father the Slanderer. Satan had actually obsessed Judas, and in him was present as chief actor and spectator. The Prince of light and the Prince of darkness meet in the treacherous kiss of Judas.

¹⁰ Impulsive Peter has not yet learned the lesson of the cross, and so he does the very worst possible thing. The difficulty with the Lord's enemies was that they had no ears that heard. What use is it to strike off the very thing they lacked? But the Lord has a heart for His enemies even in this time of His sorest distress. Elsewhere we read that He healed the hurt of the one who came to take His life. What a marvelous hint of the blessings to which His sorrows would give birth!

¹¹ The Lord was aware of His enemies' thoughts. He perceived the opposition of Satan, yet He saw behind it all the will of His Father. The cup He was to drain was a bitter one. He had no wish to drink it. He knew what men would do, but did not blame them for it. He prayed for their forgiveness. He knew the craft of Satan, but He also knew that behind all these was, not only the iron will of a sovereign God, but the loving affection of a Father. He received it all from His hands. He not only bends beneath the stroke, but He leaves it all to the Father's love. He could trust, though He slay Him. His was the faith that never failed.

Thou lovest Me before the disruption of the world. Just Father, the world, also, knew Thee not, yet I knew Thee. And these know that ²⁵Thou dost commission Me. And I make known to them Thy name, and I shall make it known, that the love with which Thou lovest Me may be in them and I in them."

¹⁸ Saying these things, Jesus came out with His disciples to the other side of the Kedron winter brook, where there was a garden, into which He entered, He and His disciples. Now Judas also, who is betraying Him, is acquainted with the place, seeing that Jesus was often assembled there with His disciples.

³ Judas, then, getting a squad and deputies of the chief priests and Pharisees, is coming there with lanterns and torches and weapons.

⁴ Jesus, then, being aware of all that is coming upon Him, coming out, said to them, "Whom are you seeking?" They answered Him, "Jesus, the Nazarene." Jesus is saying to them, "I am." Now Judas, also, who is betraying Him, stood with them.

⁶ As, then, He said to them, "I am," they drop behind and fall ⁷on the ground. Again, then. He inquires of them, "Whom are you seeking?" Now they said, "Jesus, the Nazarene." Jesus answered, "I said to you that I am. If, then, you are seeking Me, let these go away," that the saying may be fulfilled which He said, that "Of those whom Thou hast given Me, of them I lose not one."

¹⁰ Simon Peter, then, having a sword, draws it, and hits the chief priest's slave and strikes off his right ear. Now the name of the ¹¹slave was Malchus. Jesus, then, said to Peter, "Put the sword into

17 We can imagine what a tumult was in the heart of the impetuous, warm-hearted, self-confident Peter. He would never disown His Lord! He would suffer anything for His sake! He would not believe the Lord's plain prediction of his faithlessness. He was ready to face torture and death—some great thing which would bring him applause—but he was not ready for a simple question from a mere maid. Perhaps he prided himself on following the Lord into the house, but his pride must have suffered severely as he pondered his craven conduct. He was having a practical experience of what the apostle records concerning those who seek to please God in the flesh—"What I am hating, this am I doing" (Ro. 7¹⁵). How many since have found that they, too, were like Peter, strong to will, but unable to carry out the desires of their heart. And the best part of such an experience is that it destroys confidence in the flesh and drives us to the ground of grace, where we receive power and ability to carry out the mind of the spirit.

18 Houses in the cities of Palestine are heated by means of a charcoal brazier. It is a copper stand about two feet high, with a chafing dish on top. This pan is filled with ashes and on this the charcoal is placed. It is taken outside and lighted and kindled by the breeze or a fan. Then it is brought into the house.

19 Contrast Peter's craven course with the firm fortitude of his Master. The chief priest, the symbol of holiness and truth, masks his diabolical design by a hypocritical inquiry into the Lord's teachings. But the Lord reads his heart and tears off his mask. There was not the slightest weakness or compromise. It never occurred to Him to deny aught of His teaching or to evade the sufferings which threw their gloomy shadows across His path.

24 Annas was made chief priest by Cyrenius, but was deposed seven years later. After three others had held the office, his son-in-law, Caiaphas, became chief priest, and he always seems to be reckoned as holding the office with him. Luke tells us that both were the scabbard. The cup which the Father has given Me, should I not drink it at all?"

- 12 The squad, then, and the captain, and the deputies of the Jews apprehended Jesus and they bind Him, and led Him away to Annas first, for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the chief priest of that year. Now it was Caiaphas who advises the Jews that it is expedient for one man to be dying for the sake of the people.
- 15 Now Simon Peter and another disciple followed Jesus. Now that disciple was known to the chief priest, and he entered together with Jesus into the courtyard of the chief priest. Yet Peter stood at the door outside.

- The other disciple, then, who was known to the chief priest, came out and told the doorkeeper and he led Peter in. The maid, then, who kept the door, is saying to Peter, "Are not you also of this man's disciples?" He is saying, "I am not!"
- 18 Now the slaves and deputies also stood by, having made a charcoal fire, seeing that it was cold, and they warmed themselves. Now Peter, also, was standing with them, and warming himself.

- 19 The chief priest, then, asks Jesus concerning His disciples and concerning His teaching. And Jesus answered him, "I have spoken boldly to the world. I always teach in a synagogue and in the sanctuary where all the Jews are coming together, and I speak nothing in hiding. Why are you asking Me? Inquire of those who have heard what I talk to them. Lo! they are aware what I said."

- 22 Now at His saying these things, one of the deputies standing by gives Jesus a slap, saying "Are you chief priests (Lu. 3²). This alone shows how little regard they had for God's law, which prescribed a single succession absolutely independent of human interference. They were false, chosen by ungodly alien enemies, He was the true Priest about to offer up the true Lamb. They were supposed to put away the sin of the people. Instead, they are the instigators of the sin of sins.

28 What insufferable hypocrites they were! Plotting the death of God's holy One, and afraid their bloody feet would be defiled by entering where He was! The law said, "You shall not murder." And their greatest regret was that they could not kill Him themselves! The only accusation they could bring was that they demanded His death.

29 In marked contrast with the high priest is the conduct of Pilate. They were enlightened by the law, but their light had become darkness. He had nothing but the feeble flicker of natural conscience, but he wished to follow it. His first thought, however, was for himself. If possible, he would get out of this dilemma by turning Him over to them. In so doing he would not invite their displeasure and would avoid the immediate responsibility of doing what was undoubtedly an unjust act. But they did not want to try Him. They wanted to murder Him.

36 Scripture knows of five "worlds", which correspond to the five eons. Before Christ's kingdom will be set up there must be the great judgments which usher in a new eon and a new world. Had the Jews received Him, humanly speaking, the kingdom would have come, but, since they reject Him, He could say "Now is My kingdom not hence." Ever since the crisis in His ministry when it became evident that the nation would not hear, He had put off the kingdom to a distant time. For some time He had not been proclaiming the kingdom, so that Pilate had no fault to find.

answering the chief priest thus?"

23 Jesus answered him, "If I speak evilly, testify concerning the evil, yet if ideally, why are you lashing Me?" Annas, then dispatches Him bound to Caiaphas the chief priest.

25 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said, then, to him, "Are not you also of his disciples?" He disowns and 26 said "I am not." One of the chief priest's slaves, being a relative of the one whose ear Peter strikes off, is saying "Did I not perceive you in the garden with him?" Again, then, Peter disowns. And immediately a cock crows.

28 They are, then, leading Jesus from Caiaphas to the pretorium. Now it was morning and they did not enter the pretorium lest they may be defiled, but may be eating the passover.

29 Then Pilate came out to them and is averring, "What accusation are you bringing against this man?"

30 They answered and said to him, "If this man was doing no evil, we should not give him up to you."

31 Pilate then, said to them, "You take him and judge him according to your law."

The Jews, then, said to him, "It is not allowed us to kill any one," that the word of Jesus may be fulfilled which He said, signifying what death He was about to die.

33 Again, then, Pilate entered into the pretorium and summons Jesus and said to Him, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

34 Jesus answered him, "Are you saying this of yourself, or did others tell you concerning Me?"

35 Pilate answered, "Am I a Jew? Your nation and the chief priests give you up to me. What do you do?"

 OUT OF-THE SYSTEM this

³⁷ Pilate, like many others who have mistaken the Lord's meaning, thought that He denied being a King. Perhaps he thought that He was founding a "spiritual kingdom". But the Lord corrects this false supposition. He solemnly asseverates that He is in very truth a King. This was a very serious matter for Pilate to pass upon, for he was the political head of the people. It is this charge alone that appeals to him, hence he gives our Lord the private investigation noted only in this account. Many zealous impostors arose from time to time among the Jews, proclaiming themselves to be the Messiah, and inciting the Jews to insurrection against the Romans. The real issue between Pilate and our Lord was to settle the question whether He intended to lead an armed resistance to the rule of Rome. In case He did, Pilate perforce must act to suppress the incipient rebellion and to execute the leader. But, as the Lord had no thought of establishing His kingdom in this manner, He convinces Pilate of His innocence in that regard. The other charges were religious and did not interest Pilate. Hence he desired to set Him free.

⁴⁰ The people choose Bar-Abbas, which signifies Son-Father. They preferred a son of their own father, the Slanderer, a man who was a robber and a murderer, to the Son of the Father, Who not only brought them an untold wealth of blessing but actually brought the dead to life again. What a contrast between these two, whose names are so similar! The Saviour suffers: the sinner is set free! Bar-Abbas is a type of the great mass who will eventually be saved without faith.

¹ The Roman soldiers mock the Messianic hope of Israel by making Him a mimic monarch. The royal purple and the thorny wreath are accompanied by mocking adulation of His imaginary majesty. Some day that bleeding brow will wear its many diadems. But all the regal rank that these reveal will not endear Him to our hearts like the cruel wreath of thorns. It is the symbol of a power and a glory that compels a willing homage and an adoring loyalty.

³⁶ Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world. If My kingdom were of this world, My deputies, also, would have contended, lest I should be given up to the Jews. Yet now is My kingdom not hence."

³⁷ Pilate, then, said to Him, "Are you not a king, then?"

Jesus answered, "You are saying that I am a King. For this also have I been born, and for this have I come into the world, that I should be testifying to the truth. Every one who is of the truth is hearing My voice."

³⁸ Pilate is saying to Him, "What is truth!" And, saying this, he came out again to the Jews and is saying to them, "I am finding nothing to charge him with. Now it is your usage that I should be releasing one to you in the Passover. Are you intending, then, that I should be releasing to you the king of the Jews?"

⁴⁰ They, then, all clamor again, saying, "Not this one, but Bar-Abbas!" Now Bar-Abbas was a robber.

³ And they came to Him and said, "Rejoice! O king of the Jews!"

⁴ and give Him slaps. And Pilate came outside again and is saying to them, "Lo! I am leading him out to you, that you may know that I am finding nothing to charge him with."

⁵ Jesus, then, came out, wearing the thorny wreath and the purple cloak. And he is saying to them,

⁷ It appears on the surface, that Pilate's question, when he heard that the Lord claimed to be the Son of God, was ignored. Not so. Since the Lord was the Son of God it was far beneath His dignity to reply in words. His conduct was far more convincing. Pilate understood His silence far better than any words.

⁸ The magnificent bearing of Christ before Pilate is without a parallel in the annals of justice. He should have been afraid of the cruel and unscrupulous Roman minion, but it is Pilate who fears. And when the haughty Roman threatens Him He calmly tells him that there is a higher authority. What a triumphant trust in God sustained Him in all this terrific and heart rending ordeal! Can we not picture to ourselves the furious, blood-thirsty mob, keeping its distance for hypocritical-fear of contamination, yet fouling the very atmosphere with their false and fiendish accusations; the disdainful governor, who has no wish to become involved in their religious controversies, arrogant, yet fearful, strong, yet weakly catering to their unjust demands; and the solitary, self-composed, lowly Man. He was meekly bowing to the will of God; they were ignorantly fulfilling the behest of Satan.

¹² Pilate was submitting to what he deemed a political necessity. We must concede that he did all any Roman governor would have done under the circumstances. The Jews could easily have caused trouble at Rome if he should fail to deal summarily with one who was popularly hailed as a political opponent of Cæsar.

⁶ "Lo! the man!" When, then, the chief priests and the deputies perceived Him, they clamor, saying, "Crucify! Crucify Him!"

And Pilate is saying to them, "You take him and crucify him, for I am finding nothing to charge him with."

⁷ The Jews answered him, "We have a law, and according to our law he ought to die, seeing that he makes himself the son of God."

⁸ When, then, Pilate hears this ⁹ saying he was the more afraid. And he entered the pretorium again and is saying to Jesus, "Whence are you?" Yet Jesus gives him no ¹⁰ answer. Pilate, then, is saying to Him, "You are not talking to me!" Are you not aware that I have authority to release you and have authority to crucify you?"

¹¹ Jesus answered him, "You have no authority against Me in a single thing except it were given you from above. Therefore he who is betraying Me to you has the greater sin."

¹² At this, Pilate sought to release Him, yet the Jews clamored, saying, "If you should be releasing this man, you are not a friend of Cæsar! Every one who is making himself king is contradicting Cæsar!" Pilate, then, hearing these words, led Jesus outside, and he is seated on the dais in a place termed the "Pavement", yet in Hebrew "Gabbatha".

¹⁴ Now it was the preparation of the Passover. It was about the third hour. And he is saying to ¹⁵ the Jews, "Lo! your king!" Yet they clamor then, "Away! Away! Crucify him!" Pilate is saying to

The glamour with which religion seeks to surround the cross is false and misleading. Its only halo is dense darkness, its power weakness, its glory shame.

The shameful of crucifixion is the fitting climax to the descent of Christ from the highest glory to the lowest humiliation. Even as He had been far above all, so now it was meet that He should come down to the lowest depths of degradation. It is this aspect of His death which is intended by the term "cross" or "pale". This registers, not the fact of His death, but the manner of it. This, in turn, throws a lurid light on the world that had so little respect for the One Who had the highest place in heaven.

But, besides this, the cross is the place of the curse. It was necessary for the sinless One to become sin. It was needful for Him to forsake the place of the blessing for the place of the curse. "Accursed is every one being hanged on a pole" was a portion of the law which He had never fulfilled. This form of death—crucifixion—robbed Him of His last refuge. God Himself became His enemy, and forsook Him.

²³ As our Lord belonged to the lower class, He would doubtless dress accordingly. They wore only five articles of clothing, a long cotton shirt, a girdle, usually of leather or worsted, a turban, sandals, and a tunic over all made of goat's or camel's hair or worsted. The four soldiers could readily divide the first four among themselves, but the fifth, being specially made without a seam, was probably of more value than all the rest together. It would spoil it to divide it, so it was that they were compelled to cast lots and fulfill the Scriptures.

them, "Shall I be crucifying your king?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king except Cæsar!"

¹⁶ He, then, gives Him up to them, then, that He may be crucified.

They took Jesus along, then, and ¹⁷ led Him away. And, bearing the cross Himself, He came out into the place termed the "Skull", which is termed, in Hebrew, "Golgotha", where they crucify Him, and with Him two others, hence and hence, yet Jesus in the midst.

¹⁹ Now Pilate writes a title also, and places it on the cross. Now it was written,

JESUS THE NAZARENE,
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

²⁰ This title, then, many of the Jews read, seeing that the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, and it was written in Hebrew, Latin, Greek.

²¹ The chiefs priests of the Jews, then, said to Pilate, "Do not be writing 'The king of the Jews' but that that one said 'I am king of the Jews'."

²² Pilate answered, "What I have written, I have written!"

²³ The soldiers, then, when they crucify Jesus, took His garments and make four parts, to each soldier a part, and the tunic. Now the tunic was seamless, woven from above throughout the whole. ²⁴ Then they said to one another, "We should not be rending it, but take chances on it, whose it shall be," that the scripture may be fulfilled which is saying

"They divide My garments among themselves,
And on My vesture they cast the lot."

The soldiers, indeed, then, do these things.

25 Physical relationships are temporary, and will be superseded by spiritual ties. All lasting spiritual bonds are made at the foot of the cross.

28-30 Compare Mt. 27:45-51; Mk. 15:33-36; Lu. 23:46; see Ps. 22:15; 69:21.

28 Perhaps in no other circumstances could we realize the intense passion of Christ for the word of God. His work was accomplished. We may know a little of what He felt from the words of the Psalmist (22:14-16):

I am poured out as water,
And all My bones are dissected.
My heart becomes as wax;
It is melted in the midst of My bowels.
My vigor is dry as earthenware,
And My tongue is clinging to My jaws,
And on the soil of death,
Thou art setting Me as the hearth stones.

Death, at the hands of God, not His enemies, was before Him. Yet one passage of scripture was not fulfilled. He had done His part, but men had not done theirs. The Psalmist had foretold (69:21):

And they put poison in My repast;
And for My thirst they cause Me to drink vinegar.

So He prompts them, and they fill the sponge and fulfill the passage.

Truly, not one letter of the law shall fail till all is fulfilled! If He could drink that bitter draught in the moment of His greatest weakness and deepest despair, that the scripture may be perfected, what will He do in the day of His power and glory? He will surely see that not a single line of the scriptures will fail of fulfillment.

30 The death of Christ was not due to the failure of His faculties, or to exhaustion. It was a deliberate act of His will. After having accomplished the work the Father set for Him to do, there was no need of further suffering. So He laid down His soul of His own volition; He gave up His spirit to God.

31 There were many sabbaths in Israel beside the weekly one. This sabbath was the first day of the festival of Unleavened bread (Lev. 23:7). As it introduced the seven day festival when all leaven was excluded from their houses, it was considered a far greater day than a weekly sabbath. It may be that the spirit of God is hinting also at 25 Now there had stood beside the cross of Jesus His mother and His mother's sister, Mary of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. Jesus, then, perceiving His mother and the disciple whom He loved standing beside Him, is saying to His mother, 27 "Woman, lo! your son!" Thereafter He is saying to the disciple, "Lo! your mother!" And from that hour the disciple took her to his own.

28 After this, Jesus, being aware that all has already been accomplished, that the scripture may be perfected, is saying, "I am thirsting!" 29 Now a vessel lay there distended with vinegar. Then placing a sponge distended with vinegar on hyssop, they carry it to His mouth. 30 When, then, Jesus took the vinegar, He said, "It has been accomplished!" And reclining His head, He gives up the spirit.

31 The Jews, then, since it was preparation, lest the bodies should be remaining on the cross on the sabbath (for that sabbath was a great day), ask Pilate that they might be fracturing their legs and they may be taken away. 32 The soldiers, then, came and fracture indeed the legs of the first and of the other who was crucified with Him. 33 Yet on coming to Jesus, as they perceived He had already died, they do not fracture His legs.

34 But one of the soldiers punctures His side with a lance head, and straightway blood and water 35 came out. And he who has seen has testified, and his testimony is true. And he is aware that he is telling the truth, that you, also, 36 should be believing. For these its real greatness. Leaven is a type of sin. Now the great Sin Offering had been slain, and sin was indeed put away! It was the greatest day in the Jewish calendar.

³² The course of the narrative here clearly shows that there were four others crucified with Christ. There were two malefactors and two robbers. The soldiers crush the legs of two before they come to Christ, so there must have been two on each side. There were no "thieves". One of the malefactors believed on Him.

³⁶ See Nu. 9:12; Ex. 12:46; Ps. 34:20.

³⁶ With His supernatural vitality He would have remained alive long after the others, and suffered the breaking of His bones if He had not laid down His soul of Himself. It is remarkable that, in all this, there is a divine intelligence behind the ignorance of man. They marred His flesh but did not break His bones. They poured out His blood, but did not mutilate His form. So that, in resurrection, His body is composed of flesh and bones and has no blood. The soul of the flesh is in the blood, but the spirit needs no blood. The wanton hands of His enemies were used to transform His body to the new condition needed in resurrection!

³⁸ What a notable change the crucifixion makes in two of the secret disciples of our Lord! Joseph of Arimathea was afraid of the Jews, but now he has the courage to go to Pilate and he takes the body away before the eyes of those he once feared. Nicodemus, also, does not wait till dark to bring the spices for embalming the body. He comes forth in the light of day. It is the cross, the suffering and shame, the agony and the degradation, of the One Who had won their hearts which took their timidity away. And it is still the inspiration for brave deeds and noble acts free from the fear of man.

things occurred that the scripture may be fulfilled,

"A bone of Him shall not be crushed."

³⁷ And again, a different scripture is saying,

"They shall see Him Whom they stab."

³⁸ Now after these things Joseph from Arimathea (who was a disciple of Jesus, yet hidden because of fear of the Jews) asks Pilate that he should be taking away the body of Jesus. And Pilate permits him. He came, then, and takes His body away.

⁴⁰ They got the body of Jesus, then, and they bind it in swathings with the spices, according as the custom of the Jews is to bury.

⁴¹ Now in the place where He was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which ⁴² no one was placed as yet. There, then, because of the Jews' preparation, seeing that the tomb was near, they place Jesus.

20 Now on one of the sabbaths, Miriam Magdalene is coming to the tomb in the morning, it being still dark, and is observing the stone taken away from the door of the ² tomb. She is racing, then, and coming to Simon Peter and to the other disciple of whom Jesus was fond, and she is saying to them. "They take away the Lord out of the tomb and we are not aware where they place Him!"

³ Peter, then, and the other disciple, came out and they came to the ⁴ tomb. Now the two raced alike, and the other disciple runs more swiftly before Peter and came to

6 There is a blessed contrast between the resurrection of Lazarus and the vivification of our Lord. Lazarus saw corruption. Christ saw none. Lazarus was raised bound foot and hand with grave clothes and his face was covered with a handkerchief. These are the signs of mortality and corruption. These are the symbols of weakness. Our Lord was raised in power. His feet were free, His hands untrammelled, His face uncovered. He had the power to take up His soul again. He had the strength to remove the grave clothes and roll aside the stone. He is not merely the Resurrection, but He is the Life!

8 How tragie is unbelief! Peter and John, His closest companions, refuse to credit His word when He tells them of His sufferings and death and resurrection. Now they had witnessed His shameful death, they had seen His empty tomb, and still they doubt His word!

11 Mary Magdalene, probably from the town of Magdala, had been possessed with seven demons. The Lord healed her and she became part of that elect company of women who dispensed to Him of their possessions (Lu. 8:2-3). She seems to have been among the last to leave the tomb, after witnessing where Joseph of Arimathea had laid Him. Along with some of the other women she seems to have been at the tomb very early, in order to complete the preparation of His body for burial.

Peter and John seem to have left her. She does not take a look and leave. She lingers, and her faith is rewarded by the unspeakable boon of being first to behold the risen Christ. Peter and John, when they looked, saw the grave clothes. She saw the messengers, but is not satisfied with any one but her Lord.

11-18 Compare Mk. 16:9-11.

18 What a world of pathos lies within the range of the human voice! There was no need to tell Who He was, once He had caressed her name as He only could intone it. "Miriam!" And immediately she recognizes the voice of her beloved Lord and Teacher. She alone is told of His victorious ascension to the Father, immediately after His resurrection. She carries the glorious news to the rest.

5 the tomb first. And, stooping over, he is observing the swathings lying. Howbeit, he did not enter.

6 Simon Peter, then, is also coming following him, and he entered the tomb and he is beholding the 7 swathings lying, and the handkerchief which was on His head, not lying with the swathings, but folded 8 up in one place apart. The other disciple also, then, who came first to the tomb, entered then, and he perceived and believes, for they not as yet were aware of the scripture that He must rise from among the 10 dead. The disciples, then, came away again by themselves.

11 Now Mary stood outside the tomb, lamenting. As, then, she lamented, she stoops over into the 12 tomb and is beholding two messengers in white seated, one at the head and one at the feet, where the 13 body of Jesus lay. And they are saying to her, "Woman, why are you lamenting?" And she is saying to them that "They take away my Lord, and I am not aware where they place Him!"

14 Saying these things, she turned behind, and is beholding Jesus standing, and she was not aware 15 that it is Jesus. Jesus is saying to her, "Woman, why are you lamenting? Whom are you seeking?" She, supposing that He is the gardener, is saying to Him, "Lord, if you bear Him off, tell me where you place Him, and I will 16 take Him away." Jesus is saying to her, "Miriam!" Now she, being turned, is saying to Him in Hebrew, "Rabboni!" which is the 17 term for "Teacher". Jesus is saying to her, "Touch Me not, for I

¹⁷ In the scriptures, omissions are of ten of supreme significance. To accord with the character of the account, this ascension of our Lord is mentioned only here. The other narratives omit it entirely. But it is still more significant to note the silence as to the nature and object of this ascension. The reason is clear. John is not detailing the celestial glories of Christ. That belongs to Paul's later ministry.

The conquest of the cross of Christ is not confined to earth. It places Him at the head of the whole universe. Messengers and sovereignties and authorities and powers among the celestials are all made subject to the Crucified One. After His resurrection He was proclaimed throughout the universe as Lord of all. When was this proclamation made? When was His public investiture with the tokens of His universal sovereignty? Surely that could not wait for forty days, until after His public ascension. Doubtless it was done soon after He delegated Mary to carry the news to His disciples. Then He ascended, and the crucified King of the Jews is acclaimed the Conqueror over all the powers of evil and the universal Suzerain. How little did His disciples dream of His exalted honors!

²² Here is where the disciples received the holy spirit. Pentecost was an endowment with power. Spirit is the vital force in the universe. Adam became a living soul as soon as the breath of God entered his body. So here the breath of Christ imparted the vital spirit which He had promised them after His glorification. Our breath is poisonous, death-dealing. His is vital, life-giving.

²³ In the proclamation of the kingdom the disciples certainly were given the right to forgive sins, or the opposite. Though the claims of priestcraft to this power at present are false, this should not blind us to the fact that such authority was given to His disciples by our Lord, and was exercised so long as the kingdom was proclaimed to Israel. This promise should make us hesitate in appropriating all in this account to ourselves, or to claim all its promises as our own.

have not as yet ascended to the Father. Now go to My brethren, and say to them, "Lo! I am ascending to My Father and your Father, and My God and your God."

¹⁸ Miriam Magdalene is coming, reporting to the disciples that "I have seen the Lord!"—and these things He said to her.

¹⁹ Then, being evening of that day, one of the sabbaths, and the doors where the disciples were gathered together having been locked because of fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst, and is saying to them, "Peace to ²⁰ you!" And saying this, He shows them the hands, and the side. The disciples, then, rejoiced at perceiving the Lord.

²¹ Jesus, then, said to them again, "Peace to you! According as the Father has commissioned Me, I also am sending you." And, saying ²² this, He exhales and is saying to them, "Get holy spirit! If you ²³ should be forgiving any one's sins, they have been forgiven them; if any one's you should be holding, they are held."

²⁴ Now Thomas, one of the twelve, termed Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. The other ²⁵ disciples, then, said to him, "We have seen the Lord!" Yet he said to them, "Except I should perceive in His hands the print of the nails, and should put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into His side, I will by no means be believing."

²⁶ And after eight days His disciples were again within, and Thomas was with them. The doors having been locked, Jesus is coming

²⁷ While we hardly care to sympathize with doubting Thomas, yet we feel grateful for the unanswerable evidence his case called forth. The reality of our Lord's resurrection is put beyond all question by his lack of faith. The very body that was marred by the nails and the spear, which saw no corruption, was actually made alive and could be felt and handled, to the satisfaction of one who refused to believe on less evidence.

³¹ It is evident that the signs in this account are a selection, chosen to give a complete picture of Israel's failure and Israel's Saviour. They are intended to signify to all who have ears to hear that the One Who speaks and acts is no other than the Messiah foretold by the prophets of old, and the further fact that He is also the Son of God. Eonian life is for all who receive this testimony. As we have seen, His present exaltation, while Israel is apostate, is carefully overlooked. Hence we must not expect to find present truth in John's account. He never had a commission for the nations, not even for proselytes, as Peter had. Because his ministry seems especially intended for millennial days, when the nations will be blessed through Israel, his allusions to world-wide blessing are often mistaken for that which has come to us while Israel is apostate.

³ Peter had a commission to fish for men. But he returns to his old trade and takes his companions with him. They toil all night and net nothing. Undoubtedly there is a solemn lesson in obedience here. The path of self-will brings much labor but no results. The path of obedience is fraught with blessing. But there seems a deeper lesson here than this. Peter's failure is a dispensational forecast. Peter and the apostles labor much to proclaim the kingdom during the darkness which has fallen on Israel. But their efforts are unavailing. Israel is not recalled to repentance. But in the morning, when the Lord comes again, the kingdom will once more be proclaimed. Then the results will be miraculous. All Israel will be saved. The miracle will be repeated then, and the net will include the 144,000 as well as a throng innumerable.

and stood in the midst and said,
²⁷ "Peace to you!" Thereafter He is saying to Thomas, "Bring your finger here, and perceive My hands, and bring your hand and put it into My side, and do not become un-
²⁸ believing but believing." And Thomas answered and said to Him,
²⁹ "My Lord and my God!" Now Jesus is saying to him, "Seeing that you have seen Me, you have believed. Happy are those who are not perceiving and believe."

³⁰ Many and other signs, indeed, then, Jesus does before His disciples which are not written in this scroll. Yet these are written that you should be believing that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that, believing, you may have eonian life in His name.

²¹ After these things Jesus manifests Himself again to the disciples on the sea of Tiberias. Now He manifests thus: There were alike
² Simon Peter and Thomas who is termed Didymus, and Nathanael from Cana of Galilee, and those of Zebedee, and two others of His disciples.

³ Simon Peter is saying to them, "I am going fishing!" They are saying to him, "We also are coming with you!" Then they came out and stepped into the ship straightway, and in that night they net nothing.

⁴ Now as it already becomes morning, Jesus stood on the beach. Howbeit, the disciples had not perceived that it is Jesus. Jesus, then,
⁵ is saying to them, "Little children, have you any viands?" They answered Him, "No!" Now He ⁶ said to them, "Cast the net on the right parts of the ship and you will

	6 THE YET He-said to-them BE-YE-CASTING

⁶ There are several methods of fishing from the shore in the day time. A baited hook was cast by Peter when he got the redemption money for himself and the Lord (Mt.17²⁷). Simon and Andrew were using a purse net when they were called to become fishers of men (Mk.1⁶). A seine or drag net was also used (Mt.13⁴⁷). The net here used was a large one let down from a ship. On one occasion, though the net broke, the haul filled two boats overfull (Lu.5⁴⁻⁶). Boat fishing was done at night. Seines were set and the fishermen, with flares and the beating of old metal pans, drove the fish toward the net. This cannot be done in the day time. After scouring the waters all night it must have seemed silly to lower the large net. It took faith to do that. And it was nothing less than a miracle that the net was not rent.

¹² A whole night of toil did not provide a breakfast for the faithless fishermen. Yet He makes manifest His care and provision by supplying their need. The meal is all ready and cooked. They do not do anything to provide it. This is the gracious rebuke of the Lord to Peter's fishing expedition. We never hear that he went back to fishing again.

¹³ The rich pathos of this passage will be apparent only if we carefully keep the finer shades of meaning conveyed by the original, as "fond" and "love", "graze" and "shepherd", "lambkins" and "sheep". This is the special commission given to Peter which he fulfills in the writing of his epistles. His humiliating experiences, in disowning the Lord and doubting His care and provision (of which the other apostles were not guilty) has chastened his spirit, so that he no longer boasts of his loyalty, though all the rest prove find." Then they cast, and they no longer had the strength to draw it, for the multitude of fishes.

⁷ Then that disciple whom Jesus loved is saying to Peter, "It is the Lord!" Simon Peter, then, hearing that it is the Lord, girds on his overcoat (for he was naked) and cast himself into the sea. Yet the other disciples came in the other boat (for they were not far from the land, but about two hundred cubits), dragging the net of fishes.

⁹ As, then, they stepped off to the land, they are observing a charcoal fire laid and food fish lying on it, and bread. Jesus is saying to them, "Bring of the food fish which you now net."

¹² Jesus is saying to them, "Come hither! Lunch!" Now no one of the disciples dared to inquire of Him, "Who art Thou?" being aware that it is the Lord. Jesus, then, is coming and taking the bread and is giving it to them, and the food fish likewise.

¹⁴ Now this was already the third time Jesus was manifested to the disciples, being roused from among the dead.

¹⁵ When, then, they lunch, Jesus is saying to Simon Peter. "Simon of John, are you loving Me more than these?" He is saying to Him, "Yes, Lord. Thou art aware that I am fond of Thee." He is saying to him, "Be grazing My lambkins." Again, a second time He is saying to him, "Simon of John, are you loving Me?" He is saying to Him, "Yes, Lord, Thou art aware that I am fond of Thee." He to be cowards. He knows that he loves his Lord, despite his craven heart, but he refuses to boast that he loves Him more than his fellows. He hides behind a weaker word, denoting the attractive force of friendship. But he does not put himself behind the assertion, but rather appeals to the Lord's omniscience. His humility is rewarded by the charge to provide sustenance for those weak in the faith.

The Lord repeats His question, but without any reference to Peter's boast or failure. Peter again refuses to vouch for himself, and is given charge of the Lord's flock.

The Lord now descends to Peter's profession of fondness, but questions even that. This touches Peter very sorely, but he refuses to vaunt. He feels full of love to the Lord but he is aware how dismally he had failed but a few days before. So he once more refers the Lord to his own omniscience. He has learned his lesson well. So the Lord commissions him to provide food for the mature saints.

¹⁸ Peter had boasted that he would lay down his soul for Him (13³⁷). It was this that led the Lord to predict that he would disown Him. Now He assures Peter that he will some day fulfill his boast. There is a tradition that Peter was crucified. See 2 Pe. 1:14.

²⁰ Now we are given a hint of John's commission. In a veiled way we are given to understand that John was to remain alive until the Lord's return. This is fulfilled in his vision of the Unveiling. There, in spirit, he sees all the events leading up to the kingdom and the kingdom itself. Truly, in spirit, he remained until the Lord comes.

The thought that John's special ministry, as distinct from Peter's, finds its fullest expression in the future when the kingdom is set up, is further enforced by the fact that it was not written until after the close of the Pentecostal era. Had it been intended to be used in that day, or in connection with Paul's evangel to the nations, it certainly would have been written much earlier. Only in the light of Israel's glorious future, as a blessing to all nations, can we fully appreciate the special message it contains.

is saying to him, "Be shepherding
¹⁷ My sheep." He is saying to him the third time, "Simon of John, are you fond of Me?" Peter was sorry that He said to him a third time "Are you fond of Me?" and he is saying to Him, "Lord, Thou art aware of all things. Thou knowest that I am fond of Thee." And Jesus is saying to him, "Be grazing
¹⁸ My little sheep. Verily, verily, I am saying to you, when you were young, you girded yourself and walked whither you would, yet whenever you may be decrepit you will stretch out your hands, and another shall be girding you and carrying you whither you would not."
¹⁹ Now this He said signifying by what death he will be glorifying God. And, saying this, He is saying to him, "Be following Me!"

²⁰ Now Peter, turning about, is observing the disciple whom Jesus loved, following, who leans back also on His chest at the dinner, and said to Him, "Lord, who is it
²¹ who is betraying Thee?" Peter, then, perceiving this one, is saying to Jesus, "Lord, yet what of ²² this one?" Jesus is saying to him, "If I should be wanting him to be remaining till I am coming, what is it to you? You be following
²³ Me!" This word, then, came out to the brethren, that that disciple is not dying. Now Jesus did not say to him that he is not dying, but "If I should be wanting him to be remaining till I am coming, what is it to you?"

²⁴ This is the disciple who is testifying also concerning these things, and who writes these things. And we are aware that his testimony is ²⁵ true. Now there are many other things also, which Jesus does, which, if they should be written,

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

THE ACTS is a continuation of the proclamation of the kingdom of God, no longer by the King Himself, but by the spirit of God through His apostles. He prayed, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do!" In answer to this petition the unbelieving nation once more hears the evangel of the kingdom, enforced by His resurrection from the dead. Israel had rejected Jehovah under the law. They rejected their Messiah when He came in mercy. Acts is a record of their rejection of the spirit of grace which lingers over them until blindness overtakes them for the eon. It begins with the descent of the spirit. It traces the rejection of the spirit. It ends with the spirit's repudiation of Israel. In the beginning, Peter unlocks the door of the kingdom for the Jews; at the close, Paul, in Rome, shuts the door of the kingdom and locks up Israel in obstinacy.

This treatise is transitional. From the first extreme where the nations seem to have no place at all, it leads us on until we arrive at the opposite, where the Jew loses his priority.

It is a record of Israel's response to the renewed proclamation of pardon, and chronicles their apostasy and their gradual rejection. But it also records God's answer to their defection, so that He, instead of being balked in His purpose to bless the other nations, makes their apostasy the basis of a much greater and grander grace than the nations could have experienced if Israel had not apostatized. There is no definite statement of this, for the subject of the book forbids it, yet all the sympoms of the present grace will be found, and each symptom follows a crisis in the apostasy of the chosen nation. In reading Acts let us remember that God is concerned with the kingdom to Israel, yet all the while He is making room for that distinct display of grace which we enjoy and which is fully expounded in Paul's epistles, most of which were written during this interregnum.

This account is a series of acts and counter acts. Jerusalem's stoning of Stephen is followed by the introduction of Saul of Tarsus. The persecution in Judea and Samaria is followed by his call on the Damascus road. The murder of James is succeeded by the severance of Saul. When the Jerusalem believers try to kill Paul, he is sent to Rome, where the nation of Israel is set aside and the salvation of God is sent to the other nations.

Peter appears prominently in the first part of Acts, but Paul replaces him in the latter portion. All that Peter did was more than matched by Paul. Every miracle the chief of the Circumcision apostles wrought was eclipsed by a similar sign, greater in glory and grace.

No truth characteristic of the present actually appears on the pages of Acts. Yet the distinctive doctrines we enjoy did not fall from heaven like a meteor; they gradually rose to view like the sun. In Acts we see their early refracted light before they appear above the horizon. Justification of a kind is preached at Pisidian Antioch, conciliation becomes clear as the evangel reaches the nations through Jewish opposition, and the way is opened for the celestial secret of Paul's prison epistles by the public repudiation of Israel in Rome. The ministries of Paul, as recorded in Acts, bring us up to, but never into, present truth. That is found alone in his epistles.

This transitional era, from our Lord's crucifixion to the full establishment of the present secret economy, was marked by a series of changes in dispensation and administration. It is of prime importance that we understand the trend and character of these dispensational divisions, so that we may intelligently follow the inauguration of the economy or administration which is in force today.

These changes may be viewed from two entirely different standpoints. In the book of Acts they mark the steps which led to the rejection of the kingdom by Israel and of Israel by God. In Paul's epistles the same crises are seen as they prepare for the introduction of the present administration. The trend of truth is continually away from the earthly and physical to the celestial and spiritual.

The accompanying outline suggests the steps in Israel's defection and the gradual reception of the nations into blessing. One line is associated with the ministries of the twelve, the other with the apostle Paul. The two lines overlap. Paul is introduced immediately after the murder of Stephen by Jerusalem and each successive lapse of Israel is followed by adding another step in the course which culminated in the revelation of the present secret economy when he became a prisoner in Rome.

Paul's ministries keep pace with each phase of Israel's apostasy. Their unrighteousness is offset by faith righteousness as proclaimed at Pisidian Antioch. When their folly and poverty are manifest, he proclaims God's wisdom and wealth in Corinth, the commercial capital of the day. When their priestly functions fail, he goes to Ephesus, the religious center of the gentile world, and reveals the conciliation. Finally, when the promise of political supremacy is taken from them, Paul is in Rome, the world's political capital, and there he proclaims a new economy based on their political repudiation.

According to the prophets of old, all blessing for the nations is through and with the nation of Israel. So it will be in the kingdom. The distinctive truths of the present secret economy are based on the opposite of this. They follow Israel's failure and apostasy. So far as revealed in the Hebrew scriptures, in the accounts of our Lord, and in the Circumcision epistles, there is no basis for blessing at all now, for Israel is the only channel that they know. The book of Acts fills the chasm between the kingdom economy and the present and traces the many steps which lead up to the blessing of the nations during this period, while Israel is thrust aside. It prepares the devout student of previous revelation for the astounding declaration with which it closes, that the salvation of God is to be sent directly to the nations, apart from Israel's mediacy, and that the nations will hear it.

Throughout the Acts the nations are treated as subjects of the kingdom and subordinate to the Jewish nation. This is the case even in Paul's early epistles. The nations were debtors to Israel (Ro.15²⁷). But Israel's blessing waits until the fullness of the nations has come in (Ro. 11), and when the apostle reveals the great secret that those under Paul's ministry are to be joint enjoyers of a heavenly allotment, and a joint body and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus (Eph.3^a), the entire kingdom economy vanishes and a new, secret economy takes its place. The great confusion among the saints today will vanish to a large extent if they will recognize the transitional, kingdom character of Acts, and draw their doctrine from Paul's epistles, especially those written at its close, before which the present secret administration was not revealed, and its doctrines were undeveloped, while God lingered over His ancient and beloved people Israel.

⁶ He had been telling them about the kingdom of Israel, but did not tell them when it would be restored to them. He does not correct their ideas as to the character of the kingdom, but keeps them in suspense as to the time. That would depend on the reception accorded their testimony, hence could not be foretold without unfavorably affecting its proclamation. Indeed, we are kept in suspense throughout the book, till the very close, when the kingdom is rejected by the Jews in Rome, and even then we are referred to Isaiah's question, "Till when?" God alone knows when, though in these days there are many signs that the longed-for time is near.

⁸ The ministry of the twelve apostles was confined to three spheres—Jerusalem, Samaria, and the rest of the land. Beyond this they had no commission. Paul was called outside the land and commissioned for the regions beyond. The first seven chapters deal with their ministry in Jerusalem, the eighth and ninth with Samaria, and the tenth, eleventh and twelfth with the proselytes and Jews in the land. The balance of the book leads us outside the sphere of the ministry of the Twelve.

THE first account, indeed, I make, O Theophilus, concerning all which Jesus begins to do as well as ² to teach, until the day on which He was taken up; directing the apostles whom He chooses, through ³ holy spirit; to whom He presents Himself alive also, after His suffering, with many tokens, during forty days, being visualized to them and telling them that which concerns the kingdom of God. And,
⁴ being foregathered, He charges them not to be departing from Jerusalem, but to be remaining about for the promise of the Father,
⁵ "which you hear of Me, seeing that John, indeed, baptizes in water, yet you shall be baptized in holy spirit after not many of these days."
⁶ Those, indeed, then, who are coming together, asked Him, saying, "Lord, art Thou at this time restoring the kingdom to Israel?"
⁷ Yet He said to them, "It is not for you to know the times or the eras which the Father placed in His
⁸ own jurisdiction. But you shall be obtaining power at the coming of the holy spirit on you, and you shall be My witnesses in Jerusalem, as well as in entire Judea and Samaria, and to the limits of the land."

¹⁰ in white attire, who say also, "Men! Galileans! Why do you stand looking into heaven? This

⁹ The resurrection and ascension of Christ are the two dominating factors in the kingdom testimony in this book. The kingdom had been proclaimed by the King in meekness and humiliation. Now it was about to be proclaimed in power by His apostles while He is glorified in heaven. They rejected Him when He spoke on earth. Will they refuse when He speaks from heaven? They scorned Him before His death. Will they hear One Who had risen from the dead?

¹¹ The manner of His descent upon Olivet is to be precisely that which Zechariah had foretold (Zech.14³⁻⁴):

And Jehovah shall go forth and fight against those nations,
As the day He fought in the day of the attack.
And His feet stand in that day upon the mount of Olives
Which faces Jerusalem from the east.

He will come with the clouds of heaven (Dan.7¹³, Un.17) with power and great glory (Mt.24³⁰) as the Son of Mankind to a handful of faithful Israelites, just as He left. But for the church, the body of Christ, He comes, not to Olivet, but to the air, not to judge and make war, but to save us and take to Himself in glory all the members of His body, long before He returns to the mount of Olives.

¹⁶ The buying of a freehold was typical of Judas' loss of his allotment and going to his "own" place. Almost all land in Israel was held in common and allotted each year. But there were a few parcels of ground, such as the garden of Gethsemane, the titles of which were held by individuals. Judas bought one of these. This shows that he had no faith in the coming kingdom, when lands would be re-distributed. Contrast the course of the believing disciples (4⁸⁴).

Jesus Who is being taken up from you into heaven shall come in the same manner as you gaze upon Him going into heaven."

¹² Then they return into Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem a sabbath's journey. And when they entered it, they ascended into the upper chamber where they were residing — Peter as well as John, and James, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James of Alphaeus and Simon the Zealot, and Judas of James. These all were persevering with one accord in prayer, together with the women and Miriam, the mother of Jesus, and His brothers.

¹⁵ And in these days Peter, rising in the midst of the brethren, said (there was besides a throng in the same place of about a hundred and twenty names): "Men! Brethren! The scripture must be fulfilled in which the holy spirit predicted through the mouth of David, concerning Judas, who becomes the guide of those apprehending Jesus, seeing that he was numbered among us, and chanced upon the allotment of this dispensation."

²⁰ It seems that Judas did not pay for the freehold, but returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests. They had a consultation, and used the money to complete the purchase. The freehold was called the Field of the Potter and was used for the burial of strangers (Mt.27⁷). But Judas not only lost his land and his life but also his place among the apostles.

²² The casting of lots was quite the opposite of a "lottery" in Israel. It was a constant recourse in order to know the mind of the Lord (Prov.16³³).

The lot is cast forth in a bosom,
And from Jehovah is all its judgment.

Matthias was duly and lawfully chosen and will have his place in the kingdom ruling over a tribe of Israel. That his name is not again mentioned does not disprove this, for several of the lesser apostles are never heard of afterward.

¹ Pentecost is simply the Greek word "Fiftieth", because it was fifty days after the Passover. There were three feasts in Israel each year (Ex.23¹⁴). The first was the feast of unleavened bread, after the Passover; the second, the feast of harvest, or firstfruits (which is here called Pentecost because it was held seven weeks after the Passover), and the feast of ingathering. As the latter is a type of the time when all Israel shall be saved, so Pentecost is a picture of the salvation of a firstfruit of the nation. This is what occurred, both on the day of Pentecost and during the entire period covered by this book (Jas.1¹⁸).

² This is not the reception of the spirit by the apostles, for they had already received it (Jn.20²²). This is the "coming on" of power which the Lord had promised a few days before (1⁸). The baptism of the spirit was

'Let his domicile become desolate,
And let no one be dwelling in it'.

'His supervision let a different one take.'

- ²¹ Then of the men coming together with us in all the time in which the Lord Jesus came in and out with ²² us, beginning from the baptism of John until the day on which He was taken up from us, of these one must become a witness of His resurrection together with us."
²³ And they nominate two, Joseph, called Bar-Sabbas, who was sur-²⁴ named Justus, and Matthias. And praying, they say, "Thou, Lord, Knower of all hearts, indicate one whom Thou choosest, out of these
²⁵ two, to take the place of this dispensation and apostleship, from which Judas transgressed, to be gone into ²⁶ his own place." And they give lots to them, and the lot falls on Matthias, and he is enumerated with the eleven apostles.

- ² And in the fulfillment of the day of Pentecost they were all alike in ² the same place. And suddenly there came out of heaven a blare even as a violent carrying blast, and it fills the whole house where they ³ were sitting. And dividing tongues were seen by them as if of fire, and they are seated on each one of ⁴ them. And they are all filled with holy spirit, and they begin to speak in different languages, according as the spirit gave them to declaim.

- ⁵ Now there were dwelling in Jerusalem Jews, pious men from every given for cleansing (not power), and the filling for utterance.

⁵ To this day it has been the hope of the pious among the dispersion to return to Jerusalem. Many aged Jews have spent their last days there. So, on the day of Pentecost, there were many in the city who had been born abroad, but who had returned to dwell near the temple. They were typical of that return to the land of their fathers which will precede the setting up of the kingdom. Then salvation and deliverance will be in mount Zion and in Jerusalem (Joel 2³²). To be in that remnant is the highest privilege open to the pious repatriate of the dispersion.

¹² The object of this manifestation, as found in Joel, was to make them know that God was in the midst of Israel. (Joel 2²⁷). Afterward the signs which usher in the day of the Lord were due. In other words, Pentecost was the prelude to the era of judgment which precedes the setting up of the kingdom. This shows that it was not intended to be the commencement of the present economy of grace which was later introduced through Paul's ministries. In that future judgment period the signs foretold by Peter will take place. The salvation offered at Pentecost was principally concerned with these judgment scenes through which they hoped to be saved for a place in the kingdom when Christ would return to the Mount of Olives.

¹⁶ This is what. Such is Peter's interpretation of Pentecost. It was a

⁶ nation under heaven. Now when this sound occurs, the multitude came together, and was confused, seeing that each one hears them speaking in his own vernacular.

⁷ Now they are all amazed, and marveled, saying, "Lo! are not all these who are speaking, Gali-

⁸ leans? And how are we hearing, each in our own vernacular in

⁹ which we were born? Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judea as well as Cappadocia, Pontus and the

¹⁰ [province of] Asia, Phrygia as well as Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and Roman

¹² Now they are all amazed and bewildered, saying to one another, "What does this want to be?"

¹³ Yet others, taunting, said that "They are bloated with sweet

¹⁴ wine!" Now Peter, standing with the eleven, lifts up his voice and declares to them: "Men! Judeans! and all who are dwelling at Jerusalem! Be this known to you, and

¹⁵ give ear to my declarations, for these are not drunk, as you take it, for it is the third hour of the day.

¹⁶ But this is what has been declared through the prophet Joel:

¹⁷ 'And it shall be'

(in the last days, God is saying)

fulfillment of ancient prophecy. God was in their midst as foretold in Joel (2²⁷). This, however, was introductory to the terrible celestial convulsions and earthly upheavals which prepare for the dreadful day of the Lord. It promised a time of trial and affliction unparalleled by any that earth has suffered hitherto. It introduced God in the character of an Avenger of His people, Who is about to gather the nations to battle and Who will destroy them in His fury. Had the nation of Israel repented, and the Pentecostal economy continued without interruption, there would never have been a parenthetical period like the present of which none of the prophets ever spoke, which was a secret hid in God (Eph. 3⁹) and which presents God as a Supplicant, petitioning for conciliation, and preserving peace at all costs (2Co. 5²⁰), Who showers His richest blessings on the nations and gives them a celestial allotment immeasurably beyond the highest thought of Pentecost.

¹⁸ Peter, not Joel, speaks of prophesying. It is an inspired break between that part of Joel's prophecy which was fulfilled at Pentecost and that which is yet future.

²³ The Jews knew that Christ should suffer. Their sacred scrolls were explicit. This was the counsel which determined His death beforehand.

²⁴ The resurrection is the central and essential theme of every evangel. As Peter is proclaiming the kingdom, he proves His resurrection by referring his hearers to king David and his throne. David is the one with whom the throne covenant had been made (2Sam.23⁵). It is as David's Heir that Christ will sit on the throne, ruling the nation of Israel, during the thousand years.

'I shall be pouring out from My spirit on all flesh,
And your sons and your daughters shall be prophesying,
And your youths shall be seeing visions,
And your elders shall be dreaming dreams,

- 18 And surely on My men slaves and on My women slaves in those days Shall I be pouring out from My spirit,'

And they shall be prophesying.

- 19 'And I will be giving miracles in heaven above,
And signs on the earth below,
Blood and fire and exhalation of smoke,
20 The sun shall be converted into darkness,
And the moon into blood
Ere the coming of the great advent day of the Lord.
21 And it shall be that everyone, whoever should be invoking the name of the Lord, shall be saved.'

- 22 Men! Israelites! Hear these words: Jesus, the Nazarene, a Man demonstrated to be from God for you by powers and miracles and signs, which God does through Him in the midst of you, according as 23 you yourselves are aware, This One, given up by the specific counsel and foreknowledge of God, you, gibbeting with lawless hands, assassinate, 24 Whom God raises, loosing the pangs of death, forasmuch as He could not be held by it.

- 25 For David is saying to Him,

'I saw the Lord before me continually,
Seeing that He is at my right hand, that I may not be shaken.

- 26 Therefore my heart was gladdened and my tongue exults.
Now, further, my flesh also shall be tenting in expectation,

27 BOOTHING ON EXPECTATION that NOT

²⁷ Death is a return. The spirit returns to God Who gave it (Ecc.12⁷). The soul returns to the unseen. The body returns to the soil (Ecc.12⁷, cf. Gen.3¹⁰). In the case of our Lord, He commended His spirit to the Father (Lu.23⁴⁶). Here he speaks of His soul in the unseen. But His body did not return to the soil. In this His death differs from others. There was no dissolution or decomposition which accompanies the death of other men. His resurrection was unique also. Others who are vivified, will not rise with the same body which was put into the tomb, but God will give each one a body according to His pleasure (1Co.15³⁸). But He arose with the identical frame which bore our sins, pure, spotless and unsullied even by the hand of death.

³⁴ The whole passage shows that Peter is proclaiming a literal king and a literal kingdom for Israel. The descent of the spirit had nothing to do with the formation of the body of Christ, but was a well known sign which indicated the approach of the judgment era which precedes Messiah's advent. In accordance with the burden of his message Peter chooses to bring before them king David and the covenant God made with him, because, if they accept his words, it is this covenant which would be fulfilled. They had crucified Him as the King of Israel. His resurrection proves Him to be the One Whom David foretold. All that remains to be done, should Israel, as a nation, repent, would be the judging of His enemies. This will occur in the judgment era. Here is no hint of, or preparation for, the present interval of undiluted grace, in which God is raising up His enemies, like Saul of Tarsus, to sit with Christ on His celestial throne.

²⁸ Thou makest known to me the paths of life
Thou wilt be filling me with gladness with Thy face.'

²⁹ Men! Brethren! Allow me to say to you with boldness concerning the patriarch David, that he is deceased also, and was entombed, and his tomb is among us until this day.

³⁰ Belonging, then, to the prophets, and having perceived that God swears to him with an oath, out of the fruit of his loins to seat One on ³¹ his throne, foreseeing this, he speaks concerning the resurrection of Christ, that He was neither abandoned in the unseen, nor was His flesh acquainted with decay.

³² This Jesus God raises, Whose witness we all are. Being, then, exalted to God's right hand, besides obtaining the promise of the holy spirit from the Father, He pours out this which you are observing and hearing.

³⁴ For David did not ascend into the heavens, yet he is saying,

"The Lord said to my Lord,
"Be sitting at My right hand

³⁵ Till I should be placing your enemies
As a footstool for your feet."'

³⁶ Let all the house of Israel know certainly, then, that God makes Him Lord as well as Christ—this Jesus Whom you crucify!"

³⁷ Now as they hear, their heart was pricked with compunction. Besides, they said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Men, brethren, what should we be doing?" Now Peter is averring to them, "Repent and be baptized each of you in the name

 AVERRING AND LET-BE-BEING-DIPIZED EACH

³⁸ Repentance and baptism lead to a probationary pardon, which may be withdrawn. This pardon is extended by Christ as the King. Its operation is illustrated by the parable of the ten thousand talent debtor (see Mt.18²⁷⁻³⁴) whose debt was remitted, but who refused to remit the smaller sum which his fellow slave owed to him. Hence the remission of his debt was canceled. So it is with Israel in this chronicle. Many of those who, in the beginning, received the pardon of their sins, refused to share their pardon with the other nations, objecting to proselytes like Cornelius, raising a riot on the supposition that an alien has entered the sanctuary, seeking to kill Paul even though he brought alms to Jerusalem. They finally fall away (Heb.6^{4,10}²⁷) where there is no longer any room for repentance, but a fearful prospect of judgment. This pardon, however, is in sharp contrast to our justification, or acquittal, which comes from the Judge on the sole grounds of grace and faith, and from which there can be no fall, as it places us beyond the sphere of judgment. Conciliation (Ro.5¹¹) is immeasurably beyond any pardon, as it places us in the unclouded favor of God's grace.

³⁹ The promise was to Israel, both in the land and in the dispersion (Dan. 9⁷). Those "afar" were Jews in the lands where God had driven them, and not Gentiles or the church.

⁴⁰ The salvation was from the judgments about to visit that crooked generation.

⁴⁵ Each Israelite had an allotment according to the law, which could not be permanently disposed of, but came back to him at the jubilee. Those who had bought such allotments would lose them when the kingdom would be set up, for then there will be the great jubilee, when each allotment will be returned to its true tenant. These believers did not sell their own allot-of Jesus Christ for the pardon of your sins, and you shall be obtaining the gratuity of the holy spirit.

³⁹ For the promise is to you and to your children, and to all those afar, as many as ever the Lord our God ⁴⁰ should be calling." Besides, with more and different words, he conjures and entreated them, saying, "Be saved from this crooked generation!"

⁴¹ Those indeed, then, who welcome his word are baptized, and in that day about three thousand souls ⁴² were added. Now they were persevering in the teaching of the apostles, and in fellowship, and in the breaking of bread, and in prayers.

⁴³ Now fear came on every soul, yet many miracles and signs came to pass through the apostles in Jerusalem. Besides, great fear was on all, and all those who believe were in the same place and had all things ⁴⁵ in common. And they disposed of the acquisitions and property, and divided them to all, as much as ever ⁴⁶ any had need. Persevering daily with one accord in the sanctuary, as well as breaking bread at home, they partook of nourishment with exultation and simplicity of heart, ⁴⁷ praising God and having favor with the whole people. Now the Lord daily added those being saved in the same place.

3 Now Peter and John went up into the sanctuary at the hour of ² prayer, the ninth. And a certain man, inherently lame from his mother's womb, was borne, whom ments, but those which they had acquired, which they would forfeit in the jubilee. This showed their faith in the coming of the kingdom.

² Can we not see, in the man lame from his birth, a close likeness to the people of Israel? They had a beautiful way of approach to God, but it availed them little, for they were unable to walk through it, into the divine presence. The healing of the lame man was a sign (416). As a miracle it was full of significance. To those who read its message it proclaimed the advent of One Who could heal Israel's impotence and bring them, like the lame man, into God's house and fill them with joy and praise. But above all, it was a sign of that day when the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the narcissus, for then shall the lame man leap as a fallow deer (Isa.35⁸). The powers of the age to come are present in Israel! No wonder the devout and reverent worshipers in the sanctuary are filled with awe and amazement! To them it was no mere prodigy, no unmeaning exhibition of supernatural power, but the key to that kingdom which was the goal of all their hopes and aspirations. It meant the end of the Gentile yoke, the sovereignty of Israel over the nations, the coming of Messiah and a thousand blessings for a thousand years.

they placed daily at the door of the sanctuary which is termed "Beautiful", requesting alms from those ³ entering into the sanctuary, who, perceiving Peter and John being about to pass into the sanctuary,
⁴ asked to obtain alms. Now Peter, looking at him intently together with John, said, "Look at us!"
⁵ And he attended to them, hoping to
⁶ get something from them. Yet Peter said, "Silver and gold I do not possess: yet what I have, this I am giving to you. In the name of Jesus
⁷ Christ, the Nazarene, walk!" And, taking his right hand, he raises him up. Now instantly his insteps
⁸ and ankles were given stability, and, leaping up, he stood and walked and entered with them into the sanctuary, walking and leaping and praising God.

⁹ And the entire people perceived
¹⁰ him walking and praising God. Now they recognized him, that this was the one sitting for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the sanctuary. And they are filled with awe and amazement at that which has befallen him.

¹¹ Now, while he is holding Peter and John, the entire people ran together to them at the portico which is called Solomon's, overawed.
¹² Now Peter, perceiving it, answers the people: "Men! Israelites! Why are you marveling at this? Or why are you staring at us as if our own power or devoutness has
¹³ made him walk? The God of Abra-

¹³ The word "Boy" is here used because it, like its Greek equivalent, may be used both of a child and a servant. The common version renders it servant, child and son. Each of these, however, better represents another Greek word, and all fail to give the dual meaning which this word seems to have. It is usually restricted to a boy or girl between seven and fourteen years of age. It is used of our Lord when He was twelve years old and remained behind when they went home from the festival (Lu.2⁴³).

¹⁴ The complete restoration of Peter to divine favor is nowhere more clearly seen than when he charges them, "You disown the holy and just One!" None of them were as guilty as he himself had been, yet he does not allow his personal failure to hinder his faithful proclamation of the evangel. In order to get them to repent, or change their minds regarding the Messiah, it was necessary to press home their awful guilt. Yet the most important point is the witness he bears to the resurrection of Christ. This it is which proves His Messiahship. The healing of the lame man is but one more proof that He is alive and able to do all that the prophets foretold of Him.

¹⁷ Under the law, sins of ignorance were distinguished from willful disobedience. This was the ground of the Saviour's prayer for them. "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do!" (Lu.23³⁴). This is the real clue to the so-called "unpardonable sin". The sin against the Son of Mankind was forgiven, for it was done in ignorance. But the sin against the testimony borne by the holy spirit in the book of Acts was unpardonable because it was done deliberately and willfully, after the resurrection of Christ.

²¹ The times of restoration include the terrific judgments of the Unveiling, when by means of seals, trumpets and bowls, the earth is restored to the sovereignty of Christ as Son of Mankind. It has no reference to individual destiny, but to redemption of the enslaved and the disinherited by their Kinsman Redeemer (Lev.25).

ham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, glorifies His Boy Jesus. Whom you, indeed, betray and disown before the face of Pilate, when ¹⁴ he decides to release Him. Now you disown the holy and just One, and request a man, a murderer, to be ¹⁵ surrendered to you. Yet you kill the Inaugurator of Life, Whom God rouses from among the dead, ¹⁶ Whose witnesses we are. And in the faith of His name, His name gives stability to him whom you are beholding, with whom, also, you are acquainted, and the faith which is through Him gives him this unimpaired soundness in front of you all.

¹⁷ And now, brethren, I am aware that you commit it in ignorance. ¹⁸ even as your chiefs also. Yet what God announces before through the mouth of all the prophets—the suffering of His Christ—He thus fulfills. Repent, then, and turn about for the erasure of your sins, so that the seasons of refreshing should be coming from the face of the Lord. ²⁰ and He may dispatch the One selected before for you, Christ Jesus, ²¹ Whom heaven must indeed receive until the times of the restoration of all which God speaks through the mouth of His holy prophets from the eon. ²² Moses, indeed, said that "The Lord, your God, will be raising up to you a Prophet from among your brethren, as me. Him you shall hear, according to all whatever He ²³ should be speaking to you. Yet it shall be, every soul which should ²³ Christ is the Prophet like Moses sent to lead Jehovah's people out of Egypt, through the wilderness, into the kingdom. The whole period of the book of Acts is typified by Israel's wilderness journey. Because the people did not hearken to Moses they were strewn along in the wilderness and never entered the holy land. Likewise, because the nation did not hearken to One Who was more than Moses, they did not enter the kingdom.

The threat of extermination is an inspired alteration. In Deut. 18:¹⁹ the Hebrew is, literally, "I will inquire," or, as we say "I will require it of him." The LXX renders this "I will take vengeance on him."

²⁶ The term "Boy" is used here with all reverence, for want of a better. The difficulties encountered in its translation are apparent from the variety of renderings in the common version, all of which are better fitted to some other Greek word. They use child, son, servant, young man, maid, etc. It is used of the boys under two years of age in Bethlehem (Mt.2:¹⁶). It is used of Jesus when He was twelve years old (Lu.2:⁴³). It is quoted from Isaiah when he spoke of Him (Mt.12:¹⁸). It is applied to Him four times in this book (3:¹³, 4:²⁷⁻³⁰). It is a word like our "boy" or "girl" which may be applied either to a child or a young servant.

¹ The apostles offended both the priests and the Sadducees by their action. It was the privilege of the priests to teach the people. They should have been the chief support of the apostles in heralding the proclamation of the kingdom. But they are jealous because these common men command a hearing and usurp their authority in matters of doctrine. The Sadducees are especially offended, inasmuch as they denied the doctrine of the resurrection, which was the principal point in the proclamation of the apostles. Apart from the resurrection Messiah was dead and all hope of His kingdom was crucified with Him. But, given the power of His resurrection, all the promises of the kingdom are confirmed. The officer of the sanctuary was in command of the Levitical guard which had the military oversight of the sacred precincts, where the Gentiles could not enter.

not be hearing that Prophet shall be utterly exterminated from among ²¹ the people.' Now all the prophets also; from Samuel, and those succeeding him, as many as speak, also ²⁵ announce these days. You are the sons of the prophets and of the covenant which God covenanted with your fathers, saying to Abraham, 'And in your seed all the kindreds
²⁶ of the earth shall be blessed.' To you first God, raising His Boy, commissions Him to bless you by turning each of you from your wickednesses."

⁴ Now, at their speaking to the people, the priests and officer of the sanctuary and the Sadducees stand
² by them, being exasperated because of their teaching the people and announcing in Jesus the resurrection
³ from among the dead. And they laid hands on them and they were placed in custody for the morrow, for it was already dusk.

⁴ Now many of those who hear the word believe, and the number of men became about five thousand.

⁵ Now it occurred on the morrow that their chiefs and the elders and the scribes assembled in Jerusalem,
⁶ and Annas, the chief priest, and Caiaphas and John and Alexander and as many as were of the chief
⁷ priestly race. And, standing them in the midst, they inquired to ascertain "By what power or in what name do you do this?"

⁸ Then Peter, being filled with

⁸ The evangel of the kingdom is now for the first time since the death of Christ, proclaimed to Israel as a nation, as represented by her chiefs and elders and scribes. Hitherto it has gone to individuals in the nation with considerable success. Now everything hinges on the attitude of the official heads of the people. They had rejected Messiah Himself and were responsible for His crucifixion. The chief priests and elders knew that He had foretold His resurrection (Mt.27⁶³). They had the evidence of the Roman guard and had bribed them to tell a false story (Mt.28¹³). To this the apostles now add their testimony and confirm it by healing the lame man. When Peter speaks they are quite unable to answer him. Surely now they are convinced that Jesus is the Messiah! If He can save the lame man He can save the nation. Here was Israel's opportunity. They stood on the verge of the kingdom. If they accepted Him, He would soon rid them of their enemies and come to set up the sovereignty promised by the prophets. Should they refuse the testimony of the holy spirit as they had rejected Him it would involve the whole nation in an eonian sin, and the kingdom could not come.

The disciples' question concerning the restoration of the kingdom at this time, is here answered for us for the first time. Again and again, during the course of its proclamation, the Jews reject the King and the kingdom. Here, however, we have the first refusal. This is the supreme crisis in the book of Acts. Had they accepted the apostles' testimony, the nation would have followed their lead, and the success of the apostles' proclamation would have been assured. Now that they reject the testimony to His resurrection, it is clear that Israel's rightful sovereignty will not be restored to them at this time.

holy spirit, said to them, "Chiefs
⁹ of the people and elders! If we today are being examined concerning the infirm man's benefaction, by ¹⁰ what he has been saved, let it be known to you all and to the entire people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ, the Nazarene, Whom you crucify, Whom God rouses from among the dead, by this One, this ¹¹ man stands before you sound. This is the Stone which is being scorned
¹² by you builders, which is becoming the head of the corner. And there is no salvation in any other, for neither has any other name been given under heaven among men in which we must be saved."

¹³ Now, on beholding the boldness of Peter and John, and grasping that they are illiterate and ordinary men, they marveled. Besides, they recognized them, that they were ¹⁴ with Jesus. Besides, observing the man who has been cured standing with them, they had nothing to contradict.

¹⁵ Now, ordering them to come out of the Sanhedrin, they parleyed
¹⁶ with one another, saying, "What should we be doing to these men? For, indeed, that a known sign has occurred through them, is apparent to all who are dwelling at Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it. But, lest it may disseminate more among the people, we should be threatening them no longer to be speaking ¹⁷ in this Name to any man." And, calling them, they give them a sweeping charge not to utter aught, neither to be teaching, in the name of Jesus.

 CALLING them THEY-

¹³ Peter and John were not ignorant men by any means, though they lacked the culture and affectation which marked the learned class of that day. They had been in the school of Christ.

¹⁹ The attitude of the Sanhedrin had the immediate effect of abrogating their authority. They should have ruled for God, now they are arrayed against God. They should have been a terror to evil-doers: now they menace those who are carrying out His will. Peter, as an apostle of the Messiah, was one of the real rulers in Israel, and will one day sit upon a throne in the kingdom (Mt.19²⁷). Hence he has the right to oppose the Sanhedrin and to carry out the commission which he has from his Master. This is no example for us to follow in this economy. We are to be subject to the superior authorities (Ro.13¹).

¹⁹ Yet Peter and John, answering, said to them, "If it is just before God to be hearing you rather than God, judge you; for we cannot but be speaking of what we perceive and hear". Yet those who menace them release them, not finding how they should be chastening them because of the people, seeing that all glorified God for that which ²² has occurred, for the man was of more than forty years, on whom this sign of healing had occurred.

²³ Now, being released, they came to their own and report whatever the chief priests and elders say to ²⁴ them. Now those who hear lift up their voice to God with one accord, and say, "O Owner, Thou Who makest heaven and earth and the ²⁵ sea and all that is in them, Who through holy spirit, by the mouth of our father, Thy boy David, art saying,

'Why do the nations rage,
And the people meditate empty things?

²⁶ The kings of the land stand by,
And the chiefs were assembled for the same intent,
Against the Lord and against His Christ.'

²⁷ For of a truth, in this city, were assembled against Thy holy Boy Jesus, Whom Thou dost anoint, Herod, as well as Pontius Pilate, together with the nations and the ²⁸ peoples of Israel, to do whatever Thy hand and Thy counsel designates beforehand to occur.

²⁹ And now, Lord, take notice of their threats, and be Thou en-

		NOW Master ON-PERCEIVE ON THE threats

³² The laws concerning property were so different in Israel from anything with which we are acquainted that it is difficult for us to understand this and similar passages. First of all, each Jew had his allotment, which could not be sold. Even if it was disposed of, it came back to him in the jubilee. This was his means of living. If the kingdom should come, the land would be re-distributed according to the prophets (Eze.47¹³). The action of the Pentecostal believers is all based on this fact. Whatever they had beyond their allotment would go back to its rightful allottee when the kingdom is set up. In view of this they sold the lands and houses they had acquired besides their allotment, and shared their possessions, or personal property such as money, among themselves.

³ Ananias and Sapphira sold a freehold which they had acquired, over and beyond their own allotment in the dowing Thy slaves with all boldness to be speaking Thy word, by stretching out Thy hand for healing and signs and miracles, to occur through the Name of Thy holy Boy Jesus."

³¹ And at their beseeching, the place in which they were assembled was shaken and they are all filled with holy spirit, and they spoke the word of God with boldness.

³² Now the multitude of believers was of one heart and soul, and not one said that any of his possessions were his own, but it was all theirs

³³ in common. And with great power the apostles rendered testimony to the resurrection of Jesus Christ the Lord. Besides, great grace was on them all, for neither was there any indigent among them, for as many as had acquired freeholds or possessed houses, selling them, brought the price of that which is being disposed of, and placed it at the feet of the apostles. Now they distributed to each as much as ever any had need.

³⁷ a Levite, a native Cyprian, selling a field belonging to him, brings the money and places it at the feet of the apostles.

⁵ Now a certain man named Ananias, together with Sapphira, his
² wife, sells an acquisition and embezzles from the price (his wife also having been conscious of it) and, bringing a certain part, he places
³ it at the feet of the apostles. Now land. In this they did well. They brought a part to the apostles. This, too, was a commendable act. Their sin seems to have been, not in withholding a part, but in giving the impression that they had contributed all for the common good. Here we have a practical illustration of the righteous rule which will characterize the kingdom of God. The hidden motive is brought to light. An act appearing most praiseworthy on the surface is declared to be tainted with falsehood. No witnesses are needed. The Lord's apostle can detect evil though most skillfully concealed. Judgment is immediate and summary.

4 Ananias was under no compulsion to sell the freehold. Neither was he obliged to contribute the sum he obtained to the common fund. All this was voluntary. But such a course would have lowered him in the eyes of the disciples and he wished to be well thought of. But his avarice was too strong to allow him to part with the whole sum, so he, in effect, steals a part of the gift, and presents the rest as though it were the whole amount. This was hypocrisy in its most hateful form. In an administration of grace, such as we enjoy today, such sins are not followed by swift judgment. They wait until the tribunal of Christ (2Co. 5:10). But in the administration of the kingdom, righteousness will reign and sin will be suppressed.

11 The result of the sudden and severe judgment of Ananias and Sapphira was great fear, both among the believers and others who hear of it. The resultant conduct was not the free unforced desire to please God which is inspired by His love and grace, which should actuate us in this economy, but restraint from evil through dread of judgment. It is based on power from without rather than an impulse from within. We are not in danger of any judgment, hence have no such motive to mold our behavior. Our lives should be the fruit of love.

13 The awful atmosphere of inflexible righteousness which repelled the unbelieving was an adumbration of the day when a King shall reign in righteousness and through the greatness of His power His enemies shall yield a feigned obedience to Him (Ps.18:44;

Peter said, "Ananias, wherefore does Satan fill your heart for you to falsify the holy spirit and to embezzle from the price of the freehold?"

4 While remaining, did it not remain yours? And, being disposed of, it belonged to you by right. Why is it that you placed this matter in your heart? You do not lie to men, but to God."

5 Now Ananias, hearing these words, falling down, gives up the soul. And great fear came on all
6 hearing these things. Now the young men, rising, enshroud him, and, carrying him out, they entomb him.

7 Now it occurred, after an interval of about three hours, and his wife, not being aware of what has occurred, entered. Now Peter answered her, "Tell me if you took so much pay for the freehold?" Now she said, "Yes, so much."
9 Now Peter said to her "Why is it that you agreed to try the spirit of the Lord? Lo! the feet of those entombing your husband are at the door and they shall be carrying you out."

10 Now, instantly, she falls at his feet and gives up the soul. Now the youths, entering, found her dead, and carrying her out, entomb her with her husband. And great fear came on the whole ecclesia and on all hearing these things.

12 Now through the hands of the apostles many signs and miracles occurred among the people. And they were all, with one accord, in the portico of Solomon. Now of the rest no one dared to be joined to them, but the people magnify 81¹⁵; 66⁸). The fear of the drawn sword in the King's hand will repress evil and rebellion.

¹⁸ As before (4⁸), the apostles are confined during the night, that they may appear before the Sanhedrin in the morning. Then they were held until the Sanhedrin sends for them. Now, however, the Lord condescends to give the rebellious rulers a token of His power as well as their impotence. He will give a public exhibition of the futility of opposing Him. No evidence shall be lacking to convince them that God is behind Peter's proclamation.

¹⁴ them, yet, rather, multitudes of men as well as women who are believing were added to the Lord, so that they are carrying out the infirm into the squares also, and placing them on cots and pallets, that, at Peter's coming, if even his shadow should be overshadowing some of them. Now a multitude also from the cities about Jerusalem came together, bringing the infirm and those molested by unclean spirits, all of whom were cured.

Now the chief priest and those with him, coming along, call together the Sanhedrin and the entire senate of the sons of Israel, and they dispatch to the prison to have them led forth. Yet the deputies, coming along, did not find them in the jail. Now, returning, they report, saying that "The prison we found locked with all security and the guards standing at the doors. Yet, when opening them, we found no one within." Now, as they hear ²⁵ The popular favor enjoyed by the apostles reached its culmination at this time. The increasing number of the disciples, the many benefits conferred on the sick, which would enlist friends, as well as the well-known fact that the apostles had been imprisoned without warrant and then delivered without human aid, by the messenger of God—all this would act very powerfully with the impressionable populace and give the apostles a prestige they had never before enjoyed. This, too, accounts for the mild attitude of the chief priest and the bold assurance of the apostles when called to account for their disobedience to the commands of the Sanhedrin. It is significant that the rulers ask no questions, and are silent before the disciples and the multitude as to the manner of their release. They did not wish to elicit further testimony to the supernatural deliverances, both of the Lord from the grave and His servants from the prison.

²⁶ It is evident that, had the apostles wished to do so, they could have started an insurrection even against the Sanhedrin, and this was what the officer of the sanctuary and the chief priest feared.

²⁹ Peter begins by reminding the Sanhedrin that they were going contrary to God and that, in such circumstances, he had no alternative but to ignore their commands. This is exactly what he had told them before (⁴¹⁹). They cannot but infer that any further charge they may lay on the apostles would not be heeded. Peter does not stop to consider any answer to this ultimatum but goes right on and charges them with the murder of their Messiah, Whom God exalts to His right hand. He offers them a pardon. Instead of standing before them to be judged he brings them into judgment before God. The whole situation is reversed. The judges are pronounced guilty by the prisoner.

these words, the officer of the sanctuary as well as the chief priests were bewildered concerning them, as to whatever this may come to.

²⁵ Now some one, coming along, reports to them that "Lo! the men whom you placed in the jail are in the sanctuary, standing and teaching the people." Then the officer, together with the deputies, coming forth, led them without violence, for they feared the people, lest they ²⁶ should be stoned. Now, leading them, they stand them in the Sanhedrin. And the chief priest inquires of them, saying, "Do we not strictly charge you not to teach in this Name? And lo! you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and are intending to bring the blood of this Man on us."

³⁰ Now the God of our fathers raises Jesus, on Whom you lay hands, ³¹ hanging Him on a tree. This Inaugurator and Saviour God exalts to His right hand, to give repentance to Israel and the pardon of ³² sins. And we are witnesses to these declarations, and the holy spirit which God gives to those yielding to Him."

³³ Now those who hear were harrowed, and they intended to assassinate them. Yet a certain Pharisee rises in the Sanhedrin, named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, honored by the entire people. He orders them to put the men outside a bit. Besides he said to them, ³⁵ "Men! Israelites! Take heed to

³⁷ Judas, the Galilean, is often mentioned by Josephus (Antiquities 18. 1, 1; Wars of the Jews 2, 8, 1). He charges him with starting a new sect of Jewish philosophy from which sprang many misfortunes and wars. This sect agreed in the main with the Pharisees, but they had an inviolable attachment to liberty, and said that God is to be their only Ruler and Lord. They did not hesitate to die any kind of death, nor did they heed the death of their relatives and friends, nor could any fear make them call any man lord. In the book on the Wars of the Jews, Josephus characterizes him thus: "a certain Galilean, whose name was Judas, prevailed on his countrymen to revolt, and said that they were cowards if they would endure to pay a tax to the Romans, and would, after God, submit to mortal men as their lords. This man was a teacher of a peculiar sect of his own and was not at all like the rest of their leaders." His followers were dispersed, but the love of liberty was spread among the people and later led to many other uprisings.

³⁸ Gamaliel's cowardly evasion suited the Sanhedrin because they were afraid of the people. Though God used this speech for the apostles' salvation, his specious reasoning is not to be trusted. So Job's friends falsely argued. "Truth is mighty and will prevail"—yes, ultimately, but not necessarily here and now. Gamaliel left out faith, an omission which invalidates his conclusions and makes it impossible to accept as witnesses for God yourselves, as to these men, what you are about to be committing.

³⁶ For before these days Theudas rose, saying that he is somebody, to whom men numbering about four hundred inclined, who was assassinated, and as many as were persuaded by him were all disbanded, and nothing came of it.

³⁷ After this Judas, the Galilean, rose in the days of the registration, and draws away people after him, and he was destroyed, and as many as were persuaded by him

³⁸ are all scattered. And now I am saying to you, Withdraw from these men and let them alone, seeing that, if this counsel or this work should be of men, it will be demolished,

³⁹ yet if it is of God, you will not be able to demolish them—lest at some time you may be found fighters against God also."

⁴⁰ Now they are persuaded by him, and, calling the apostles, and lashing them, they charge them not to be speaking in the name of Jesus,

⁴¹ and release them. They, indeed, then, went from the face of the Sanhedrin, rejoicing that they were deemed worthy to be dishonored

6 Now in these days of multiplying disciples, there came to be a murmuring of the Hellenists against the Hebrews that their widows were overlooked in the

² daily dispensation. Now the twelve, calling for the multitude of the disciples, say, "It is not pleasing

⁹ There were hundreds of synagogues in Jerusalem, some of which were maintained by the various groups of Jews in foreign lands. About B. C. 63 Pompey carried a large number of Jews to Rome. When they were liberated and returned to Judea, they formed the synagogue of the Freedmen. These synagogues seem to have been composed mostly of Hellenists. In all probability Saul of Tarsus belonged to the synagogue of Cilicia.

³ be serving at tables. Now, brethren, pick out seven reputable men from among you, full of the spirit and wisdom, whom we will place over
⁴ this need. Yet we shall be persevering in prayer and the dispensation of the word."

⁶ Antioch, whom they stand before the apostles. And, praying, they place hands on them.

⁸ Now Stephen, full of grace and power, did great miracles and signs
⁹ among the people. Now there rise certain of the synagogue which is termed Freedmen, and of the Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and those from Cilicia and the [province of] Asia, discussing with Stephen.
¹⁰ And they had not the strength to withstand the wisdom and the spirit with which he spoke.

¹¹ Then they suborned men, saying that, "We have heard him speaking declarations blaspheming Moses ¹² and God." Besides, they stir up the people and the elders and the scribes, and, standing by, they grip him, and led him into the ¹³ These synagogues were doubtless very lax in their adherence to the Jewish law and customs, yet they are not ashamed to charge Stephen with this, in order to inflame the Sanhedrin against him. The false witness did not consist in trumping up charges with no foundation in fact, but in perverting the truth, just as was done in the case of our Lord. Indeed, they brought up the very same charge (Mt 26⁶¹). While Christ was on earth, His body was the true temple of God (Jno.2²¹). Jehovah did not inhabit Herod's splendid pile. It did not house the Shekinah glory. The only times that it was tenanted by the Divine Effulgence was when He came into its courts. When He left it the last time, He exclaimed, "Lo! your house is left to you desolate!" (Mt.23³⁸). Stephen had doubtless brought this truth home to them, and perhaps had also pressed our Lord's prediction concerning the destruction of Herod's shrine, so that not one stone should be left on another (Mt.24²). But in no case could he have said that Christ (Whom they contemptuously termed the Nazarene) would Himself destroy the temple. On the contrary, He said that, when they destroyed it, He would raise it up (Jno.2¹⁰). This He did in His resurrection (Jno.2²²). And now the glory of God's presence illuminates the face of Stephen, so that he becomes, for the time, the messenger, or angel of God to them.

¹³ Sanhedrin. Besides, false witnesses stand up, saying, "This man does not cease talking, [making] declarations against this holy place and ¹⁴ the law, for we have heard him saying that this Jesus the Nazarene will be demolishing this place and will be changing the customs which ¹⁵ Moses gives over to us." And, looking intently at him, all those seated in the Sanhedrin perceived his face as if it were the face of a messenger.

⁷ Now the chief priest said, "Are ² these things so?" Now he averred, "Men, brethren and fathers, hear! The God of glory was seen by our father Abraham, being in Mesopotamia, ere he dwelt in Haran, and said to him, 'Come out of your land and from among your relationship and come hither into the land which I shall be showing to ⁴ you.' Then, coming out of the land of the Chaldeans, he dwells in Haran, and thence, after the death of his father, He exiles him into this land in which you are now dwelling. ⁵ And He gives him no allotment to enjoy in it, nor a platform for a foot.

And He promises to give it to him for a tenure and to his seed after him, he having no child. Yet God speaks thus, that "his seed shall be a sojourner in an alien land, and they shall enslave it and ⁷ illtreat it four hundred years. And the nation for which they should be slaving I shall judge", said God, "and after these things they shall ² Abram was first called out of his land and from his relatives, and went as far as Haran, accompanied by his father's household. Further obedience to the divine command seems to have been hindered by his father, and they went no further. At his father's death, he leaves his father's house and completes his journey to Canaan. Yet he received none of the land which should become his, and thus prefigures Him Who came to his own and received nothing but a tomb (Gen.23). The rite of circumcision likewise tells of the cutting off of His flesh on the cross.

⁹ Joseph is a marvelous miniature of the suffering and glorified Messiah. The jealous hatred of his brethren placed him in the pit and in the prison, but God was with him and exalted him to the highest place on earth. He became the deliverer, not only of his own brethren, but of all of Egypt also. The one whom they despised and ill-treated became their lord and saviour. The Sanhedrin could hardly miss the application of this to the Messiah Whom Stephen proclaimed. They were the brethren of Messiah ben Joseph.

¹⁴ The Septuagint, or Greek version, differs from the Hebrew text in Genesis 46²⁶⁻²⁷ by giving Joseph nine sons in place of two, and thus bringing the total up to seventy-five. But, as the enumeration in Genesis does not necessarily include all who are alluded to by Stephen, there is no reason why they should give the same total. The Septuagint differs greatly from the Hebrew text in regard to numbers, especially in the genealogies, and it may preserve some true readings.

¹⁶ The bones of Joseph were transferred from Egypt to the land by Moses (Ex.13¹⁹). So the rest of the patriarchs were transferred to Sychem, where Jacob had bought a parcel of a field (Gen.33¹⁹), probably near, or adjoining the sepulcher which Abraham had bought before, of which there is no record in Genesis. If Stephen had made even a minute blunder regarding this the Sanhedrin would soon have set him right. They were much "higher" critics than any we have today.

be coming out and offering divine service to Me in this place." "

⁹ And the patriarchs, being jealous of Joseph, gave him up into Egypt.

¹¹ Now a famine came on the whole of Egypt and Canaan, and the affliction was great, and our fathers

¹² found no provender. Now Jacob, hearing that there is grain in Egypt, delegates our fathers first.

¹³ And in the second [time] Joseph is made known again to his brethren, and Joseph's race became apparent to Pharaoh.

¹⁴ Now Joseph, dispatching them, calls for Jacob, his father, and the entire relationship among seventy-five souls. And Jacob descended into Egypt, and he is deceased, he and our fathers, and they were transferred to Sychem and placed in the tomb which Abraham purchases for a price, in silver, from the sons of Emmor in Sychem.

¹⁷ Now, as the time of the promise which God avows to Abraham drew near, the people grow and were

¹⁸ multiplied in Egypt, until a different king arose over Egypt, who had

¹⁸ It is probable that the lot of Israel in Egypt was pleasant under the dynasty which was acquainted with Joseph, who made these rulers absolute masters in Egypt, for he got for them all the silver and the cattle and the land in exchange for grain, in the time of the famine (Gen.47). Such service could not be forgotten. So it was that Israel prospered in the land of Goshen until the reigning dynasty was displaced by a different line of rulers, who knew nothing of Joseph and were not indebted to him for their power.

²² Egypt is set before us as the sum of human wisdom, as Assyria was of human power. The Egyptian priests had a knowledge of science which, in some points at least, far surpassed what is known today. No scientist can accomplish the feats of Jannes and Jambres. Moses was far beyond our present standards of intellectual attainment.

²³ The incident concerning Moses' rejection by his brethren at his first attempt to become their deliverer must have had a powerful effect on the Sanhedrin, for nothing would appeal to them more than a parallel between Moses and Messiah. Except to the most hardened heart, the fact that Moses was, in the first place, scorned by those whom he came to save, and his efforts in their behalf misunderstood, proved positively that Messiah would receive similar treatment. As Pharaoh menaced the life of Moses, so Herod sought the life of Christ. As his own people cast out Moses and refused to accept the salvation he offered them, so the Jews murdered the Messiah and rejected His deliverance. And we may add, as Moses came back and led them out, so will Messiah return and lead them into the blessings of the millennial kingdom.

²³ Now as his forty-year time is completed, it came up on his heart to visit his brethren, the sons of Israel. And, perceiving one being injured, he succors him, and avenges the one being harried, smiting the Egyptian. Now he inferred that his brethren understood that God, through his hand, is giving salvation to them: yet they do not understand. Besides, the ensuing day he was seen by them as they fought, and he interceded with them for peace, saying, 'Men! You are brethren! Why are you injuring one another?' Yet he who is injuring his associate thrusts him from him, saying, 'Who constitutes you a chief and a justice over us? Do you want to despatch me in the manner you despatched the Egyptian yesterday?' Now Moses fled at this word, and became a sojourner in the land of Midian, where he begets two sons.

³⁰ And at the completion of forty years a messenger was seen by him in the wilderness of mount Sinai, in the fire of the flaming thorn bush.

³⁵ The prime point with Stephen is that it was the one whom they had disowned who was chosen by God to be their redeemer and judge. Just so with Messiah. The fact that He had been disowned was no proof that He was false. It was, rather, the great sign which identified Him with the types of old, for Moses was rejected by the people even after he led them out of Egypt and had received the law and wrought wonderful miracles to attest his office. This should be the key note in all evangelism of the people of the covenant. A prophet like Moses must suffer at the hands of his own people. This thought ought also to cheer the hearts of His lesser slaves, who find themselves rejected and despised because of their faithfulness to Him.

³⁷ Accused of disloyalty to Moses, he proves the falsity of the charge by his constant reference to Moses' writings.

ing to consider it, the voice of the Lord came, 'I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob.' Now Moses, becoming in a tremor, dared not consider it.

³³ Now the Lord said to him, 'Loose the sandals from your feet, for the place on which you stand is holy land. I have certainly perceived the evil treatment of My people in Egypt, and their groaning I hear, and I descended to extricate them. And now, come hither, I should dispatch you into Egypt.'

⁴¹ Idolatry is, etymologically, the offering of divine service to that which can be perceived by the senses. In this way, all objects of worship, even if they are supposed to be representations of the true God, are idols. God will have no images of Himself but One—His beloved Son. He is the Image of the invisible God (Col.1:15). The idolatry here mentioned is usually referred to Israel in the wilderness. But their conduct at that time was hardly the occasion of the Babylonian exile. In neither Amos (5:25-27) nor Acts is the time given, but it was, most likely, in the days of the kings, before the captivity. One of the causes of their exile was that they had transgressed very much after all the abominations of the nations (2Chron.36:14). In the land they corrupted the form of the wilderness worship, substituting the tabernacle of Moloch for the testimony which Jehovah had directed to be constructed according to the model Moses had seen. It is possible that the Hebrew should be translated "your king", rather than "Moloch". Amos writes concerning Israel (Amos11), so that the reference may be to their first king, Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin. He, like Aaron, made a "calf" or bull for the people to worship. In fact, he made two, and placed one in Bethel and the other in Dan (1Ki.12:25-30). In one case it was a revolt from the prophet of Jehovah, in the other it was secession from the rightful king and the house of David. Besides the false tabernacle, they also had a substitute for the glory, which seems to have been an image of one of the constellations. Thus they worshipped the "host of heaven". Raiphan, or Remphan, is sometimes identified with Saturn, but it is not certain.

of Egypt, we are not aware what became of him.'

⁴¹ And they make a calf in those days and they led up the sacrifice to the idol, and made merry with ⁴² the works of their hands. Now God turns and gives them up to be offering divine service to the host of heaven, according as it is written in the scroll of the prophets, 'Do you not offer Me slain victims and sacrifices forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel? And you took up the tabernacle of Moloch and the constellation of your god Raiphan, the models which you make, to worship them. And I shall be exiling you beyond Babylon.'

⁴⁴ The tabernacle of the testimony was with our fathers in the wilderness, according as He prescribes, speaking to Moses to make it according to the model which he had seen,
⁴⁵ which our fathers succeeding him, with Joshua, also led into the tenure of the nations, whom God thrusts out from the face of our ⁴⁶ fathers, till the days of David, who found favor before God. And he requests that he may find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

⁴⁷ Yet Solomon builds Him a ⁴⁸ house, but the Most High is not dwelling in what is made by hands, according as the prophet is ⁴⁹ saying, "'Heaven is My throne, yet the earth is a footstool for My feet. What kind of house shall be built for Me?' the Lord is saying, "or what is the place of

⁵¹ Stiff necked and uncircumcised in your hearts and ears, you are

¹ With Stephen was interred the hope of the kingdom. Yet at the same time God begins to hint at another testimony of a very different character. The kingdom called for righteousness. It visited iniquity with swift judgment. In preparing for the new departure, God introduces Saul of Tarsus, not as a just or holy man, but as a malignant and vicious enemy. This is necessary because He is about to deal with those who are sinners and enemies on the ground of grace. Grace cannot be shown to those who deserve aught. Merit mars it and hinders its outflow. Saul was, in very truth, the foremost of sinners. He exceeded the most rabid of the Sanhedrin in his hatred of Messiah and His people. If any man deserved to be damned, that man was Saul of Tarsus. Yet, eventually, he it is who is raised to the highest pinnacle of glory—far beyond the fondest hopes of Stephen or the twelve apostles. Such is the potency of grace when it is unhindered by human help!

⁵² As your fathers, you also! Which of the prophets do not your fathers persecute? And they kill those who announce beforehand concerning the coming of the Just One, of Whom now you became traitors and murderers—who got the law by the mandate of messengers and do not maintain it!"—

⁵⁴ Now, hearing these things, they were harrowed in their hearts, and ⁵⁵ gnashed their teeth at him. Now, possessing the fullness of faith and holy spirit, looking intently into heaven, he perceived God's glory and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, and said, "Lo! I am beholding the heavens opened up, and the Son of Mankind standing at the right hand of God." Now, crying with a loud voice, they press their ears and rush on him with one accord. And, casting him outside of the city, they pelted him with stones.

⁵⁹ And they pelted Stephen with stones, while he is invoking and saying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!" Now, kneeling, he cries with a loud voice, "Lord, Thou shouldst not stand this sin against them!" And, saying this, he was put to repose.

8 Now Saul was endorsing his assassination.

Now in that day there came to be a great persecution of the ecclesia which is in Jerusalem, and they were all dispersed among the districts of Judea and Samaria, save 4 We now enter the second cycle of the kingdom testimony. Jerusalem and Judea have not heeded its proclamation. It is now offered to Samaria, then it will go to the limits of the land, and even to the proselytes like the eunuch and Cornelius. Thus it was that the Lord had commanded (18).

After the ten tribes, whose capital was Samaria, were exiled, the king of Assyria sent colonists to repopulate the country (2 Ki.17:24-27). They intermarried with the remaining Israelites and thus sprang the mixed race of the Samaritans. Because the Jews would not recognize them or allow them to help in rebuilding the temple, they stirred up the Persian king against the Jews, and hindered the work of restoration. They also built their own temple on mount Gerizim and worshiped according to the law. They recognized only the five books of Moses. Thus sprang up a jealous antagonism between them and the Jews, so that the latter refused to have any dealings with them. As they, however, worshiped Jehovah and taught the law and had a strain of Jewish blood, it was fitting that they should hear the proclamation of Christ, after Judea had been evangelized. Physically they were nearer the Jews than any other nation. Thus the widening testimony to the kingdom spread, until the evangel reaches the limits of the land. Then it is carried beyond by means of Saul, who at this time, was its chief opponent.

9 The Roman Empire was overrun with fortune tellers and jugglers and magicians, many of whom were Jews. The Samaritans were a simple, credulous people, and in their amazement, they gave Simon the place which belongs to Christ. But when the evangel came, Simon himself was amazed for he could see that it was accompanied with a power such as he had never known. His case is an example of "faith" founded on miracles, which is very different from the faith which is based on God's word, apart from the evidence of the senses. Many believed in the Lord when they beheld the signs which He did, yet Jesus did not entrust Himself to them, because He knew what was in humanity (Jn.2 23,26).

2 the apostles. Yet pious men are Stephen's pall-bearers and make a great grieving over him.

3 Now Saul devastated the ecclesia: going into the homes, dragging out men as well as women, he gave them over to jail.

4 They indeed, then, who are dispersed, passed through, evangelizing the word. Now Philip, coming down into the city of Samaria, proclaimed Christ to them. Now the throngs with one accord heeded the things being said by Philip, on hearing them and observing the signs which he did. For many of those having unclean spirits, imploring with a loud voice, they came out. Now many who were paralytics and lame were cured. 8 Now much joy came to be in that city.

9 Now a certain man named Simon belonged in the city before, using magic and amazing the nation of the Samaritans, saying 10 himself to be some great one, whom they all heeded, from the small to the great, saying "This is the power of the god, which is called Great." 11 Now they heeded him because of the considerable time the magic has amazed them.

12 Now when they believe Philip preaching the evangel concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, 13 men as well as women. Now Simon himself also believes, and, being baptized, was waiting on Philip. Besides, beholding the great signs and powers occurring, he is amazed.

The exceptional dealing with the Samaritan believers, who were a circumcised people, is seen in the fact that, though repentant and baptized, they had not received the holy spirit upon these conditions as promised by Peter to the believers in Jerusalem (Ac.2³⁸). The ancient schism must now end, and Samaria must acknowledge Jerusalem as God's earthly seat of government. The supreme gift can be bestowed only as they recognize their dependence on Peter and John as come down from Jerusalem.

¹⁸ To this day men fondly imagine that spiritual gifts may be bought with money. One of the most delusive and disastrous notions in the church today is that a billion dollar budget will buy billions worth of spiritual benefit. God's gratuities are not sold to the best bidder; we cannot gain His grace with gold. Any effort to bribe Him can only bring down His displeasure. Would that there were more like Peter, who spurned the silver which sought to buy the benefits of the evangel! The church has sunk so low that it is eager to trade its blessings for sordid gain. Peter would lose prestige today if he would not take advantage of such an opportunity to add a godly sum to the fund for the furtherance of the kingdom!

¹⁴ Now the apostles in Jerusalem, hearing that Samaria has received the word of God, dispatch to them ¹⁵ Peter and John, who, descending, pray concerning them so that they may be obtaining holy spirit, ¹⁶ for it was not as yet fallen on any of them, only, having been baptized, they belonged to the name of ¹⁷ the Lord Jesus. Then they place their hands on them and they obtained holy spirit.

¹⁸ Now Simon, perceiving that through the imposition of the hands of the apostles the spirit is being ¹⁹ given, offers them money, saying, "Give me also this authority, that on whomsoever I may be imposing hands, he may be obtaining holy spirit."

²⁰ Yet Peter said to him, "May your silver be for destruction together with you, seeing that you infer that the gratuity of God is to be acquired by means of money!

²¹ There is neither part nor lot for you in this matter, for your heart ²² is not straight in front of God. Repent, then, from this evil of yours, and be beseeching the Lord, if, consequently, the notion of your ²³ heart will be forgiven you. For I see you are in the bile of bitterness and the fetter of injustice."

²⁴ Now answering, Simon said, "You be beseeching the Lord for my sake so that none of the things you have declared may be coming on me."

²⁰ It is notable that the messenger, or angel, who spoke to Philip is also called "the spirit" (²⁰) and "the spirit of the Lord" (³⁰). This suggests that these expressions may refer to created beings in some places where we are accustomed to understanding it of the holy spirit of God. In order to leave the subject open and not inject our own opinions or prejudices it has been thought best to spell spirit always without a capital S. This will leave the matter open to the student's own interpretation.

²⁶ Gaza, once one of the five chief cities of the Philistines, was located near the southern limits of the land, not far from the Mediterranean.

The kingdom, when it is set up by Christ in the day of the Lord, will reach all the descendants of Noah's sons. In the early part of Acts they are evangelized representatively. The eunuch probably traced his lineage from Ham. Cornelius was a descendant of Japheth. The Jews, of course, sprang from Shem.

³² Hezekiah, king of Judah, was the most beautiful type of Christ as the Vicarious Sufferer. The prophet Isaiah probably refers to his experience in the fifty-third chapter, in which are some statements which cannot be applied literally to the great Antitype. But the spirit charges the prophet's words with higher truth and deeper doctrine, so that Hezekiah's typical sufferings foretell the sufferings of His Lord.

²⁷ And rising, he was gone. And lo! a man, an Ethiopian eunuch, a potentate of Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, who was over her entire exchequer, who had come, worshipping, to Jerusalem. And he was returning and sitting in his chariot, and read the prophet Isaiah.

²⁹ Now the spirit said to Philip, "Approach and join this chariot."

³⁰ Now Philip, running toward him, hears him reading Isaiah, the prophet, and said, "You surely ³¹ know what you are reading!" Yet he said, "How could I, should no one be guiding me?" And he entreats Philip, stepping up, to be seated with him. Now the context of the scripture which he read was this:

"As a sheep to slaughter was He led,

And as a lamb in front of its shearer is not bleating,
Thus He is not opening His mouth.

³³ In His humiliation His judgment was taken away.
Who will be relating His generation,
Seeing that His life is being taken away from the earth?"

³⁴ Now, answering, the eunuch said to Philip, "I am beseeching of you, concerning whom is the prophet saying this, concerning himself or concerning some different person?"

³⁵ Now Philip, opening his mouth, and beginning from this scripture, evangelizes to him Jesus.

to-him THE JESUS AS YET

¹ Saul was at the stoning of Stephen (7⁵⁸). He endorsed his assassination, and seems to have been the leader in the persecution which followed, until Jerusalem was emptied of all disciples except the apostles.

² The call of Saul is the most marvelous of all the manifestations of God's grace. It is a pattern for us who believe in this day of grace. He was the foremost of sinners, yet God made him the foremost of His saints. The grace of the Lord overwhelmed him, with faith and love in Christ Jesus (1Tim.1:12-14). The twelve apostles were called by the Lord on earth, before His ascension. Saul was called by the ascended glorified Lord, from heaven. They were called in the land. He was called outside the land. Their ministry was confined to the land and the Hebrews of the dispersion. Paul's service was outside the land among the Hellenists and aliens. They were concerned with the earthly life of our Lord before His ascension. Paul begins with the Lord in glory.

³ This is only a brief outline of what was said. The following combines the three accounts and probably includes all that passed between Saul and the Lord:

THE LORD: Saul, Saul why are you persecuting Me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.

SAUL: Who art Thou, Lord?

THE LORD: I am Jesus, the Nazarene, Whom you are persecuting.

SAUL: What shall I do, Lord?

THE LORD: But rise and stand on your feet, for I was seen by you for this, to select you for a deputy and a witness of what you have perceived, as well as what will be seen by you, extricating you from the people and from the nations, to whom I am commissioning you, to open their eyes, to turn them from darkness to light, and the authority of Satan to God, for them to get the pardon of sins and an allotment among those who have been hallowed by faith that is in Me. Stand up and go into the city of Damascus, and there you will be spoken to concerning all which has been set for you to be doing.

⁷ The apparent discrepancies between this verse and 22⁹ are easily explained when we see that the vision was intended exclusively for Saul and ³⁶ Now as they went along the road they came to some water, and the eunuch is affirming, "Lo! Water! What is preventing me from being baptized?" And he orders the chariot to stand, and they both descended into the water, Philip as well as the eunuch, and he baptizes him. ³⁸ Now when they stepped up out of the water, the spirit of the Lord snatches away Philip, and the eunuch perceived him no longer, for he went his way rejoicing.

⁹ Now Saul, still breathing out threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, approaching the chief priest, requests from him letters for Damascus to the synagogues, so that, if he should be finding some who are of the way, men as well as women, he may be leading them bound to Jerusalem.

³ Now in his going he came to be nearing Damascus. Suddenly a light out of heaven flashes about him. And, falling on the earth, he hears a voice saying to him, "Saul. Saul, why are you persecuting Me?" Yet he said, "Who art Thou, Lord?" Yet He said, "I am Jesus Whom you are persecuting. Nevertheless, rise and be entering the city, and it will be spoken to you what you must be doing."

⁷ Now the men who are journeying with him had stood dumbfounded, hearing, indeed, the sound, yet beholding no one. Now Saul was raised from the earth, yet, his eyes having been opened, he observed nothing. Now, leading him by the

not for his fellow travelers. They were probably a little distance away and heard a sound and saw a light, but did not see the Person Who was speaking or recognize the sound as His voice. At first they fell on their faces, but they rose before Saul. There is a close harmony rather than any discrepancy in the various accounts.

The call of Saul is an entirely novel departure in this book. It is the first exhibition of pure grace—favor shown to one who deserves punishment—and is the key to the character of the ministries of the apostle Paul which occupy the latter half of this treatise on the proclamation of the kingdom. After the failure of the testimony in Jerusalem and Judea, Saul is called to carry it to the dispersion among the nations and to the proselytes and even to the idolaters themselves. Hence it must be founded, not on righteousness, for they had no deserts, but on grace. So he is called outside the land, by the Lord from heaven, while he is still the most malignant enemy of the evangel and deserving of the direst doom.

¹⁰ God graciously gives a double witness to His dealing with Saul. Ananias is quite his opposite, being a devout disciple. Saul would have found it almost impossible to join the disciples as he did without some such confirmatory testimony to his conversion, for Ananias himself was afraid to go to him, knowing what he had done and what he proposed to do.

hand, they led him into Damascus, and he was three days without using his eyes, and he neither ate nor drank.

¹⁰ Now there was a certain disciple in Damascus named Ananias, and the Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias!" Now he said, "Lo! it is I, Lord!" Now the Lord to him, "Rise, go to the street called 'Straight,' and seek a Tarsian named Saul in the house of Judas, for, lo! he is praying, and perceived in a vision a man named Ananias entering and placing his hands on him so that he should be recovering sight."

¹⁷ Now Ananias came away and entered the house, and, placing his hands on him, said, "Brother Saul, the Lord, Jesus, Who was seen by you on the road by which you came, has commissioned me, so that you should be recovering sight and be filled with holy spirit." And immediately as if scales fall from his eyes, and he recovers sight. And rising, he is baptized, and, obtaining nourishment, is strengthened.

²⁰ The Jews in the synagogues must have been greatly astonished to find this emissary of the high priest, who had come hither to stamp out the heresy of the Nazarene, boldly proclaim that He is the Son of God. None of the other apostles ever proclaim the Messiah as the Son of God in the Acts. They are chiefly interested in Him as the Son of David (^{220,30}), the King of Israel. But Saul has become acquainted with Him in a higher, heavenly glory, hence proclaims Him, in accord with his own experience, as the Son of God. Besides, he reasoned out of the Hebrew scriptures, which foretold the Messiah, and deduced from them that He Whom he had been persecuting and Who met him on the road was indeed the Anointed One, the hope of Israel.

²³ At this point occurs one of those striking omissions in the narrative which assure us that it is concerned only with the kingdom, and that Paul's epistles differ from it in purpose and scope. Paul passed a large part of three years in Arabia (Gal. 1:17,18). This journey is included in the "considerable number of days". Where in Arabia he went is not revealed, in fact, the term itself is vague. He may have gone far south into the desert between the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, which is properly called Arabia. He may have gone only a few miles from Damascus, and yet be in Arabia in the popular sense of the term. Wherever he went, and whatever he did, it is evident that it has no bearing on the narrative of Acts. Paul uses it in Galatians as evidence that he did not immediately consult those who were apostles before him, so could not have received his evangel from them. As Acts deals only with that aspect of his ministry which had contact with the commissions of the twelve, it is clear why this incident should be overlooked.

Now he came to be with the disciples in Damascus some days. And immediately he proclaimed Jesus in the synagogues, that He is the Son of God. Now all who are hearing are amazed and said, "Is not this the one who, in Jerusalem, ravages those who are invoking this Name? And he had come here for this, that he may lead them bound to the chief priests." Yet Saul was the more invigorated, and confused the Jews dwelling in Damascus, deducing that this One is the Christ.

²³ Now as a considerable number of days were fulfilled, the Jews plan to assassinate him. Yet their plot is known to Saul. Now they scrutinized the gates day as well as night, so that they may be assassinating him. Yet the disciples, getting him at night, let him down through the wall, lowering him in a hamper.

²⁶ Now, on coming along to Jerusalem, he tried to join the disciples, and all feared him, not believing that he is a disciple. Yet Barnabas, getting hold of him, led him to the apostles and relates to them how he became acquainted with the Lord on the road, and that He talks to him, and how, in Damascus, he is bold in the name of Jesus.

²⁸ And he was with them, going in and out, in Jerusalem. Being bold in the name of the Lord Jesus, he talked as well as discussed with the Hellenists. Yet they take in hand

Eneas means praise and his paralysis symbolizes the paralysis of praise in Israel. His healing is another taste of the powers of the age to come when Jerusalem shall be a praise in the earth (Isa.43:21; Jer.33⁹). As Eneas presents to us the healing of the sinners of the people, so Dorcas shows the resurrection of the saints who have been full of good works (Un.14¹³).

³⁴ Dorcas and Eutychus bring before us a picture of the former resurrection (Un.20⁵), and the eclectic resurrection which Paul preached, which precedes it, for which we look. Dorcas was full of good acts. She was deserving. So will those be who have part in the former resurrection, who live and

³⁰ to assassinate him. Now, realizing this, the brethren led him down into Cæsarea, and they send him away

³¹ to Tarsus. Then, indeed, the ecclesia of the whole of Judea and Galilee and Samaria had peace, being edified, and, going on in the fear of the Lord and the consolation of the holy spirit, was multiplied.

³³ Now he found there a certain man named Eneas, eight years lying down on a pallet, who was paralyzed.

³⁴ And Peter said to him, "Eneas, Jesus Christ is healing you! Rise and spread [your pallet] by yourself!" And immediately he ³⁵ rose. And all those dwelling at Lydda and Saron are aware of it, who turn back to the Lord.

³⁶ Now in Joppa there was a certain disciple named Tabitha, which, being interpreted, is termed Dorcas. She was full of good acts and ³⁷ alms which she did. Now in those days, being infirm, she came to be dying. Now, bathing her, they place her in an upper chamber.

³⁹ ful in coming to us!" Now Peter, rising, came with them, whom, coming along, they led up into the upper chamber. And beside him stand reign with Christ the thousand years (Un.20⁴). This was in the day time. But Eutychus' case comes before us at a time which corresponds with our resurrection. It is at night, before the darkness that precedes the dawn. He had no deserts that we know of. He was drowning (20⁹). Nevertheless Paul brings him back to life (1Thes.5¹⁰).

¹ The kingdom has been proclaimed in Jerusalem and rejected; it has been heralded in Judea and Samaria, and now is being carried to the limits of the land. The Ethiopian proselyte has been reached by Philip. Now a Roman "proselyte of the gate" is brought before us in the person of Cornelius.

There were two classes of proselytes: the proselytes of righteousness and the proselytes of the gate. The former, by circumcision and conformation to the Jewish ritual, became incorporated into the Jewish people. The latter, called "fearers of God" or "the devout," renounced idolatry and acknowledged the God of Israel as the one true God, but were not circumcised and gave only scant heed to the ceremonial observances. Though highly esteemed, as Cornelius, they were regarded as outside the pale of Judaism, as "uncircumcised" and "of the nations." It was regarded as a crime for a Jew to enter the house of such a proselyte or to eat a meal with him.

Thus the kingdom message, as proclaimed by the twelve apostles, reaches its furthest limit in Cornelius. This accounts for the extraordinary pressure brought upon Peter, for none of the Jews thought that the proselyte of the gate was included in the kingdom commission. First the word was to the Jews only (including proselytes of righteousness), then the Hellenists are evangelized, followed by the despised Samaritans. Now that Cornelius is included, the original commission to the twelve (1⁸) is fulfilled. The twelve never went to the nations. That was reserved for the apostle Paul (Gal.2⁹).

As Cornelius was a Roman, descended from Japheth, and the eunuch was an Ethiopian, probably belonging to Ham, and the Jews were Shemites, all the sons of Noah were reached through their representatives. This was typical of the spread of the kingdom over all the widows lamenting and exhibiting tunics and garments, whatever Dorcas made while she was with them.

⁴⁰ Now Peter, ejecting them all, and kneeling, prays. And, turning about to the body, he said, "Tabitha, rise!" Now she opens her eyes, ⁴¹ and, perceiving Peter, sits up. Now, giving her a hand, he raises her. Now, summoning the saints and the widows, he presents her alive.

¹⁰ Now a certain man in Cæsarea, named Cornelius, a centurion, of ² the squadron called "Italian," devout and fearing God with his entire house, is doing many alms to the people and is beseeching God ³ continually. He perceived in a vision apparently, as if about the ninth hour of the day, a messenger of God entering toward him and ⁴ saying to him, "Cornelius!" Now, he, looking intently at him, and becoming affrighted, said, "What is it, lord?" Now he said to him, "Your prayers and your alms ascended for a memorial before God. ⁵ And now send men to Joppa and send after a certain Simon, who is ⁶ surnamed Peter. This man is lodging with a certain Simon, a tanner, whose house is beside the sea."

⁷ Now as the messenger who is speaking to him came away, sum-

the whole earth when it will be set up in power at Christ's return. His dominion will include all the descendants of Noah's sons, and embrace all the families of the earth. His salvation will be known from sea to sea.

As the Romans despised the Jews, the signs of the operation of the spirit of God in Cornelius were very marked even before he called for Peter. Centurions were not naturally devout or in fear of God, nor did they give alms to the Jews or pray to God. Cornelius believed the scriptures or he would not have recognized Israel's supremacy. He knew God or he would not have prayed to Him continually. Hence the salvation here proclaimed to him was not prefaced by repentance. It was of the same nature as that which Peter proclaimed at Pentecost. It was a deliverance which insured his entrance into the kingdom.

According to Solomon's dedicatory petition (1Ki.8⁴¹⁻⁴³) that Jehovah should do all that the stranger who prayed toward His house should call for, Cornelius' prayers and alms come up for a memorial before God. Yet he must be taught that all his blessings come to him through Israel. Hence he is told to call for Peter. This is in direct antithesis to the present truth, for now, during Israel's apostasy, we get our blessings direct from God.

The location of Peter at the time is suggestive. The nations are often represented by the sea, and he had gone as far as he could on land for he was at the sea side. His hunger is typical of the hunger of God for the worship of all his creatures—not Israel alone, hence Peter is told to "sacrifice and eat." The ceremonially unclean animals must represent those among the nations whom God had cleansed. Hence we must regard Cornelius as one whom God had cleansed before Peter met him.

Peter, like all the Jews, was so prejudiced by birth and training that it was almost impossible for him to conceive of such a thing as having fellowship with a gentile, or even a proselyte of the gate, no matter how devout he might be. Henceforth the apostasy of Israel consists largely in refusing to be a channel of blessing to the nations. This led them to question Peter and persecute Paul.

moning two domestics and a devout soldier of those who waited on him, and unfolding it all to them, he dispatches them to Joppa.

Now on the morrow, while they are journeying and drawing near the city, Peter went up on the housetop to pray about the sixth hour of the day [noon]. Now he became ravenous and wanted to taste [food]. Now, while they are preparing it, an ecstasy came on him, and he is beholding heaven opened and a certain utensil descending, as a large sheet, with four edges, let down on the earth, in which belonged all the quadrupeds and reptiles of the earth and the flying creatures of heaven.

And a voice came to him, "Rise, Peter! Sacrifice and eat!" Yet Peter said, "Far be it from me, Lord, seeing that I never ate anything common and unclean!" And a second [time], a voice [came] to him again, "What God cleanses, do not you count common!" Now this occurred thrice, and immediately the utensil was taken up into heaven.

Now as Peter was bewildered in himself as to whatever the vision he perceived should be, lo! the men who have been dispatched by Cornelius, asking for the house of Simon, stand by at the portal. And, shouting, they inquired to ascertain if Simon, surnamed Peter, is lodging in this place.

Now, as Peter is engrossed with the vision, the spirit said to him, "Lo! three men are seeking you!"

But rise, descend and go with

The vision alone was not sufficient to break through the prejudice of Peter, for he could not make out what it meant. But the presence of the three men, who were ceremonially unclean, like the animals he had just seen in the vision, made his course clear. He dared not refuse to fellowship with them or disregard the call of Cornelius. The character of Cornelius was evidence that God had cleansed him. Peter could no longer class him as common or unclean. The fact that Cornelius gave of his means to the people of the covenant was much in his favor, for in the judgment of the nations which precedes the kingdom the nations are judged according to their treatment of the sons of Israel (Mt. 25³¹⁻⁴⁰).

²³ Later we learn that six brethren from Joppa accompanied Peter to Cæsarea. This was a prudent thing to do, for Peter well knew that he would have to defend his action in thus going against all Jewish precedent and prejudice. True, there was nothing in their scriptures which forbade all social intercourse with foreigners, but the apostles, as well as the other disciples, were bound by custom and tradition more firmly than by the divine revelation. In view of the storm of protest which was sure to arise, the six men accompany Peter so that they can confirm his account of the event.

²⁴ Cornelius seems to have carried many of his dependents and friends with him in his regard for the Jews and their religion. They also were in a measure prepared for Peter's message. They were not, like Paul's converts, turned from darkness to light and from idolatry to the worship of the true God. They already had much light and worshiped the God of Israel. So the proclamation to them is much the same as to the Jews.

them, nothing doubting, seeing that I have commissioned them."

²¹ Now Peter, descending to the men, said, "Lol I am he whom you are seeking. What is the cause of ²² your presence?" Now they say, "The centurion Cornelius, a just and God-fearing man, besides being borne witness to by the whole Jewish nation, is apprized by a holy messenger to send after you [to come] into his house, and to hear ²³ declarations from you." Calling them in, then, he lodges them.

Now on the morrow, on rising, he came away with them, and some of the brethren from Joppa came with ²⁴ him. Now on the morrow he entered Cæsarea. Now Cornelius was hoping for them, calling together his relatives and intimate ²⁵ friends. Now as Peter came to enter, Cornelius, meeting him, falling at his feet, worships. Yet Peter raises him, saying, "Rise, I myself also am a man." And, conversing with him, he entered, and ²⁸ finds many come together. "Besides," he averred to them, "you are versed in the fact how illicit it is for a man who is a Jew to be joined to or approach another tribe, and God shows me not to say that any ²⁹ man is common or unclean. Wherefore, being sent after, I came without gainsaying also. I am inquiring to ascertain, then, on what account you send after me."

³⁰ And Cornelius averred, "Four days ago at this ninth hour [three o'clock] I was fasting and praying ular idea that angels always have wings, like the cherubim. They usually appear in a human form.

³¹ The conversion of Cornelius is not in accord with the truth for today. Salvation is not offered to those who have access to God in prayer, for such are already saved. It is for sinners, and the ungodly and God's enemies (Ro.5:11). It is not of works (Ro.11^o). Cornelius and his friends were acceptable to God because they feared Him and acted righteously, and this before Simon was sent to them. They occupied the place of the godly Israelite before Christ came. They lacked the pardon and gifts which came with the proclamation of the kingdom. These are now made theirs through the chief of the twelve apostles. Their blessing is connected with and depends on the blessing of Israel in the kingdom. Our blessing depends on the opposite. It follows Israel's apostasy. Cornelius is blessed in accord with the prophetic prediction concerning the nations in the kingdom, as it will be during the millennial eon. We are blessed in accord with a secret administration, of which the prophets knew nothing, which could not be revealed until after the kingdom proclamation had been heralded to the people and the proselytes like Cornelius.

³⁴⁻³⁵ This statement teaches, not that the fear of God and righteous acts take the place of faith in Christ, but they take the place of Moses. Such as Cornelius who pant after the living God are candidates for the kingdom, but must hear the word of life in order to be saved (11¹⁴). Such as Cornelius are they who will enter the kingdom when the nations are judged (Mt.25^{34,38}).

in my house, and lo! a man stood ³¹ before me in splendid attire, and he is averring, 'Cornelius, your prayer is hearkened to and your alms are brought to remembrance ³² before God. Send, then, into Joppa, and call for Simon, who is surnamed Peter. He is lodging in the house of Simon the tanner, beside the sea.' Forthwith, then, I send to you, and you do ideally in coming along. Now, then, we are all present before God to hear all that you have been bidden by the Lord."

³⁴ Now Peter, opening his mouth, said, "Of a truth I am grasping ³⁵ that God is not partial, but in every nation he who is fearing Him and acting righteously is acceptable ³⁶ to Him. Of the word He dispatches to the sons of Israel, preaching the evangel of peace through Jesus Christ (He is Lord ³⁷ of all), you are aware. The declaration came down the whole of Judea, beginning from Galilee with the baptism which John proclaims: ³⁸ Jesus from Nazareth, as God anoints Him with holy spirit and power, Who passed through as a benefactor and healer of all those who are tyrannized over by the Slanderer, seeing that God was with Him.

³⁹ And we are witnesses of all that He does in the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem: Whom they assassinate also, hanging Him on a tree.

Besides being a specimen of the future blessing of the believing nations in the kingdom, who will be rewarded according to their treatment of Israel, the case of Cornelius was undoubtedly divinely intended to bridge the almost impassable gap between the ministries of Peter and Paul, between the evangelists of the Circumcision and of the Uncircumcision. Here we see the blessings of the Circumcision given by God to those who are uncircumcised, and in such a way that His hand could not be doubted. Hence Peter claims (15⁷) that God chose him first to speak to the nations, and he was enabled to acknowledge Paul's commission to the Uncircumcision. Unless Peter had been so prepared, it would have been practically impossible for Paul to carry on his earlier ministries among the nations, for he would have had, not only the unbelieving Jews, but the disciples and the apostles themselves firmly set against his work. Paul did not confine himself to converts to Judaism, as Cornelius and his friends, but had a message of grace suited to idolaters who had never heard of the true God. Nevertheless the principle taught to Peter applied to them also, for God acknowledged them by spiritual gifts, which made it evident that He had cleansed them.

⁴⁸ By baptism they were united to the believing remnant in the nation of Israel, for the name used was the same (2³⁸). It is evident, however, that this was a loose union, for the fact of their uncircumcision would bar them from the temple and from everything which the disciples had in common with the Jewish nation. In practice, even the social communion was always on a most doubtful and hesitating basis. Many of the disciples never would have fellowship with the Uncircumcision, and even Peter himself, after boldly defending his course with Cornelius, as well as the truth involved, was intimidated by the prevailing opposition, so that, at Antioch he first ate with the Uncircumcision and then withdrew and severed himself for fear of the party headed by James, the brother of the Lord (Ga.2¹¹⁻¹²).

⁴⁰ This One God rouses the third day, and gives Him to become disclosed, ⁴¹ not to the entire people, but to witnesses who have been elected before by God, to us who ate and drank together with Him after His resurrection from among the dead. And He ⁴² charges us to proclaim to the people and to certify that this One is He Who is specified by God to be Judge of the living and the dead. ⁴³ To this are all the prophets testifying: everyone who is believing in Him is to be obtaining the pardon of sins through His name."

⁴⁴ While Peter is still speaking these declarations, the holy spirit falls on all those hearing the word.

⁴⁵ And as many of the faithful of the Circumcision as come with Peter were amazed, seeing that the gratuity of the holy spirit has been poured out on the nations also.

⁴⁶ For they heard them speaking languages and magnifying God. Then ⁴⁷ Peter answered, "Can anyone forbid water, that anyone of these is not to be baptized, who obtained ⁴⁸ the holy spirit even as we?" Now he bids them be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they ask him to stay some days.

¹¹ Now the apostles and the brethren who are of Judea hear that the nations also receive the word of ² God. Now when Peter went up into Jerusalem, those of the Circumcision doubted him, saying that ³ "You came in to uncircumcised men and ate with them!"

Neither may we take the case of Cornelius as the beginning of the evangel to the nations, as such. We do not find that this case was followed up by the evangelization of the Uncircumcision in the land. Indeed, it seems to have had no effect at all in this direction. After the death of Stephen and the following persecution, the disciples spoke to none but the Jews only (¹⁹). And when some of the foreign Jews spoke to the Greeks at Antioch, outside the land, it is most probable that they, like Cornelius, were proselytes in that lesser degree which was called a proselyte of the gate. The first time the evangel was proclaimed to the idolaters was probably the case of Sergius Paul, proconsul of Cyprus (13⁷), or Paul's preaching to the people of Lystra (14⁷). Throughout his early ministries, however, Paul not only went into the synagogues and preached to the Jews first, but he also spoke to the devout and God-fearing proselytes, like Cornelius, before going out to the Uncircumcision. Such converts from Judaism formed the nucleus of most of the ecclesias founded by him so far as their Gentile contents were concerned. See 13^{4,14}, Lydia 16^{14,17}, 12, 18⁴ (contrast ⁶) and Justus 7. The gentiles were a distinct class.

¹⁶ Peter saw a new significance in the words of the Lord (15) that he had not seen at Pentecost. John's baptism

⁵ it to them consecutively, saying, "I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and I perceived, in an ecstasy, a vision, a certain utensil descending, as a large sheet with four edges, let down out of heaven, and it came as
⁶ far as me, into which, intently looking, I considered and perceived the quadrupeds of the earth and the wild beasts and the reptiles and the ⁷ flying creatures of heaven. Now, I hear a voice also, saying to me, 'Rise, Peter! Sacrifice and eat!'
⁸ Yet I said, 'Far be it from me, Lord, seeing that a thing common or unclean never entered into my ⁹ mouth!' Yet the voice answered a second [time] out of heaven, 'What God cleanses, do not you
¹⁰ count common!' Now this occurred thrice, and it is all pulled up again into heaven.

¹¹ And lo! forthwith three men stand by at the house in which we were, having been dispatched from ¹² Cæsarea to me. Now the spirit said to me to come together with them, nothing doubting. Now these six brethren also came with me, and we entered into the man's house.

¹³ Now he reports to us how he perceived the messenger standing in his house and saying, 'Dispatch to Joppa and send after Simon, who is ¹⁴ surnamed Peter, who will be speaking declarations to you by which you shall be saved, and your entire house.'

¹⁵ Now as I begin to speak, the holy spirit falls on them, even as on us
¹⁶ also in the beginning. Now I am reminded of the Lord's declaration, never went beyond the Jews. Now as the gospel comes to this gentile proselyte the baptism of spirit takes precedence over that in water, and is Peter's justification for giving Israel's rite to this gentile.

¹⁷ The constant tendency, in this scroll, from the physical to the spiritual, is well illustrated by the gifts given to Cornelius and his friends, as a sign of their acceptance by God. The sign of the covenant, circumcision, was in the flesh. The lack of this excluded them from the blessings of the kingdom. In Israel, the spirit followed the bathing of their physical frames in the rite of baptism. But the Lord Himself baptizes these uncircumcised aliens in spirit before they are baptized in water. The spirit supersedes and governs the physical rite. In the case of these proselytes the rite of baptism followed the reception of the spirit (Ac.16¹⁵ Ro.6³ 1Co.12¹³⁻¹⁶), because of their association with Judaism, but it does not seem to have been universally administered in the case of non-proselytes (1Co.1⁷, Eph.4⁵, Col.2¹²).

¹⁸ We are now entering a new sphere, just outside the land of Israel. Driven out of Jerusalem and Judea, the disciples spread the proclamation among their Jewish brethren, utterly ignoring the gentile proselytes, even though they knew of the case of Cornelius. Some of them, however, were foreign Jews, who had come into closer contact with the gentiles. These, acting on the case of Cornelius, spoke to the Greeks, who may have been the first of the nations to believe. In this way a new center was formed for the evangel. It consisted largely of uncircumcised aliens who had been proselytes. From this new base it was that the evangel went forth and eventually reached the idolaters among the nations, giving them a subordinate place in the kingdom. It continued until Paul went to Rome, from which he sent forth the special truth for the present economy.

²⁵ Barnabas knew that Saul's commission was to the nations, hence he discerned that Antioch was the very field suited to his call.

as He said that 'John, indeed, baptizes in water, yet you shall be baptized in holy spirit.' If, then, God gives them the equal gratuity as to us also, when believing on the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I—able to forbid God?"

¹⁸ Now on hearing these things, they quiet down, and glorify God, saying, "Consequently God gives repentance unto life to the nations also!"

²⁰ Now some of them were Cyprian men, and Cyrenians, who, coming into Antioch, spoke to the Greeks also, preaching the evangel of the Lord Jesus. And the hand of the Lord was with them. Besides, a vast number who believe turn back to the Lord.

²² Now the account of them is heard in the ears of the ecclesia which is in Jerusalem, and they

²³ delegate Barnabas to Antioch, who, coming along and perceiving the grace of God, rejoiced and entreated all with purpose of heart to be ²⁴ remaining in the Lord—seeing that he was a good man and full of holy spirit and faith. And a considerable throng was added to the Lord.

²⁵ Now he came away to Tarsus to hunt Saul, and finding him, he led him to Antioch. Now it came that they assemble a whole year, also, in ²⁰ The name "Christian" is Latin in its termination, so seems to have been given by the Romans. It is mentioned only twice more (26²⁸; 1 Pet. 4¹⁴), and was a term of contempt. It is never used by the saints of themselves, though there are hundreds of passages where we would use the term today. The name probably arose from the fact that here, for the first time, gentiles, Romans, left the worship of the synagogue for the faith of Christ. They would be continually speaking of one "Christ" and their countrymen gave them this new name in derision. Paul never uses this term. Peter alone uses it of his fellow saints of the Circumcision who believed.

²⁹ What could have been better calculated to soften the hearts of the Judean disciples than the help thus received from these uncircumcised converts? Yet we never read that they ever relented in their antagonism to the alien believers, and certainly gave little consideration to Saul, who brought their gifts to them. It is not likely, however, that Saul went as far as Jerusalem with the contribution, for, in his Galatian epistle, he intimates that he did not visit the holy city for fourteen years after his return from Damascus. The reason seems to be that there was a persecution on the part of Herod, as well as a famine in Jerusalem, so that it was not prudent to enter the city. This is the first occasion in which the saints among the nations sought to make some payment to Israel for the spiritual gifts they had received (Ro. 15²⁷).

¹ The failure of the nation to respond to the proclamation of the kingdom is fully manifest, and it is reflected in the events now chronicled. The twelve are no longer sustained by divine power in the city of the King. Herod puts James to death and there is no effort made to fill his place and maintain the due number of the apostles. That James, rather than Peter or John, was taken is significant, for they are typical men. James, or Jacob, brings before us the nation in flesh, and, as this aspect of the kingdom proclamation has failed and is finished, he is removed. Peter (not Simon) was a spiritual name (Jn. 1⁴²), representative of the remnant who believed. He is persecuted, but not slain.

the ecclesia and teach a considerable throng. Besides, in Antioch firstly the disciples are styled "Christians."

²⁸ One of them, named Agabus, rising, signifies, through the spirit, a great famine which is about to be on the whole inhabited earth, which occurred under Claudius.

²⁹ Now according as any of the disciples thrived, they each of them designate something to send to the brethren dwelling in Judea, for dispensing, which they do also, dispatching to the elders through the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

12 Now at that season Herod the king put forth his hands to illtreat ² some from the ecclesia. Now he assassinated James, the brother of ³ John, with the sword. Now, perceiving that it is pleasing to the Jews, he proceeded to apprehend Peter also (now they were the days ⁴ of unleavened [bread]), whom, arresting also, he placed in jail, giving him over to four quaternions of soldiers to guard him, intending after the Passover to lead him up to the people.

⁶ was about to be leading him to them, in that night Peter was reposing between two soldiers, having been bound with two chains, besides which guards before the

The apostasy of the Jewish nation was attested by the death of James. Instead of mourning the fact that one of the apostles of the Messiah was put to death, they are pleased. They prefer the yoke of their hereditary enemy, the Idumean Herod, to the Messiah God had sent them. So will the apostate nation in the time of the end rejoice at the murder of God's two witnesses (Un.11).

It was contrary to Jewish custom to carry on a trial during the national festivals, so Herod was waiting until the passover week should be over. Then he would increase his popularity by making a public exhibition of Peter's trial and death.

The Lord had told Peter that, when he should be old and decrepit he would glorify God by his death (Jn.21¹⁸). That time had not yet come. No power on earth can touch God's servants before the appointed time.

The deliverance of Peter should be contrasted with that of Paul and Silas at Philippi. This will show the vast advance in Paul's ministry over that of the twelve. Peter's deliverance illustrates the power and stern righteousness associated with the kingdom. The grace and salvation revealed in Philippi is in closer accord with that which is ours in Christ Jesus. Peter slept. Paul and Silas, suffering from the Roman scourge and the stocks, sang praises and prayed. Peter was taken out by stealth unknown to the guards. Paul and Silas made no attempt to escape, even when the prison doors were open. The prisoners heard them, and the warden was saved by their testimony. Peter's escape did not bring salvation to his keepers. It brought death, for his guards had to pay with their lives for his. Peter flies from Jerusalem from the face of Herod. Paul and Silas are escorted out of the jail and through the city by the officers who had mistreated them. In every particular, the deliverance of Paul and Silas eclipses the escape of Peter. One figures Israel's deliverance by judgment on the nations, the other the salvation which comes through the temporary setting aside of Israel.

¹⁰ Now, passing through the first and second jail, they come to the iron gate that brings them into the city, which opened to them spontaneously. And, coming out, they came forward one street, and immediately the messenger withdrew ¹¹ from him. And Peter, coming to himself, said, "Now I truly perceive that the Lord delegates His messenger, and extricates me out of the hand of Herod and all the hope of the Jewish people."

¹⁷ The death of James and the escape of Peter mark a crisis in the history of the kingdom proclamation. The power in Jerusalem passes out of the hands of the apostles into the hands of James, the Lord's brother. Note that Peter does not ask them to report to the rest of the apostles, but to James and the brethren. Henceforth these have the controlling voice in Jerusalem. The death of James broke the ranks of the apostles. Now there were only eleven. Peter was compelled to flee and John does not seem to have taken an active part.

It is most significant that the leadership now falls upon one who was never commissioned by the Lord, but held his place and wielded his influence on the ground of a close physical relationship to the Lord. While He was yet on earth none of his brothers or sisters believed in Him. Our Lord made light of such physical ties. To those who told Him that His mother and brothers wished to speak to Him He said "These who are hearing and doing the word of God are my mother and My brethren" (Lu.8²¹). But the believers in Jerusalem have drifted away from spiritual realities and give the Lord's own brother the place which He gave to the apostles. James early had a high place among the Jerusalem saints. Paul makes special mention of him when he went up to Jerusalem (Ga.1¹⁹). This is in marked contrast to the course of Paul, which is characterized by the gradual elimination of the physical and a strong tendency toward the spiritual.

²⁰ Josephus' account of Herod's death agrees with this in all its main features, though he does not seem to know of the reason for the flattery, nor does he ascribe the disease to a messenger of the Lord. In accepting divine honors Herod becomes a type of the great dictator of the end time, who will set himself up, saying that he is God, and will be slain by the Lord Himself.

²⁵ Barnabas and Saul were commissioned to bring succor to the poor (11³⁰). The manuscripts vary greatly as to whether they return out of, or from, or into Jerusalem, or into Antioch.

stoutly insisted it is so. Yet they said, "It is his messenger."

¹⁶ Yet Peter persisted in knocking. Now, opening, they perceive him and were amazed. Yet, gesturing with a hand to them to hush, he relates to them how the Lord led him out of the jail. Besides he said, "Report these things to James and the brethren." And, coming out, he was gone to a different place.

¹⁸ Now, day being come, there was no slight disturbance among the soldiers as to what became of Peter. ¹⁹ Now Herod, seeking for him and not finding him, examining the guards, orders them to be led away [to death]. And, coming down from Judea, he tarried in Cæsarea.

²⁴ Yet the word of God grows and was multiplied.

²⁵ Now Barnabas and Saul return to Jerusalem, completing the dispensing, taking along with them John, who is surnamed "Mark."

 YET IN ANTIOCH according-to

² The severance of Barnabas and Saul by the spirit is the prelude to an entirely new departure in the book of Acts. The commission entrusted to the twelve apostles has been fulfilled and their testimony rejected. They went to the limits of the land of Israel. Beyond this they were not sent. Jerusalem, in Judea, now gives place to Antioch, outside the land. The message now goes to the dispersion among the nations and to the proselytes and even to the nations themselves, and continues until it becomes manifest that the Jews outside the land refuse the Messiah, even as those in the land have done. This ministry is carried on by an entirely new set of apostles. The twelve have no part in it. Saul, or Paul, as he is now called, takes the place of Peter in this new apostolic group.

⁶ Sergius Paul was the first individual among the nations who heard the evangel, without first becoming a proselyte of Judaism. Hence his case is typical. Bar-Jesus stands for the Jewish dispersion, who always resisted every attempt to proclaim the evangel to the nations. Seldom, indeed, do we find Paul performing any judgment miracle, but here he blinds the sorcerer for a season. This is the judgment which has befallen Israel during the present administration of God's grace. Israel, in part, has become calloused until the full complement of the nations may be entering (Ro.11²⁵). Throughout Paul's missionary journeys, when he turned from the unbelieving Jews to the nations, the Jews became jealous and sought to turn the gentiles against him. They became blind spiritually, as Bar-Jesus became physically.

accord with the ecclesia, prophets and teachers, Barnabas as well as Simeon, called Niger, and Lucius the Cyrenian, besides Manaen, the tetrarch Herod's foster brother, and ² Saul. Now, at their ministering to the Lord and fasting, the holy spirit said, "By all means sever to Me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them." Then, fasting and praying and placing their hands on them, they dismiss them.

⁴ They, indeed, then, being sent forth by the holy spirit, came down to Seleucia, and from thence they sail away to Cyprus. And, coming to be in Salamis, they announced the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. Now they had John also as deputy.

⁸ Now Elymas the "Magician" (for thus is his name construed) withstood them, seeking to pervert the proconsul from the faith. Now Saul, who is also Paul, being filled with holy spirit, looking intently at him, said, "O, full of all guile and all knavery, son of the Slanderer, enemy of all righteousness, will you not cease perverting the straight ways of the Lord? And now, lo!

The spiritual tendency we have observed is emphasized by the change of Saul's name to Paul. The name Saul suggested the first king in Israel, who was chosen by the people because of his physical superiority, well suited to Paul before he was called by Christ, and in accord with the trend of affairs in Jerusalem, but not at all in harmony with his present ministry. It is usually derived from the Latin, meaning little, but it may also be derived from the root pau, in Greek, which means an interval, the ending, of course taking the masculine form rather than the feminine of the ordinary Greek term. Saul is Hebrew; Paul is Greek. This change of name coincides with his new commission. This signification is most appropriate to his special ministries, which fill in the interval during which Israel is thrust aside. It is brought in for the first time at the precise point when this doom is pronounced on Bar-Jesus. It marks the beginning of God's new departure, which brings blessing to the nations through Israel's apostasy. It was given when the first real gentile believed, for all before Sergius Paul were proselytes of Judaism, like Cornelius. And it is the more remarkable that the first convert under these new conditions was also named Paul, because he inaugurates that new form of God's activities which is well pictured there by the blessed believing gentile and a blinded unbelieving Jew. Before Saul's severance, blessing could not flow except through a Jew. Samaria could not receive the spirit except through Peter and John (8:14), and the proselyte Cornelius needed the mediacy of the chief of the apostles ere he was blessed with this gift. But now an alien, having no connection with Judaism, believes and is blessed, while a Jew, a son of the covenant, is blinded. This new principle now governs God's dealings, introducing a new dispensation, and gathers force until it is fulfilled at the close of the book.

¹³ John, doubtless, was at fault in thus deserting the apostles. But there seems to be a deeper reason for his defection. Being from Jerusalem, and a nephew of Barnabas, he represented the weakness of the flesh and its inability to channel blessing to the nations, hence was not qualified.

the Lord's hand is on you, and you will be blind, not observing the sun until the appointed time. Now instantly a fog and darkness falls on him, and, going about, he sought some to lead him by the hand.

¹² Then the proconsul, perceiving what has occurred, believes, being astonished at the teaching of the Lord.

¹⁶ Now Paul, rising and gesturing with his hand, said, "Men, Israelites, and those who are fearing God, ¹⁷ hear! The God of this people Israel chooses our fathers, and He exalts the people in the sojourn in the land of Egypt, and with a high arm He led them out of it. And for ¹⁸ about forty years' time He carries them as a nurse in the wilderness. ¹⁹ And, pulling down seven nations in the land of Canaan, He occupies their land (about four hundred and ²⁰ fifty years). And after this He gives judges till the prophet Samuel. ²¹ And thence they request a king, and God gives them Saul, ¹⁴ Paul's sermon and course in Pisidian Antioch is doubtless a specimen case. He usually went first of all into the synagogue and preached the evangel of the kingdom to the Jews of the dispersion and to the gentile proselytes who attended the synagogue services. His sermons included all that Peter preached concerning Messiah as the Son of David, yet went further in order to reach the proselytes. The three classes to whom Paul preached should always be distinguished. There were the men of Israel, his brethren, who were under the law and to whom the covenants and promises pertained. But the synagogues amongst the nations were largely attended by proselytes, who are called "fearers of God," "devout," or "reverent," and usually included a company of women. The proselytes, as a class, accepted Paul's message, but the Jews rejected it, with many notable exceptions. Outside of these were the gentiles proper, the idolators who had no leanings toward Judaism. Among these it was that Paul found the greatest response, but it must be remembered that this account does not lay much stress on this part of his ministry. For instance, it is evident from his epistles that the Thessalonian converts were mostly idolators, yet no hint of this is found in Acts, which speaks only of the Jews and proselytes (17:4). Neither are we informed of all that the apostle preached, but only that which concerned the fate of the earthly kingdom. The doctrine contained in his epistles is none of it in Acts, but all is distinct from and above the highest point reached in this treatise. To the Jews Paul spoke of Christ as proclaimed by John the Baptist, and His life before His death and resurrection and ascension, before he knew Him. Paul's epistles, however, are entirely on resurrection ground. Christ was not seen outside the land of Israel until he was seen by Saul on the Damascus road. Let us never mix the testimony in Acts with the truth in Paul's epistles, but let us rather note the great contrast between them. Contrast Peter's first sermon and Paul's. Both quote from David. Peter to prove that Jesus is David's exalted Son (2³⁰⁻³¹). Paul shows by his first quotation (13³³) that Jesus is the Son of God.

son of Kish, a man out of the tribe of Benjamin, forty years.

²² And, deposing him, He rouses up David for their king, to whom He said also, in testifying, 'I found David, of Jesse, a man according to My heart, who will be doing all ²³ My will.' From this one's seed God, according to the promise, led to Israel the Saviour, Jesus.

²⁴ John's pre-proclamation, before His personal entrance, was the baptism of repentance to the entire ²⁵ people of Israel. Now, as John completed his career, he said, 'I am not what you are suspecting me to be. But lo! One is coming after me the sandal of Whose feet I am not worthy to loose.'

²⁶ Men! Brethren! Sons of the race of Abraham. and those among you who are fearing God! To us was the word of this salvation dispatched.

²⁸ fulfill them in judging Him. And, finding not even one cause of death, they request Pilate to have Him despatched.

²⁹ Now as they accomplish all that which has been written concerning Him, taking Him down from the tree, they place Him in a tomb. Yet ³⁰ God rouses Him from among the ³¹ dead: Who was seen more days by those who ascended with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are now His witnesses to the people.

³³ The rendering first psalm in place of second psalm demands some explanation. Our three great witnesses all read second, and we would have so rendered it, but for the confusion which would result when we come to issue the book of Psalms. There is no longer any question that the first and second psalms of our collection are in reality only one, and this quotation occurs in the first not the second psalm. Some ancient manuscripts preserve this reading. But it was generally changed to conform to the condition of the Greek version of the Hebrew scriptures. In the Hebrew text of the psalms the text reads right on without any break to indicate the division into psalms except the headings and subscriptions. Consequently it has been discovered that each psalm is thus indicated, and those psalms which have no heading or subscription to separate them are fragments of adjoining psalms. Thus the second psalm, so-called, is not an independent composition, but the conclusion of the first psalm.

³⁸ Here we have the first intimation of the great doctrine of justification or acquittal. But how far below the lofty teaching revealed in the epistle to the Romans! There justification is apart from the law; here it is associated with the law. True to the kingdom he has just announced, Paul proclaims the pardon of sins. But pardon or forgiveness is but a temporary respite which may be forfeited or withdrawn (Mt. 18²³⁻³⁵). Those Pentecostal believers who had been forgiven like the ten thousand talent debtor, yet refused to extend this blessing to the gentiles, who owed much less, had their pardon revoked.

Now, however, the apostle offers them more than pardon. Those who were pardoned still tried to keep the law of Moses (21²⁰). He promises an acquittal from their infractions of the law, on the ground of faith. Pardon takes guilt for granted. Justification or acquittal denies guilt. They mingle here for a moment, but in Paul's epistles those who are justified are beyond the necessity of any pardon, for they are pronounced not guilty. The contrast between Moses and Christ is made first by Paul, and in connection with the preaching of justification.

³³ to the fathers, that God has fully fulfilled this for our children, in raising Jesus, as it is written in the first psalm also, 'My Son art Thou;
³⁴ today have I begotten Thee.' Now, seeing that He raises Him from among the dead by no means longer about to return to decay, He has thus declared, that 'I shall be giving you the faithful benignities of ³⁵ David.' Wherefore, in a different place also, He is saying, 'Thou wilt not be giving Thy Benign One to ³⁶ be acquainted with decay.' For David, indeed, subserving his own generation, by God's counsel was put to repose, and was added to his fathers, and was acquainted with ³⁷ decay, yet He Whom God rouses was not acquainted with decay.

³⁸ Let it be known to you, then, men, brethren, that through this One is being announced to you
³⁹ the pardon of sins, and from all from which you could not be justified in the law of Moses, everyone who is believing in this One is being justified.

⁴⁰ Beware, then, that what is declared in the prophets may not be
⁴¹ coming on you: 'Lo! you despisers, and marvel and disappear! seeing that I am working a work in your days—a work which you should by no means be believing if anyone should be detailing it to you.'''

⁴² Now, at their being out, they entreated that these declarations be spoken to them on the intervening

44 This is the first time we have the evangel preached to the nations directly except the single case of Sergius Paul. Never before this have we any intimation that the word was spoken to any except Jews, Samaritans, or proselytes. Now that the whole city came to hear the word, the Jews, following the example of Bar-Jesus, oppose Paul and Barnabas. Not till then do we hear the memorable words, "lo! we are turning to the nations."

48 It would be of greatest interest to us to know what Paul preached to the gentiles on this occasion, but there is no record of his words. The reason doubtless is that he went beyond the kingdom proclamation and announced, for the first time, the grand foundation on which God's favor to the nations is based, the doctrine of justification. His previous proclamation was hampered by the fact that his hearers were under the law. Now he is able to set it forth fully and freely as he does in his epistle to the Romans, for his audience is not seeking any justification under law. He announces a divine righteousness, apart from the law.

While there can be little doubt that the apostle preached justification on this occasion in some of the fulness to which his epistles testify, yet it is of the utmost importance for us to note that the account in Acts never attains to the truth taught in his epistles. It leads us up to some of it but never makes actual contact with it. It prepares for it but does not proclaim it. Not one single doctrine for the present secret economy is found in the book of Acts, though all was made known and committed to writing during this period. We are continually led up to, but never enter into the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus. Acts is not a record of the beginning of the present, but a treatise on the end of the previous dispensation. Most of the ecclesiastical confusion which prevails would vanish if this record of the kingdom apostasy were left where it belongs, and all truth for the present based on Paul's written revelation, which deals with the same period of time, but deals with it from an entirely distinct standpoint. God's program is, some Jews, some gentiles; then all Jews and all gentiles.

44 Now on the coming sabbath almost the entire city was assembled
45 to hear the word of the Lord. Yet the Jews, perceiving the throngs, are filled with jealousy, and they contradicted what is spoken by Paul,
46 blaspheming. Being bold, Paul as well as Barnabas say, "It was necessary for the word of God to be spoken first to you. Yet, since, in fact, you are thrusting it away, and are judging yourselves unworthy of eonian life, lo! we are turning to the nations. For thus the Lord has directed us:

'I have appointed you for a light of the nations;
For you to be for salvation to the limits of the earth.'

48 Now, on hearing this, the nations rejoiced and glorified the word of the Lord, and as many as were set for eonian life believe.

49 Now the word of the Lord was carried through the whole country.

50 Yet the Jews spur on the reverent, respectable women, and the foremost ones of the city and rouse up persecution for Paul and Barnabas, and they ejected them from their boundaries. Now, shaking the dust off their feet against them, they came 52 to Iconium. And the disciples were filled with joy and holy spirit.

14 Now in Iconium the same thing occurred. They enter into the synagogue of the Jews, and so speak that a vast multitude of Jews
2 as well as Greeks believe. Yet the stubborn Jews rouse up and provoke the souls of the nations against 3 the brethren. They, indeed, then,

⁶ Lystra seems to be the first place Paul preached without first proclaiming to the Jews in the synagogue, for it seems that there were not enough Jews to have a place of worship. Hence this is the first time the evangel is preached to the gentiles, apart from Judaism altogether. Here we reach the limit of his journey as well as the moral limits of the evangel. It has now broken through all barriers. From being preached to the "Jews only" (11¹⁹) it has not only reached gentile proselytes and idolaters through the synagogue, but it has gone outside the pale and influence of Judaism, and won its way to the hearts of the far off foreigners.

¹¹ It was commonly believed among the ancients, that the gods visited the earth at times in human form, but more especially those places which were devoted to their worship. Lystra seems to have been under the protection of Zeus, for one of his priests resided before the city. Zeus was usually attended by Hermes, the messenger of the gods. Subsequent revelation suggests that, in a very real sense, the Lycaonians were not much mistaken in their estimate of Paul. He was indeed the messenger of the true God, visiting the earth for a time. The Greek gods were in reality demon spirits who had usurped the authority of the air, who, with Satan, are to be cast out of their heavenly habitations when the kingdom is set up. Paul, together with those who receive the grace which comes through him, will replace them and rule the celestial realms, as the body of Christ. So that the Lycaonians were not far wrong, and we may take their words as prophetic of the grace which God was about to reveal (Ga.4¹⁴).

tarry a considerable time, being bold in the Lord, Who is witnessing to the word of His grace, granting signs and miracles to occur through their hands.

⁴ Now the multitude of the city is rent: and some, indeed, were with the Jews, yet some with the ⁵ apostles. Now as there came to be an onset of the nations as well as the Jews, together with their chiefs, to outrage and pelt them with ⁶ stones, being conscious of it, they fled for refuge into the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra and Derbe, and the ⁷ country about. And there they were, preaching the evangel.

⁸ And there sat a certain man in Lystra, impotent in the feet, lame from his mother's womb, who never ⁹ walks. This one hears Paul speaking, who, looking intently at him, and perceiving that he has faith to ¹⁰ be saved, said in a loud voice, "Rise erect on your feet!" And he leaps and walked.

¹¹ And the throngs, perceiving what Paul does, lift up their voice in Lycaonian, saying, "The gods descended to us in the likeness of ¹² men!" Besides, they called Barnabas Zeus, yet Paul, Hermes, since, in fact, he was the leading speaker.
¹³ Besides, the priest of Zeus who is before the city, bringing bulls and garlands to the portals, wanted to sacrifice together with the throngs.

¹⁴ Now, on hearing this, the apostles Barnabas and Paul, tearing their garments, spring out into the ¹⁵ throng, crying and saying, "Men!

¹⁵ In speaking to idolaters in Lystra and Athens, Paul does not appeal to the Hebrew scriptures, for they knew nothing of God's written revelation. He appeals to them through God the Creator and Sustainer, as revealed in nature.

¹⁰ God has a way of giving his servants a vision of the end at the beginning, to sustain them in the trials on the way. Joseph knew God's purpose for him and was prepared for the pit and the prison, for he realized that these led to the throne. So, we may well believe, God made known to the apostle Paul his purposes of grace for the nations long before Paul made them public from Rome. And what time would be so opportune as this, when the evangel for the first time is carried directly to the nations? Indeed, about fourteen years later, Paul seems to refer to his stoning at Lystra as the time when he received his greatest visions and revelations, which he was not allowed to publish until his kingdom ministry in Acts was brought to a close. Such a revelation must have been made in a setting calculated to reveal God's grace. And what occasion compares with this? Let us remember that Paul was stoned but once (2Co.11²⁵) and this by the gentiles just as soon as the evangel breaks through to them. The Jews reject the evangel and call down judgment. How dire must be the punishment due to these uncircumcised aliens for stoning the chosen vessel God had sent for their salvation! This is surely the opportunity demanded by grace to show its potency! They drag his body, battered and bleeding, outside the city, but his spirit flies far ahead to the paradise of the new earth, and soars into the heights of the third heaven. There he sees the despised, undeserving gentiles, who had stoned him to death, ruling the celestial realms as members of Christ's body and "blessed with all spiritual blessings among the celestials" (Eph.1³). Here we reach the summit of grace, the secret (1Co.2⁷) which God had prepared for those who love Him. Though Paul was not really dead, it is well to note that, from this time on, he reckons himself and all believers as having died, and as living a resurrection life (2Co.1⁹).

Why are you doing these things?

We also are men, of like emotions as you, preaching the evangel to you to turn [you] back from these vanities to the living God, Who makes heaven and earth and the sea and ¹⁶ all that is in them, Who, in bygone generations, leaves all the nations
¹⁷ to go on in their ways, although He leaves Himself not without the testimony of good acts, giving showers from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with nourishment
¹⁸ and gladness." And, saying these things, they hardly stop the throngs from sacrificing to them.

¹⁹ Yet Jews from Antioch and Iconium come on, and persuading the throngs, and stoning Paul, they dragged him outside the city, inferring that he is dead. Yet when the disciples surround him, rising, he entered the city. And on the morrow he came out with ²¹ Barnabas to Derbe. That city being evangelized as well, and making a considerable number of disciples, they return into Lystra and ²² into Iconium and into Antioch, establishing the souls of the disciples, besides entreating them to remain in the faith and that "through many afflictions must we be enter-

27 The report in Antioch that God had opened the door of faith to the nations sums up Paul's first missionary journey. This is given out as something new, unknown before. It is evident that Antioch itself was composed partly of gentiles, but they had been proselytes of Judaism before the evangel was proclaimed to them. Many of the misconceptions as to the book of Acts, especially in regard to Pentecost and the ministry of the twelve apostles, would vanish if this fact were given the prominence it deserves. The twelve apostles did not reach out to the nations. Jews from the dispersion spoke to the proselytes. When Peter did this in the case of Cornelius, it was considered a grave breach by the majority in Jerusalem. Not till Paul and Barnabas' first missionary journey did the word go out to the idolaters. Before this the door was shut. The only way of access was through Judaism. Now it is open, and consists of faith, altogether apart from Jewish rites and ceremonies.

1 No sooner was the door of faith opened to the nations than the emissaries of Jerusalem tried to slam it shut. Paul had been reporting that salvation had been brought directly to the gentiles without the necessity of their becoming proselytes. Now the Judaizers come and insist that it is not sufficient to be a "proselyte of the gate," but they must become a "proselyte of righteousness" and take upon themselves all the obligations of Judaism. The conflict was between faith and law, grace and works. The circumcisionists were perversely using in the interests of self-righteousness that which God had given for its cure.

From Paul's account, given in his epistle to the Galatians, we find that these "false brethren" crept into the ecclesia at Antioch unawares, spying out their freedom in Christ Jesus, and determined to bring them into the bondage of the law of Moses. Besides being sent by the brethren at Antioch, Paul had a revelation which directed him to go to Jerusalem and communicate his evangel, which differed materially from that of the twelve and the Judaizers, to those in authority in Jerusalem. He also took Titus along as a test case, because he was not circumcised (Ga.2:1-5).

24 And passing through into Pisia,
25 dia, they came to Pamphylia. And, speaking the word of the Lord in Perga, they descended to Attalia, 26 and thence they sail away to Antioch, whence they had been given over to the grace of God for the work which they fulfill.

27 Now, coming along and assembling the ecclesia, they informed them of whatever God does with them, and that He opens up a 28 door of faith to the nations. Now they tarried no brief time with the disciples.

15 And some, coming down from Judea, taught the brethren that, "If you should not be circumcised after the custom of Moses you cannot be saved." Now as Paul and Barnabas come to have no slight commotion and questioning with them, they prescribe that Paul and Barnabas and some others from among them are to go up into Jerusalem to the apostles and the elders about this question.

3 They, indeed, then, being sent forward by the ecclesia, passed through Phœnicia as well as Samaria, detailing the turning about of the nations. And they caused great joy to all the brethren.

4 Now, coming along into Jerusalem, they were received by the ecclesia and the apostles and the elders, and they inform them of 5 whatever God does with them. Yet some from the sect of the Pharisees who have believed rise up, saying that "They must be circumcised,

^a Before this convention Paul took up the question privately with the more influential members of the Jerusalem ecclesia, especially with James, the brother of the Lord, and with the apostles Peter and John. Having convinced them that he had a special revelation for the Uncircumcision they were able to influence the assembly, and thus he was able to check the growing opposition to his ministry in Jerusalem.

In Judea the ecclesia of Christ was rapidly degenerating into a Jewish sect. It was called "the sect of the Nazarenes" by its enemies. They clung to the Mosaic law and ritual as fiercely as ever, and could not bear to consider anything which seemed derogatory to their ancient religion. Besides, they gave the traditions concerning social intercourse with the alien nations all the force of a divine command. Peter's course with Cornelius was not a direct violation of the law, though it may have involved the eating of that which was forbidden by Moses.

⁷ Peter here refers to Cornelius, and his words must be taken, not in the light of Paul's subsequent course, but as the Jews present would understand them. Peter's preaching to the nations was confined to proselytes in the land. Without that experience Paul would never have been able to convince Peter that God could deal with the nations in a way different from His dealings with the Circumcision. The case of Cornelius was specially designed to bridge the gap between the two ministries of Peter and Paul.

¹¹ These are bold and noble words to be spoken by the chief apostle of the Circumcision in such an assemblage of Judaizers. These are Peter's last words in the book of Acts. Instead of conceding that the gentiles must be saved by means of the law and the ritual, through Judaism, Peter insists on the very opposite. The aliens are not to be saved like the Jews, but the Circumcision themselves are not saved by the law and circumcision, but by grace, even as the nations. We can hardly realize how astounding such a declaration would be in this assembly. It was not understood or heeded. Peter himself denied it by his acts soon afterward (Ga.2¹¹⁻²¹).

besides charging them to keep the law of Moses."

- ⁶ Now the apostles and elders were assembled to see about this matter.
- ⁷ Now, there coming to be much questioning, Peter, rising, said to them, "Men! Brethren! You are versed in the fact that from early days God chooses among you, that through my mouth the nations are to hear the word of the evangel and believe. And God, the Knower of hearts, testifies to them, giving the holy spirit according as to us
- ⁹ also, and does not discriminate at all between us and them, cleansing
- ¹⁰ their hearts by faith. Why, then, are you now trying God, by placing a yoke on the neck of the disciples which neither our fathers nor we
- ¹¹ have the strength to bear? But through the grace of the Lord Jesus we are believing, to be saved in a manner even as they."
- ¹² Now the entire multitude hushes, and they heard Barnabas and Paul unfolding whatever signs and miracles God does among the nations through them.
- ¹³ Now after they hush, James answered, saying, "Men! Brethren! Hear me! Simeon unfolds how God first visits the nations, to obtain out of them a people for His
- ¹⁵ name. And with this the words of the prophets are agreeing, according as it is written,
- ¹⁶ "After these things I will return, And I will rebuild the tabernacle of David which has fallen, And its overturned [structure] will I rebuild, And I will re-erect it,
- ¹⁷ So that those left of mankind should be seeking the Lord,

James, the brother of our Lord, though not an apostle, had by far the most influence in Jerusalem, especially with the Judaisers. Peter, who should have had the leadership, was afraid of him. If his wise and weighty words had been heeded all would have been well. But the legalists were too strong, and listened to James, their leader, the brother of the Lord according to the flesh, rather than to one who was not only one of His brethren in spirit, but had been trained and commissioned to lead His people. Peter's decision was in accord with the spirit and should have been obeyed. James' compromise was a concession to the flesh. Later, when the full truth for the present was revealed these decrees were abolished (Eph.2¹⁵).

¹⁸ James does not refer to the report of Barnabas and Paul, when he quotes Amos 9¹¹⁻¹², but to Peter's address. The prophet, speaking of the time when the kingdom will be set up, refers to those among the nations, who, like Cornelius, invoked the name of the Lord, and are blessed with His people Israel. It has no reference to the present economy of God's grace.

²⁴ The great object of the conference was definitely settled, and never again do we hear that circumcision and law keeping are essential to salvation. The Judaisers now change to the teaching that, though these may not be necessary for salvation, they are essential to progress and perfection. Paul refutes this in Galatians.

And all the nations over whom
My name has been invoked,"
The Lord is saying, Who is doing these things.'

¹⁸ Known to the Lord is His work from the eon.

¹⁹ Wherefore I decide not to be harassing those from the nations who are turning back to God, but to dispatch an epistle to them to be abstaining from ceremonial pollution with idols, and prostitution, and that which is strangled, and blood.

²¹ For Moses, from ancient generations, as suits a city, has those who are proclaiming him, being read every sabbath in the synagogues."

²² Then it seems [good] to the apostles and the elders, together with the whole ecclesia, choosing men from among them, to send to Antioch together with Paul and Barnabas, Judas, who is called Bar-Sabbas, and Silas, leading men among the brethren, writing through their hand:

"The apostles and elders and brethren to the brethren out of the nations at Antioch, and Syria and Cilicia:

²⁴ Rejoice! Since, in fact, we hear that some coming out from us disturb you by words, dismantling your souls, whom we do not caution, it seems [good] to us, coming to be of one accord, choosing men, to send them to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, men who have given up their souls for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

²⁰ Strictly speaking, these decrees were binding only on the believers in Syria and Cilicia, though they must have influenced all the saints among the nations. Paul practically repeals them when he makes the eating of meats offered to idols a matter of individual conscience (1Co.8). The revelation of the new humanity (Eph.2:16) in which all physical distinctions disappear, so that there is no Jew or Greek, nullifies this "law of precepts in decrees." They were based on a distinction which no longer exists for those who are in Christ Jesus. Speaking of this to the Colossians, the apostle boldly cancels them by "erasing the handwriting of the decrees against us, which was hostile to us, and has taken it away out of the midst . . ." How far has Jerusalem fallen! Instead of bringing blessing to the nations, they use this opportunity of burdening them with a law of their own devising. No wonder, when Paul comes again, he finds James in full charge, and all the tens of thousands of believing Jews zealous of the law and hostile to him and his ministry.

³⁷ Barnabas had already provoked Paul's indignation by weakly yielding to the influence of Peter and the Judaizers. Possibly he was still smarting under Paul's public rebuke. Paul, on the other hand, always revolted against anything that looked like compromise and weakness. Though it was impossible for them to longer work together, they evidently make amicable arrangement to divide between them the territory of their former journey.

²⁷ We have, then, commissioned Judas and Silas, and they are reporting the same by word. For it seems [good] to the holy spirit and to us not to be placing one more burden on you more than these essentials: to be abstaining from idol sacrifices, and blood, and what is strangled, and prostitution; from which, carefully keeping yourselves, you will be well engaged. Farewell!"

³³ Now, the time being spent, they were dismissed with peace from the brethren, to those who commission them. Yet Paul and Barnabas tarried in Antioch, teaching and preaching the evangel of the word of the Lord, with many others also.

³⁶ Now, after some days, Paul said to Barnabas, "By all means, turning back, we should be visiting the brethren at every city in which we announce the word of the Lord.—how they are faring." Now Barnabas intended to take along with them John also, who is called Mark.

³⁸ Yet Paul counted him unworthy to take along—the one withdrawing from them from Pamphylia, and not coming with them to the work.

⁴⁰ Silas was almost necessary as a companion for Paul. The decrees provided that they should be delivered by both Barnabas and Paul, while Judas and Silas were to confirm them by word of mouth. Now that Barnabas is gone, Paul could hardly deliver the decrees without a second witness, and Silas was the very one for the purpose, for he had the recommendation of Jerusalem.

⁴⁰ Now Paul, singling out Silas, came away, being given over to the grace of the Lord by the brethren.

⁴¹ Now he came through Syria and Cilicia, establishing the ecclesias.

¹⁶ Now he arrives also at Derbe and at Lystra, and lo! a certain disciple was there, named Timothy, the son of a believing Jewish woman, yet of a Greek father, who was testified to by the brethren in Lystra and Iconium. This one, Paul wants to come out with him, and, taking him, circumcised him because of the Jews who are in those places, for they had all been aware that his father belonged to the Greeks.

⁴ Now, as they went through the cities, they give over to them the decrees to maintain, which have been decided upon by the apostles and the elders who are in Jerusalem.

⁵ The ecclesias, indeed, then, were given stability in the faith and superabounded in number daily.

⁶ Now they passed through Phrygia and the Galatian province, being forbidden by the holy spirit to speak the word in the [province of]

⁹ And during the night a vision was seen by Paul. A certain man, a Macedonian, was standing and entreating him, and saying, "Cross over into Macedonia! Help us!"

¹⁰ Now as he perceived the vision, we

⁹ Up to this time Paul was guided by hindrances. Trying to go through Galatia to the regions beyond, he is taken sick. He then seeks to enter the populous province of Asia, but the time had not yet come. Finally, at Troas, he receives the first intimation that his work lay in Europe. Without stopping to preach in Troas he immediately sets sail for Macedonia, which he reached in two days—a remarkably swift journey. It took five days on a later occasion (20⁹).

¹⁰ Luke seems to have joined the party of Paul at Troas, for now the narrative is continued in the first person. "They . . . descended into Troas," but "we . . . seek to come away to Macedonia."

¹³ There seem to have been few Jews in the city. There was no synagogue. As it was the custom of the Jews to retire to the sea shore or some stream, which they esteemed a pure place, for prayer, Paul and his company resorted to such a spot and spoke to the women who came. Here it was that the Lord, who had led them from afar, manifested His presence and power by opening the heart of Lydia, the first fruit of the evangel in Europe. Strangely enough, however, she was from Asia, and from the very regions which they were forbidden to evangelize.

¹⁶ Python is the name of Apollo in his character as an oracle. Those who were ventriloquists, speaking with their mouths closed, were called Pythons. It was a kind of demon possession, not at all uncommon in ancient Greece. Their ravings were highly esteemed by the superstitious idolaters. Hence this slave girl was able to earn much money for her masters. It was probably the enemy's plan to discredit Paul's message by a questionable commendation.

immediately seek to come out to Macedonia, deducing that God has called us to preach the evangel to them.

- ¹¹ Now, setting out from Troas, we run straight to Samothrace, yet the ¹² ensuing [day] to Neapolis, and thence to Philippi, which is the foremost city of that part of Macedonia, a colony.

Now we were tarrying in this
¹³ city some days. And the day of the sabbaths we came outside of the gate beside a river, where we inferred there was prayer, and, being seated, we spoke to the women who are
¹⁴ coming together. And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple of the city of Thyatira, revering God, heard, whose heart the Lord opens up to heed what is be-
¹⁵ ing spoken by Paul. Now as she is baptized, she and her household, she entreats, saying, "If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and remain." And she urges us.

¹⁶ Now it occurred, at our going to the prayer, a certain maid having a python spirit meets us, who afforded a vast income to her masters, divin-
¹⁷ ing. She, following after Paul and us, cried, saying, "These men are slaves of God most high, who are announcing to you the way of sal-¹⁸ vation!" Now this she did many days. Now Paul, being exasperated, and turning about, said to the spir-

 ON-TURNING to-THE spirit

¹⁹ This is the first occasion in which the evangel comes into conflict with the religion of the nations and with the spirit powers back of it. Hitherto the Jews and Judaism opposed the evangel. At Lystra it was welcomed by the idolaters, at first, until the Jews turned the people against the apostles.

²⁰ There was no law against casting out demons, so the accusation is craftily perverted to arouse the prejudices of the Roman officers. The Jews had been ordered out of Rome and were in bad repute. There was a law, practically obsolete, which forbade the introduction of any religious innovation as dangerous to the peace of the empire. So that, if the law had been allowed to take its normal course, the apostles might have been imprisoned for a long period, and the evangel would have received a permanent check, but the unlawful action of the officers, putting them in the wrong, effectually opened the way for the further proclamation of the evangel in Philippi.

²⁶ Contrast the deliverance of Paul and Silas with that of Peter (12:19). Peter had not been ill-treated as they were, and slept. They prayed and sang songs of praise. No angel came to deliver Paul and Silas, but they brought a much greater deliverance to the warden and his household, and doubtless to some of the prisoners as well. Peter's escape, on the contrary, cost the lives of his keepers. Paul and Silas come out in broad daylight, escorted by the officers of the city and leave openly after they have met their brethren and taken leave of them. Peter comes out at night and flees to another place to escape Herod's wrath.

it, "I am charging you, in the name of Jesus Christ, to be coming out from her!" And it came out the same hour.

²⁵ Now at midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God. Now the prisoners listened to them. Now, suddenly, a great quake occurred, so that the foundations of the prison are shaken. Now, instantly, all the doors were opened, and the bonds of all were slackened.

³² They did not stop with the bare exhortation to believe, but went on to open up the truth of the evangel. Faith does not come by the mere entreaty to believe, but through the setting forth of the truths which are to be believed. The death of Christ for our sins, His burial and resurrection are essential to salvation and should be the subject of every effort to preach the evangel. This gospel of God's grace was immediately effective, producing great joy.

³⁵ Philippi was a military colony, hence the officials were army officers rather than magistrates. This may explain their illegal course of taking a hand in punishing those who had never been tried. Later reflection doubtless convinced them of this error, so they sent to have Paul and Silas released. The warden was doubtless very happy at this turn of affairs, and exhorts them to go. But Paul, seeing the hand of God in the changed attitude of the officers, and solicitous for the furtherance of the evangel in Philippi, determines to press the advantage. The officers did not know that they were Roman citizens, hence did not realize how serious had been their offense. A public acknowledgment of their fault would shield the saints from further persecution. He insists that the officers shall come and lead them out in person, so that all may see that they were no longer opposed to their work. This the officers do, but, lest a rumor of this should get to Rome, they entreat them to leave the city, which, with due deliberation, the apostles did.

²⁹ in this place." Now, requesting lights, he springs in, and coming to be in a tremor, prostrates to Paul ³⁰ and Silas, and preceding them out, averred, "Masters, what must I be doing that I may be saved?"
³¹ Now they say, "Believe on the Lord Jesus, and you shall be saved, ³² you and your household." And they speak to him the word of the Lord, together with all who are in his ³³ house. And taking them aside, in that hour of the night he bathes off their blows, and is baptized, he and all his household, instantly.
³⁴ And, leading them up into his house, he sets a table before them, and exults, having believed in God with all his household.
³⁵ Now at the coming of day the officers dispatch the constables, saying, "Release those men." Now the warden reports these words to Paul, that "The officers have sent a dispatch that you may be released. Then come out now, go ³⁷ in peace." Yet Paul averred to them, "Lashing us publicly, uncondemned, men belonging to the Romans, they cast us into jail, and now they are ejecting us surreptitiously! No! But let them come themselves and lead us out!"
³⁸ Now the constables report these statements to the officers. Now they were afraid, hearing that they are ³⁹ Romans, and coming, they entreat them, and, leading them out, asked them to come away from the city.

¹⁷ Now, traversing Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. Now, as Paul's custom was, he entered to them and on three sabbaths he argues with them from the scriptures, opening to them and placing before them that Christ must suffer and rise from among the dead, and that "This One is Christ—the Jesus Whom I am announcing to you."

⁵ Now the Jews, being jealous, taking also to themselves some wicked men of the loafers, and making up a mob, they made a tumult in the city, and, standing by the house of Jason, they sought to lead them before the populace. Now, not finding them, they dragged Jason and some brethren to the city magistrate, imploring that "These who raise the inhabited earth to insurrection are present in this place also, whom Jason has entertained. And all these are committing things contravening the decrees of Cæsar, saying there is a different King, Jesus." Now they disturb the throng and the city magistrates at hearing these things. And, obtaining bail from Jason and the rest, they release them.

¹⁵ Paul has now fulfilled the Macedonian call, and leaves that province for Greece, which was then named Achaia. Athens was, in some ways, the principal city, and it had a Jewish meeting place. Hence he went thither and took his usual course, speaking to the Jews in the synagogue, and to the others in the market place. We are not informed of his reception by the Jews, but they do not seem to have persecuted him.

¹⁸ The Epicurean philosophy was virtually Atheism. Like modern scientific theorists it denied creation, teaching that the universe was formed by a fortuitous concourse of atoms, and continued to function without the intervention of God. There was no moral government, so there was no judgment and no resurrection. Their highest aim was self-gratification.

¹⁰ Now the brethren immediately send out Paul as well as Silas by night into Berea, who are away, coming along into the synagogue of the Jews. Now these were more noble than those in Thessalonica, who receive the word with all eagerness, examining the scriptures daily, if these things be so. Many of them, indeed, then, believe, and of the respectable Greek women and men not a few.

¹³ Now as the Jews of Thessalonica know that in Berea also the word of God was announced by Paul, they came there also, agitating and disturbing the throngs. Now immediately, then, the brethren send away Paul to go as far as the sea. Silas as well as Timothy remain behind there.

¹⁵ Now those who are conducting Paul led him as far as Athens, and, obtaining directions to Silas and Timothy that they may be coming most quickly to him, they are off.

¹⁸ Now some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers also parleyed with him, and some said, "Whatever may this scrap-picker be wanting to say?" Yet some, "He seems seed-collector this TO-BE-saying

¹⁸ "Scrap-picker" is a piece of Athenian slang based upon the habits of birds who pick up seed and scraps, and applied to men who pick up scraps of learning and who lack a thorough knowledge of their subjects.

¹⁸ "Demons" was used of good as well as evil divinities in profane Greek.

²¹ While the Epicureans derided him, both they and the Stoics, as well as the many Athenians who had returned from foreign travel, all were eager to hear anything that was novel, even if they could not agree with it. The resurrection was unheard of amongst them, so they wish to know more of it.

²³ By this happy introduction the apostle manages to conciliate the pretense to knowledge which the philosophers affected. Instead of charging them directly with ignorance of God he introduces the inscription, TO AN UNKNOWN GOD, which they doubtless all had seen. Then he pursues a course of reasoning, which they could follow, showing the illogical basis of their philosophies as to creation, God's continued activity in providence, and His desire that men should use these evidences in groping for Him—as they were. He is careful to make every possible concession to the philosophers, yet boldly attacks their error. In the midst of marvelous temples, and elaborate ritual, he does not hesitate to declare their uselessness to the God Who needed nothing, but was the Giver of all things. He asserts His supremacy in time and space. He acknowledges the partial truth in the Stoic philosophy by proclaiming His presence and immanence.

to be an announcer of strange demons," seeing that he preached to them the evangel of Jesus and the resurrection. Besides, getting hold of him, they led him to the Areopagus, saying "Can we know what this new teaching is, of which you are speaking? For what you are bringing to our hearing is strange. We are resolved, then, to know what this is wanting to be!" Now all the Athenians and the repatriated guests had opportunity for no other thing than to be telling something or hearing something newer.

²² Now Paul, standing in the center of the Areopagus, averred, "Men! Athenians! I am beholding on all sides how unusually religious you are. For, passing through and contemplating the objects of your veneration, I found a pedestal also, on which had been inscribed, 'TO AN UNKNOWN GOD.' To Whom then, you are ignorantly devout, This One I am announcing to you: ²⁴ God, Who makes the world and all which is in it, He, the Lord possessing heaven and earth, is not dwelling in temples made with ²⁵ hands, neither is He, requiring anything, being attended by human hands, Himself giving to all life and breath and all. Besides, He makes out of one every nation of mankind, to be dwelling on all the surface of the earth, specifying the setting of the seasons and ²⁷ the bounds of their dwelling, for them to be seeking God, if, consequently, they surely should grope for Him and may be finding Him, though to be sure, He is existing not far from each one of us, for ²⁸ in Him we are living and moving

Here we have a marvelous model for the preaching of the evangel to the wise of this world. No appeal is made to scripture, for it would be useless. Every concession is made to the dim perceptions of truth which they held, and they are led as far as human reason can bring them up to the greatest fact of the evangel—the resurrection. But alas! Not many wise are called, for God chooses the stupid of the world to disgrace the wise (1Co.12⁶). No persecution drove Paul away, yet no flourishing ecclesia followed his labors. Indifference is deadly.

and are, even as some poets of yours have declared, 'For we are of the race also.' Belonging, then, to the divine race, we ought not to be inferring that the Divine is like gold, or silver, or stone, a sculpture of art and human sentiment.

³² Now, on hearing of the resurrection of the dead, some, indeed, jeered, yet some say, "We will hear you concerning this again." ³³ Thus Paul came out of their midst. ³⁴ Yet some men, cleaving to him, believe, among whom were Dionysius the Areopagite, also, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

18 After these things, departing from Athens, he came to Corinth. ² And finding a certain Jew, named Aquila, a native of Pontus, having recently come from Italy, and Priscilla, his wife (because Claudius prescribed that all the Jews depart ³ from Rome), he came to them, and, because they were of a like trade, he remained with them and worked, for they were tentmakers by trade.

⁴ Now he argued in the synagogue every sabbath and persuaded Jews ⁵ as well as Greeks. Now, as Silas as well as Timothy came down

During his early days in Corinth his heart was continually occupied with the saints from whom he had been severed, especially those of Thessalonica. He had sent Timothy to them to establish them. Now when Timothy came to Corinth with Silas and brought good news of their faith and love, he writes an epistle to them. This was, it seems, not only the first of Paul's epistles to be penned, but the first part of the Greek Scriptures to be committed to writing.

⁶ As usual, Paul went to the synagogue and spoke on the sabbaths, but he does not seem to have proclaimed Christ until his companions came. Then he boldly preached Jesus as the Messiah. Profiting by his former experiences, he leaves them when they oppose and holds his meetings in a private house. Yet many, including the chief of the synagogue, are won for the Lord. Paul's language and symbolic action in withdrawing from the Jews are a denunciation of woe, and agree with what he wrote about them at this time (1Thess.2^{15,16}).

⁹ Paul, in writing to the Corinthians concerning these early days, told them that he was with them in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling (1Co.2³). Hence he received a vision in the night to encourage him. God had chosen many a sinner in that city who should hear the evangel through Paul and believe. The opposition did not develop for some time and he was allowed to work for a year and a half. Thus he laid the foundation (1Co.3¹⁰) of one of the most flourishing of the ecclesias, which ever after had a large place in his heart.

¹² The Jews, however, took advantage of a change in the government, when Gallio (Annæus Novatus, a brother of Seneca, the philosopher, but adopted into the family of Junius Gallio, the rhetorician) became proconsul. He seems to have been especially liberal and tolerant, and refused to act as judge in an affair involving the religious law of the Jews. He considered such matters entirely outside his jurisdiction as a Roman judge.

from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the word, certifying to the Jews ⁶ that Jesus is the Christ. Now at their resisting and blaspheming, shaking out his garments, he said to them, "Your blood be on your head! I am clear. From now on I shall go to the nations."

⁷ And proceeding thence, he entered the house of a certain one named Titus Justus, who is revering God, whose house was adjacent to ⁸ the synagogue. Now Crispus, the chief of the synagogue, believes in the Lord, together with his whole household. And many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed, and were baptized.

⁹ Now the Lord said to Paul, through a vision in the night, "Fear not! but be speaking: and ¹⁰ you should not be silent, because I am with you, and no one shall place [hands] on you to illtreat you, because I have many people in this ¹¹ city." Now he is seated one year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

¹² Now, Gallio being proconsul of Achaia, the Jews with one accord assaulted Paul, and they led him ¹³ to the dais, saying that "This man is inducing men to revere ¹⁴ God aside from the law." Now, as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, "If, indeed, it were some injury or wicked knavery, O Jews, I should, ¹⁵ on that account, tolerate you. Yet if they are questions about words and names and a law of yours, you will see! I am not intending

¹⁸ The taking of a vow was not a part of the law, but was strictly voluntary on the part of those who took it on themselves. Such a person was separated to God, and must not touch the dead, no matter how close the physical relationship. So Paul, at this time, became separated from the dying nation of Israel (Nu.6).

Perhaps Paul's deliverance from the Jews in Corinth was the occasion of this vow. As a further indication of his separation from the apostate nation it corresponds to his action at the beginning of his ministry in Corinth in severing from the unbelieving Jews and going to the nations with the evangel. We have no record of his release from the vow, for he only sheared his hair in Cenchrea. To end it he would need to go to Jerusalem and shave his head. Hence, in spirit, his ministry henceforth is that of a Nazarite, without the joy which will characterize the coming of the kingdom and with the weakness and shame suggested by the long hair.

¹⁶ to be a judge of these!" And he
¹⁷ drives them from the dais. Yet they all, getting hold of Sosthenes, the chief of the synagogue, beat him in front of the dais. And Gallio cared nothing for these things.

¹⁹ Now they arrive at Ephesus and he left them there. Yet he, entering the synagogue, argues with the ²⁰ Jews. Yet on their asking him to stay on more time, he does not consent, but, taking leave, and saying, "God willing, I shall come back again to you," he set out from ²² Ephesus. And, coming down into Cæsarea, going up and greeting the ecclesia, he descended to Antioch.

²³ And, spending some time, he came away, passing consecutively through the Galatian province and Phrygia, establishing all the disciples.

²⁴ Now a certain Jew, named Apollos, an Alexandrian by race, a scholarly man, arrives at Ephesus, ²⁵ being able in the scriptures. He was instructed in the way of the Lord, and fervent in spirit. He spoke and taught accurately what concerns Jesus, being versed only ²⁶ in the baptism of John. And he begins to [speak] boldly in the synagogue. Now when Priscilla and

²⁶ Apollos' ignorance of the ministry of the Lord and His twelve apostles made it easy for him to receive the truth proclaimed through Paul, so that he became a great help to the saints in Corinth as well as an ardent and powerful exponent of the ancient scriptures concerning the Messiah. What Paul had planted Apollos watered. He built on Paul's foundation (1Co.3^{6,10}). The Corinthians made him the head of one of their schisms (1Co.11²). He continued in fellowship with the apostle to the end (Titus 3¹³). It is not likely that he was an eloquent man, for the word used denotes scholarship, rather than eloquence, and the combination is rare. Superiority of speech is not needed in the proclamation of the evangel. It is not in word but in power (1Co.2^{1,4}).

² These disciples, like Apollos, seemed to know nothing of the ministry of the Lord and the twelve apostles, and of the gifts of the holy spirit which were not given until after our Lord's ascension. They possessed none of these gifts and had not so much as heard of them. John's baptism was for the repentant, to prepare a people for the Messiah Who should come after him, Who would baptize in holy spirit.

Aquila hear him, they took him to themselves and expounded the way of God more accurately.

²⁷ Now, as he intends to be passing through into Achaia, the brethren, promoting it, write to the disciples to welcome him, who, coming along, parleyed much with those who have ²⁸ believed through grace, for he strenuously and thoroughly confuted the Jews, publicly exhibiting, through the scriptures, that Jesus is the Christ.

¹⁹ Now it occurred while Apollos was in Corinth, Paul, passing through the upper parts, comes down to Ephesus and, finding some ² disciples, said to them, "Did you obtain holy spirit when believing?" Yet they to him, "Nay, neither hear we if there is holy ³ spirit." Yet he said "Into what, then, are you baptized?" Yet they said, "Into the baptism of ⁴ John." Yet Paul said, "John baptizes with the baptism of repentance, saying to the people that they should be believing on the One Who is coming after him, that is, on ⁵ Jesus. Now on hearing this, they are baptized into the name of the ⁶ Lord Jesus." And at the placing of Paul's hands on them, the holy spirit came on them and they talked ⁷ languages and prophesied. Now in all there were about twelve men. ⁸ Now, entering the synagogue, he [spoke] boldly for three months, arguing and persuading as to that which concerns the kingdom of God. ⁹ Now, as some were hardened and stubborn, speaking evil of the way

⁸ Once more Paul pursues his usual plan of proclaiming Christ in the synagogue of the principal city of a province.

⁹ In Ephesus the previous visit of the apostle and the testimony of Apollos, as well as his own bold proclamation in the synagogue, won many adherents among the Jews, so that in this case, it was not some who believed, but some who opposed. After three months matters come to a crisis and Paul leaves the synagogue and brings the believing disciples with him, making his headquarters in the school of Tyrannus, where he discourses daily. Besides this, as he reminds the elders in his affecting farewell at Miletus, he supported himself by his own hands (20³⁴), possibly working at his trade with Aquila and Priscilla, going about the homes as well as teaching publicly (20²⁰), and healing many of diseases, and casting out wicked spirits.

¹³ The Jews had fallen so low that many of them became sorcerers and magicians who used incantations in their attempts to overcome evil spirits. Finding that Paul's formula was so effective they do not hesitate to profane the name of the Lord, by using it in their exorcisms. But the evil spirits were not deceived by this means, as the sons of Sceva found to their sorrow.

¹⁷ This incident had a marked effect on those who practised such arts. The demons whom they feared had acknowledged both the Lord and His servant as worthy of their obedience. No wonder that they were filled with fear and magnified the Lord Jesus.

before the multitude, withdrawing from them, he severs the disciples, arguing daily in the school of ¹⁰ Tyrannus. Now this occurred for two years, so that all those dwelling in the [province of] Asia hear the word of the Lord, Jews as well as ¹¹ Greeks. Besides, powers, not the casual kind, God did through the

¹² hands of Paul, so that handkerchiefs or aprons from his cuticle are carried away to the infirm also, to clear the diseases from them, and wicked spirits go out.

¹³ Now some wandering Jews also, exorcists, take in hand to name the name of the Lord Jesus over those having wicked spirits, saying, "I adjure you by Jesus Whom Paul ¹⁴ is proclaiming!" Now there were some seven sons of Sceva, a Jew, a ¹⁵ chief priest, doing this. Yet, answering, the wicked spirit said to them, "Jesus, indeed, I know, and I am versed in Paul, yet who are
¹⁶ you?" And the man in whom the wicked spirit was, leaping on them, getting the mastery of both, is too strong for them, so that they are escaping out of that house naked and wounded.

¹⁷ Now this became known to all, Jews as well as Greeks, who are dwelling in Ephesus. And fear falls on them all, and the name of

²¹ The words "as these things were fulfilled" mark the central crisis in Paul's ministry. We have long passed Jerusalem, Antioch has held its place as the base for his missionary journeys, and his correspondence was connected with Corinth, but now we look forward to Rome. In epistles written at this juncture Paul declares that he has fully preached the gospel of Christ in these parts (Ro.15¹⁹), that there is to be a change in his ministry, especially in the evangel he was proclaiming. He had gone about proclaiming Christ as Israel's Messiah, "after the flesh," yet henceforth he would do so no longer. He would recognize no man after the flesh. He would proclaim the conciliation, which does away with the distinction between the Circumcision and Uncircumcision (2Co.5¹⁴⁻²¹, Ro.5¹²⁻²¹). His gospel to the nations had been based on the promise to Abraham that all the nations of the earth should be blessed through His Seed. Now he preaches to all mankind because of a common descent from Adam. As this ministry is not in line with the kingdom to Israel, which is the subject of Acts, it is not recognized in this scroll.

The apostle's ministry in the synagogues is at an end, for the Jews among the nations have rejected their Messiah even as those in the land had done. All that now remains is his testimony before kings and in Rome.

Ephesus was the religious as Rome was the political center of the world. Paul gave a larger part of his ministry to the church there than to any other.

²³ The disturbance in Ephesus was no doubt caused by the opposition of the evil spirits, or demons, who are the real objects of worship in idolatry. It served God's purpose as well, for the apostle's ministry had come to a crisis which required him to leave Ephesus.

²⁴ The impelling motive of Demetrius and his fellow craftsmen was the loss of trade, just as in the case of the Pythoness at Philippi. Money moves the nations.

²¹ Now, as these things were fulfilled, Paul pondered, in spirit, passing through Macedonia and Achaia, going to Jerusalem, saying that "After coming to be there I must see Rome also." Now, dispatching two of his servants, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, he attended, for the time, to the [province of] Asia.

It was an ancient custom to use portable images or shrines, which were modeled after celebrated temples or other objects of worship. They were used for various purposes, either 'as household gods or for religious processions, or even on journeys or military expeditions. Some were of wood, others of gold or silver. It can easily be seen how a profitable trade in such images could spring up in Ephesus, for the temple of Diana was world-renowned. Worshipers from afar would want a shrine to take with them to their homes.

The reason why shrines or temples of Diana were made, rather than images of the goddess may lie in the fact that the temple was most magnificent, while the image it contained was rude indeed. It was not an image of Diana the Huntress, which is the usual character in which she is now represented, but a many-breasted female figure above and a shapeless block below, carved out of wood. Nevertheless, she was the object of the most fanatical veneration.

³³ This Alexander may be that copper-smith who had done much evil to the apostle (2Tim.4:14). If so, it shows the shameless lengths to which the Jews went in their hatred of Paul. They would not wish to be implicated in this matter, though it was well known that they also were opposed to idolatry. If this was the coppersmith he might have some influence with craftsmen of a like occupation, and he would clear his fellow countrymen of any association with Paul. But the mob knew he was a Jew and the mob was in no humor to tolerate any one who was not a worshiper of their goddess.

pulled down), whom the whole [province of] Asia and the inhabited earth is revering."

³⁵ Now the scribe, composing the throng, is averring: "Men! Ephesians! For what man is there who knows not the city of the Ephesians, which is the sexton of the temple of the great Artemis and of that which ³⁶ fell from Zeus? These things, then, not being gainsaid, you must possess composure and commit nothing rash. For you led these ³⁷ men, who are neither despoilers of the sanctuary, nor blasphemers ³⁸ of our goddess. ³⁸ After showing them that the men they had led to the theater were not guilty of any overt act against the temple or goddess he reminds them that there are legal means of redress for any wrong which they may have committed.

³⁹ We have purposely retained the uniform rendering ecclesia here, for it gives us a true idea of its meaning in ordinary Greek. It was a town council before which any matter such as this might be brought for settlement. A select portion of the population convened for public business was so called.

⁴⁰ The Romans would not tolerate any disorderly assemblage, and would soon recall any liberties and privileges accorded to a city if disorders were not promptly suppressed.

Thus God overrules to deliver Paul from "so great a death" even though the spiritual powers of evil, the avaricious mob, and the Jews were all combined against him. As in Corinth, He uses the power of Rome to protect him from false brethren and fanatical idolaters led on by his unseen spirit enemies.

² While in Corinth he wrote the epistle to the Galatians and that to the Romans. Thus, within a few months he writes all the Preparatory Epistles, in the central crisis of his ministry, after his determination to give the flesh no further place.

³ Luke seems to have rejoined the apostle at this point, as he now uses the pronoun we.

Demetrius and the artisans with him have a charge against anyone, court sessions are being held; and there are proconsuls: let them be indicting one another. Now if you are seeking for anything about other things, it will be explained in ⁴⁰ a legal ecclesia. For we are also in danger of being indicted concerning today's commotion, there existing not a single cause concerning which we shall be able to render an account concerning this riot."

⁴¹ And, saying these things, he dismisses the ecclesia.

20 Now, after the tumult ceased, Paul, sending after the disciples and consoling and saluting them, came away to go into Macedonia.

² Now, passing through those parts and entreating them with many

³ a word, he came into Greece. And three months being spent, as there came to be a plot against him by the Jews, being about to set out for Syria, he came to be of the opinion that he would return through Macedonia.

¹³ We may see something of the tense solicitude of the apostle's heart in his actions. For the sake of a few more hours at Troas he walked twenty miles after having preached most of the night. He would not trust himself in Ephesus, lest he should linger and defeat his purpose to be in Jerusalem at Pentecost. Yet he could not sail past without at least a parting word to the elders of the ecclesia he had come to love so well. It becomes more and more evident that the new departure in his ministry included the cessation of his own physical presence with the ecclesias. It was to be communicated in true spiritual style by means of epistles.

about to be off on the morrow. And he prolonged the word unto midnight. Now there were a considerable number of torches in the upper chamber where we were assembled.

¹¹ Now, ascending and breaking bread and taking a taste, besides conversing a considerable time until ¹² daybreak, so he came away. And they led the boy alive, and were immeasurably consoled.

¹³ Now we, coming before to the ship, set out for Assos, thence being about to take up Paul, for thus it was prescribed, he being about to ¹⁴ go on foot. Now, as he came up with us in Assos, taking him up, we ¹⁵ came to Mitylene. And, sailing from thence, the ensuing [day] we arrive abreast of Chios, yet on another we put in at Samos, yet the next we ¹⁶ came into Miletus, for Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he should not be coming to linger in the [province of] Asia, for he hurried, if it may be possible for him to be in Jerusalem the day of Pentecost.

It must be remembered that Paul's ministry was continually changing. As the apostasy of the Jews progressed, the evangel of the kingdom became less pronounced and he was entrusted with a secret, which, depending on Israel's failure, could not be made known publicly until Israel was set aside. Hence there is a great gulf between this address and the Ephesian epistle, which he wrote to them from Rome some years later. His career at this time was still imperfect. Writing to the Corinthians a short time before, he says that the saints are still in the period of minority and that maturity, or perfection, had not yet been attained (1Co.13⁹⁻¹²).

²¹ Repentance had its place in Paul's preaching while he was proclaiming the kingdom. It was associated with pardon. Henceforth he no longer preaches these, but justification and conciliation by faith alone, as is set forth in his epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, and Galatians, which were written not long before this last meeting with the Ephesian elders. The call to repentance is most frequently made to the covenant people, and usually for the purpose of averting impending judgment.

¹⁸ the ecclesia. Now, as they came to him, he said to them, "You are versed [in the facts], from the first day on which I stepped into the [province of] Asia, how I came
¹⁹ to be with you all the time, slaving for the Lord with all humility and tears, and the trials which befell
²⁰ me by the plots of the Jews, how I do not shrink from informing you of anything which is expedient, and teaching you publicly and at your ²¹ homes, certifying to Jews as well as to Greeks repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

²² And now, lo! I, having been bound in spirit, am going to Jerusalem, not being aware what I will
²³ meet with in it, more than that the holy spirit, city by city, certifies to me, saying that bonds and afflictions
²⁴ are remaining for me. But I am taking account of nothing, nor am I making my soul precious to myself, till I should be perfecting my career and the dispensation which I obtained from the Lord Jesus, to certify the evangel of the grace of God.

²⁵ And now, lo! I am aware that you all, among whom I came proclaiming the kingdom, shall see my ²⁶ face no more. Wherefore I take you to witness in this very day that I am clear from the blood of all,
²⁷ for I do not shrink from informing you of the entire counsel of God.

²⁹ The apostle draws a dark picture of apostasy. Wolves from without were to come in. These are spoken of as "burdensome" and probably refers to those who came in to get rather than to give. But even worse was the apostasy within. In Corinth we see the readiness with which the disciples followed a leader even when the leader refused a following. In Ephesus began the destructive work of those who set themselves up as heads of parties or divisions. Had they acted like Paul with the Corinthians the schism would have been healed. But, as they courted a personal following, it has led to the multiplied divisions of today.

³¹ Paul's tears were occasioned by the fear that they would turn away from his gospel, as they subsequently did (2 Ti.1:15).

³² "God and the word of His grace" means much more to us than it possibly could have meant to the Ephesian elders at Miletus.

The richest storehouse of His grace had not yet been opened. The epistle to the Ephesians had not yet been penned. Yet Paul doubtless referred to these later unfoldings and committed them to that further revelation which it was not yet lawful for him to utter (2Co.12⁴). God and the word of His grace are our only, yet sufficient, recourse in the present apostasy.

³³ As Priscilla and Aquila were in Ephesus, it is probable that Paul worked with them for his living as he had done at Corinth. What a marvelous example of self-sacrifice he has left! Vast as was the spiritual wealth he brought to Ephesus, he did not even take the meager dole needed for his sustenance.

³⁷ The occasion of their most poignant sorrow was the sign of their greatest benefit. They were about to exchange a subordinate place at Israel's board, for "every spiritual blessedness among the celestials" (Eph.1³). Paul's face may fade from view on earth, yet it was but a symptom of a higher and greater fellowship in heaven.

sors, to be shepherding the ecclesia of God, which He procures through ²⁹ His own blood. Now I am aware that, after I am out of reach, burdensome wolves will be entering among you, not sparing the flocklet.

³⁰ And from among yourselves men will be arising, speaking perverse things to pull away disciples after

²¹ themselves. Wherefore watch, remembering that for three years, night and day, I cease not admonish-

³² ing each one with tears. And now I am committing you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to edify and give the enjoyment of an allotment among all who have been hallowed.

³³ I covet no one's silver or gold

³⁴ or vesture. You know that these hands subserve my needs and of ³⁵ those who are with me. I intimate all to you, that, toiling thus, you must be supporting the infirm, and be remembering the words of the Lord Jesus, that He said, 'It is happiness to give rather than to ³⁶ get.' " And, saying these things, kneeling together with them all, he prays.

³⁷ Now there came to be considerable lamentation by all, and falling on Paul's neck, they kissed him

²¹ Now as we came to set out, pulling ourselves from them, running

² The party made a quick journey. The various terms, "running straight," "looming up, and leaving," suggest that they sailed before the wind, which blows from the northwest at that time of the year.

⁴ We cannot take this statement "who said to Paul, through the spirit, not to be stepping aboard to Jerusalem" as a prohibition by the spirit of God, for Paul was acting in closest accord with the directions of the spirit. Rather, they knew, through the spirit, what was awaiting Paul in Jerusalem, and they, like all the disciples, were anxious to spare him the trials and sufferings which would surely be his lot if he persisted in his purpose to go on to Jerusalem. But Paul was emulating the spirit and conduct of his Master, Who set His face as a flint to go to Jerusalem, when He was well aware of all the shame and suffering which should befall Him in the city. Instead of blaming Paul for his persistence we may rather marvel at the steadfastness of his purpose and unflinching courage, not only in view of the trials ahead, but the importunities of his fond friends, who were compelled to recognize that his steadfast purpose grew out of clearer discernment of the Master's will, and so acquiesced (¹⁴).

⁸ More than twenty years have passed since Philip, the evangelist, after his meeting with the Ethiopian eunuch, was left at Cæsarea (⁸⁴⁰). Whether he has remained there ever since, or had his headquarters there, does not seem clear, though he now seems to be a permanent resident. His duties as one of the seven do not seem to have detained him in Jerusalem.

⁹ We are not informed whether the daughters of Philip added their warnings to the rest, but there seems to be no reason for mentioning their gift here unless they, too, confirmed the word of the others.

straight, we came to Coos, yet the next [day] to Rhodes, and thence to Patara. And finding a ship ferrying to Phœnicia, stepping on board, we set out. Now, Cyprus looming up, and leaving it to the left, we sailed to Syria, and came down to Tyre, for there the ship was unloading the cargo.

⁴ Now, finding out the disciples, we stay with them seven days, who said to Paul, through the spirit, not to be stepping aboard to Jerusalem.

⁵ Now, when the days came to fit us out, coming away, we went, being sent forward by all, together with the wives and children, till outside the city. And, kneeling on the beach, praying, we pull away from one another, and stepped into the ship. Yet they return to their own.

⁷ Now we, quitting the ship, from Tyre descended to Ptolemais, and, greeting the brethren, we remain one day with them.

⁸ Now, coming away on the morrow, we came to Cæsarea, and, coming into the house of Philip the evangelist, who is of the seven, we remain with him. Now there were four daughters of this man, virgins, prophesying.

¹¹ This is probably that same Agabus who came down to Antioch and prophesied the famine under Claudius Cæsar (11²⁸). He now reappears under similar circumstances. There is to be a great spiritual famine in Israel. The indications of it are found in their treatment of Paul, which was set forth in the style of the ancient prophets. This was the last intimation he had, and it so impressed all his friends that they once more sought to dissuade him from entering the city of Jerusalem. We may see how thoroughly he was convinced that he was in the Lord's will by his reply to their entreaties. He was no fanatic, bent on carrying out his own will, unmindful of the feelings of his friends. His presence in Jerusalem was necessary, not only that he might fulfill his promise to contribute to the support of the poor of the Circumcision (Ga.2¹⁰), but that the apostasy of the nation, including the "believers" might be manifested, and thus his last and crowning ministry, which was to follow their failure, might be made known to the nations.

hands, he said, "Now this the holy spirit is saying, 'The man whose girdle this is shall the Jews in Jerusalem be binding thus, and they shall be giving him over into the hands of the nations.'" Now as we hear these things, we, as well as those in the place, entreated him not to go up to Jerusalem. Then Paul answered and said, "What are you doing, lamenting and unnering my heart? For I am ready, not only to be bound, but to die also in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." Now, as he was not persuaded, we become quiet, saying, "Let the will of the Lord occur!"

¹⁵ Now, after these days, taking up our baggage, we went up to Jerusalem. Now disciples from Cæsarea also, came with us, to lead us to Mnason, a certain Cyprian, an early disciple, with whom we should lodge. Now at our coming to be in Jerusalem the brethren welcome us with gratification.

¹⁸ Now, on the ensuing [day], Paul had been in together with us to James, and all the elders came along. And greeting them, he unfolded, one by one, each of the things which God does among the nations through his dispensation.

²⁰ Now those who hear glorified God, and they said to him, "You are beholding, brother, how many tens of thousands there are among the Jews, who have believed, and all possess a zeal for the law. Now they were instructed concerning you that you are teaching all the Jews among the nations apostasy from ²⁴ The "belief" of the Circumcision, based on tangible evidence, such as signs and wonders, was of a very different quality from that of Paul's epistles. In our Lord's day "many believed on His name, beholding the signs which He did. Yet Jesus—He did not entrust Himself to them . . . for He knew what was in humanity" (Jn.2²³⁻²⁵). So the myriad believers in Jerusalem were still zealous for the law and circumcision and the traditional observances. Their belief did not hinder them from hating the apostle and sending emissaries to undo his work among the nations. That Paul's real danger lay in these "believers" is evident not only from the warning of the elders and the precautionary measures they proposed, but from his own prayer to be rescued from the stubborn (not the unbelievers) in Judea (Ro.15³¹). Those who submitted to James' leadership could not tolerate Paul.

²⁴ It was considered an act of piety to defray the expense of the sacrifices offered by the Nazarites at the completion of their vow, especially if the men were too poor to provide them (Nu.6). Paul himself was not rich, but it was probably agreed that some of the contribution he had brought for the poor could be used for this purpose. By thus publicly associating himself with this ceremonial it was hoped he would be able to disarm the prejudice against him. Paul's course in this matter cannot be condemned. Up to this time he became a Jew to the Jews. He could circumcise Timothy, because of the prejudice of the Jews, at the same time making it evident that circumcision was nothing. Ceremonial observances were nothing, only as they might be used to conciliate those who clung to them. It is the motive rather than the act which determines what is right and what is wrong.

Moses, telling them not to be circumcising their children, nor to be walking in the customs. What is it, then? Undoubtedly a multitude must come together, for they will hear that you have come. This, then, which we are saying to you, do. With us are four men having a ²⁴ vow on them. Taking these along, be purified together with them, and bear their expenses, that they should be shaving their heads, and all will know that what they have been instructed concerning you is nothing, but you yourself also are observing the fundamentals and maintaining the law. Now concerning those of the nations who have believed, we dispatch an epistle, deciding they are to guard themselves from idol sacrifice, as well as from blood and what is strangled, and from prostitution."

²⁷ Now as the seven days were about to be concluded, Jews from the [province of] Asia, gazing at him in the sanctuary, threw the cutie throng into confusion, and laid ²⁸ hands on him, crying, "Men! Israelites! Help! He is the man who is teaching all men everywhere against the people, and the law, and this holy place, and, furthermore, led Greeks also into the sanctuary, and has contaminated this holy ²⁹ place." For before this they had seen Trophimus the Ephesian in the ²⁸ While all the charges against Paul were false literally, they had some foundation in spirit, just as the accusation that our Lord had threatened to destroy the temple and raise it again in three days was false, yet true in the deepest sense. In his epistle to the Romans he had shown the defection of the people, the futility of the law and Jewish ceremonial and led the believers among the nations, in spirit, into the very holy of holies. Yet in fact he had not led Trophimus beyond the central wall of the barrier (Eph.2¹⁴) called the "soreg," which forbade the nearer approach of any except those of Jewish blood. He insisted that the law was holy and just and good (Ro.7¹²) and maintained the special privileges of the people of the covenant (Ro.9 4-5). The plan to conciliate the Christian Jews ends in a disaster which shows that Paul and the legalists are incompatible.

³⁰ Since the whole city was stirred and the people ran together, it is evident that the myriads of Jews who believed sided with their unbelieving countrymen against Paul. This is not so strange as it appears, for even to this day the bitterness of religious controversy leads those with far less between them than there was between Paul and the Judaizers to act in much the same manner. A supposed heretic is not given the consideration which is granted an unbeliever. Religion, especially that which lays stress upon ritual, has radically vitiated the standard of human morals. Paul came to them with much alms and immense spiritual wealth, all of which they spurned as their fathers had spurned his Lord.

³¹ The fortress of Antonia was at the northwestern corner of the temple area, with turrets which overlooked all the temple courts, so that any disturbance could be immediately reported to the captain. Hence the mob did not have time to kill Paul before the soldiers rushed down and took him out of their hands.

³³ As the captain could not find out who Paul was he came to the conclusion that he was the Egyptian impostor who had recently led an insurrection, and concerning whom both the soldiers and the populace were still somewhat excited.

city with him, whom they inferred that Paul led into the sanctuary.

³⁰ Besides, the whole city was stirred and there came to be a running together of the people. And, getting hold of Paul, they drew him outside of the sanctuary, and immediately the doors are locked.

³¹ And, while they are seeking to kill him, the allegation came up to the captain of the squadron that the whole of Jerusalem was in confusion, who, taking along soldiers and centurions, forthwith runs down to them. Now they, perceiving the captain and the soldiers, cease beating Paul.

³³ Then the captain, drawing near, got hold of him, and orders him to be bound with two chains. And he ascertained who he may be and what he has done. Yet others in the throng retorted some other thing. Now, at his not being able to know with certainty because of the tumult, he orders him to be led into the citadel. Now when he came on the stairs, it befell that he was borne by the soldiers because of the violence of the throng, for the multitude of the people followed, crying "Away with him!"

³⁷ And, being about to be led into the citadel, Paul is saying to the captain, "Is it allowed me to say something to you?" Yet he averred,

⁴⁰ God acts in marvelous ways. Human opposition works out his purposes quite as effectively as human help. What better means could be devised to get all Jerusalem as well as representatives from the dispersion together to hear this final testimony to the Messiah and His kingdom? Such an assemblage could not be called and there was probably no building large enough to hold them. It seems almost incredible that Paul should be granted an opportunity to speak to them, as Roman law and Roman soldiers were usually excessively strict and severe. Thus, in a few minutes, the whole situation is changed. We would naturally expect him to speak Greek, for all would have understood him, but, with fine tact, he speaks to them in the language none but the Circumcision could understand, which was associated in their minds with all that was sacred in the Judaism they fought for. It was the nearest approach to the language of their sacred scriptures. It was the language of Jew with Jew, just as Yiddish is with one class today.

city. Now I am beseeching you, permit me to speak to the people."

⁴⁰ Now Paul, with his permission, standing on the stairs, gestures with his hand to the people. Now, as there comes to be a vast hush, he shouts to them in the Hebrew vernacular, saying, "Men, brethren and fathers! Hear my defense to you now!" Now on hearing that he shouted to them in the Hebrew vernacular they tendered more quietness, and he is averring, "I am a man, a Jew, born in Tarsus, Cilicia, yet reared in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, having been educated according to the exactitude of the hereditary law, possessing a zeal for God, according as all of you are today. I persecute those of this way to death, binding and giving up men as well as women to jail, as the chief priest also was witnessing to me, and the entire eldership, from whom, receiving letters also to the brethren, I went into Damascus, to be leading those also, being there, bound to Jerusalem, that they may be punished."

⁶ Now it occurred, while I was going and drawing near to Damascus, about midday, suddenly out of heaven a considerable light flashes about me. And I fall flat, and I hear a voice saying to me, 'Saul! Saul! Why are you persecuting Me?' Yet I answered and said, 'Who art Thou, Lord?' And He said to me, 'I am Jesus, the Nazarene, Whom you are persecuting.'

SIDES TOWARD ME I AM JESUS

¹⁰ With admirable tact Paul presses such points as were calculated to win his audience, but omits whatever would rouse their ire. The Lord Himself had told him that he was to be sent to the nations (26¹⁷) and this was confirmed by Ananias (9¹⁵). Yet he carefully refrains from any mention of the nations at this time. The wisdom of this is confirmed when they refused to hear him further, once he had mentioned the nations (2¹).

¹⁷ Nothing is said here of Paul's sojourn in Arabia (Ga.1¹⁷⁻¹⁸), and the fact that he did not return to Jerusalem for three years after his call. What most concerned his hearers was that he did return and with the fullest confidence that those who knew so well of his malignant zeal against the followers of Jesus would not fail to believe his testimony concerning Him. He even argues the point with the Lord Himself. How could they refuse to listen when they knew perfectly how madly he had carried on his persecution and had even taken part in the murder of Stephen?

⁹ Now those who are with me gaze, indeed, at the light, yet they hear not the voice of Him Who is speaking to me. Now I said, 'What shall I be doing, Lord?' Now the Lord said to me, 'Rise, go into Damascus, and there you will be spoken to concerning all which has been set for you to do.'

¹¹ Now, as I observed nothing for the glory of that light, being led by the hand by those with me, I came ¹² into Damascus. Now a certain Ananias, a pious man according to the law, being borne witness to by ¹³ all the Jews dwelling there, coming to me and standing by, said to me, 'Brother Saul, recover your sight!' And I, in the same hour, look up ¹⁴ to him. Now he said, 'The God of our fathers selects you to know His will, and to be acquainted with the Just One, and to hear the voice of ¹⁵ His mouth, that you shall be His witness to all mankind of what you
¹⁶ have seen and hear. And now, why do you defer? Rise, be baptized, and bathe off your sins, invoking His name.'

¹⁷ Now it occurred, at my returning to Jerusalem and while I am praying in the sanctuary, I came to be in ¹⁸ an ecstasy and to perceive Him saying to me, 'Hurry, and come quickly out of Jerusalem, because they will not be assenting to your testimony concerning Me.' And I said,
¹⁹ 'Lord, they are versed in the fact that I was jailing and lashing those in the synagogues who are believing

²¹ Here we have the cause of Israel's apostasy laid bare. They were to be a channel of blessing to the other nations, but, instead, they kept all Jehovah's gifts to themselves and refused to share them with the less favored nations. They were like the slave who owed ten thousand talents, but, having nothing to pay with, is forgiven the debt. But when he found a fellow slave who owed him much less, he refused to be merciful and had him cast into prison. Consequently his Lord was indignant and gave him up to the tormentors (Mt.18²³). Israel is the ten thousand talent debtor. The nations were their fellow-slaves. Israel was pardoned, but, since they refuse to pass on the blessing to the nations, the pardon is withdrawn and the nation has been in the hands of the tormentors ever since. Only a few years after this Jerusalem was destroyed, the nation scattered and driven from the land to wander up and down the earth, despised by the nations whom they had wronged.

²⁵ As he was a Roman citizen, the captain had no right to bind Paul, much less to scourge him before trial. But the fact that he had bound him illegally put Paul in an advantageous position, to which was added the respect due to one who had received such a citizenship by birth, while the captain had obtained it by purchase. "I am a Jew" availed nothing with the Jews. But on his declaration that he is a Roman, his word is instantly accepted. It was a capital offense to claim unlawfully the possession of the citizenship.

Stephen, Thy witness, was shed, I myself also was standing by and endorsing it, and guarding the garments of those who are assassinating him.' And He said to me, 'Go! seeing that I shall be delegating you afar to the nations.'—

²² Now they heard him until this word, and they lift up their voice, saying, "Away with such a one from the earth, for it is not befitting for him to live!" Besides, at their clamoring, and tossing their garments, and casting dust into the air, the captain orders him to be led into the citadel, telling them to interrogate him by scourging, that he may recognize for what cause they shouted thus at him.

²⁵ Now as they stretch him out with the thongs, Paul said to the centurion standing by, "Is it allowed you to scourge a Roman man, and uncondemned?" Now the centurion, when he hears it, coming to the captain, reports, saying, "What are you about to be doing? For this man is a Roman."

²⁷ Now the captain, approaching, said to him, "Tell me, are you a Roman?" Now he averred, "Yes."

²⁸ Now the captain answered, "I acquire this citizenship with a vast sum." Yet Paul averred, "Yet I have been so born." Immediately, then, those about to be interrogating him withdraw from him. Now the captain also was afraid, recognizing that he is a Roman and that he had bound him.

¹ Paul now stands before the Sanhedrin, in which body he seems to have had a vote after the death of Stephen. Doubtless many who were there were old associates of his and most of them were acquainted with his life and doctrines, so that the inquiry was a mere form and bound to arrive at no conclusion. Paul, contrary to his usual custom of speaking first in a winning way of his auditors, commences immediately with his own defense, and seems to apologize for the fact that his Roman citizenship had entitled him to this hearing before them. This so enraged the chief priest, who probably took it as a hint that he was beyond his jurisdiction, that he has him slapped on the mouth. There were constant changes in the high priestly office in those days, which accounts for the ignorance of the apostle as to the personality of the high priest. Josephus tells us that Paul's prediction was fulfilled in the Jewish war, when this hypocritical president of the Sanhedrin was murdered by assassins.

Paul had the privileges of a Greek (21³⁷), a Hebrew (22²), and a Roman (22²⁷). The man that Christ found had been separated and trained and circumstanced by God.

⁶ The Pharisees had this in common with the faith of Christ, that they believed in a resurrection of the dead, which was, however, denied by the Sadducees. This question was the cause of perpetual strife between them. Paul, seeing how useless any further appeal to the council would be, determined to shift the contention to the subject of resurrection, in which he would have the Pharisees on his side and thus they would be diverted into strife amongst themselves. The result justified his plan, for the Pharisees immediately become violent partisans of his and some are even willing to allow that a spirit—which the Sadducees did not believe in—had spoken to him. They thought to use his testimony as an argument against their enemies the Sadducees. Thus it has ever been with the Jews. Their own internal strife was seldom laid aside even in face of the gravest crisis, and became the cause of many of their miseries.

him and orders the chief priests and the entire Sanhedrin to come together. And, leading Paul down, he stands him among them.

23 Now Paul, looking intently at the Sanhedrin, said, "Men! Brethren! I, in all good conscience, have used my citizenship for God until this day." Now the chief priest Ananias enjoins those standing beside him to beat his mouth. Then Paul said to him, "God is about to beat you, whitewashed wall! And you are sitting to judge me according to the law, and are ordering me to be beaten illegally!" Now those standing by say, "You are reviling God's chief priest!" And Paul averred, "I was not aware, brethren, that he is chief priest. For it is written that 'You shall not be declaring evil of your people's chief.'"

⁶ Now Paul, knowing that one party is Sadducees, yet the other Pharisees, cries in the Sanhedrin, "Men! Brethren! I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. Concerning the expectation and resurrection of the dead am I being judged." Now at his saying this, there came to be a commotion of the Pharisees and Sadducees, and the multitude is rent. For Sadducees, indeed, are saying there is no resurrection, nor messenger, nor spirit, yet Pharisees are avowing both.

¹¹ After such experiences we may well imagine that the future looked black to the persecuted saint. Now, if ever, he might yield to discouraging forebodings. At just such periods in the apostle's ministry he received divine help in the form of a vision to comfort and encourage him. In Corinth, when Jewish opposition threatened to wreck his testimony, the Lord spoke to him "Fear not!" And the reason was that God had a purpose to fulfill which demanded his continuance (18⁹). Again, in the midst of the storm on his journey to Rome, he is again assured, "Fear not, Paul" (27²⁴). So now, he receives the definite and cheering assurance that it is the purpose of God that he should fulfill his wish to see Rome. Besides, the Lord commends his testimony in Jerusalem, which was such a failure seemingly. This word of approval should deter us from criticizing any of the apostle's acts, for they undoubtedly were in line with God's purpose, and that, rather than our own provincial standard of right and wrong, is the true test of conduct. Results are not the test of a true ministry. Paul at Jerusalem was as great a failure as Noah, Elijah and Jeremiah. But for this commendation, Paul would seem to be out of the will of God.

cunning, the captain, being afraid lest Paul should be pulled to pieces by them, orders the troop to descend and snatch him out of their midst, and to lead him into the citadel.

¹¹ Now the Lord, the ensuing night, standing by him, said, "Have courage! For as you certify to that which concerns Me in Jerusalem, thus you must testify in Rome also."

¹² Now on the coming of day, the Jews making a conspiracy, anathematize themselves, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till ¹³ they may kill Paul. Now there were more than forty who make ¹⁴ this cabal, who, approaching the chief priests and the elders, say, "We anathematize ourselves with an anathema to taste nothing till ¹⁵ we may kill Paul. Now, then, you inform the captain together with the Sanhedrin, so that he may be leading him down to you, as though about to investigate more exactly that which concerns him, yet we, before he draws near, are ready to assassinate him."

¹⁶ Now the son of Paul's sister, hearing of the ambush, coming along and entering into the citadel, ¹⁷ reports it to Paul. Now Paul, calling one of the centurions to him, averred, "Lead this young man to the captain, for he has something ¹⁸ to report to him." He, indeed, then, taking him along, led him to the captain and is averring, "The prisoner, Paul, calling to me, asks me to

¹⁸ Roman citizens, while awaiting trial, were kept in custody in several ways, according to circumstances and the rank of the prisoner. Public custody consisted in being thrust into the common jails and confined in dungeons of the worst kind. They were kept in chains or kept in stocks as in the case of Paul and Silas at Philippi. Free custody was simply a guarantee on the part of some person of high rank that the person would appear for trial. Military custody consisted in putting the person in charge of a soldier who was responsible for the prisoner with his own life. It was usual to chain the prisoner's right hand to the soldier's left. Sometimes, however, the military custody was relaxed to the extent of merely putting the prisoner under the observation of a soldier, without chains. The soldiers, of course, relieved one another in military custody. There seems to be no doubt that Paul's imprisonment was a mild form of military custody, with liberty of access for his friends and relatives.

²³ The Roman provinces were divided into armed and unarmed, the former being under the authority of the emperor, the latter under the senate. Roughly speaking, the garrisoned provinces were on the frontiers, or where the country had not been fully subjugated. Tacitus and Josephus tell us that the fifth, tenth, and fifteenth legions were stationed in Cæsarea, Ptolemais, or Jerusalem a few years after this. They were largely recruited in the province where they were located. The Jews were, however, exempt from military duty, so that the soldiers in Judea were drawn from the Syrian and Greek population. A legion consisted of more than six thousand infantry, perhaps as many auxiliaries, besides a regiment of cavalry. Such was the force at the captain's command from which he drew the detachment which conveyed Paul to Cæsarea, the seat of the governor of the province.

²⁶ Claudius Lysias was a diplomat and did not stop at a simple lie to gain credit for himself for having protected a Roman citizen from the Jews.

¹⁹ Now the captain, taking hold of him by the hand, and retiring to privacy, inquired to ascertain "What is it that you have to report to me?" Now he said that "The Jews agreed to ask you so that you may lead Paul down tomorrow to the Sanhedrin, as though about to ascertain somewhat more exactly concerning him. You, then, should not be persuaded by them, for there are in ambush for him more than forty of their men, who anathematize themselves neither to eat nor to drink till they should be assassinating him. And now they are ready, anticipating the promise from you."

²² Then, indeed, the captain dismisses the youth, charging him "Talk out to no one that you disclose these things to me." And calling certain two centurions to him, he said, "Make ready two hundred soldiers, so that they may go as far as Cæsarea, and seventy cavalry, and two hundred slingers, from the third hour of the night [nine o'clock]. Besides, present beasts that, mounting Paul, they should be safely conveying him to Felix, the governor." He writes a letter after this model:

²⁶ "Claudius Lysias, to the most mighty governor Felix. Rejoice!
²⁷ This man, being apprehended by the Jews, and being about to be assassinated by them, standing by with a troop, I extricate, learning that he is a Roman. And

A. n. LIFT LEARNING that ROMAN

²⁸ As in the case of our Lord, witness after witness testified that Paul had done nothing deserving the bonds he endured or the death with which he was threatened. All who heard his case concurred in the opinion that the accusations against him were unfounded and false. Yet it was in this way that he fulfilled that part of his ministry foretold by Ananias which he hitherto had no opportunity of carrying out. He had witnessed to the Jewish people and to the nations. Now he was to testify before kings (⁹15) and thus close the kingdom testimony. His undoubted innocence, coupled with his Roman citizenship, greatly mitigated the terrors of a long imprisonment. The divine reason for this seems to be that the testimony to the Jews in the land was fulfilled, and Paul was, as a consequence, put beyond their power. All that they are allowed to do aids him in fulfilling his final kingdom testimony to the kings of the land, and provides for his journey to Rome, the greatest center of earthly power at the time, there solemnly to close up the kingdom proclamation altogether. Paul's imprisonment was a sign that the earthly kingdom was being withdrawn, otherwise its herald would be delivered from the earthly rulers. And this is emphasized by the fact that the nation who rejected it is the cause of his imprisonment.

³⁴ It was a nice point with the Roman authorities not to interfere with one another's jurisdiction. Thus Pilate, when our Lord was brought before him, learning that he was of Galilee, which was in Herod's jurisdiction, sent Him to Herod (Lu.23⁷). Felix does not seem to have heeded Paul's Cilician origin, probably because the complaints against him were not sustained, and the alleged crimes were committed mainly in Jerusalem.

intending to get to know the charge because of which they indicted him, I led him down to their Sanhedrin.

²⁹ Him I found being indicted concerning questions of their law, yet not having one indictment deserving of death or bonds. Now on its being divulged to me that there will be a plot against the man, forthwith I send him to you, charging the accusers also to speak against him before you. Farewell."

³¹ The soldiers, indeed, then, according to their directions, taking up Paul, led him through the night to Antipatris. Now, on the morrow, they return to the citadel, leaving the cavalry to come away with him, who, coming into Cæsarea, and giving up the letter to the governor, present Paul also to him.

³⁴ Now, reading it, and inquiring of what prefecture he is, and ascertaining that he is from Cilicia, "I shall give you a hearing," he averred, "whenever your accusers also should be coming along," ordering him to be guarded in Herod's pretorium.

³ The smooth eulogy of Felix was most undeserved. He was a freedman of Claudius and brother of that Pallas who was a favorite of the emperor. Having been a slave and now owing his elevation to influence at Rome, it is no wonder Tacitus tells us that "in the practice of all kinds of lust and cruelty he exercised the power of a king with the temper of a slave." He had Jonathan, one of the high priests, assassinated because he protested against some of his practises. It must be acknowledged, however, that he did rid parts of Judea from robbers, and especially, at about this time, drove out the Egyptian for whom Paul was mistaken by Claudius Lysias. His acts stirred the Jews against the Roman rule so that, when he retired from the province and went to Rome, he was tried for maladministration, but acquitted by Nero through the influence of his brother Pallas.

¹⁰ Paul quickly disposed of the two charges involving the Roman law. Since coming to Jerusalem only a few days before he had done nothing upon which they could base their charge of sedition. Neither had he profaned the temple. The other charge he admits, and makes it the occasion of his testimony. His dignified and truthful introduction is in marked contrast to that of his accuser.

welcoming it, most mighty Felix, with all thankfulness. Now, lest I may be hindering you still more, I am entreating you to hear us concisely in your leniency. For, finding this man a pestilence and stirrer of insurrections among all the Jews of the inhabited earth, besides a ring-leader of the sect of the Nazarenes, who tries to profane the sanctuary also, of whom we lay hold also, from whom you will, by examining him, be able to recognize all of these things concerning which we are accusing him." Now the Jews also agreed, alleging these things to be so.

¹⁰ And Paul, the governor nodding to him to speak, answered, "Being versed in the fact that for many years you have been a judge to this nation, I am defending that which concerns myself cheerfully, seeing that you can recognize that it is not more than twelve days since I came up to worship in Jerusalem. ¹² And they neither found me in the sanctuary arguing with any one or making a concourse of the throng, either in the synagogues, ¹³ or at the city, nor can they substantiate to you that concerning which they are now accusing me.

¹⁴ Yet this I am avowing to you, that, according to the way which they are terming a sect, thus am I offering divine service to the hereditary God, believing all which has been written, according to the law and in the prophets, having an expectation in God, which these themselves also are anticipating, that there is to be a future resurrection of the just as well as the unjust.

¹⁶ In this also I am exerting myself, to have a conscience which is no

²⁰ Having thus defended himself of all but the theological charge against him, Paul dismisses that by showing that the fundamental doctrinal difference was the same as that which kept the Pharisees and Sadducees in continual strife with one another. If it was criminal to differ they should be indicted and one party punished. When they had settled their differences it would be in order to try the sect of the Nazarenes.

²² The "justice" of Rome, like all human justice, was based on expedience, rather than equity. Felix would have set Paul free, only he knew it would displease the Jews. He invents an excuse for deferring matters, for he evidently had no thought of consulting captain Lysias, who, on his own confession, could make nothing out of the case. One point seems to have impressed Felix. Paul had come to Jerusalem with much money. Could he or his friends be persuaded to part with some of it? This seems to have controlled his course until he was relieved of his place. On this account he not only lets Paul have much freedom but desires that he shall be able to get into communication with his friends. This is why he gives him audience and hints that, given occasion, he would call for him. It is not that he would hear him when he had a "convenient season," but that he would make any season convenient if stumbling block, toward God and men, continually.

¹⁷ Now, after the lapse of more years, I came along doing alms for my nation, and making offerings, in which they found me, purified in the sanctuary, not with a throng, nor with tumult. Now there were some Jews from the [province of] Asia, who were obligated to be present before you and accuse me, if they may have anything against me. ²⁰ Or let these themselves say what injury they found when I stood in the Sanhedrin, or concerning this one voice with which I cry out, standing among them, that, 'Concerning the resurrection of the dead I am being judged today by you.' "

²² Now Felix makes them postpone, being acquainted more exactly with that which concerns the way, saying, "Whenever captain Lysias may come down, I shall investigate your affairs." He directs the centurion that he is to be kept, and is to be at ease, and to prevent no one of his own to be subservient to him.

given the proper encouragement. He was after a bribe. Yet the Lord used this mercenary motive to protect Paul from the Jews and to lead him before kings and to bring him to Rome.

⁷ From Paul's reply we may imagine that the charges against him were much the same as those which had been preferred before. But they produced no evidence and the governor seems to have been convinced of his innocence. He should have freed Paul, but such a course would have brought his administration into disrepute at its very inception. Consequently he proposes a course which the Jews would approve, but he leaves it open to Paul to reject or accept. He proposes to bring the case back to Jerusalem. But Paul is through with Jerusalem and the Jewish nation. God has made it plain that his next testimony is in Rome.

²⁵ Festus, then, stepping into the prefecture, after three days went up ² to Jerusalem from Cæsarea. And the chief priests and foremost of the Jews inform him against Paul, and ³ they entreated him, requesting a favor against him, so that he should be sending after him [to bring him] into Jerusalem, making an ambush ⁴ to assassinate him by the way. Festus, indeed, then, answered that Paul is to be kept in Cæsarea, yet he himself was about to be going ⁵ out quickly. "Those, then, among you," he is averring, "who are able, step down with me. If there is anything amiss in the man, let them accuse him."

⁶ Now, tarrying among them not more than eight or ten days, descending to Cæsarea, on the morrow, being seated on the dais, he orders Paul to be led forth. Now at ⁷ his coming along, the Jews who have descended from Jerusalem stand about him, bringing many and heavy charges against him which they had not the strength to ⁸ demonstrate, Paul defending that "Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the sanctuary, nor against Cæsar did I any sin."

⁹ Now Festus, wanting to curry favor with the Jews, answering Paul, said, "Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem to be judged there before me concerning these ¹⁰ things?" Yet Paul said, "I am standing at the dais of Cæsar,

¹³ The Roman law required that the person of a prisoner who had appealed to the emperor should be sent to Rome for trial at the earliest moment, but he must be accompanied by an official report of the case up to the time of the appeal. All of the acts and documents, the depositions of the witnesses on both sides, and a record of the judgment of the lower tribunal had to be sent to aid the emperor in his consideration of the case. Here is where Festus was in a quandary. The evidence, if such it could be called, was quite unintelligible to him. He did not wish to make his government ridiculous at its very commencement by sending a prisoner against whom he could not even formulate a definite indictment.

²² Herod Agrippa II, king of Chalcis, was familiar with the Jewish law and customs from his youth and had the power of appointing the high priest. Together with his sister, Bernice, he had come to pay a complimentary visit to the newly appointed procurator. Here was an opportunity for Festus to get the information he required concerning Paul's case, for the king was the most likely one to help him formulate an indictment, as he was an ex-

where I must be judged. I have injured the Jews not at all, as you also are very ideally recognizing. If, then, indeed, I am injuring, and I have committed anything deserving death, I am not refusing to die. Yet if there is nothing in that of which these are accusing me, no one can surrender me to them as a favor. I am appealing to Cæsar!"

¹² Then Festus, conferring with the council, answered, "You have appealed to Cæsar: to Cæsar you shall go!"

¹⁵ ing his conviction. To whom I answered that it is not the custom for Romans to surrender as a favor any man ere the accused may have the accusers face to face, besides getting a defensive position concerning the indictment.

¹⁷ At their coming together in this place, then, making no postponement, when next I am seated on the dais, I order the man to be led forth, concerning whom the accusers, when they stood up, brought not a single charge of the wickedness I suspected, but they had certain questions concerning their own religion against him, and concerning a certain Jesus, who has died, whom pert in all questions relating to the Jews, besides having spent much of his youth in Rome. To him, then, Festus details Paul's case.

²³ Cæsarea was the capital of Judea and thus provided Paul with an audience composed of the principal political personages of the province. To this was added Agrippa and his retinue, altogether such a company as few heralds of the kingdom could hope to find. Besides, Agrippa had doubtless heard concerning the Lord and His disciples, and especially of Paul, whom he was hoping to hear. All the notables of the city as well as the military leaders assembled with them on the morrow to hear Paul's last proclamation of Messiah in the land.

What thoughts must have surged in the breast of the apostle as he is led forth to face this display of worldly power! Could anything be more expressive of the fact that, through Israel's apostasy, the longed-for kingdom, which he had proclaimed in the land and among the dispersion, was now withdrawn? Hence his defense contains no allusion to the theocratic rule to be established by Messiah. To have spoken before kings and governors before this crisis and declared the destruction of human governments by the advent of Messiah would have been suicidal. Now that the kingdom recedes, he is less and less occupied with it.

²⁴ The well chosen words of Festus show that, though he could not understand the feeling of the Jews against Paul, he was convinced of his innocence. The examination which followed was in no sense a trial, for there were no accusations. The apostle is given liberty to speak concerning himself, yet he skillfully brings in his meeting with the Lord and his commission, so that all the elements of the evangel are put before his hearers. It is but one more example of God's inimitable ways of turning evil into good, of making human opposition work out His purpose. Paul, in his chain, and persecuted by his own people, was performing a ministry which could be accomplished in no other way.

²⁰ Paul alleged to be alive. Now I, being perplexed by the questioning about these things, said, If he may be intending to go to Jerusalem and to be judged there concerning these things? Now when Paul appeals to be kept for the emperor's investigation, I order him to be kept till I shall send him up to Cæsar."

²⁴ And Festus is averring, "King Agrippa, and all men present with us, you are beholding this man concerning whom the entire multitude of the Jews pled with me, in Jerusalem as well as in this place, imploring that he must by no means live longer. Now

²⁵ I grasped that he has committed nothing deserving of death, yet at his making this appeal to the emperor, I decide to send him—concerning whom I have nothing certain to write to the lord. Wherefore

²⁶ I led him before you, and especially before you, king Agrippa, so that, the examination occurring, I should have something to write.

²⁷ For it seems to me irrational, sending a prisoner, not also to signify the charges against him."

²⁶ Now Agrippa averred to Paul, "It is permitted to you to speak

⁴⁻⁵ The morality of Saul of Tarsus was as unimpeachable as that of Paul the apostle. He had a good conscience (23¹) and his life was blameless (Phil. 3⁶). But he was the chief of sinners (1Ti.1¹⁵) because his self-righteousness and religion made him a hater of Christ. Mere religion degrades men.

⁶ Paul's plight has often been repeated in the subsequent history of Christendom. His offense consists in believing the scriptures—which his opponents claimed to believe. Strange to say, the most bitter persecution, to those who believe God, comes, not from the irreligious world, but from those who claim that they, too, believe the scriptures, but who do not seem to have received the spirit of love which pervades them.

concerning yourself." Then Paul, stretching out his hand, made his ² defense. "Concerning all of which I am being indicted by Jews, king Agrippa, I have deemed myself happy to be about to make my ³ defense before you today, especially as you are an expert, versed in all the customs as well as the questions of the Jews. Wherefore I am beseeching you to hear me patiently.

⁴ My life, indeed, then, from youth, which came to be from the beginning among my nation, and in Jerusalem, all the Jews are acquainted with, knowing me from the very ⁵ first, should they be willing to testify, that according to the strictest sect of this ritual of ours, I live a ⁶ Pharisee. And now, being judged, I stand in expectation of the promise made by God to our fathers, to which our twelve tribes, earnestly offering divine service night and day, are expecting to attain. Concerning which expectation I am being indicted by Jews, O king! ⁸ What! Is it being judged unbelievable by you, if God is rousing the dead?

⁹ I, indeed, then, suppose myself bound to commit much contrary to the name of Jesus the Nazarene, ¹⁰ which I do also in Jerusalem. And many of the saints besides, I lock up in jails, obtaining authority from the chief priests. Besides I deposit a ballot to despatch them. ¹¹ And at all the synagogues, often punishing them, I compelled them to blaspheme. Besides, being exceedingly maddened against them, I persecuted them as far as the outside

 CHASED TILL AND INTO THE OUT

¹² This is the fullest account of Saul's call, and the only one which gives his commission to the nations. He forbore to mention this in speaking to his enraged kinsmen (22⁷) as he here omits all reference to Ananias. He uses only such parts as suit the place and purpose.

¹³ Only those acquainted with the glare of the Syrian sun at midday, can grasp the full significance of this. Nature's brightest light is eclipsed by the glorious grace into which Saul is ushered by his call.

¹⁴ All fell to the earth at first, but later stood up (9⁷) as Saul himself was told to do. The fact that the Lord spoke in Hebrew is shown in the other accounts by the form of the name Saul. It is spelled differently and is not declined, as is the Greek in other places.

¹⁵ In the Orient a sharp, pointed rod is used in place of a whip to urge animals to their task. To kick the sharp goad hurts no one but themselves. This is a graphic picture of Saul's service up to this time. The Lord was using him to carry out His purpose, but hitherto Saul did not acknowledge his Master. He had been goaded into persecuting the saints. Henceforth he was to render willing, intelligent service. Henceforth he acknowledges Christ as his Lord.

¹⁶ The twelve were to witness to the Lord's life from John's baptism to His ascension (1²¹). Paul was to be a witness of Him after His ascension and glorification. It was to be progressive. Further visions were to be given to supplement this first commission.

¹⁶ Saul neither sought the Lord nor His service, neither had he a sense of need. He was arrested and saved by despotic grace.

¹² cities also. Among which, going to Damascus with the authority and ¹³ permission of the chief priests, at midday, on the road, I perceived, O king, a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining about me and those going together
¹⁴ with me. And, all of us falling down to the earth, I hear a voice saying to me in the Hebrew vernacular, 'Saul! Saul! Why are you persecuting Me? It is hard for you to be kicking against the goads!'
¹⁵ Now I say, 'Who art Thou, Lord?' Now the Lord said, 'I am Jesus,
¹⁶ Whom you are persecuting. But rise and stand on your feet, for I was seen by you for this, to select you for a deputy and a witness of what you perceived as well as that ¹⁷ in which I will be seen by you, excommunicating you from the people and from the nations, to whom I am
¹⁸ commissioning you, to open their eyes to turn them about from darkness to light and from the authority of Satan to God, for them to get a pardon of sins and an allotment among those who have been hallowed by faith that is in Me.'

¹⁹ Whence, king Agrippa, I did not become stubborn as to the heav-
²⁰ enly apparition, but first to those in Damascus, besides in Jerusalem also, as well as the entire province of Judea, and to the nations, I reported that they are to be repenting and turning back to God, engaging in acts worthy of repentance.

²¹ On this account the Jews, apprehending me in the sanctuary, at-

²² It is evident that the apostle did disclose secrets which cannot be found in Moses and the prophets. One of these was the secret of the resurrection, made known to the Corinthians (1Co.15¹⁶). Another was the secret of the evangel, which occupies much of the epistle to the Romans (Ro.16²⁵). We must either take the statement that he had said nothing but what Moses and the prophets said of future occurrences in a general way of all his past course, or take it strictly of his conduct since his apprehension by the Jews. If the latter is the case, it becomes clear why, at this time of comparative leisure, no epistles proceed from his pen and there is a gap of several years between the Preparatory and the Perfection epistles. For the time being he seems to have confined himself to the closing drama of the kingdom. This aspect of his ministry is the only one, of course, which finds any place in the present account. Until the kingdom was fully set aside, he could disclose no more secrets.

²⁸ Agrippa was not "almost persuaded." His remark is sarcastic to a degree. Christian was not the honorable term it is today, but a name of reproach and scorn. He suggested that Paul is too hasty in supposing that, as he believed the prophets, he would believe the evangel. But Paul ignores his sarcasm and turns it into a sober wish. He could wish that all that noble company had the true treasures of nobility and wealth which were his in Christ! Thus ends Paul's testimony in Judea. This part of his course is finished.

witnessing to small as well as to great, saying nothing outside of what the prophets as well as Moses ²³ speak of future occurrences—if it be the suffering Christ—if He, the first of a resurrection from among the dead, is about to be announcing light to the people as well as to the nations."

²⁴ Now, as he is making this defense, Festus is averring with a loud voice, "You are mad, Paul! Much scripture is deranging you to

²⁵ madness!" Yet Paul is averring, "I am not mad, most mighty Festus, but I am declaiming declarations of truth and sanity. For the king is an adept concerning these things, to whom I am speaking boldly also, for I am persuaded that none of these things is eluding him, for this has not been committed in a corner. King Agrippa, are you believing the prophets? I am aware that you are believing!"

²⁸ Yet Agrippa to Paul: "Briefly are you persuading me, to make a Christian!" Yet Paul, "May I ever wish to God, even briefly and greatly, not only you, but also all who are hearing me today, to become a kind such as I am also, outside of these bonds!"

³⁰ And the king stood up, and the governor, besides Bernice and those ³¹ sitting with them. And, retiring, they talked with one another, saying that, "This man is not committing anything deserving death or ³² bonds." Now Agrippa averred to Festus, "This man could have been released if he had not appealed to Cæsar."

¹ This Julius has been identified with Julius Priscus who afterwards became prefect of the Prætorian guards when Vitellius was emperor.

² Aristarchus is probably that same Aristarchus who was seized by the Ephesian mob when they could not find Paul (19²⁹) who returned to Asia with him on his last voyage to Jerusalem (20⁴). He was his fellow laborer in Rome (Philem.²⁴) and seems to have been imprisoned with him (Col.4¹⁰).

⁶ The Alexandrian ship was somewhat out of her course in this harbor unless it had business there also, but the prevailing west wind would account for this. Egyptian vessels were amongst the largest of that day, and as this one was engaged in the trans-Mediterranean traffic it must have been of considerable size.

²⁷ Now, as it was decided that we are to sail away to Italy, they gave over Paul, as well as some other prisoners, to a centurion named Julius, of the Imperial ² squadron. Now, stepping on board a ship of Adramyttium, about to sail for places in the [province of] Asia, we set out, with us being Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica. Now, on another [day], we ³ were led down to Sidon. And Julius, using Paul humanely, permits him to go to friends for casual care.

⁴ And setting out thence, we sail under the lee of Cyprus, because the ⁵ winds are contrary. And, sailing through the ocean off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we come down to Myra. ⁶ of Lycia. And the centurion, finding there an Alexandrian ship sailing to Italy, has us step on board of ⁷ it. Now, for a considerable number of days, sailing tardily and hardly coming off Cnidus, the wind not leaving us toward it, we sail under ⁸ the lee of Crete, off Salmone, and hardly skirting it, we came to a certain place called Ideal Harbors, near which was the city of Lasea.

⁹ Now, a considerable time elapsing, and sailing being already hazardous, because the Fast also has already passed by, Paul exhorted ¹⁰ them, saying, "Men! I behold that sailing is about to be with damage and much forfeit not only of the lading, and of the ship, but of our ¹¹ souls also." Yet the centurion was persuaded by the navigator and

¹² "Looking" must be taken from the sailor's standpoint, which is usually the opposite of a landsman's. Phoenix faced east rather than west.

¹³ As the south wind came up they probably lost all confidence in the pessimistic Jew who had warned them of danger ahead.

¹⁴ This typhoon or hurricane was so violent that the vessel could not keep its course, but was carried off in another direction. Had it not been so strong they could have luffed to the wind and used it to carry them to Phoenix.

¹⁶ It was customary, in ancient times, to drag a small boat in the water behind the ship. So long as the vessel was being driven by the gale this was safe, but when its speed was temporarily reduced there was great danger of the boat pounding the vessel to pieces or being itself broken up. Hence they held it off, and then hoisted it on board.

¹⁷ "Lowering the gear" in order to keep from running into the Syrtis, on the north African coast, must have consisted in lying-to, or setting a small canvas to bring the vessel up as near the wind as possible. This would stop her progress and change her course.

the man who chartered the ship, rather than by what is being said by Paul.

¹³ Now, the south wind blowing gently, supposing their purpose to hold, weighing anchor, they skirted close along Crete.

¹⁴ Now, not much after, a wind, a hurricane, called a "northeaster," ¹⁵ struck her. Now as the ship is gripped by it, and being unable to luff to the wind, giving her up, we

¹⁶ were carried along. Now, running under a certain islet called Cauda, we hardly have strength to hold off

¹⁷ the skiff, hoisting which, they used stays, undergirding the ship. And fearing lest they should be falling into the Syrtis quicksand, lowering the gear, thus they were carried

¹⁸ along. Yet, at our being vehemently tossed by the tempest, on the next

¹⁹ [day] they jettisoned, and on the third with their own hands they

²¹ And there being much abstinence, then Paul, standing in the midst of them, said, "You were obligated indeed. O men, yielding to me, not to have set out from Crete and to gain this damage and for-

²³ That Paul, a mere prisoner, should have presumed to give advice at all shows how quickly he obtained recognition. Now that all wished that he had been heeded, he easily assumes the leadership. They deserve to be lost, and the vessel and its cargo are lost, through rejecting Paul's words. Yet, notwithstanding their disobedience, he is graciously granted the souls of all who are sailing with him. We cannot believe that this shipwreck is merely an interesting adventure in Paul's career without any bearing on the subject of the book of Acts. We have seen how this account gives us only what concerns the kingdom testimony, leaving out important incidents in his life which have no bearing on it. This shipwreck is not mentioned in his later epistles. Hence it must have a close connection with the fortunes of the kingdom. We take it as a parable of Paul's closing kingdom ministry and the fortunes of those who are associated with him in it. They are in the ship and sustained by it just as the nations, under Paul's early ministries are in the kingdom and find their sustenance at Israel's board. But the kingdom is fast going to pieces, Israel as a nation is nearing its end, and now the question is, what is to become of the believers among the nations to whom Paul had preached? Will they be swallowed up in Israel's downfall? The answer is pictured in the salvation of all who sail with Paul and the loss of the ship with its cargo. The nations lose everything connected with the kingdom but are safely carried through the catastrophe. They lose all earthly hopes, but gain the higher heavenly place accorded them in Paul's epistles from Rome.

²⁷ Those on board ship have the sensation that land is nearing them when the ship approaches a shore and sailors speak of it in this way. Experienced sailors know when they are near land, even if it is invisible, by the distant roar of the breakers and other indications. The danger now lay in striking something in the dark so that they should not be able to reach the shore and save themselves.

²² feit. And now I am exhorting you to be cheerful, for not one soul from among you will be cast away, more ²³ than the ship. For a messenger of God, Whose I am, to Whom I am offering divine service also, stood
²⁴ beside me this night, saying, 'Fear not, Paul! You must stand before Cæsar. And lo! God has graciously granted to you all those sailing ²⁵ with you.' Wherefore, be cheerful, men, for I am believing God that it will be even in the manner which ²⁶ has been spoken to me. Yet we must fall on a certain island."

²⁷ Now as the fourteenth night came, at our cruising about in the Adria, in the middle of the night the mariners suspected some ²⁸ country to be nearing them. And, sounding, they found twenty fathoms. Now, after a bit of an interval, sounding again, they found fifteen ²⁹ fathoms. Besides, fearing lest at some time we should be falling on rough places, pitching four anchors out of the stern, they wished for the coming of day.

³⁰ Now at the mariners seeking to flee out of the ship, and lowering the skiff into the sea under pretense of being about to stretch anchors out of the prow, Paul said
³¹ to the centurion and the soldiers, "Except these should be remaining in the ship, you cannot be saved."
³² Then the soldiers strike off the ropes of the skiff and they leave her to fall off.

³⁴ It is practically impossible to prepare meals in such a storm as they had encountered and the constant toil and apprehension would take away all desire for food. But now that land was near they doubtless remembered Paul's predictions and were more than willing to listen to him as he cheered and encouraged them. We hear no more of the navigator and the owner of the cargo, and even the centurion obeys Paul, who acknowledges his thankfulness to God before all and gives them an example of faith by taking his fill of food.

³⁸ The lighter they could make the ship the better chance they had of beaching her near the shore. To do this it was necessary also to control her course, so they hoisted a sail to the wind and unlashed the rudders, which had probably been securely fastened, as steering was impossible. Unlike modern vessels, the ships of that day had two rudders, which they would now use to steer the ship for the beach.

⁴¹ It would seem that some current carried them into a channel, or the place "where two seas met," and hindered them from reaching the beach they were headed for. They ran aground in the channel itself.

⁴² As a Roman guard was ordinarily responsible for his prisoners with his own life, we can better understand the inhuman suggestion of the centurion's soldiers. Once again Paul becomes the saviour of the prisoners even as he had been used but a few hours before to prevent the sailors' desertion and thus saved the lives of the very soldiers who now wished to despatch him. The centurion was too just to kill the one to whom he and the rest owed their very lives.

you are constantly abstinent, taking nothing. Wherefore I am entreating you to partake of nourishment, for this belongs to this salvation of yours, for not a hair from the head of one of you shall be destroyed." Now, saying this, and taking bread, he thanks God before all, and, breaking it, begins to eat. ³⁶ Now, becoming cheerful, they also ³⁷ all took nourishment. Now we were, in all, two hundred seventy-six ³⁸ souls in the ship. Now, being sated with nourishment, they buoyed the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea.

¹ Just as Matthew, who gives us the rejection of the kingdom as proclaimed by our Lord Himself, closes with a millennial foreview when He told them, in anticipation of that day, "all authority in heaven and on earth is given unto Me," so here, where we have the rejection of the kingdom as proclaimed by His apostles, we are regaled with a millennial scene to remind us that the kingdom is merely delayed, and will come in its proper time. First the serpent is destroyed, corresponding to the binding of Satan at the beginning of the thousand years, then blessing flows out to the nations. Paul, as a herald of that day, is able to pick up serpents without any harm coming to him, but lays hands on those who are ailing, and they have ideal health (Mk. 16:18).

⁷ By healing the father of the chief man in the island, his fame and message would be immediately spread. Thus the very place of the shipwreck was chosen to suit his purpose.

planks, yet those on anything from the ship, and thus all came safely through on the land.

- 28 And, being safely through, then we recognized that the island is
- ² called Melita. And the barbarians tender us not the casual philanthropy, for, kindling a fire, they took us all in, because of the imminent shower and because of the cold.
- ³ Now at Paul's twisting together a certain quantity of kindling and placing it on the fire, a viper, coming out of the warmth, fastens on
- ⁴ his hand. Now, as the barbarians perceived the wild beast hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "Undoubtedly this man is a murderer, whom, being safely through the sea, Justice lets not
- ⁵ live." Indeed, then, twitching the wild beast into the fire, he suffered
- ⁶ no evil, yet they were apprehensive that he was about to become inflamed or suddenly fall down dead. Yet, after much apprehension, and beholding nothing coming to be amiss with him, retracting, they said he is a god.
- ⁷ Now in the region about that place were freeholds belonging to the foremost man of the island, named Publius, who, receiving us amiably,
- ⁸ lodges us three days. Now it occurred that the father of Publius was lying down, pressed with a fever and dysentery. Paul, entering to him and praying, placing his hands on him, heals him.

¹⁵ As Paul had written an epistle to Rome there must have been a considerable company of believers there. They showed something of their regard for him by coming out to welcome him on the way. One company came as far as Appii Forum. Another delegation met him at Three Taverns, about ten miles nearer the city. No wonder Paul thanked God and took courage. He was now near the goal that he had set before him several years before, and though a prisoner of Rome, he had almost all the freedom he could wish. Indeed, from this time he preferred to call himself a "prisoner of the Lord", as he recognized that it was the Lord's will.

¹⁷ It is eminently fitting that the final and decisive rejection of the kingdom should follow its proclamation in Rome, the seat of the world's greatest empire at the time. It had been proclaimed in Jerusalem and rejected by the rulers of the Jews in the land, now it has been fully heralded among the Jews of the dispersion, and they, too, have rejected it wherever Paul has gone. The most signal sign of their apostasy is his imprisonment. It reveals the height of their obstinacy. Rome would free him. But his own nation loads with chains the one who would free them from the Roman yoke.

⁹ Now on this occurring, the rest also of those in the island, having infirmities, approached and were cured, who honor us with many honors also, and, at our setting out, they placed on board what was for our needs.

¹¹ Now after three months, we set out in an Alexandrian ship with the ensign Dioscuri, which has wintered in the island. And landing at Syracuse, we stay three days, ¹³ whence, coming about, we arrive at Rhegium, and the south wind coming on after one day, we came the second [day] to Puteoli, where, ¹⁴ finding brethren, we were entreated to stay with them seven days. And thus we come to Rome.

¹⁵ And thence, the brethren, hearing about us, come to meet us as far as Appii Forum and Three Taverns, perceiving whom, Paul, thanking God, took courage. Now when we came into Rome, Paul was permitted to remain by himself together with a soldier who guarded him.

¹⁷ Now it occurred, three days after, that he calls together the foremost of the Jews. Now on their coming together he said to them, "I, men. brethren, doing nothing contrary to the people or to the hereditary customs, was given up a prisoner out of Jerusalem, into the hands of the Romans, who, examining me, intended to release me, because not one cause of death existed in me. ¹⁹ Now at the contradiction of the Jews, I am compelled to appeal to Cæsar, not as though having any-

²³ Paul must have had many precious meetings with his believing brethren. He must have made known to them those transcendent truths which he teaches in his Perfection Epistles. If the Acts were giving an account of his career or of his evangel, it stops short at the most important point. As a "history of the commencement of the Christian church" it is the most disappointing of all books, for the truths which distinguish the present economy, found in Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians, were not made known until its close and are never referred to, much less taught. Those events in Paul's career which are of the utmost importance for present truth, from his sojourn in Arabia to the dispatch of Tychicus with the Perfection Epistles, are quite overlooked in this account. Paul's sojourn in Rome marks the beginning of that vast work of the spirit of God which has continued down to the present time. Yet all we are told here is the disappointing meeting with the Jews! Instead of closing with a song of victory and sending the church on its triumphant way, he quotes Isaiah's doleful prophecy concerning the apostate nation, showing the failure of the kingdom proclamation and the reason why it should no longer be heralded. What stronger evidence is needed to show that the Acts is not concerned with the so-called "church"? It is no mere history of the apostolic times. It is concerned only with those events which chronicle the fortunes of the earthly kingdom. It deals with a transitional period when the church was still dependent on the favored nation and had a subordinate place in the reign of Messiah over the earth, as promised by the Hebrew prophets.

²⁶ This marvelous prophecy has had a threefold fulfillment in Israel: when they rejected Jehovah (Isa. 69-70), when they rejected the Lord (Mt. 13^{14,15}), and, in this present instance, when they reject the testimony of the spirit, through His apostles. Israel, in part, has become calloused, until the fulness of the nations may be entering (Ro. 11²⁵).

²⁰ thing to accuse my nation of. For this cause, then, I call for you, to see and speak [to you]. For on account of the expectation of Israel this chain is lying about me."

²¹ Now they say to him, "Neither receive we letters concerning you from Judea, nor does any of the brethren coming along report or speak anything wicked concerning you. Now we count it worthwhile to hear from you what your disposition is. For indeed, concerning this sect, it is known to us that it is being contradicted everywhere."

²³ Now, setting a day for him, the majority came to him in the lodging, to whom he expounded, certifying to the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus, from the law of Moses as well as the prophets, from morning till dusk. And some, indeed, were persuaded by what was said, yet some ²⁴ disbelieved. Now there being disagreements one with another, they were dismissed, Paul making one declaration, that, "Ideally the holy spirit speaks through Isaiah the ²⁵ prophet, to your fathers, saying,

'Go to this people and say,
"In hearing, you will be hearing
And may by no means understand,
And observing, you should be observing
And may by no means be perceiving,"

²⁷ For the heart of this people is made stout,
And they hear heavily with their ears,
And they shut their eyes,
Lest at some time they may be perceiving with their eyes,
And should be hearing with their ears,
And may understand with their heart,
And should be turning about,
And I shall be healing them.'

²⁰ Verse 29 is not in the three manuscripts on which this version is based.

³¹ This proclamation of the kingdom would include its present abeyance and future manifestation. "That which concerns our Lord Jesus Christ" is purposely vague, and is the only hint in the whole book of the greatest of all Paul's ministries, those mysteries or secrets which could not be revealed until the kingdom had been finally rejected. Paul's prison epistles were written during this period.

²⁸ Let it be known to you, then, that to the nations was this salvation of God dispatched, and they will hear."

³⁰ Now he remains two whole years in his own hired house, and he welcomed all those going in to him, proclaiming the kingdom of God, and teaching that which concerns the Lord Jesus Christ, with all boldness, unforbidden.

PAUL'S EPISTLES

PAUL'S EPISTLES are for the present. All the rest of Scripture finds its interpretation and application either before or after the present secret administration. Paul alone gives the truth for the ecclesia which is the body of Christ. This is found nowhere outside of his writings. Israel and the nations occupy all other parts of divine revelation. What is true of them in other eras and eons must not be mixed with the present truth or it will lead to confusion and error. All Scripture is profitable, as a revelation of God's ways, but it must not be applied outside its proper place.

The main subject of the Greek Scriptures is the kingdom of Israel. It is refused in the four accounts of our Lord's ministry, it is again rejected in the treatise called Acts, it is reaffirmed in Hebrews, James, Peter, John, and Jude, and it is realized in the Unveiling. In Paul's epistles it is in abeyance.

It is God's purpose to bless the nations through Israel. But when Israel, the channel of blessing, fails, this becomes impossible. In Paul's epistles the nations are blessed during Israel's defection. The sphere of blessing is changed from earth to heaven. Repentance and pardon are replaced by justification and reconciliation. Grace replaces mercy.

The scope of Paul's epistles, both in time and in space, far transcends all the rest of revelation. He is not confined to the earth, but includes the whole universe in God's grand climax of reconciliation (Col.1²⁰). He is not confined to the eons, or ages, but reveals a purpose formed before they began, and not concluded until after their consummation. His range reaches from a time long anterior to the first of Genesis to a period long past the final vision of the Unveiling.

Paul's writings naturally fall into two divisions, his epistles to the ecclesias, and his personal letters to Timothy, Titus and Philemon.

Paul wrote nine epistles to seven ecclesias. They arrange themselves into three groups. The epistles in each group are very closely related, the first epistle in each, Romans, Ephesians and 1 Thessalonians, setting forth the truth didactically, while the other epistles of the same group are explanatory and corrective. The best commentaries on Romans are Corinthians and Galatians; on Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians; and Second Thessalonians supplements the first epistle.

The Thessalonian group we have called the Promise Epistles, because they deal with the expectation of our Lord's return. The Romans group we have named the Preparatory Epistles because they deal with the transitional era which prepared the saints for the final revelation found in the Ephesian group, which we therefore style the Perfection Epistles.

Each group is characterized by one of the abiding trinity of graces, faith, expectation and love (1Co.13¹³). The following outline will serve to show the groups and the relation each epistle sustains to the others in its group.

SINNER, would you know how to be just before God? Read Romans!

Saint, would you be at perfect peace with God? Ponder Romans!

The writer of these words became acquainted with God through a study of this epistle. It is emphatically the portion of God's word which is adapted to show all men God's present grace, preparatory to the higher unfoldings of Ephesians.

All revelation previous to Paul's severance to the ministries which are expounded in Romans, as given through the Lord and His apostles, was limited to the Circumcision, concerned with the kingdom promised by the prophets to Israel, and falls far short of the grace revealed through Paul in this epistle. They promised a probationary pardon on repentance, but here we have a complete vindication or justification or acquittal founded entirely on faith.

As is shown by the literary framework, Romans is dominated by three great doctrines: Justification, Conciliation and Sovereignty. God's own righteousness, which He shares with the sinner, His own peace, which He imparts to the believer, and His own indomitable will, which forms the immovable basis of all blessing, are the bulk and burden of this epistle. As justification is commonly degraded to a mere pardon, or forgiveness, and conciliation is unknown, and God's sovereignty is denied, there is need to urge God's beloved saints to give the great truths of this epistle the place in their hearts and lives which they deserve.

Every doctrine in this epistle is discussed twice: first from the viewpoint of the individual, and again from the larger, national standpoint. The latter half of the third and the fourth chapters show clearly and exhaustively how anyone may be vindicated in the sight of God. The latter half of the ninth and the tenth chapter shows how this favor finds its way to the nations while Israel fails to effect it through the law. So, too, God's present attitude of peace toward all mankind and toward those who are justified is fully set forth in the fifth, sixth, seventh and part of the eighth chapters. The bearing of this on Israel and the nations is fully unfolded in the eleventh chapter. That God is for His people is shown in the end of the eighth chapter. His sovereign will with regard to Israel and the nations is shown in the succeeding chapter.

It is exceedingly important to recognize the national scope of the ninth, tenth and eleventh chapters. Much confusion has resulted from applying parts of these chapters to individuals rather than to nations. Nothing in these chapters which is said of Israel nationally, in apostasy, was true of Paul himself and the few faithful ones in the nation. These are not hardened, though the nation, as such, is. Israel, nationally, has not attained to righteousness, yet many in the nation cannot be included in this sweeping assertion. The nation, as such, not the faithful remnant, has stumbled. It is Israel as God's national witness in the earth which is figured by the olive tree. Some of the branches (the unbelieving majority) are broken off. The nations as a whole (the wild olive tree) are grafted into the cultivated olive tree. Now that the nations, as such, are apostatizing, they are about to be cut out. Individual believers in the nations will not be cut out, for their faith would keep them in.

Gospel, hushed up, Conciliation 16²⁵-16²⁷

³ The evangel is not concerning the sinner but concerning God's Son. Like all men, He was a union of two elements, flesh and spirit. As to His flesh He was a descendant of David, but as to His spirit, He was from God. This is powerfully evidenced by the fact that His Father has given Him life in Himself (Jn.5²⁶) so that He never entered the presence of death without vanquishing it. The fact that He raised Jairus' daughter (Mk.5^{35,42}), the widow of Nain's son (Lu. 7¹¹⁻¹⁶), and Lazarus (Jn.11⁴⁴) proves conclusively that He is the Son of God.

⁵ Paul had obtained this unparalleled grace from the risen Son of God when he met Him on the road to Damascus and, later, was given a distinct commission, in accord with this grace, to evangelize all the nations, to whom the twelve apostles were not sent (Gal. 2⁹). James and Peter wrote to their Jewish brethren among the nations, but none of the Circumcision, not even Christ Himself, was sent to any nation but Israel. Paul alone, of those whose writings we have, was the minister of Christ Jesus to the nations (15¹⁶).

⁹ Cut off, in large measure, from the ceremonial worship of his nation at Jerusalem, Paul carries it on wherever he is, in spirit, by the proclamation of this evangel, for the exaltation of Christ's sacrifice in the evangel is a far sweeter fragrance to God than the literal offerings of the law.

PAUL, a slave of Christ Jesus, a called apostle, having been severed for God's evangel (which He promises before through His prophets in the holy scriptures), concerning His Son (Who comes of the seed of David according to the flesh, Who is being designated Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection of the dead), Jesus Christ, our Lord, through Whom we obtained grace and apostleship for faith obedience among all the nations, for His name's sake—among whom are you also, the called of Jesus Christ, to all who are in Rome, beloved by God, called saints:

Grace to you and peace from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

⁸ FIRST, indeed, I am thanking my God through Jesus Christ concerning you all, that your faith is being announced in the whole world.

¹⁶ The evangel is God's power for salvation—nothing else can take its place. There is no other power in the universe which can turn men to God. All the modern substitutes and expedients, sanitary or social, impassioned oratory or emotional excitement, cannot save or make men right before God. The evangel alone, without any additions or apologies, is able to justify anyone who believes.

¹⁷ This evangel imparts God's own righteousness to those who accept it. This is unspeakably more than the pardon or forgiveness proclaimed at Pentecost by the twelve apostles.

¹⁷ When the law failed utterly, and Israel was far gone in apostasy, the prophet fell back upon God's unconditional promises, and made the memorable statement "The just by faith shall live" (Hab.24). Now that Israel is again apostate, this rule once more supersedes the law.

THE CONDUCT OF MANKIND

¹⁸ The apostle now takes up the conduct of those of mankind who had no written revelation. Nature alone ought to teach them much about the Deity. His attributes are in some degree revealed in His works in creation.

²¹ Such a knowledge of God called for worship and thanksgiving. Instead, they degraded His glory by making images of Him like themselves or even the lower orders of creation. Idols may be nothing in themselves, but, as they are supposed to represent the Deity, it is of the utmost importance that they do not suggest false ideas about Him. Hence He abhors all images and would not allow His people to harbor them. Christ is the One Image that truly represents Him.

²⁴ There is no surer road to degradation than to degrade the object of our worship.

you also, according as among the rest of the nations.

¹⁴ To Greeks as well as to barbarians, to the wise as well as to the foolish, am I a debtor. Thus this eagerness of mine to preach the evangel to you also, who are in Rome. For I am not ashamed of the evangel, for it is God's power for salvation to everyone who is believing—to the Jew first, and to the Greek as well. For in it God's righteousness is being revealed out of faith for faith, according as it is written: "Now the just by faith shall be living."

¹⁸ For God's indignation is being revealed from heaven on all the irreverence and injustice of men who are retaining the truth in injustice, because that which is known of God is apparent among them, for God makes it manifest to them. For His invisible attributes are described from the creation of the world, being apprehended by His achievements, as well as His imperceptible power and divinity, for them to be defenseless. Because, knowing God, they do not glorify or thank Him as God, but were made vain in their reasonings, and their unintelligent heart is darkened. Alleging themselves to be wise, they are made stupid, and they change the glory of the incorruptible God into the likeness of an image of a corruptible human being and flying creatures, and quadrupeds and reptiles.

²⁴ Wherefore God gives them up, in the lusts of their hearts, to the uncleanness of dishonoring their bodies among themselves, who alter the truth of God into the lie, and

²⁵ There may be an allusion here to the prevalent custom of worshipping the Roman emperor. It has often occurred that, when men have attained to great eminence, they have demanded and received divine honors. Alexander the Great claimed such homage.

²⁶ The prevailing immorality in ancient times was largely attributable to the character of the gods they worshipped. The younger race of gods who held sway on Olympus were usurpers who had murdered the older gods, and were guilty of innumerable deeds of violence and full of sensuality and injustice. If their gods behaved so, it was not difficult for men to emulate their example and endorse such actions in others as well.

The failure of Christendom is largely due to the fact that God is unknown, and His place filled by a fierce, vindictive caricature, who is restrained from his thirst for vengeance by the intervention of an effeminate mediator who takes the place of the Christ of God.

¹ The argument here is inexorable. The man who judges others must be prepared to submit to the same judgment himself. There is no surer way of condemning himself than by sitting in judgment on those who commit the sins of which he is guilty.

In the day of judgment there will be little need to call witnesses against mankind, for their own reasonings among themselves and the standards of justice, however low, which they apply to their neighbors, are sufficient to condemn all.

The constant effort to uplift humanity ignores the true cause of human depravity. These things are the result of refusing to recognize God. One of the most alarming signs of modern times is the increasing desire to eliminate all reference to God in every sphere of life. Education must be strictly Godless, business has no place for the Deity, society shuns all mention of Him, and even many of the so-called churches have little more than a formal recognition of an unknown God. We must be prepared for more and more of the crime waves which periodically surge over the earth, as well as the complete break-down of the moral fibre of so-called civilization.

are venerated, and offer divine service to the creature beside the Creator, Who is blessed for the eons! Amen!

²⁶ Therefore God gives them over to dishonorable passions, for their females, as well, alter the natural use into that which is beside nature. Likewise even the males as well, deserting the natural use of the female, were inflamed in their craving for one another, males with males effecting indecency, and getting back in themselves the retribution of their deception which must be. And according as they do not test God, to have Him in recognition, God gives them over to a disqualified mind, to do that which is not befitting, ²⁸ having been filled with all injustice, wickedness, evil, greed, distended with envy, murder, strife, guile, ²⁹ depravity, whisperers, vilifiers, detesters of God, outragers, proud, ostentatious, inventors of evil, stubborn to parents, unintelligent, perfidious, without natural affection, ³⁰ implacable, unmerciful: who, recognizing God's just statute, that those committing such things are deserving of death, not only are doing them, but are endorsing also them that are committing them.

2 Wherefore you are defenseless, O man!—everyone who is judging—for in what you are judging another you are condemning yourself, for you who are judging are committing the same. Now we are aware that God's judgment is in accord with the truth against those who are committing such things.

³ Yet are you counting on this, O man, who are judging those committing such things, and are doing

³ Is it not most unreasonable for the sinner to suppose that God's judgment of him will be less searching than his condemnation of the sins of his fellow men? The fact that His judgment is delayed and that He continues to give the blessings of creation with a bountiful hand should lead to reconsideration and amendment.

⁶ It is well to consider the basis on which the judgment of mankind will proceed. It is not all one-sided. God will not only sentence the evil, but reward the good—if such there be. That there are none to claim His rewards does not alter the great fact which is here laid down as the just basis of God's dealings with mankind. He will be paying each one according to his acts. No one can say this is not just and right. He is just as ready to reward the good as to punish the bad. All that is needed is someone to live up to the standard, and He will give such a one life for the eons—the same life which those who believe get through Christ as a gratuitous gift. To say that it is idle to speak thus, since no one can possibly claim such an award, betrays a misapprehension of the underlying purpose of judgment. This is not, as commonly supposed, the condemnation of wrongdoers, but rather the payment of what is due, good as well as bad, that so the justice of God's character may be revealed. Judgment, as a revelation of God, would be most misleading if it made no provision for reward as well as punishment. If no one is able to claim the reward it will not change the essential fact that such a righteous foundation underlies God's throne.

the same, that you will be escaping the judgment of God? Or are you despising the riches of His kindness and forbearance and patience, being ignorant that God's kindness is leading you to repentance? Yet, in accord with your hardness and unrepentant heart you are hoarding for yourself indignation in the day of indignation and revelation of the just judgment of God, Who will be paying each one in accord with his acts: to those, indeed, who by endurance in good acts are seeking glory and honor and incorruption, conian life, yet to those of faction, and stubborn, indeed, as to the truth, yet persuaded to injustice, indignation and fury, affliction and distress, on every human soul which is effecting evil—of the Jew first and of the Greek as well—yet glory and honor and peace to everyone who is working at that which is good—to the Jew first, and to the Greek as well.

¹¹ For there is no partiality with God, for as many as sinned without law shall be lost also without law, and as many as sinned in law will be judged through law. For the listeners to law are not just with God, but the doers of law will be justified.

¹⁴ For whenever they of the nations, having no law, may be doing by nature what the law demands, these, having no law, are a law to themselves, who are displaying the action of the law written in their hearts, their conscience joining its witness, and their reasonings between one another accusing or defending them, in the day when God will be judging the hidden things of humanity, accord-

¹⁶ Much of the judgment which obtains among men is unjust and oppressive because of their inability to uncover the real truth: But in the divine judgment the hidden things will be revealed and a just sentence will be based on all the facts. Doubtless the motives will be laid bare as well as the acts themselves and thus the quality of each action will receive due recognition.

¹⁷ Now the apostle is about to devote particular attention to the Circumcision. Hitherto he has appealed to nature, or instinct, and to conscience. All these combine to condemn those who had no access to the revealed will of God. The Jew, who had the law, considered himself in an entirely different class, so the apostle devotes a considerable section to prove to him that the possession of the law did not make him immune from judgment, but rather invited a severer sentence.

²³ The responsibility of being the repository of the form of knowledge and truth was very lightly felt by the Jew. He did not realize the gravity of his position. His conduct was now no longer a matter of private concern; it involved the name and honor of God. If he kept the law it would mark him as a just and holy man, and God and His law would receive praise. As it was, however, his actions did not comport with the light in which he boasted, and as a result God's name was brought into dishonor among the nations.

²⁸ In the judgment the outward visible tokens will count for nothing. Only that which is vital, in spirit, which will meet the scrutiny of God, will receive recognition. Men may applaud many an action which God detests, and may condemn that which God approves. Human standards and outward appearances will weigh little in the judgment.

ing to my evangel, through Jesus Christ.

¹⁷ Lo! you are being denominated a Jew, and are resting on law, and ¹⁸ are boasting in God, and know the will, and are testing what things are of consequence, being instructed ¹⁹ out of the law. Besides, you have confidence in yourself to be a guide ²⁰ of the blind, a light of those in darkness, a discipliner of the imprudent, a teacher of minors, having the form of knowledge and truth in the law.

²¹ You, then, who are teaching another, are you not teaching yourself? who are proclaiming not to be ²² stealing, are you stealing? who are saying not to be committing adultery, are you committing adultery? who are abominating idols, are you ²³ despoiling the sanctuary? who are boasting in a law, through the transgression of the law are you ²⁴ dishonoring God? For because of you the name of God is being blasphemed among the nations, according as it is written.

²⁵ For circumcision, indeed, is of benefit if you should be putting law into practise, yet if you should be a transgressor of law, your circumcision has become uncircumcision.

²⁶ If the Uncircumcision, then, should be maintaining the just requirements of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision? And the Uncircumcision ²⁷ who, by instinct, are discharging the law's demands, shall be judging you, who through letter and circumcision, are a transgressor of law.

²⁸ For not what is apparent is the Jew, nor yet what is apparent in ²⁹ flesh circumcision; but that which is hidden is the Jew, and circumcision is of heart, in spirit, not in

² The greatest treasure in all the world was once the exclusive possession of the Jews. To them were confided the oracles of God. Today we, who in that day had no revelation from God, are entrusted with the same treasure, yet with jewels infinitely more precious than were ever in their care. This epistle is one of them. Have we anything like a true sense of our responsibility? Have we explored and enjoyed these treasures in any measure as they deserve? May God grant that the present attempt to open this treasure house to all His saints from the highest to the humblest, may lead to a greater appreciation of the infinite value of this sacred deposit.

⁵ These passages are all quoted in support of the charge that the Jew, equally with those of other nations, is subject to the judgment of God.

⁶⁻¹³ The whole quotation is taken from the Septuagint of Ps. 142:3 except that it begins "The Lord out of heaven stoops over the sons of mankind, to perceive if they are understanding or seeking out God".

letter, whose applause is not of men, but of God.

³ What, then, of the Jew's prerogative, or what is the benefit of circumcision? Much in every manner. For first, indeed, that to them were entrusted the oracles of God. For what if some disbelieve? Shall not their unbelief nullify the faith of God? May it not come to that! Now let God be true, yet every man a liar, even as it is written:

"That so Thou shouldst be justified in Thy sayings,
And shalt be conquering in Thy judgment."

⁵ Now if our injustice is recommending God's righteousness, what shall we assert? Not that God Who is bringing on indignation is unjust (I am saying it as a man)?
⁶ May it not come to that! Else how shall God be judging the world?
⁷ Yet if the truth of God superabounds in my lie, for His glory, why am I also still being judged as a sinner, and not (according as we are calumniated and according as some are averring that we are saying) that "We should be doing evil that good may be coming" (whose judgment is just)?
⁹ What then? Are we privileged? Undoubtedly not, for we previously charge Jews as well as Greeks to be all under sin, according as it is written:

"Not one is just—not even one.

¹¹ Not one is understanding, not one is seeking out God,

¹² All avoid Him:

At the same time they were useless.

Not one is doing kindness:

There is not even one!

¹³ Their throat is an open sepulcher; They defraud with their tongues: The venom of asps is under their lips;

The Conduct of Mankind

19 The passages from the Psalms might be turned by the Jews to apply to the nations. But the apostle rightly insists that what is written in the law is binding upon those under the law. Having previously silenced the non-Jew and now effectually included the Jew in the same condition, Paul arrives at the grand conclusion of this section of the epistle, that the whole world is subject to the just verdict of God.

JUSTIFICATION

INDIVIDUAL

21 The previous section found no one just but God Himself. No one has been able to attain God's standard by doing good or keeping the law. How then may we become just before God? Only by becoming partakers of His righteousness.

22 The channel through which we may obtain this righteousness is the faith of Jesus Christ. He alone of all mankind, not only did good and kept the law, but He believed God even when He smote Him for our sins. It is out of His faith for our faith (117).

24 They hated Him without a cause—gratuitously. Such is the meaning of this precious word. Justification on any other ground than the free and unforced favor of God is impossible, for none deserve it. But now Christ Jesus has effected a deliverance from all judgment, which is absolutely free to all who believe.

25 The important point in this passage, however, is not our justification, but God's, for it is His righteousness which we receive. In Israel He had made provision for atonement, or a shelter from sins. This was not strictly just, for the penalty of these sins was still due. The answer to this, as well as the answer to His present work is found in the blood of Christ. That settles for sins, past, present and future. That vindicates God's justice and makes it possible for Him to be the Justifier of all who are of the faith of Jesus.

27 Such a deliverance, entirely on the ground of grace, bars all boasting, unless it be in Christ and in His God, Who has become our Justifier.

- 14 Whose mouth is crammed with imprecation and bitterness.
- 15 Sharp are their feet to shed blood.
- 16 Bruises and wretchedness are in their paths
- 17 And the path of peace they know not.
- 18 There is no fear of God in front of their eyes."

19 Now we are aware that, as much as the law is saying, it is speaking to those under the law, that every mouth may be barred, and the entire world may be becoming subject to the just verdict of God, because, by works of law, no flesh shall be justified before Him, for through law is the recognition of sin.

21 Yet now, apart from law, a righteousness of God has been manifested (being testified to by the law and the prophets), yet a righteousness of God, through Jesus Christ's faith, for all and on all who are believing, for there is no distinction, for all sinned and are wanting of the glory of God.

24 Being justified gratuitously by His grace, through the deliverance which is in Christ Jesus (Whom God purposed for a Propitiatory, through faith in His blood, for a display of His righteousness because of the passing over of the penalty of sins which occurred before in the forbearance of God).

26 toward the display of His righteousness in the current era, for Him to be just and a Justifier of the one who is of the faith of Jesus.

27 Where, then, is boasting? It is debarred! Through what law? Of works? No! but through faith's law. For we are reckoning mankind to be justified by faith apart from works of law.

29 Or is He God of the Jews only? Is He not of the nations also? Yes,

Justification—Individual

³⁰ The Circumcised who have believed before and have received a pardon, receive this greater boon because of the faith they have. The Uncircumcision use faith as the channel in receiving it.

As this gift of justification was first given to Abraham and he is its great example, the apostle takes up his case at length to show its absolutely gracious character.

⁴ It is important to remember that, while God's future judgment is based on acts, His present gifts are absolutely spoiled the moment we connect them with any suspicion of merit or work. Justification is as free, or freer, than sunlight. In judgment He will pay everyone who is entitled to wages. He will not be in debt to anyone. But when He gives He gives, and refuses to allow His gifts to be paid for, even if anyone could pay the price. Justification is for him who is not working, but who is believing. This distinguishes the gospel from all religion, divine or pagan.

⁸ The fact that Abraham was justified while still uncircumcised opens the door of justification to the Uncircumcision. They, too, may claim him as their father, for they have the reality of which circumcision was but the outward sign.

³⁰ of the nations also, if so be that God is One, Who will be justifying the Circumcision out of faith and the Uncircumcision through the faith. Are we, then, abrogating law through faith? May it not come to that! Nay, we are sustaining law.

⁴ What, then, shall we assert Abraham, our forefather according to flesh, to have found? For if Abraham was justified by his acts, he has something to boast in, but not toward God. For what is the scripture saying? "Now Abraham believes God and it is reckoned to him for righteousness."

⁴ Now to him who is working, wages are not reckoned as a favor, but as a debt. Yet to him who is not working, yet is believing on Him Who is justifying the irreverent, his faith is reckoned for righteousness. Even as David also is expressing the happiness of the man to whom God is reckoning righteousness apart from acts:

⁷ "Happy they whose lawlessnesses were pardoned!

And whose sins were covered over!

⁸ Happy the man to whom the Lord by no means Should be reckoning sin!"

⁹ This happiness, then, is it for the Circumcision, or for the Uncircumcision also? For we are saying, "To Abraham faith is reckoned for righteousness". How, then, is it reckoned? Being in circumcision or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision. And he obtained the sign of circumcision, a seal of the faith righteousness which was in uncircumcision, for him to be the father of all those who are believing through uncircumcision, for righteousness to be reckoned to them, and the father of the Circumcision, not

¹³ As further developed in Galatians, the law was not given till hundreds of years after Abraham was counted righteous. The promises he received in connection with it were unconditional, dependent only on God's faithfulness. They were given without any reference to the law and do not depend on any legal observance for fulfillment. When the law did come it did not confirm these promises. It was brought in to show how impotent their own efforts were when they sought to attain to Abraham's divinely given righteousness by the keeping of the law. The law hindered rather than helped. Instead of making them just, it drew down God's indignation for their failure to live up to it.

¹⁶ Faith has not the least merit. We do not deem it meritorious to believe an honest man. It is no effort. It is not work. It is the simplest, easiest, freest channel God could choose to convey His righteousness to us. Let us exult in His explanation that it is of faith that it may accord with grace. In Ephesians we have the further truth that such a salvation—through faith—calls for further favor in the future (Eph. 2⁸).

¹⁷ Abraham believed God when all the evidence was against Him. He was, for all practical purposes, as good as dead himself, and Sarah, his wife, was worse, if that could be. He faced the facts. He considered his own condition as well as that of his wife, yet never doubted that God could and would do as He had said. He believed in a God Who was superior to death, and thus made it possible for God to vindicate him. Apart from death we can see how God could pardn his sins, or cover them by means of atonement, but it is only as having died to sin, and being alive in resurrection, that we can realize that Abraham is justified.

²³ Thus, we, too, are justified, by the simple process of believing God. We do not believe concerning our seed, as Abraham did, but concerning his Seed, our Lord Jesus Christ, Who actually died for our sins and was roused because the sin He bore was all gone, and we were vindicated.

to those of the Circumcision only, but to those also who are observing the fundamentals of faith in the footprints of our father Abraham, in uncircumcision.

¹³ For not through law was the promise to Abraham, or to his Seed, for him to be enjoyer of the allotment of the world, but through ¹⁴ faith righteousness. For if those of law are enjoyers of the allotment, faith has been made void and the ¹⁵ promise has been abrogated, for the law is producing indignation. Now where no law is, neither is there transgression.

¹⁶ Therefore it is of faith that it may accord with grace, for the promise to be confirmed to the entire seed, not to those of the law only, but to those also of the faith of Abraham, who is father of ¹⁷ us all, according as it is written that "I have appointed you to be a father of many nations"—facing which, he believes the God Who is vivifying the dead and calling
¹⁸ what is not as if it were—who, being beyond expectation, believes with expectation, for him to become the father of many nations, according to the assertion, "Thus will ¹⁹ your seed be." And not being infirm in faith, he considers his own body already dead (existing somewhere about a hundred years) and the deadening of Sarah's matrix, ²⁰ yet God's promise was not doubted in unbelief, but he was invigorated ²¹ in faith, giving glory to God, being fully assured also that what He has promised He is able to do also.
²² Wherefore, also, it is accounted to him for righteousness.

²³ Now it was not written because of him only that it is reckoned to

CONCILIATION

¹ Justification is the ground of peace. Sin no longer bars us from the presence of God. Yet peace is a favor infinitely beyond justification. God's affections are not satisfied with clearing us from all guilt. He craves our love and our adoration. Righteousness alone does not give us a passport into His presence, but this further grace of reconciliation urges us into full and affectionate fellowship with Him. And we are aware that He will not rest in having us clothed in forensic righteousness only, but will make us all that He desires, to satisfy His own love.

⁹ The blood of Christ is a memorial of the abiding efficacy of His death. It fends us from all future indignation. If Christ died for us as sinners, surely we have no need to fear aught now that we are justified!

¹⁰ We now take up the new subject of conciliation. We leave the atmosphere of the court for the closer ties of the family circle. Now it is not Christ dying for sinners, but God's Son dying for His enemies. The effect is not justification, but conciliation, peace. Furthermore, we are not only unafraid of future wrath, because of the abiding value of His death, as figured by the blood, but we have the living Son of God Himself as the surety of our salvation. We shall be saved by His life.

¹¹ Christ did not obtain "atonement". That was a mere temporary covering for sin made by the blood of bulls and goats, and utterly failed to take away sin. Let us not degrade Christ's work by calling it an "atonement". But let us glory in conciliation, the ripened fruit of God's great effort to win the fealty and affection of His creatures. Few things indicate more clearly the apostasy of Christendom than the constant reference to the work of Christ as "the atonement".

²⁴ him, but because of us also to whom it is about to be reckoned, who are believing on Him Who rouses Jesus our Lord from among the dead, ²⁵ Who was given up because of our offenses, and was roused because of our justification.

⁵ Being, then, justified by faith, we may be having peace toward God, through our Lord, Jesus
² Christ, through Whom also we have had the access, in faith, into this grace in which we stand, and we may be glorying in expectation of the glory of God.

³ Yet not only so, but we may be glorying also in afflictions, having perceived that affliction is producing endurance, and endurance testedness, and testedness expectation.
⁴ Now expectation is not mortifying, seeing that God's love has been poured out in our hearts, through the holy spirit which is being given to us.

⁶ For Christ, while we are still infirm, still in accord with the era, died for the sake of the irreverent.
⁷ For hardly for the sake of the just will anyone be dying: for, for the sake of the good, perhaps, some may ⁸ even be daring to die, yet God is recommending this love of His to us, seeing that, when we are still sinners, Christ died for our sakes.
⁹ Much rather, then, being now justified in His blood, we shall be saved from indignation through Him.

¹⁰ For if, being enemies, we were conciliated to God through the death of His Son, much rather, being reconciled, we shall be saved in ¹¹ His life. Yet not only so, but we are glorying also in God, through our Lord, Jesus Christ, through Whom we now obtained the conciliation.

Conciliation—Individual

¹² Death entered through sin at first, but now sin is transmitted through death. All sin because they are mortal. Christ brings life, which disposes of both death and sin.

¹⁴ The type here is the period of time up to the giving of the law, from Adam to Moses. During this period there was no transgression, for there was no law. So it is today. The law was not given to the nations, hence they do not transgress it. Nevertheless death reigns, even as it did before the law was given. The type, however, is in the nature of a shadow, whose dark outlines do not clearly depict the present grace. The reign of Sin corresponds to the reign of grace, Adam's single offense to Christ's one just act on Calvary, bringing life where Adam brought death. But the type fails utterly in a number of particulars.

¹⁶ One sin brought condemnation to all mankind. Grace recovers, not from one sin only, but from many offenses.

¹⁷ Adam enthroned death, but Christ gives believers not only a full vindication from all guilt, but life and the right to reign with Him.

¹² Therefore, even as through one man sin entered into the world, and through sin death, and thus death came through into all mankind, on which all sinned—for until law sin was in the world, yet sin is not being taken into account when there is no law, but death reigns from Adam unto Moses, over those also who do not sin after the likeness of Adam's transgression, which is a type of that which is about to be.

¹⁸ Consequently, then, as it was through one offense for all mankind for condemnation, thus also it is through one just award for all mankind for life's justifying. For even as through the disobedience of the one man the many were constituted sinners, thus also through the obedience of the One the many shall be constituted just.

²⁰ Yet law crept in that the offense should be increasing. Yet where sin

²⁰ Here we have the true character and function of the law. It crept in. It was not a normal necessity, nor did it make any vital change. Its effect was to alter the character of sin so that it became an offense. Just as Adam's sin was against God's expressed command, and thus was a personal affront to God as well as a misdeed bringing harm on his own head, so those under the law, by sinning against light, greatly increased the sinfulness of sin. Obedience to the law would have banished sin and death. Disobedience enhanced their power. But grace not only exceeds the effects of sin, but superexceeds the offenses of those under law, so that now, Grace has dethroned Sin.

² This and the following chapter are a digression, discussing the effects of the reign of grace, first without, and then with, law.

² Deliverance from sin comes, not through victory over it, but through death to it. It is useless to struggle against sin, or to fight with its practices. Rather we should acknowledge its force and reckon ourselves as dead through it and to it, yet alive in resurrection, where sin has no place.

⁸ As we did not die, but Christ was crucified for us, we may reckon His death as ours, fully finishing our connection with sin, and His resurrection as ours also, for in Him we enjoy an unclouded life in the presence of God.

²¹ increases, grace superexceeds, that, even as Sin reigns in death, thus also Grace should be reigning through righteousness, for eonian life, through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

⁶ What, then, shall we assert? That we may be persisting in sin that grace should be increasing?

² May it not come to that! We, who died to sin, how shall we still ³ be living in it? Or are you ignorant that as many as are baptized into Christ Jesus, are baptized into His
⁴ death? Then we were entombed together with Him through baptism into death, that, even as Christ was roused from among the dead through the glory of the Father, thus also we should be walking in ⁵ newness of life. For if we have become planted together in the likeness of His death, nevertheless we shall be of the resurrection also,
⁶ knowing this, that our old humanity was crucified together with him, that sin's body may become inert, for us to be by no means still slaving for Sin, for the one dying has been justified from sin.

⁸ Now if we died together with Christ, we believe that we shall live
⁹ together with Him also, having perceived that Christ, being roused from among the dead, is no longer dying; Death is mastering Him
¹⁰ no longer, for He Who died, died to Sin once, yet He Who is living
¹¹ is living to God. Thus you also be reckoning yourselves to be dead, indeed, to Sin, yet living to God, in Christ Jesus our Lord.

¹² Let not Sin, then, be reigning in your mortal body, for you to be

Conciliation—Individual

¹² A realization of our death to sin and life in Christ will give us power to cope with sin, always remembering that sin cannot bring us into disfavor because of the superexceeding grace.

¹⁵ The law said, "Cursed is everyone who is not continuing in all the things written in the scroll of the law, to do them". Grace says, Blessed are you, whatever you may do, for Christ has justified you and not one dare bring anything against you. The fallacious logic of the old humanity immediately imagines that this gives license and encouragement to sin. But its actual effect is quite the opposite. Grace, not law, has power to deter us from sinning. No one who has an actual experience of grace, reasons that, because there is immunity, therefore he will sin. The offender against law flies in the face of law. Its austere threats do not hinder him. But the offender against grace feels the heinousness of his offense and flies from it.

¹⁶ All of us are slaves, however much we may vaunt our liberty. We are controlled either by Sin or by Obedience. It is a cause of thankfulness that we all have had service under Sin, for only so could we realize the nature of such slavery. But we have not been taken from Sin's service to become idle. We have been transferred to the service of Righteousness.

²³ Sin, like slave holders, does not pay wages, but only supplies rations. This consists, at present, in an attitude toward God which is the equivalent of death, for all Sin's slaves avoid God's presence. And their deeds will also result in death. Neither do we, as slaves, look for wages. God not only gives, but gives graciously, or gratuitously, the very reward which is only for those whose endurance in good acts merits it—eonian life, or life for the eons (27).

¹³ obeying its lusts. Neither be presenting your members to Sin, as implements of injustice, but present yourselves to God as if alive from among the dead, and your members as implements of righteousness for God. For Sin shall not be mastering you, for you are not under law, but under grace.

¹⁵ What then? Should we be sinning, since we are not under law but under grace?

¹⁶ May it not come to that! Are you not aware that to whom you are presenting yourselves as slaves for obedience, his slaves you are whom you are obeying, whether of Sin for death, or Obedience for righteousness? Now grateful are we to God that you were Sin's slaves, yet you obey from the heart the type of teaching to which you were given over. Now, being freed from Sin, you are enslaved to Righteousness.

¹⁹ I am speaking as a man because of the infirmity of your flesh: for even as you present your members as slaves to Uncleaness and to Lawlessness for lawlessness, thus now present your members as slaves to Righteousness for holiness.

²⁰ For when you were slaves of Sin you were free as to Righteousness.

²¹ Then what fruit had you then?—of which you are now ashamed, for, indeed, the consummation of those ²² things is death. Yet now, being freed from Sin, yet enslaved to God, you have your fruit for holiness, and the consummation, eonian life. For the ration of Sin is death, but God's gracious gift is eonian life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Conciliation—Individual

1 The apostle now addresses particularly those who have been under law, that is, who were of the Circumcision. His appeal however, is not to the law itself, but to the nature of all law, that it has jurisdiction only over those who are alive.

2 The law of wedlock is given as a well known example. A woman's subjection to her husband lasts only for his life. During his life she may have no relations with other men. After his death the ties which bind her to a new husband are just as sacred as those which united her to the former one.

4 A wife and her husband are one flesh (Gen.24), hence the wife dies with the husband, but the woman remains. Those united to Christ under law died with Him to the law. Union with Christ in resurrection is a new relationship beyond the sphere of the law.

6 Exemption from the law applies to those who were under the law. As the law is not unjust, like Sin, but just and holy, they continue to serve, no longer in letter, but in spirit.

7 The mistaken deduction from the foregoing is that the law itself is sin. Else why cease to serve its letter? Or else how does it make sin more sinful and transform it into an offense? Sin is not known in its true character except through law. Instead of sin being ignorant inability, it becomes the opposite. It is active hostility. The law which seemed to be given to regulate, only roused it. Sin is dormant or dead until law comes and gives it life. The law which should have given the sinner life, gave life to sin. It should have been the death blow of sin, but it became the death of the sinner. All this shows how futile it is to try to reform or regulate or conquer sin. It not only acts in darkness and ignorance but transforms the very light into an agent of death. The law offered life to those under it, on terms which, apart from sin, were all that could be desired. But sin not only disabled them so that they could not take advantage of its provisions, but involved them in its condemnation by stirring their passions against its just decrees.

7 Or are you ignorant, brethren (for I am speaking to those who know law), that the law is mastering a man for as much time as he is living?

2 For a woman in wedlock is bound to a living man by law. Yet if the man should be dying, she is exempted from the law of the man.

3 Consequently, then, if the man is living she will be styled an adulteress if she should be becoming another man's, yet if the man should be dying, she is free from the law, being no adulteress, on becoming another man's.

4 So that, my brethren, you also were caused to die to the law through the body of Christ, for you to become Another's, Who is roused from among the dead, that we should be fruitful to God. For when we were in the flesh, the passions of sins, which were through the law, operated in our members to be fruitful to Death. Yet now we were exempted from the law, when dying in that in which we were retained, so that it is for us to be slaving in newness of spirit and not in oldness of letter.

7 What, then, shall we assert? That the law is sin?

May it not come to that! But sin I knew not except through law. For besides, I had not been aware of coveting except the law said, "You shall not be coveting". Now Sin, getting an incentive through the precept, produces in me all manner of coveting. For apart from law Sin is dead. Now I lived, apart from law, once, yet at the coming of the precept Sin revives. Now I died, and it was found that, to me, the precept for life, this is for death. For Sin, getting an incentive through the precept, de-

¹³ From the supposition that the law, being holy and just and good, involved him in death, it seems that what is good may become the cause of death. But such is not the case. It was not the law which produced death, but sin, misusing law. The real law and apparent functions of the law are very different. And, in order to effect its real object, it was necessary that it should not appear on the surface. The apparent object of the law was to give life to all who consistently and constantly kept it. As it never gave life to anyone, for no one was able to fulfil its demands, it appears as if the law has failed of its primary object. And, further, as it revived the passions of sin which were dormant, it seems to have defeated its own aim. But the real object of the law was to reveal the inordinate sinfulness of sin, and in this it was most successful.

¹⁵ This is the experience of one who does not realize his death to sin and the law, but who is endeavoring to keep the letter of the law. He finds that the law of sin in his members is far more potent than the law of God which appeals to his mind. He wants to do good, but cannot. He does things which he hates to do, hence charges his misery to the indwelling sin which has taken possession of his body. He is a wretched captive. This will be the experience of all who make an earnest effort to please God by obeying the letter of that law which was broken even before it reached the people (Ex.32:19).

²⁴ What is the answer to this wretched man's cry? It is grace. There is no other deliverance possible. This brings us back to where this digression began, the reign of grace at the end of the fifth chapter. It is only as we recognize the imperial sway of grace, putting us beyond all possibility of condemnation, whether we sin or not, that we have real liberty and power sufficient to effect not only what was demanded by the law, but those higher duties which far transcend the righteous requirements of Sinai. Then we will not be wretched and self-occupied, but happy and exulting in God, in Whose favor we are basking, and Whose delight we are, in Christ.

ludes me, and through it, kills me.

¹² So that the law, indeed, is holy, and the precept holy and just and good.

¹³ Became good, then, death to me?

May it not come to that! But Sin, that it may appear Sin, is producing death to me through good, that Sin, through the precept, should

¹⁴ become an inordinate sinner. For we are aware that the law is spiritual, yet I am fleshly, having been

¹⁵ disposed of by Sin. For I know not what I am effecting, for not what I am willing, this I am putting into practise, but what I am

¹⁶ hating, this I am doing. Now if what I am not willing, this I am doing, I am conceding that the

¹⁷ law is ideal. Yet now it is no longer I who am effecting it, but Sin making ¹⁸ its home in me. For I am aware that good is not making its home in me (that is, in my flesh), for to be willing is lying beside me, yet to be effecting the ideal is not.

¹⁹ For it is not the good that I am willing that I am doing, but the evil that I am not willing, this I am

²⁰ putting into practise. Now if what I am not willing, this I am doing, it is no longer I who am effecting it, but Sin which is making its home in me.

²¹ Consequently, I am finding the law that, at my willing to be doing the ideal, evil is lying beside me.

²² For I am gratified with the law of ²³ God as to the inner man, yet I am observing a different law in my members, warring with the law of my mind, and leading me into captivity to the law of Sin which is in my members.

²⁴ A wretched man am I! What will rescue me out of this body of death? Grace! Now I am thanking

Conciliation—Individual

1 Condemnation is utterly out of the question for all in Christ Jesus. This is infinitely more than the atonement or shelter provided for sin by the sacrifices offered under the law. It is far beyond the pardon, or forgiveness, contained in the proclamation of the kingdom. The atonement needed to be renewed year by year, the pardon might be recalled, but the justification we have in Christ Jesus is nothing less than God's righteousness, which is absolutely inviolable. It was not secured by any act of ours and cannot be marred by aught that we can do. Sin only enhances the graciousness of it, but cannot sully or impair it.

2 The spirit's law of life, in Christ Jesus, is the opposite of the law of Sinai. That said: Obey, and live; disobey, and die. The spirit's law imparts life for the eons as God's gracious gift, apart from obedience or disobedience.

4 We do not fulfill the law in its letter. Grace leads us to act far beyond its spirit. Its just requirements, love to God and man, are fulfilled only by those who walk in spirit.

5 The flesh is not able to be subject to God's law. It is useless to try to train it to please Him. We are not justified in flesh. It is only in spirit that we can count ourselves as beyond all condemnation. The flesh is after the things of flesh and leads to death. But the spirit is concerned with spiritual things and makes for life and peace.

9 All who believe Him are indwelt by God's spirit. Christ, by His spirit, is in us. Consequently, our spirit is life, yet our body, being absolutely unresponsive to their presence, is death. Thus, while we have but one body, it is the home of three spirits—God's spirit, Christ's spirit, and our spirit. As a result the spiritual force at our disposal is far greater than the flesh. Our own spirit is the seat of our new life, because of righteousness. Christ's spirit gives us communion with Him. God's spirit gives us power over our dead bodies, just as, in the case of Christ, He roused His body from among the dead. He is able to vivify these death-doomed bodies, so that they respond to the dictates of the spirit.

God, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Consequently, then, I myself, indeed, with the mind am slaving for God's law, yet with the flesh Sin's law.

8 Nothing, consequently, is condemnation now to them that are in Christ Jesus. They are not walking according to flesh, but according to spirit, for the spirit's law of life in Christ Jesus frees you from the law of Sin and Death. For at the law's impotence (in which it was infirm through the flesh), God, when sending His own Son in the likeness of sin's flesh and concerning sin, condemns sin in the flesh, that the just requirement of the law may be fulfilled in us, who are not walking in accord with flesh, but in accord with spirit.

5 For those who are in accord with flesh are disposed to that which is of the flesh, yet those who are in accord with spirit to that which is of the spirit. For the disposition of the flesh is death, yet the disposition of the spirit is life and peace, because the disposition of the flesh is enmity to God, for it is not subject to the law of God, for neither is it able. Now those who are in the flesh are not able to please God. 9 Yet you are not in flesh, but in spirit, if so be that God's spirit is making its home in you. Now if anyone has not Christ's spirit, this one is not His. Now if Christ is in you, the body, indeed, is dead because of sin, yet the spirit is life because of righteousness. Now if the spirit of Him Who rouses Jesus from among the dead is making its home in you, He Who rouses Christ Jesus from among the dead will also

¹¹ Mortal bodies are such as are dying, in a physical sense. Their vivification cannot refer to the future resurrection, but to the present power of God's spirit to use an utterly unresponsive, hostile instrument, as our bodies, and constrain its members to do the bidding of our spirits.

¹² We owe the flesh nothing, and it promises us nothing but death. But we do owe it to the spirit to put the practises of the body to death and thus enjoy the life which the spirit makes ours in Christ Jesus.

¹⁴ To be a son of God implies more than belonging to Him. As the Son of God manifests Him so we are sons only inasmuch as we display His character in our words and ways.

¹⁵ The law led to slavery, not sonship. Fear is not for us. Justification and reconciliation lead us unafraid into the Father's presence. Just as the little Hebrew child would lisp its "Abba" in the familiar Aramaic household speech, or, as our children say trustingly, "Papa", so we are without constraint in the august presence of the Divine Majesty.

¹⁶ God's spirit says we are His children. Our spirits claim Him as our Father. If this be the case, then, even as our children have the enjoyment of all that is ours, so all that is God's is for us. Indeed, even the great glories in store for Christ are ours if we, too, tread the path of suffering which led Him to them.

¹⁸ The creation has been involved in the treadmill of corruption through the sin of man. We are associated with the creation on the physical side. When our bodies are delivered from their present slavery and death at our Lord's descent from heaven, He will transfigure them to conform them to His body glorious (Phil. 3²¹). Later, when we are unveiled, the creation will be set at liberty from the bondage which now entralls it. How it ought to comfort us to know that the patient, suffering creatures, who had no hand in their own degradation, will yet find a real release from the pain and sorrow from which they have no escape now! Its physical aspect waits until our Lord's return.

vivify your mortal bodies because of His spirit making its home in you. Consequently, then, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to be living in accord with flesh, for if you are living in accord with flesh, you are about to be dying. Yet if in spirit you are putting the practises of the body to death, you will be living. For as many as are being led by God's spirit, these are sons of God.

¹⁵ For you did not get slavery's spirit again to fear, but you got the spirit of sonship, in which we are crying, "Abba, Father!" The same spirit is joining its witness with our spirit that we are children of God. Yet if children, enjoyers also of an allotment, enjoyers, indeed, of God's allotment, and joint enjoyers of Christ's allotment, if so be that we are suffering together, that we should be glorified together also.

¹⁸ For I am reckoning that the sufferings of this current era do not deserve the glory about to be revealed for us. For the premonition of the creation is awaiting the unveiling of the sons of God. For the creation was subjected to vanity (not voluntarily, but because of Him Who is subjecting it) in expectation that the creation itself also shall be freed from the slavery of corruption into the glorious freedom of the children of God. For we are aware that the entire creation is groaning and travailing together until now. Yet not only so, but we ourselves also, who have the firstfruit of the spirit, we ourselves also, are groaning in ourselves, awaiting the sonship, the deliverance of our body. For we were saved in expectation. Now expectation, being observed, is not ex-

²⁶ Here is the true "form" for acceptable prayer in this economy. It is not definite persistence, like the importunate widow. It is acknowledged weakness and ignorance casting itself on God, urged on by His spirit, knowing only the need and the One Who can meet it in His own way.

²⁸ Though we know not what to pray for, this is not at all necessary, for we do know that God is making everything co-operate for our welfare. No matter how things appear, they can work no ill to us who love God, for He first loved us, and has included us in His vast purpose, of which we form a vital part.

²⁹ Our destiny was fixed by God from the beginning, long before we could have any part in it. It is higher than our highest dreams, for it is nothing less than conformity to the image of His Son. And, better still, our exaltation is the means of putting Him in the place supreme. He cannot be Firstborn without brethren. Thus we are essential to His glory!

GOD'S SOVEREIGNTY

³⁰ Here we have the golden chain of God's sovereignty forged for our blessing. Its four links cannot be separated. He has designated us and called us and justified us. Three links are forged. The next is glory!

³¹ Nothing can compare with the sublime consciousness of a place in God's heart. If He is for us, even those who would be against us work our weal. No one can be against us.

³³ We can challenge the universe to find a single thing against us! Whatever we may be in ourselves, in Christ God has justified us. And not only that, but all judgment has been committed to the Son, the very Christ Who died for us and lives to plead for us at God's right hand! God, the Judge of all, Who alone can acquit, has become our Vindicator! Christ, Who alone has the right to condemn, is our Saviour!

²⁵ Now if we are expecting what we are not observing we are awaiting it with fortitude.

²⁶ Now, similarly, the spirit also is aiding our infirmity, for we are not aware what we should be praying for, to accord with what must be, but the spirit itself is pleading for us with inarticulate groanings. Now He Who is searching the hearts is aware of the spirit's disposition, seeing that it is pleading for the saints in accord with God.

²⁸ Now we are aware that God is working all together for the good of those who are loving God, who are called according to the purpose

²⁹ that, whom He foreknew, He designates beforehand also to be conformed to the image of His Son, for Him to be the Firstborn among many brethren. Now whom He designates beforehand, these He calls also, and whom He calls, these He justifies also: now whom He justifies, these He glorifies also.

³¹ What, then, shall we assert to these things? If God is for us, ³² who is against us? Surely, He Who spares not His own Son, but gives Him up for us all, how shall He not, together with Him also, be graciously granting us all?

³⁵ What shall be separating us from the love of God in Christ Jesus? Affliction, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? According as it is written, that

God's Sovereignty—Individual

³⁷ God's love never lets us go. The trials and tribulations we endure are not tokens of His displeasure. They are all tempered by His loving heart. A sense of His love hovering over us in the midst of our distresses is the most blessed of all balms and will enable us not only to endure them but to enjoy them.

³⁸ Here all the great forces of the universe are arrayed, and none of them, no, nor all of them together, can come between us and the unconquerable love of our God as displayed in Christ Jesus. Death will be swallowed up by life. Life may lead us far from Him, but not beyond the reach of His love. The present perplexes us, the future fills us with fear, but only when we lose the sense of His love. Powers, celestial or terrestrial, are subject to His sway. Nothing above or beneath, nothing at all has the power to break the bond that binds the humblest and most unworthy saint to the throbbing breast of our great and glorious God. This is more than salvation from sin! This is reconciliation!

GOD'S SOVEREIGNTY

¹ Paul was in acute sympathy with his brethren according to the flesh, for he himself had been the most rabid of all in opposing the Christ he now adored. This is a most apt confession, as he is about to introduce the great doctrine of the divine Sovereignty, for he is the star example of God's sovereign grace.

⁴ Physically, Israel has the monopoly of the eight blessings here recorded. In flesh, Christ belongs exclusively to them; no other nation can lay claim to the fathers. The covenants, the law, the priestly worship, and the promises do not belong to the church, but to Israel according to the flesh. The sonship and the glory are ours only in spirit, not in flesh.

⁵ Christ, in flesh, is the God of the eons. All conian blessing is through Him and for Him.

⁶ Ishmael was Abraham's son as well as Isaac, but he was born of the flesh, not of the promise. This shows that mere physical descent is not enough to give a title to the blessing of Abraham (Gen.17¹⁸⁻²⁰;21¹²).

"On Thy account we are being put to death the whole day, We are accounted as sheep for slaughter."

³⁷ Nay! in all these we are more than conquering through Him Who loves us.

³⁸ For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor messengers, nor sovereignties, nor the present, nor the future, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus, our Lord.

⁹ I am telling the truth in Christ, I am not lying, my conscience joining its witness with me in holy spirit, that my sorrow is great, and unintermittent pain is at my heart
² (for I myself wished to be anathema from Christ) for my brethren, my kin according to the flesh, who are Israelites, whose is the sonship and the glory and the covenants and the legislation and the divine service and the promises;
⁵ whose are the fathers, and out of whom is Christ according to the flesh, Who is over all, God blessed for the eons. Amen!

⁶ Now it is not as though the word of God has lapsed, for not all those out of Israel, these are Israel;
⁷ neither that Abraham's seed are all children, but "In Isaac shall your ⁸ seed be called". That is, that the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God, but He is reckoning the children of the promise for the seed.

⁹ For the word of the promise is this: "At this season I shall come and Sarah shall have a son". Yet not only so, but Rebecca also is having her bed of one, our father
¹¹ Isaac. For, not as yet being born, nor yet putting anything into

God's Sovereignty—National

¹¹ The futility of fleshly precedence is next shown in the case of Jacob and Esau. This is full of comfort for those of us today who feel like classing ourselves with crooked Jacob, who did all he could to buy God's blessing, and stupidly hindered it. Yet, being the object of God's elective purpose and love, all his perverse ways could not set aside God's predetermined outcome. Esau was Jacob's senior and superior, yet he became his slave. This ought to appeal powerfully to the sons of Israel (for whom this section is especially intended), for they are his descendants.

¹⁹ The questioner persists in looking at God's sovereignty from the human standpoint of the individual, when it should be viewed from the divine, national vantage. God has a large purpose which will eventuate in the blessing of all. But in the process of its fulfillment it demands the temporary use of some as foils to set forth His indignation and power, that He may make known the riches of His glory on the vessels of mercy. This chapter does not deal with the destiny of the individual. That has been settled. All mankind will be justified eventually (5:18). It is not difficult to see how God can justify Pharaoh, whom He hardened, lest his heart should soften and he should fail to oppose Him further.

practise, good or bad, that God's purpose may remain as a choice, not out of acts, but of Him Who is calling, it was declared to her that "The greater shall be slaving for the inferior," according as it is written "Jacob I love, yet Esau I hate".

¹⁴ What, then, shall we assert? Not that there is injustice with God! May it not come to that!

¹⁵ For to Moses He is saying, "I shall be merciful to whomever I may be merciful, and I shall be pitying whomever I may be pitying". Consequently, then, it is not of him who is willing, nor yet of him who is racing, but of God, the Merciful. For the scripture is saying to Pharaoh that "For this selfsame thing I rouse you up, that so I should be displaying My power in you, and so My name should be published in the entire earth".

¹⁸ Consequently, then, to whom He is willing He is merciful, yet whom He is willing, He is hardening.

¹⁹ You will be protesting to me, then, "Why, then, is He still blaming? for has anyone withstood His intention?" O man! who are you, to be sure, who are answering again to God? That which is molded will not protest to the molder, "Why do you make me thus?" Or has not the potter the right over the clay, out of the same kneading to make one vessel, indeed, for honor, and one for dishonor? Now if God, wanting to display His indignation and to make His power known, carries on, with much patience, the vessels of indignation adapted for destruction, it is that He should also be making known the riches of His glory on the vessels of mercy, which He makes ready before for glory—us, whom He calls also, not only

²⁵ A comparison of Hos. 2²³ with Hos. 19¹¹ shows that this is not an interpretation but an illustration. God, in His sovereign mercy, will reverse the sentence which He pronounced against Israel. In the very same place in which they were named "Lo-ammi", there they shall be called sons of the living God. He deals with the nations as this. ²⁷ Isaiah's testimony is to the same effect. A remnant in Israel shall be saved in the coming time of reckoning. These are seen in the Unveiling as the hundred and forty-four thousand and the vast throng (Un.74,9).

JUSTIFICATION

³⁰ God's sovereignty is further illustrated in the dispensation of justification. Normally, Israel, seeking to keep a just law, should have attained righteousness. Yet the nations, who made no effort to attain righteousness, grasp it because they find it on the principle of faith. The pursuit of righteousness by means of the law led Israel to refuse the grace of Christ and the righteousness which comes apart from the keeping of the law.

It is evident that this is true only in a national way, for not all of Israel stumbled, neither did all among the nations find the righteousness of faith. This must be constantly borne in mind in studying this entire division of Romans. It deals, not with individuals, but nations. Israel, as a whole, is apostate, yet some among them are brilliant examples of faith. The nations, who never before had any part in God's blessings, except as they became proselytes and identified themselves with Israel, now believe God in considerable numbers. Paul becomes the apostle of the nations and thus inaugurates the present secret economy (Eph.31).

¹ Intense zeal, religious fervor, coupled with self-righteousness, does not lead to salvation. God demands subjection to His righteousness in Christ. The law should establish their *un*righteousness and thus reveal God's righteousness, which is manifested in Christ. Israel, as a nation, will be saved when they see Him Whom they pierced, and recognize Him as their Righteousness.

out of the Jews, but out of the nations also. As He is saying in Hosea also:

"I shall be calling those who are not my people 'My people', And she who is not beloved 'Beloved';

²⁶ And it will be, in the place where it was declared to them, 'You are not My people', There they will be called 'sons of the living God'."

²⁷ Now Isaiah is crying over Israel, "If the number of the sons of Israel should be as the sand of the sea,

The residue will be saved, ²⁸ For the Lord will be doing a conclusive and concise accounting on the earth."

²⁹ And according as Isaiah declared before,

"Except the Lord Sabaoth conserved us a seed, We were become as Sodom, And were likened to Gomorrah."

³⁰ What, then, shall we assert? That the nations who are not pursuing righteousness grasped righteousness, yet a righteousness which ³¹ is out of faith. Yet Israel, pursuing a law of righteousness, has no foretaste of a law of righteousness.

³² Why? Since it is not out of faith but as out of law works, they stumble on the stumbling stone, ³³ according as it is written:

"Lo! I am laying in Zion a stumbling stone and a snare rock, And the one believing on Him shall not be disgraced."

10 Indeed, brethren, my heart's delight and petition to God for them

² is for salvation. For I am testifying to them that they have a zeal of God, but not in accord with recog-

³ nition. For they, being ignorant of the righteousness which is of God, and seeking to establish their own righteousness, were not sub-

⁴ ject to God's righteousness. For Christ is the consummation of law

Justification—National

⁶ The law demanded obedience first and promised life to those only who continued to keep it. But even in the law there was provision for faith. It taught that Jehovah Himself, He was their life (Deut.30²⁰). In the day when He gathers them out of the peoples and brings them back into the land He will bring the word of faith very near to them (Deut.30¹⁻¹⁴). In place of their own efforts He will put the humiliation and resurrection of Christ before them. Salvation will depend on the avowal of His lordship and resurrection.

¹³ There is here an allusion to the ancient custom, still in vogue in eastern lands, of the right of sanctuary. One who is in danger of death by the hands of the blood avenger, if he cannot reach a safe place in time, may invoke the name of some great and powerful person, and thus find salvation through his name. If the avengers of blood refuse to listen to his appeal, and take his life, it devolves upon the person on whose name he has called to take swift and summary vengeance. He gathers together all his friends and allies to assist him in punishing the outrage and in defending the honor of his name. For three and one third days he executes vengeance on all who were concerned in killing the one who had invoked his name. In this way "all who invoke the name of the Lord shall be saved". When vengeance visits the earth, the only shelter will be the name of Jehovah. Therefore it will require not only heart belief, but the avowal of the mouth. Thus it is that Israel will be saved and all others who, in that day, will seek refuge in His name.

¹⁴ The refugee does not need to know his protector personally, yet would hardly call on one in whom he had no faith. He could not invoke one of whom he had not even heard. Hence it will be necessary to proclaim Christ, and even before that God will need to commission His heralds.

¹⁷ For Israel in that day the declarations of Christ, the great Protector, will be presented to them for their belief. Thus their salvation will be a simple matter of faith in His great name.

for righteousness to everyone who is believing.

⁵ For Moses is writing of the righteousness which is of law, that a man who does the same shall be living in it. Yet the righteousness which is of faith is saying thus: "You may not be saying in your heart, 'Who will be ascending into heaven?' (that is, to be leading Christ down), or 'Who will be descending into the abyss?' (that is, to be leading Christ up from among the dead)."

⁸ But what is it saying? "The declaration is near you, in your mouth and in your heart" (that is, the declaration of faith which we are

⁹ proclaiming) that, if you should be avowing by your mouth the declaration that Jesus is Lord, and should be believing in your heart that God rouses Him from among the dead, you shall be saved. For with the heart it is believed for righteousness, yet with the mouth ¹¹ it is avowed for salvation. For the scripture is saying: "Every-one who is believing on Him shall ¹² not be disgraced." For there is no distinction, Jew as well as Greek, for He is Lord of all, being rich for all those who are invoking

¹³ Him. For "whoever should be invoking the name of the Lord shall be saved."

¹⁴ How, then, should they be invoking One in Whom they do not believe? Yet how should they be believing One of Whom they do not hear? Yet how should they be hearing apart from a proclamation? Yet how should they be proclaiming if they should not be commissioned? According as it is written,

"How beautiful are the feet of those preaching an evangel of good".

¹⁶ But not all obey the evangel, for Isaiah is saying,

Justification—National

¹⁸ The proclamation of the gospel of the kingdom, beginning in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, spread to the limits of the land (Ac.¹⁸), and reached beyond it to the Dispersion. Israel was not disobedient through lack of tidings.

¹⁹ Israel should have known that, as a nation, they would apostatize, for both Moses and Isaiah foretold it.

CONCILIATION

¹ It would seem from the foregoing that God was through with His ancient and beloved people and was thrusting them away. But the apostle hastens to deny this assumption. God is not thrusting away His people whom He foreknew. Their apostasy is only in part, and the term of it is temporary. That not all of Israel are thrust away is evident from his own case. He, of all Israelites, most deserved to be thrust from God's presence and blessing. Yet he is not included in the national defection. And he is not alone. Elijah thought that he was the only one in all Israel who did not bow the knee to Baal. But God, in His sovereign dealings, restrains seven thousand from worshipping the idol. Neither was Paul alone, for there was then, as always, a remnant reserved by God. These, however, are not those who are more faithful than the rest, or more deserving than the mass of the nation. If it had not been for God's choice in grace, there never would have been a remnant.

⁶ Grace and works will not mix. The moment works are merged with grace it becomes mere mercy and loses its essential nature. You cannot earn or deserve grace any more than you can do anyone a favor by paying him for services rendered. The sinner or saint who seeks to buy or deserve the favor of God will find that it cannot be purchased. Grace is only for those who merit the opposite. Paul's is the pattern case. As he excelled all in persecuting God's saints, he deserved the direst doom. Yet he received the greatest grace!

⁷ Israel sought blessing through law keeping, but did not get it. Those chosen in grace alone found it.

"Lord, who believes our tidings?"

¹⁷ Consequently faith is out of tidings, yet the tidings through a declaration of Christ.

¹⁸ But, I am saying, "Do they not hear?" To be sure!

"Their utterance came out into the entire land,

And their declarations into the ends of the inhabited earth."

¹⁹ But, I am saying, "Did not Israel know?" First Moses is saying,

"I shall be provoking you to jealousy by those not a nation;
By an unintelligent nation shall I be vexing you."

²⁰ Yet Isaiah is very daring and is saying,

"I was found by those who are not seeking Me:
I was disclosed to those who are not inquiring for Me."

²¹ Now to Israel He is saying,

"The whole day I spread out My hands to a stubborn and contradicting people!"

¹¹ I am saying, then, "Does not God thrust away His people?" May it not come to that! For I also am an Israelite, out of Abraham's seed, Benjamin's tribe. God does not thrust away His people whom He foreknew.

Or have you not perceived in Elijah what the scripture is saying, as he is pleading with God against ³ Israel? "Lord, they kill Thy prophets, they dig down Thine altars, and I only was left, and

⁴ they are seeking my soul!" But what is that which apprises saying to him? "I left seven thousand men for Myself, who do not

⁵ bow the knee to Baal." Thus, then, in the current era also, there has come to be a remnant according to the choice of grace. Now if it is by grace, it is no longer out of works, else grace is coming to be no

⁹ The blessing they coveted on the ground of law keeping blinded their eyes to grace, and loaded their backs with legal burdens.

¹² Israel is God's appointed channel of blessing to the nations. If, then, their failure brings the storehouse of God's grace to the world, what will occur when they take their true place? Then the world will be blessed far beyond what is possible now. Now only spiritual blessing comes to the nations. Then, through Israel, physical blessing will flow out to them, as well.

¹⁵ With Israel aside, God no longer puts barriers between Himself and the nations, but is conciliated to the whole world. When men receive this conciliation, then there is mutual reconciliation.

¹⁹ The apostle is dealing with Israel and the nations—not individuals. No individual believer will be broken out of the olive tree. The nations, however, as such, no longer believe, and are due to be cut out of the olive tree. Jehovah is already gathering Israel back to their land with a view of once more grafting them into their own olive tree.

longer grace. Now if it is out of works it is no longer grace, else work is no longer work.

⁷ What then? What Israel is seeking for, this she has not encountered, yet the chosen encountered it. Now the rest were cal-

⁸ loused, even as it is written,

"God gives them a spirit of stupor,
Eyes not to be observing,
And ears not to be hearing,
Till this very day."

⁹ And David is saying,

"Let their table become a trap,
and a mesh,
And a snare and a retaliation to them:

¹⁰ Let their eyes be darkened, not to be observing,
And bow their backs together continually."

¹¹ Am I, then, saying, "Do they not trip that they should be falling?" May it not come to that!
But their offense is salvation to the nations, to provoke them to jealousy.

¹² Now if their offense is the world's riches and their discomfiture the nations' riches, how much

¹³ rather that which fills them! Now
I am saying to you, the nations, inasmuch as, indeed, then, I am the apostle of the nations, I am glorifying my dispensation, if somehow ¹⁴ I should be provoking those of my flesh to jealousy and should save ¹⁵ some of them. For if their casting away is the conciliation of the world, what will their taking back be if not life from among the dead?

¹⁶ Now if the firstfruit is holy, the kneading is also; and if the root is ¹⁷ holy, the boughs are also. Now if some of the boughs are broken off, yet you, being a wild olive, are grafted among them, and became joint-participant of the root ¹⁸ and fatness of the olive, be not vaunting over the boughs. Yet if

Conciliation—National

²² Nothing shows the blindness of Christendom more than their severe denunciation of faithless Israel, yet they are following precisely the same course and have not the slightest idea that God will deal with them as He did with Israel.

²⁴ If a wild graft can be introduced into a cultivated tree with good results, how much better will it be to graft back the good branches!

²⁵ The secret that Israel's present condition is not permanent, but only until all who were chosen are called out of the nations, has never been generally believed, hence the haughty attitude of Christendom toward Israel.

²⁶ Only a few, comparatively, are being saved among the nations, but when Israel again regains its proper place, all Israel shall be saved. Then the whole nation, from the least to the greatest, will know God. And they will become the light of the world, as they were always intended to be.

²⁸ Let us always remember that Israel is still beloved, whatever its present attitude toward God.

²⁹ God never regrets any favor He has shown. No individual or nation whom He calls ever disappoints Him, for He knows full well what they are and what they will do. This alone proves that Israel will yet fulfill the part He has prepared for it.

³² God's purpose includes all nations. No matter what their present attitude toward Him, it is all a part of His plan and a preparation for the display of His mercy. Here we have the real reason why all, in turn, become stubborn. God Himself locks them up to it, not that He may condemn them, but that He may have occasion to manifest His mercy.

³³ God's judgments and ways are too deep for human perception, but we can grasp His purpose. We do not know how fruit is made, but we can plant a tree and enjoy its product. We can grasp God's goal, but the process by which He attains it is too complex for our feeble minds.

you vaunt, you are not bearing the root, but the root you.

¹⁹ You will be asserting, then, "Boughs are broken off that I ²⁰ might be grafted in." That is ideal! By unbelief they are broken off, yet you stand in faith.

²¹ Be not haughty, but fear. For if God spares not some of the natural boughs, neither will He be sparing

²² some of you! Perceive, then, the kindness and severity of God! On those, indeed, who are falling, severity, yet on you, God's kindness, if you should be persisting in the kindness: else you also will be

²³ hewn out. And they, if they should not be persisting in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God is able to ²⁴ graft them in again. For if you were hewn out of an olive wild by nature, and beside nature are grafted into a cultivated olive tree, how much rather shall these, in accord with nature, be grafted into their own olive tree?

²⁵ For I am not willing for you to be ignorant of this secret, brethren, lest you may pass for prudent among yourselves, that Israel, in part, has become calloused until the complement of the nations may

²⁶ be entering. And thus all Israel shall be saved, according as it is written,

"The Rescuer shall be arriving out of Zion,

He will be turning irreverence from Jacob.

²⁷ And this is My covenant with them

Whenever I should be eliminating their sins."

²⁸ As to the evangel, indeed, they are enemies because of you, yet, as to choice, they are beloved because of the fathers.

²⁹ For God's graces and calling are

³⁰ unregretted. For even as you

³⁰ This is the most comprehensive statement which can be uttered. God is the source of all, the channel of all, and the object of all. The universe sprang out of Him, it has its course in Him and He will be its ultimate. This settles all speculation as to the origin of all things. Creation is out of God, not out of nothing. This explains universal history. God is the One back of all the movements of mankind. This reveals the goal of all things. God is so guiding all His creatures that, eventually, He will become their All. To Him, indeed, be glory for the eons!

THE CONDUCT OF THE SAINTS

¹ This section is in marked contrast with the conduct of mankind (11^{a-320}), as shown in the literary framework. The exhortation is based on the previous teaching concerning our bodies in the sixth, seventh and eighth chapters. Our mortal bodies are vivified by the indwelling spirit (8¹¹). God is no longer pleased with dead substitutes, but asks for living offerings. He longs for worship in spirit and in truth. Hence we have no altar and ritual, with bleeding victims which did not satisfy God, but we offer our bodies, dead indeed to Him, yet energized by His spirit, so that they are employed in good deeds, which ascend as a sweet savor to Him. This is real religious service. It displaces the forms of divine service connected with the law. It is the only divine service which He recognizes in this economy. This is the Godward side.

² On the manward side our conduct is not to look like that of the world. There is to be a transformation wrought by means of our minds, through the influence of God's revelation. We can never be like the world at heart, so we are not to appear to be like it. We are to become more and more unlike it by contact with the mind of God.

⁴ Our behaviour toward one another is based on the marvelous figure of the human body. We all have distinct functions, designed not merely for our own use, but for the edification of all. This is the key to conduct among our fellow-saints. As the body is a vital unity, so the saints are one in Christ.

once are stubborn toward God, yet now were shown mercy by their stubbornness, thus these also are now stubborn to this mercy of yours, that now they also may be shown mercy. For God locks all up together in stubbornness, that He may be merciful to all.

³³ O, the depth of the riches and of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How inscrutable are His judgments, and untraceable His ways! For who knew the mind of the Lord? or who became His adviser? or who gives to Him first, and will be repaid by Him? seeing that all is out of Him and through Him and for Him: to Him be glory for the eons! Amen!

¹² I am entreating you, then, brethren, by the pities of God, to present your bodies a sacrifice, living, holy, well pleasing to God. ² your logical divine service, and not to be configured to this eon, but to be transformed by the renewing of your mind, for you to be testing what is the will of God, good and well pleasing and mature.

³ For I am saying to everyone who is among you, through the grace which is given to me, not to be overweening, beyond what your disposition must be, but to be of a sane disposition, as God parts to each the measure of faith.

⁴ For even as, in one body, we have many members, yet all the members have not the same function. ⁵ thus we, who are many, are one body in Christ, yet severally members of one another. Now, having graces excelling, in accord with the grace which is given to us, whether prophecy, it is in accord with the analogy of the faith; or dispensing, in the dispensation; or he who is ⁸ teaching, in the teaching; or he

¹⁴ The conduct of the saints in any given economy is based on God's dispensation. If He dispenses law, He requires conduct in accord with law. Mercy calls for a higher standard, while grace appeals for the highest type of loving deportment under even the most trying circumstances. The law allowed men to hate their enemies, to exact an equivalent, as an eye for an eye, and, indeed, to act toward one another as God dealt with them. God's grace, then, is the model after which we may pattern our conduct. As He never curses now, we may not curse, but bless even those who are persecuting us.

¹⁸ If God should avenge Himself on His enemies where would we be? We were His enemies and as such we were conciliated by the death of His Son. Hence we should never avenge ourselves.

¹ Unlike Israel, we do not come into conflict with the rulers of the world. The setting up of the kingdom will involve the subjection of them all to the suzerainty of Christ. But we have no place in that earthly kingdom. While Israel is thrust aside we must recognize the existing authorities. God is not at variance with present governments. It is not a question of obeying God rather than man, as when Peter refused the orders of the Sanhedrin. We must not withstand regularly constituted magistrates, but depend on God to overrule their acts, if they seem to conflict with our duty to God or our convictions of His truth. Our conflict is with the sovereignties, and the authorities and the world-mights, the spiritual forces of wickedness among the celestials. We are to be sandaled with the evangel of peace (Eph.6¹²⁻¹⁵).

who is entreating, in the entreaty; he who is sharing, with generosity; he who is presiding, with diligence; he who is merciful, with glee.

⁹ Love is unfeigned, abhorring
¹⁰ wickedness, clinging to good, fondly affectionate for one another with brotherly affection, in honor deeming one another first, in diligence not slothful, fervent in spirit, slaving for the Lord, rejoicing in expectation, enduring affliction, ¹³ persevering in prayer, contributing to the needs of the saints, pursuing hospitality.

¹⁴ Bless those who are persecuting
¹⁵ you: bless, and curse not. Be rejoicing with those rejoicing, be lamenting with those lamenting, being mutually disposed to one another, not being disposed to that which is high, but being led away with the humble. Do not pass for prudent
¹⁷ with yourselves. Now be rendering to no one evil for evil. Be making ideal provision before all mankind, if possible. Those among you, being at peace with all mankind, are not avenging yourselves, beloved, but be giving place to anger, for it is written, "'Avenging is Mine; I shall be retaliating'.
²⁰ the Lord is saying". But "If your enemy should be hungering, give him the morsel, if he should be thirsting, give him to drink, for in doing this you will be heaping ²¹ embers of fire on his head." Be not vanquished by evil, but vanquish evil with good.

¹³ Let every soul be subject to the superior authorities, for there is no authority except under God. Now those which are, are set under ² God, so that he who is resisting an authority has withstood God's mandate. Now those who have with-

The Conduct of the Saints

5 The true believer should make the most exemplary citizen, for he has a deeper motive and a more powerful impulse to obedience than the unbeliever. He recognizes the civil authorities as God's servants and has a conscience which should make him most law abiding. The unbeliever is deterred from evil by fear and respect for a human institution. We recognize existing governments as of divine origin.

6 It may seem a strange paradox, yet it is a sad fact that many who are ministers of God in name, are not so in truth, and many a magistrate, who would not dare consider himself a minister of God, is such in fact, in the execution of his office.

8 The debtor is the servant of the lender. The servant of God should never be under obligation to another. Love alone is the great debt which never can be fully discharged. Law is useless where there is love, for every precept is more than met by the dictates of love. Apart from love law is a broken fragment, incomplete, unsatisfactory. Love is its complement, and rounds it out to a satisfactory, complete whole.

11 Time, in scripture, is variously characterized. We make an effort to distinguish between the various terms used. The longest divisions of time are the five great eons or ages. The present eon stretches all the way from the flood to the coming advent of Christ. But there are shorter divisions of time, often spoken of under the term SEASON. Sometimes this refers to a literal season of the year, as the harvest season (Mt.13³⁰). Usually, however, it denotes some characteristic period or era, as in this scripture. It is illustrated by the drawing of the day. Deeds of darkness are done at night. But this is not the era of darkness but of light. The full day is approaching when our salvation will be complete at His advent. Just as we rouse ourselves in the morning, preparatory to the duties of the day, so, in this larger sense, our conduct should reflect the coming of the light and not be tainted with the dark doings which seek the shades of night to hide their shame.

stood will be getting judgment for themselves, for magistrates are not a fear to the good act, but to the evil. Now you do not want to be fearing the authority. Be doing good, and you will be having applause from it. For it is God's servant for your good. Now if you should be doing evil, fear, for it is not wearing the sword futilely. For it is God's servant, an avenger for indignation to him committing evil. Wherefore it is a necessity to be subject not only because of indignation, but because of conscience also.

6 For because of this you are setting taxes also, for they are God's ministers, perpetuated for this very thing. Be rendering to all their dues, to whom tax, tax, to whom tribute, tribute, to whom fear, fear, to whom honor, honor.

8 Be owing no one anything, except to be loving one another, for he who is loving another has fulfilled law. For "You shall not be committing adultery, you shall not be murdering, you shall not be stealing, you shall not be testifying falsely, you shall not be coveting," and if there is any other precept, it is summed up in this saying, in this, "You shall be loving your associate as yourself." Love is not working evil to an associate. The complement, then, of law, is love.

11 This, also: being aware of the era, that it is already the hour for us to be roused out of sleep (for now is our salvation nearer than when we believe: the night progresses, yet the day has drawn near), then we should be putting off the acts of darkness, yet should be putting on the armor of light. We should be walking respectfully as in the day, not in revelry and drunken-

The Conduct of the Saints

¹ Fellowship among God's saints should not be based on knowledge or ignorance. God receives us even when we are feeble in faith. We should not cut from our fellowship one who does not follow all our deductions from the scriptures. Neither should we make light of his scruples. No foods are forbidden now. Yet the undoubted wisdom of the food regulations under the law may well help us to determine what is best, without abridging our liberty to eat all things with a good conscience. We may not dictate to one another in these things. They are to be settled by the individual conscience before God.

⁵ The observance of days is also a matter of individual preference. It is abundantly evident that no day is above another, so far as the scriptures are concerned. The seventh day, the sabbath, was never given to the nations. To observe it is to put ourselves under the curse of the law. The first day of the week, called Sunday, is never once referred to in the scriptures, properly translated. The phrase should always be rendered "one of the sabbaths". In order to get "the first day of the week" it is necessary to alter one to first, to insert the word day, and change the plural sabbaths to the singular week. It is a desperate attempt to find some scriptural excuse for the prevalent observance of Sunday. There is nothing wrong in the setting aside of a day to the Lord. Custom has made Sunday the most convenient for this purpose. But let us not mar the word of God in order to uphold the practise. Neither should we ride rough shod over the religious scruples of those who look upon Sunday as a day sanctioned by God for divine worship. They have no basis for their belief, nevertheless their conscience demands consideration.

¹⁰ It is not ours to pass judgment in these matters. It is not the place of the church to fix any days and condemn those who do not observe them. Only the observance of days as a matter of law keeping is condemned. There is nothing wrong in working on Sunday. It is utterly wrong to keep it as a means of salvation. The same is true of the seventh day, or sabbath.

ness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy, ¹⁴ but put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and be making no provision for the lusts of the flesh.

⁵ One, indeed, is deciding for one day against another day, yet one is deciding for every day. Let each one be fully assured in his own mind. He who is disposed to a day is disposed to it to the Lord; and he who is eating is eating to the Lord, for he is thanking God. ⁷ And he who is not eating, is not eating to the Lord, and is thanking God. For none of us is living to himself, and no one is dying to himself. For, as well, if we should be living, we are living to the Lord, if we should be dying, we are dying to the Lord. Then, as well, if we should be living as we should be ⁹ dying, we are the Lord's. For for this Christ died, and lives, that He should be Lord of both the dead and the living.

¹⁰ Now why are you judging your brother? Or why are you also scorning your brother? For we shall all be presented at the dais of ¹¹ God, for it is written:

"Living am I," the Lord is saying,
'For to Me every knee shall be bowing,

The Conduct of the Saints

¹⁴ The distinctions instituted by the law between things which are to be reckoned clean and unclean have no place in the economy of grace. God has no hesitancy in associating with us, sinners of the nations. A strict Jew could not eat our food without being contaminated. Yet, before God, we are holy and the Jew is unclean! Hence no food is ceremonially unclean. It is only an uninstructed conscience which counts things common.

¹⁵ The liberty to eat anything should not be allowed to infringe on the prejudices of others. Those who have a conscience about partaking of certain foods are easily offended. We should not stand on our rights but seek rather to restrain our liberty to conform to the religious scruples of our fellow believers.

¹⁷ This is not a definition of the kingdom of God, but a statement of its bearing on this subject. The distinctive truth for the present economy was not yet known, and the saints were included in the kingdom of God in its widest aspect as denoting the sphere of God's rule.

¹⁹ These are safe tests to apply to all our intercourse with our fellow saints. Will it provoke strife? If so, let us avoid it. Will it edify? If not, let us forego it. Peace and the edification of others, rather than our own privileges should be pressed. Things which we can do with a good conscience before God, may give dire offense if done before some of His saints.

¹ Knowledge puffs up. There is a prideful tendency to make a show of our liberty in Christ. But grace considers the weak rather than the strong. If there is to be peace and unity it must come from the condescension of those who are able. The weak in faith are not asked to consider the strong. Christ is the most brilliant example in this as in all else. What marvelous condescension He displayed in His dealings with His disciples, whose weakness and lack of faith was a constant source of distress to Him! If He could bridge the great gulf between Him and His disciples, surely we can bear with those whose infirmities we all share.

And every tongue shall be acknowledging God'."

¹² Consequently, then, each of us shall be giving account of himself to God.

¹⁴ I have perceived and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is common of itself, but to one counting anything to be common, to that one it is common. For if, because of food, your brother is sorrowing, you are no longer walking according to love. Be not, by your food, destroying that one for whose sake Christ died. Then let ¹⁶ not your good be calumniated, for the kingdom of God is not eating food and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in holy ¹⁸ spirit. For he who in this is slaving for Christ, is well pleasing to God and attested by men.

¹⁹ Consequently, then, we are pursuing that which makes for peace and that which edifies one another. ²⁰ On account of food do not be demolishing the work of God. All, indeed, is clean, but it is evil to the man to whom eating is a stumbling-block. It is ideal neither to be eating meat, nor to be drinking wine, nor yet a single thing which is stumbling your brother, or is snaring or weakening him.

²² The faith which you have, have to yourself before God. Happy is he who is not judging himself in ²³ that which he is attesting. He who is doubting if he should be eating has been condemned, seeing that it is not out of faith. Now everything which is not out of faith is sin.

¹⁵ Now we, who are able, ought to be bearing the infirmities of the impotent, and not to be pleasing

PAUL'S PREVIOUS MINISTRY

¹ Contrast the two ministries of Christ and Paul (¹⁰). Christ was the Servant of the Circumcision. Paul was a minister for the nations. Christ confirms the patriarchal promises. Paul acts as a priest in the evangel of God. Christ never went outside the land of Israel. He was not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Paul, on the contrary, was not called until he had left the land of Israel. He was sent to the Uncircumcision. It is of the utmost importance that we recognize these distinctive ministries, for the distinction has been virtually ignored. Christ is taken as the minister to the nations and Paul is forgotten. Yet throughout the Lord's public life He emphasized the fact that His mission was to Israel exclusively. A few proselytes, indeed, received blessing, but they were counted as one with the favored nation. The Syro-Phoenician woman had to take the place of an outcast before she could get a crumb from Israel's board.

Paul is a direct contrast to all this. Later he describes himself as the apostle of the nations (2Tim.1¹¹). He made an agreement with Peter and John that they should go to the Circumcision while he went to the nations (Gal.2⁹). He was severed from the rest in order to fulfill this ministry. As a result all the truth for the nations at the present time comes only through the apostle Paul. Those who wish to be established in present truth should master his epistles, especially Ephesians. After they have learned the mysteries or secrets in his writings and scaled the heights to which he alone can guide them, they never will be tempted to descend to the level which is found in our Lord's earthly ministry and in its continuation by the twelve, as recorded in the book of Acts and in the epistles from their pens.

² Mercy for the nations "with His people" is not in force now, for His people are not blessed. We are blessed because of their defection. In the millennial age, however, the nations will be abundantly blessed through the restored nation of Israel, with Christ on the throne.

² ourselves. Let each of us be pleasing his associate, for his good, toward his edification. For Christ also pleases not Himself, but, according as it is written, "The reproaches of those who are reproaching Thee fall on Me". For as much as was written before was written for our teaching, that through the endurance and consolation of the scriptures we may have expectation.

⁵ Now may the God of endurance and consolation grant you to be mutually disposed to one another, according to Christ Jesus, that, with one accord, with one mouth, you may be glorifying the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁷ Wherefore be taking one another to yourselves according as Christ also took you to Himself, for the glory of God.

⁸ For I am saying that Christ has become the Servant of the Circumcision, for the sake of the truth of God, to confirm the patriarchal ⁹ promises. Yet the nations are to glorify God for His mercy, according as it is written:

"Therefore I shall be acclaiming
Thee among the nations,
And playing [music] to Thy name."

¹⁰ And again He is saying:

"Make merry, ye nations, with His people!"

¹¹ And again He is saying:

"Be praising the Lord, all nations,
And let all peoples laud Him."

¹² And again Isaiah is saying:

"There will be a root of Jesse
And He Who is arising to be Chief of the nations:
On Him shall the nations rely."

¹³ Now may the God of expectation be filling you with all joy and peace in believing, for you to be superabounding in expectation, in the power of holy spirit.

¹⁴ Now I myself also am persuaded-

Paul's Previous Ministry

¹⁶ While the priests at Jerusalem still offered the sacrifices according to the law, their ministrations were not acceptable to God, for they had rejected the true Lamb of God. God had no pleasure in the blood of slain beasts, for the hearts of the offerers were far from Him. Is it not a marvel how God, in His wisdom, finds true worshippers among the despised aliens, who offer themselves as living sacrifices well pleasing to Him? In spirit, Paul's ministry among the nations takes the place of the divine ritual at Jerusalem. He officiates as a priest. Though not sanctified by the altar at Jerusalem, they were hallowed by the holy spirit. So it ought to be today. Though the temple worship has ceased, it is our privilege so to walk as to be a sweet savor of Christ.

His second ministry was concerned with justification (Ac. 13³⁹). After this crisis, his third ministry is characterized by conciliation, which is first set forth in the fifth to the eighth chapters of this epistle in its individual aspect, and in the eleventh chapter, in its national aspect. His final ministry was carried on at Rome, which he plans to visit at this crisis. It was carried on almost entirely by means of the Perfection Epistles.

ed concerning you, my brethren, that you yourselves also are bulging with goodness, having been filled with all knowledge, able also ¹⁵ to be admonishing one another. Yet I write to you more daringly, in part, as prompting you, because of the grace given to me from God, ¹⁶ for me to be the minister of Christ Jesus for the nations, acting as a priest of the evangel of God, that the offering of the nations may be becoming well received, having been hallowed by holy spirit.

¹⁷ I have, then, in Christ Jesus, a ¹⁸ boast in what is toward God. For I am not daring to speak any of what Christ does not effect through me for the obedience of the nations, ¹⁹ in word and work, in the power of signs and miracles, in the power of God's spirit, so that, from Jerusalem and around as far as Illyricum, I have completed the ²⁰ evangel of Christ. Yet thus, I am ambitious to be preaching the evangel where Christ is not named, lest I may be building on another's ²¹ foundation, but, according as it is written,

"They who were not informed concerning Him shall be viewing.
And they who have not heard be understanding."

²² Wherefore, I was much hindered ²³ also in coming to you. Yet now, having by no means still place in these regions, yet having for many ²⁴ years a longing to come to you, as I should be going into Spain (for I am expecting, while going through, to gaze upon you, and by you to be sent forward there, if I should first be filled, in part, by you)—²⁵ yet now I am going to Jerusalem, ²⁶ dispensing to the saints. For it delights Macedonia and Achaia to

Paul's Intended Journey

²⁸ During Paul's first three ministries the nations were dependent on Israel, and received of their spiritual things. Hence they were indebted to them and sought to pay by sending them relief in time of famine. But after this Paul makes known the present secret economy, in which the nations are no longer guests of Israel (Eph.2^{12,19}), but receive their own spiritual blessings direct from God. Their destiny is changed to heaven, where Israel has no possessions. At the close of the book of Acts the pre-eminence of the Jew vanished, and since then there is a new humanity in which all physical distinctions are done away.

³⁰ Paul's apprehension lest he should not be well received in Judea was well founded, as events proved. Though he came bringing gifts to his people, his later teaching seemed to them to be directed against the people and the law and Jerusalem. Indeed, he did teach that God would be worshiped in any place, and he did lead out from under the bondage of the law (Ac.21²⁸). Tens of thousands of Jews believed, yet they were all zealous of the law (Ac.21²⁰). They would not hear of blessing to the nations apart from the law. Later, when Paul spoke to them, they did not object to his own call, but could not bear to hear of his commission to the nations (Ac.22²¹).

make some contribution for the poor saints who are in Jerusalem. For they are delighted, and they are their debtors, for if the nations participate in their spiritual things, they ought to minister to them in ²⁸ fleshly things also. When, then, performing this, and sealing to them this fruit, I shall be coming away ²⁹ through you into Spain. Now I am aware that, in coming to you, I shall be coming with the blessing of Christ which fills.

³⁰ Now I am entreating you, brethren, through our Lord, Jesus Christ, and through the love of the spirit, to struggle together with me in prayers to God for me, that I should be rescued from the stubborn in Judea, and my dispensation for Jerusalem may be becoming well received ³² by the saints, in order that I may be coming to you with joy through the will of God, and I should be ³³ resting together with you. Now the God of peace be with you all! Amen!

¹⁶ Now I am commending to you Phœbe, our sister, being a servant ² of the ecclesia in Cenchrea, that you should be receiving her in the Lord worthily of the saints, and may stand by her in whatever matter she may have need of you, for she, too, has become a patroness of many, and of me also.

³ Greet Prisca and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus (who, for my soul's sake jeopardize their own necks, whom not I only, but all the ecclesias of the nations also are ⁵ thanking) and the ecclesia of their house.

Greetings

⁷ The term "relative" is an elastic expression, used sometimes in a broad sense of all Israelites (⁹³) yet more usually in a restricted sense of a closer blood relation (Jn.18²⁰). Paul mentions six of his relatives in the course of these greetings (^{7,11,21}), besides his mother. Very few of them are ever spoken of again in the scriptures. Some of them, notably Andronicus and Junius, seem to have been very prominent and faithful. They were in Christ before him and suffered imprisonment with him. Indeed, it is not at all improbable that we are to understand them to be apostles, not indeed of the twelve, but such as Barnabas (Ac.14¹⁴).

¹⁰ "Of Aristobulus" seems to denote those associated with his establishment. Perhaps this is the grandson of Herod the Great who was later given the government of Lesser Armenia.

¹¹ Narcissus is probably one of Nero's favorites, for even Nero's household was invaded by the power of the evangel (Phil.4²²).

¹⁷ How soon dissension and division crept in among the saints! Even before they had received the truth in its fullness, men came with smooth words to draw them from it. Hence the necessity for some authoritative written standard, as this epistle, to which appeal could be made when the truth was in danger.

²² Tertius was probably a professional scribe, such as to this day are employed to write letters in the East. Paul, however, usually penned the concluding words of his epistles.

⁷ toils much for you. Greet Andronicus and Junias, my relatives and my fellow captives, who are notable among the apostles, who also came ⁸ to be in Christ before me. Greet Amphiatos, my beloved in the Lord.
⁹ Greet Urbanus, our fellow worker in Christ, and Stachys, my beloved.
¹⁰ Greet Apelles, attested in Christ. Greet those who are of Aristobulus.
¹¹ Greet Herodian, my relative. Greet those of Narcissus who are ¹² in the Lord. Greet Tryphena and Tryphosa, who are toiling in the Lord. Greet Persis, beloved, who ¹³ toils much in the Lord. Greet Rufus, chosen in the Lord, and his ¹⁴ mother and mine. Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brethren with ¹⁵ them. Greet Philologos and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas
¹⁶ and all the saints with them. Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the ecclesias of Christ are greeting you.

¹⁷ Now I am entreating you, brethren, to be noting those who are making dissensions and snares beside the teaching which you learned,
¹⁸ and avoid them, for such are not slaving for our Lord Christ, but for their own bowels, and through compliments and adulation are deluding the hearts of the innocent.

²⁵ The importance of this closing benediction is apparent from the fact that it was written by the apostle with his own hand after Tertius had finished the epistle. Paul characterizes the great themes of his epistle, my gospel and the proclamation of Jesus Christ in accord with the revelation of a secret hushed in times conian (conciliation), in contrast with the gospel of God (¹¹) which He promised before. The conciliation was not made known through the (Hebrew) prophets, but through prophetic writings, such as this epistle and 2 Corinthians. It is of principal importance that we see the point the apostle makes here, for otherwise we shall not appreciate the unique, distinctive character of the conciliation, which is first set forth in this epistle. The teaching of the fifth to the eighth chapters and especially the eleventh chapter is absolutely unknown in the prophets. In the latter all blessing comes to the nations through Israel as the channel. The conciliation comes because Israel is thrust aside. The prophets would lead us to infer that Israel's apostasy would bar all possibility of blessing to the nations. The conciliation was a secret they knew nothing of, for it makes Israel's defection the ground of worldwide, unbounded blessing to the nations until Israel is again in God's reckoning.

all. Over you, then, I am rejoicing. Now I am wanting you to be wise, indeed, for good, yet artless for evil. Now the God of peace will be crushing Satan under your feet swiftly. The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you!

²¹ Timothy, my fellow worker, is greeting you, and Lucius and Jason and Sosipater, my relatives.

²² I, Tertius, who write this epistle, am greeting you in the Lord.

²³ Gaius, my host, and of the whole ecclesia, is greeting you. Erastus, the city steward, is greeting you, and brother Quartus.

²⁵ Now to Him Who is able to establish you in accord with my evangel, and the proclamation of Christ Jesus in accord with the revelation of a secret hushed in times conian, yet manifested now, through prophetic scriptures as well, according to the injunction of the conian God being made known to all nations for the obedience of faith—to God only wise, through Christ Jesus, be glory for the eons of the eons. Amen!

I CORINTHIANS

PAUL's first epistle to the Corinthians is a divine commentary on the conduct inculcated in the epistle to the Romans. The secret of a life well pleasing to God lies in the crucifixion of the flesh and resurrection by the power of the spirit (Rom.6⁹⁻¹¹). The Corinthians failed in both of these requisites, as will be seen by the framework. The first part of the epistle shows that though the apostle had pressed the preaching of the cross, which puts an end to all physical pretensions, they persisted in making much of men, and thus created divisions among themselves. The close of the epistle shows also that some denied the resurrection, though the resurrection of Christ was fundamental to the evangel and an absolute necessity to acceptable conduct.

As is the case with so many of the epistles, each subject is taken up twice, as shown in the framework, dividing the epistle into two distinct parts, each having the same general subjects, but discussing them from distinct standpoints. In the first half all is personal. In the second all is ecclesiastical. The gifts in the former portion are men, Paul and Apollos. In the latter they are spiritual endowments, which were exercised in the ecclesia. Thus also, the abuse of the physical body is balanced by the abuse of the Lord's body. The private conduct of the marriage relation is replaced by their conduct in the public meetings of the saints. Idol sacrifices are discussed in their relation to the individual and as they affect the ecclesia, especially the Lord's table.

The central subject is the question of Paul's apostolic authority. First he discusses his personal rights, but then waives them all in his desire for the welfare of others.

Thus we see a marvelous symmetry and balance of thought in an epistle which is usually supposed to be without method.

This epistle is a severe rebuke to the present day ecclesiastical systems. If division was a proof of carnality in Corinth, what does the multiplication of sects with which we are afflicted prove? There is far more need today of the salutary correctives in this epistle than there was in Corinth. There is need to proclaim, not only the death of Christ, but the manner of His death. A crucified Christ is the answer to the worldly wisdom and religious carnality of those who profess the name of God.

This epistle shows why so few are able to apprehend the marvelous mysteries of Paul's later epistles. If the Corinthians were so carnal that the apostle could not reveal these to them, it is no marvel that they are hid from the immature believer of today. Yet the apostle did disclose to them the secret of the resurrection.

In the midst of all the gifts the apostle points them to the transcendent grace which has since become ours by a later revelation. The gifts have ceased. Faith, expectation and love remain. Let us hope that soon faith will be lost in sight and expectation in realization. Then love alone will abide. May we give it the place pre-eminent!

1 This is not the first time the apostle has written to the Corinthians. He had written a letter to them (50) and they had written one in return (71). This epistle is partly a reply to their letter. So that it is not to be taken as first Corinthians in the absolute sense, but in relation to the second epistle.

2 It is worthy of note that this epistle, like the Thessalonian and Galatian epistles, is written to a corporate ecclesia. Indeed, the whole of the latter half treats of ecclesiastical relations.

2 The name Sosthenes recalls much of Paul's career in Corinth. Crispus, the chief of the synagogue, believed and probably lost his place immediately, for we next read that Sosthenes was the chief of the synagogue. When Gallio refused to interfere, the crowd took Sosthenes and beat him in front of the dais. It may be that this man was also reached by the evangel, and became Paul's companion in Ephesus, where this epistle was, in all probability, penned. If so, it is a notable triumph of grace.

4 Corinth was the first place, after Paul's severance from the rest at Antioch, where he was allowed to continue long enough to teach and establish the saints in the truth. He was there a year and a half (Ac.18:11), and many of the Corinthians not only believed, but were recipients of many spiritual graces looking forward to the day of Christ's unveiling.

9 What a marvelous privilege and honor is involved in fellowship with the Son of God! Yet this is the portion of everyone who is His.

10 It should be an occasion of gratitude to God that the correction of the Corinthians, though of temporary and local interest at the time, still provides guidance on many points of practical importance. Thus their very divisions not only exposed their own carnality, but are the sure sign of the prevailing lack of spirituality today. Few, indeed, would rebuke allegiance to themselves, yet Paul, first of all, objects to anyone saying "I am of Paul". No matter what name is used, schism is indefensible and deplorable.

PAUL, a called apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and Sosthenes, a brother, to the ecclesia of God which is in Corinth, hallowed in Christ Jesus, called saints, together with all in every place who invoke the name of our Lord Jesus Christ—theirs as well as ours:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I AM THANKING my God always concerning you for the grace of God which is given you in Christ
 5 Jesus, seeing that you are enriched in everything in Him, in all expression and all knowledge,
 6 according as the testimony of Christ was confirmed among you,
 7 so that you are not deficient in a single grace, awaiting the unveiling of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who will be confirming you also to the consummation, unimpeachable in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.
 9 God is faithful, through Whom you were called into the fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord.
 10 Now I am entreating you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all may be saying the same thing, and there may be no schisms among you, but you may be attuned to the same mind
 11 and of the same opinion. For it was made evident to me concerning you, my brethren, by those of Chloe, that there are strifes
 12 among you. Now I am saying this, that each of you is saying "I, indeed, am of Paul", yet "I of Apollos", yet "I of Cephas", yet
 13 "I of Christ". Has Christ been parted? Was Paul crucified for ¹⁴ The Crispus here referred to can be none other than the chief of the synagogue who believed on the Lord with all his house when Paul first came to Corinth. Gaius was probably his host on a later visit (Ro.16²³). The household of Stephanas was probably the first to receive the evangel. It seems that Paul, in his early ministry, like the Lord (Jn.4²), did not usually baptize with his own hands. As Stephanas was the first to believe in Corinth, there may have been no one else to do so in his case. Crispus was the most prominent Jew in the city, hence the apostle officiated personally when he was baptized. After this we do not read of his baptizing. He couples baptism with circumcision, as being ours in the burial of Christ (Col.2¹²).

¹⁷ Baptism, like circumcision, was a physical rite, and seemed to give the flesh a place before God. The entire tenor of Paul's commission was against this. He draws a sharp line between baptizing and evangelizing.

THE WORD OF THE CROSS

¹⁸ The "word of the cross" has a far deeper significance than the death of Christ for our sins. It brings before us the manner of His death. The curse of the law was attached to such a death. It brought down the curse of God. On the human side, however, it showed what human religion and human wisdom can do. When God's Image was present among men they not only failed to appreciate Him, but displayed the innate hatred of their carnal religious hearts by dooming Him to the death of the vilest criminal. He Who spoke as never man spoke should have been welcomed by the wise men of the world, but they showed the essential stupidity of human wisdom by gibbeting the embodiment of all wisdom upon the ignominious cross. Yet God has made that scene of weakness and shame the brightest exhibition of His power and glory. Though it seems to sound the depths of powerless infamy, it eclipses all the power and wisdom of men. The word of the cross is still despised, but its proclamation is salvation to all who believe. The height and summit of man's wisdom cannot reach to the divine folly.

your sakes? Or are you baptized ¹⁴ into the name of Paul? I am thanking God that I baptize none of you except Crispus and Gaius, ¹⁵ lest any should be saying that you are baptized into my name. Yet I ¹⁶ baptize the household of Stephanas also. Furthermore, I am not aware ¹⁷ if I baptize any other. For Christ does not commission me to be baptizing but to be preaching the evangel, not in wisdom of word, lest the cross of Christ should be made void.

¹⁸ For the word of the cross is stupidity, indeed, to those who are being destroyed, yet to us who are being saved it is the power of God. ¹⁹ For it is written, "I shall be destroying the wisdom of the wise, and the understanding of the intelligent ²⁰ shall I be repudiating." Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the discussor of this ²¹ eon? Does not God make stupid the wisdom of this world? For since, in fact, in the wisdom of God, the world through wisdom knew not God, God delights, through the stupidity of a proclamation, to save those who are believing. ²² since, in fact, Jews are requesting signs and Greeks are seeking wisdom, yet we are proclaiming Christ crucified, to Jews, indeed, a snare, ²³ and to the nations stupidity, yet to those who are called, Jews as well as Greeks, Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God. ²⁴ seeing that the stupidity of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. ²⁵ For you are observing your calling, brethren, that there are not many wise according to the flesh; not many powerful, not many no-

27 To this day the great, the noble, and the wise are a small minority among the true saints of God. It is a matter of extreme thankfulness that this is so. If high birth or wisdom or any other attainment were necessary to His choice, how few would be able to measure up to His standard, and how little glory would there be for Him! Yet now we see those mentally deficient, chosen by Him, acting more wisely than the philosophers who shut God out of their lives. Here in Corinth we see the trembling apostle, scorned even by those whom he has been the means of blessing, doing a work which has brought more glory to God and good to man than all the efforts of the might and nobility of all time!

30 Would that we would cease looking for anything in ourselves! Let us not boast in our wisdom, or our holiness, but find these only in Christ. Then let us boast to our heart's content in that which we have in Him.

1 Eloquent appeals, logical arguments, or profound philosophy, have no place in the proclamation of the evangel. We are to proclaim the word, testify to the truth. The subject matter is all provided by God. Nothing would have appealed to the Corinthians better than some new philosophy, or some astute line of reasoning. But faith does not rest on reason but on a message backed by the power of the spirit of God. What is needed today is a return to the simple, unadorned proclamation of the evangel, the death of Christ on the cross for our sins and the resurrection of Christ because of our justification. The power of this good news is as great today as it proved to be in Corinth.

7 Though God has repudiated the world's wisdom, there is a divine wisdom, of which the world knows nothing, which even the saints do not apprehend until they attain maturity. This wisdom is fully unfolded in Paul's later epistles to the Ephesians, Philipians and Colossians. It cannot be grasped, even today, by carnal saints. It is for the spiritual, who have seen the end of the flesh.

7 "Before the eons" shows that the eons or ages are not eternal in the past, but had a definite beginning.

27 ble, but God chooses the stupid of the world that he may be disgracing the wise, and God chooses the weak of the world that He may be disgracing the strong, and the ignoble of the world, and those who are scorned, God chooses, and those who are not, that He should be discarding those who are, so that no flesh should be boasting before God. 28 Yet you, of Him, are in Christ Jesus, Who became to us Wisdom from God, besides Righteousness 31 and Holiness and Deliverance, that, according as it is written, "He Who is boasting, let him be boasting in the Lord."

2 And I, coming to you, brethren, came not with superiority of word or of wisdom, announcing to you the 2 testimony of God, for I decide not to perceive anything among you except Jesus Christ, and Him crucified. 3 And I came to be with you in weakness, and in fear, and in 4 much trembling, and my word and my proclamation were not with persuasive [words] of human wisdom, but with demonstration of the 5 spirit and of power, that your faith may not be in the wisdom of men but in the power of God.

6 Yet we are speaking wisdom among those who are mature, yet not the wisdom of this eon, neither of the chief men of this eon, who are 7 being discarded, but we are speaking God's wisdom in a secret, which has been concealed, which God designates before the eons for our 8 glory, which not one of the chief men of this eon has known, for if they know, they would not crucify 9 the Lord of glory. But, according as

⁹ We need only consider our own desire to surprise and gratify those who love us to realize a little of what is in God's heart toward us. God gives of His spirit that we may apprehend His further gifts. The secret here hinted at by Paul can be none other than the secret economy unfolded in his Ephesian epistle, which is based upon the secret of Christ, or His exaltation as the Head of the whole universe. As such He is the Lord of glory, for no one on earth, or in the heavens, approaches the honor and dignity which will be His in the eons of the eons.

¹¹ The apostle appeals to our own experience. Human beings can understand one another because they have the same spirit. But animals cannot enter into the recesses of human experience. No more can a man apprehend things divine without the interpretive presence of God's holy spirit.

¹³ The term "matching" has been rendered "comparing". But the thought of the passage is not the agreement between spiritual things, but the adaptation of spiritual things to mankind. It is useless to teach a soulish man spiritual things, for he has no means of grasping them.

¹ Doubtless the apostle would gladly have instructed the Corinthians in the deep things of God, but they were not able to bear them. And what was the sure sign of their carnality? Division. While some were the partisans of Paul, who planted, and some of Apollos, who watered, and strove about God's gifts in the person of His servants, they were effectually frustrating any further outflow of His favor. And so it is today. If any yearn to know the deep secrets of God, let them purge themselves of all party spirit, and thus open their hearts to the great Giver Himself.

it is written, "That which the eye perceived not, and the ear hears not, and to which the heart of man ascended not — whatever God makes ready for those who are loving Him." Yet God reveals it to us through His spirit, for the spirit is searching all, even the depths of God.

¹¹ For what in humanity is acquainted with that which is human except the spirit of humanity which is in it? Thus also, that which is of God no one has known except the spirit of God. Now we obtained, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God, that we may be perceiving that which is graciously given to us by God, which we are speaking also, not with words taught by human wisdom, but taught by the spirit, matching that which is spiritual with those who are spiritual.

¹⁴ Now the soulish man is not receiving that which is of the spirit of God, for it is stupidity to him, and he is not able to know it, seeing that it is spiritually examined. ¹⁵ Now he who is spiritual is, indeed, examining all, yet he is being examined by no one. For did anyone know the mind of the Lord? Who will be deducing from Him? Yet we have the mind of Christ.

3 And I, brethren, could not speak to you as to spiritual, but as to ² fleshy, as to minors in Christ. I give you milk to drink, not solid food, for you were not as yet able. Nay, now you still are not ³ able, for you are still fleshy. For where there is jealousy and strife among you, are you not fleshy and ⁴ walking according to man? For whenever anyone should be saying, "I, indeed, am of Paul", yet an-

⁵ Apollos was a Jew of Alexandria, a scholarly man, and able in the scriptures. He came to Ephesus, full of zeal, but versed only in the baptism of John. Priscilla and Aquila heard him speak boldly in the synagogue, so they took him to themselves and expounded the way of God more accurately to him. On his way back he passed through Achaia and doubtless spent much time in Corinth. While there he parleyed much with the believers and strenuously and thoroughly confuted the Jews, publicly exhibiting, through the scriptures, that Jesus is the Christ (Ac.18²¹⁻²⁸).

⁹ Paul seeks to draw their hearts from occupation with men, by comparing them with a farm on which he was merely a laborer, or a building on which he was only a craftsman. He did the first work. He planted. Apollos gave the crop water. But they could not make a single seed grow. Growth is due to God alone.

¹⁴ Let all who teach take this to heart: their work will be tested to see what kind it is. It is better to have a little after the fire than much before it.

other, "I, of Apollos", is he not fleshly?

⁵ Who, then, is Apollos? Now who is Paul? Servants through whom you believe, and each as the Lord gives. I plant, Apollos irrigates, but God makes it grow. So that, neither is he who is planting anything, nor he who is irrigating, but God Who makes it grow. Now he who is planting and he who is irrigating are one. Yet each will be getting his own wages according to his own toil. ⁹ For we are fellow workers of God. You are God's farm, God's building. ¹⁰ According to the grace of God which is granted to me, as a wise foreman I lay a foundation, yet another is building on it. Yet let each one beware how he is building. For other foundation can no one lay beside that which is laid, ¹² which is Jesus Christ. Now if anyone is building on this foundation gold and silver, precious stones, ¹³ wood, grass, straw, each one's work will become apparent, for the day will make it evident, seeing that it is revealed by fire. And the fire will be testing the work ¹⁴ of each one—what kind it is. If anyone's work which he builds on it ¹⁵ shall remain, he will get wages. If anyone's work shall burn up, he will forfeit it, yet he shall be saved, yet thus, as through fire.

¹⁶ Are you not aware that you are a temple of God and the spirit of God is making its home in you? If anyone is corrupting the temple of God, God will be corrupting him, for God's temple is holy, which you are.

¹⁸ Now let no one be deluding himself. If anyone among you is presuming to be wise in this eon, let ¹⁸ The wisdom of the world is a far greater menace today than in the days of the apostle. The nominal church has no hesitancy in following, not only the wisdom of the world, but its folly as well. On every hand we are assured that the church must get on a business basis and use modern methods. The aim of the preacher is popularity, the confidence of the multitude is in men. Proclaim a great truth, freshly found in the word, and who will listen? Set up a great leader and men will flock to hear his eloquence. God is forgotten in the church more grievously than in the world.

²² The cure for a partisan spirit is the recognition that the men who are given by God to edify His saints are all ours. We should not single out a single one, but include them all. We should not say "I am of Paul", so as to exclude Apollos or Cephas, but realize that they are all ours, and a gift from God, not to quarrel about, but to appreciate and enjoy. The heritage of Huss and Luther and Darby has descended to us, though we may not belong to their party.

⁴ The possession of a good conscience is no justification. Paul knew that he had a good conscience even when he was a bitter opponent of Christ.

⁵ When the time for examining the service of God's stewards comes it will be based on truth. Not only the outward act but the inward motive will be brought to light. Many who seem to accomplish little, purposed greatly in their hearts, and will be rewarded according to their intention, rather than their failure to fulfill.

him become stupid, that he may ¹⁹ be becoming wise, for the wisdom of this world is stupidity with God. For it is written, "He Who is clutching the wise in their craftiness." And again, "The Lord knows the reasonings of the wise, ²¹ that they are vain". So that, let no one be boasting in men, for all is ²² yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or the present, or the future
²³ —all is yours, yet you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

⁴ Let a man be thus accounting us—as deputies of Christ, and ² stewards of God's secrets. Furthermore, here it is being sought in stewards that one be found faithful.
³ Now to me it is the least trifle that I may be being examined by you or by man's day. But neither am I examining myself. For I am conscious of nothing as to myself, but I have not been justified by this. Now He Who is examining me is
⁵ the Lord. So that, be not judging anything before the appointed time, till the Lord should be coming, Who will also illuminate the hidden things of darkness and manifest the counsels of the hearts. And then applause will be coming to each one from God.

⁶ Now these things, brethren, I transfer in a figure to myself and Apollos because of you, that in us you may be learning not to be disposed above what is written, that no one may be puffed up for one against another. For who ⁷ is discriminating between you? Now what have you which you did not obtain? Now if you obtained it also, why are you boasting as ⁸ though not obtaining? You are sated already, you are rich already,

¹⁵ It was a custom among the higher classes to employ a slave in escorting the boys of a family to and from school. It would seem that the apostle is using this term to characterize those who had followed him in leading the Corinthians. They could not take the place of the one who had first brought them to the knowledge of Christ.

¹⁹ We need not stumble at Paul's putting himself forward for imitation, rather than the example of Christ. Since the Lord's ascension and the call of Paul there has been a radical change in the character of God's dealings with the nations. Paul's pattern call, and his later conduct, is the example for us to follow in this day of grace. The Circumcision follow in our Lord's steps. If we followed the example given by our Lord to His disciples we would proclaim the gospel to none but Jews (Ac.11:10).

you reign apart from us. And surely you ought to reign, that we also should be reigning with you.

⁹ For I suppose that God demonstrates with us, the last apostles, as death-doomed, seeing that we became a gazing stock to the world and to messengers and to men. We are stupid because of Christ, yet you are prudent in Christ. We are weak, yet you are strong. You are glorified, yet we are dishonorable. Until the present hour we are hungering and thirsting, and are naked and are buffeted and unsettled and toiling, working with our own hands. Being reviled, we are blessing, being persecuted, we are bearing with it, being calumniated, we are entreating. We became as the offscourings of the world, the scum of the universe, till the present.

¹⁴ It is not to be abashing you I am writing these things, but as my beloved children I am admonishing you. For if you should be having ten thousand escorts in Christ, but not many fathers, for in Christ Jesus I beget you through the evangel. I am entreating you, then, become imitators of me. Therefore I send Timothy to you, who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord, who will be reminding you of my ways which are in Christ Jesus, according as I am teaching everywhere in every ecclesia.

¹⁸ Now some were puffed up as though I were not coming to you. Yet I shall be coming to you swiftly, if the Lord should be willing, and I will know, not the word of those who are puffed up, but the power. For the kingdom of

⁹ The apostle had already written on this subject to the Corinthians. The state of society may well be imagined when he tells them that, should they refuse to have dealings with all such immoral persons, they would need to leave the world entirely. Now he makes it clear, however, that immorality will not be tolerated among those in the ecclesia. All such should be excluded. They are subject to the judgment of their brethren. Immorality outside the ecclesia is not a matter for the saints. God is judging those who are outsiders.

¹³ There is a striking contrast between the methods of dealing with moral evil and doctrinal heresy. There were those in Corinth who held fundamental

God is not in word, but in power.

²¹ What do you want? That I may be coming to you with a rod, or in love as well as a spirit of meekness?

⁵ Actually, prostitution is heard of among you, and such prostitution as is not even named among the nations, as that anyone has his father's wife. And you are puffed up, and mourn not rather, that the one committing this act may be taken away from your midst. For I, indeed, being absent in body, yet present in spirit, have already, as if present, judged the one effecting this, thus: In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, you being assembled, and my spirit, together with the power of our Lord Jesus, to give up such a one to Satan for the extermination of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

⁶ Your boast is not ideal. Are you not aware that a little leaven is leavening the whole kneading?

⁷ Clean out, then, the old leaven, that you may be a fresh kneading, according as you are unleavened. For even Christ, our Passover, was sacrificed for our sakes, so that we may be keeping the festival, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of evil and wickedness, but with unleavened sincerity and truth.

⁹ I write to you in the epistle not to commingle with paramours. And undoubtedly it is not as to the paramours of this world, or the greedy and extortionate, or idolaters, else as a consequence you ought to come out of the world.

¹¹ Yet now I write to you not to commingle with anyone who is named a brother, should he be a paramour, error, for they denied the resurrection. The apostle reasons with them and shows them the consequences if their heresy were true, but he never suggests their excision. But when the behaviour of a brother became such that he brought reproach upon the holy brotherhood of believers, he was summarily expelled. This was the surest way of bringing him to repentance. By sending him back into the world, he realized the gravity of his misconduct.

¹ It is unfortunate that our word "judge" usually takes on the sense of condemnation. The saints are not to condemn the world but to rule it during the eons. Saints in Israel will possess the kingdom on earth. We shall administer the rest of the universe. This destroys utterly the crude conceptions of "heaven" usually entertained. We shall not be idle, but, as members of Christ's body, will direct and control the angels, including the utmost bounds of the empyrean.

If, then, such a future is for the saints, how incongruous for us to appeal to the unjust to settle our differences!

It is a deplorable state of affairs when brethren in Christ go to law against one another. It shows that one or the other is unjust and so is not a fit subject for the sphere of God's rule. When the kingdom is established there will be no room for those whose conduct is contrary to the strict justice which will be its chief characteristic.

If a believer has a case against another believer he should never have it tried before unbelievers. If they cannot settle it between themselves, they should choose some wise man, a believer in whom there is mutual confidence, and submit their case to him, and abide by his decision.

If this is impracticable, it rests with the aggrieved one to submit to the injury or loss rather than bring disgrace on the name of Christ. All that we do should be done with the single object of glorifying God, even if it entails shielding one who has wronged us, because his reputation cannot but affect the estimate with which the saints are held by the unbelievers in the world. We are not under law, but under grace. Let us use this rule in dealing with our brethren.

or greedy, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner. With such a one you are ¹² not even to be eating. For what is it to me to be judging those outside? You are not judging those ¹³ within! Now those outside God is judging. Expel the wicked one from among yourselves.

⁶ Dare any of you, having business with another, be judged by the unjust, and not by the saints? Or are you not aware that the saints shall be judging the world? And if the world is being judged by you, are you unworthy of the least tribunals? Are you not aware that we shall be judging messengers, ⁴ not to mention life's affairs? If indeed, then, you should have tribunals for life's affairs, are you seating these who are scorned in ⁵ the ecclesia? I am saying this to abash you. Thus is there not even one wise one among you who will be able to adjudicate in the midst ⁶ of his brethren, but brother is suing brother, and this before unbelievers? ⁷ Already, indeed, then, it is actually a discomfiture for you that you have lawsuits with yourselves. Wherefore are you not rather being injured? Wherefore are you not rather being cheated? But ⁸ you are injuring and cheating, and ⁹ this brethren! Or are you not aware that the unjust shall not be enjoying the allotment of God's kingdom? Be not deceived. Neither paramours, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor catamites, nor sodomites, nor thieves, nor greedy, nor ¹⁰ drunkards; no revilers, no extortioners shall be enjoying the allotment of God's kingdom. ¹¹ The city of Corinth was noted for its profligacy and, as the evangel makes its special appeal to sinners, some of the Corinthian saints could look back at a past of very doubtful character. But the evangel they received had cleansed and sanctified and acquitted them. In God's sight, at any rate, they no longer bore these characters, and His grace would constrain them to conduct themselves accordingly.

¹² This is a necessary consequence of justification and the reign of grace. All is allowed to the one who has been vindicated by God. Nothing can ever touch his position before God in Christ. But this knowledge will not lead us to be lax in our conduct, as some might suppose.

¹⁵ The exalted honor of being members of Christ is the most powerful incentive to keep our bodies free from the gross sin which still afflicts humanity as it did in the days when this epistle was penned.

¹⁶ Wherever God dwells is the temple of God, and is hallowed by His presence. It was not the stately buildings or the sacred ritual or even the sacrifices which hallowed the sanctuary, but the presence of the glory of God in the holiest of all. The very ground of the desert was holy where Moses met Jehovah (Ex.3⁵). So our body, whatever its physical appearance or condition, has become a temple by virtue of the divine spirit which indwells us. It is no longer ours, but His, and like the tabernacle in the wilderness and the temple in Jerusalem, should allow nothing that defiles to enter its precincts. God does not dwell in temples made with hands, but in the bodies of His saints. Holy conduct and loving acts are the ritual.

¹ In this chapter Paul distinguishes carefully between his spiritual judgment and a commandment of the Lord. He gives the ideal, yet modifies it to suit the conditions under which the Corinthians lived.

It will be noted that conduct pleasing to God always conforms to the divine activities. When God deals out justice He requires the same in His saints. When He is gracious, as in this economy, He is pleased when we deal with one another according to the our Lord Jesus Christ and by the spirit of our God.

¹² All is allowed me, but not all is expedient. All is allowed me, but I shall not be under the authority ¹³ of anything. Foods for the bowels and the bowels for foods, yet God will be discarding both these and those. Now the body is not for prostitution, but for the Lord, and ¹⁴ the Lord for the body. Now God rouses the Lord also, and will be rousing us up through His power.
¹⁵ Are you not aware that your bodies are members of Christ? Taking, then, the members of Christ away, should I be making them members of a prostitute? May it
¹⁶ not come to that! Or are you not aware that he who is joined to a prostitute is one body? For, He is averring, the two will be one ¹⁷ flesh. Now he who is joined to the ¹⁸ Lord is one spirit. Be fleeing from prostitution. The penalty of every sin which a man may be doing is outside of the body, yet he who is committing prostitution is sinning
¹⁹ in his own body. Or are you not aware that your body is a temple of the holy spirit in you, which you have from God, and you are not ²⁰ your own? For you are bought with a price. By all means glorify God in your body.

⁷ Now concerning what you write to me: It is ideal for a man not to ² touch a woman. Yet, because of prostitution, let each man have his own wife, and each woman have ³ her own husband. Let the husband render to the wife what he ought, yet likewise the wife also to the husband. The wife has not the jurisdiction of her own body, but the husband, yet likewise the husband also has not the jurisdiction of his ⁵ own body, but the wife. Do not be higher dictates of grace. Perhaps we can carry this even further. Redeemed Israel is the bride of the Lambkin. His relation to them is figured by the marriage tie. The present ecclesia, however, is His body, a much closer and more vital union. Hence the ideal for the present time is to remain as Paul was. It was doubtless ideal, in this sense, for Peter to have a wife. Paul's celibacy is undoubtedly in accord with the great truths with which he was commissioned, which disregard all physical relationships, being spiritual conditions to be realized among the celestials, where marriage has no place. Perhaps these considerations account for the undecided tone and temporary character of this chapter.

8 It is evident that the preceding concession is only a general rule, not applicable to those not then married. Their relations are to be regulated by mutual consideration, but the unmarried need to consult only their own condition.

10 The law of divorce, in Scripture, varies according to the character of God's ways in each economy. Because of the hardness of their hearts God gave them the provisions in the law. This is no rule for us today. Where both are believers there is no divorce in this economy. The reason for this is evident, even as the reason for divorce in Israel. Israel was married to Jehovah, but He had to divorce her for her sins. But we are the body of Christ, and no one can be separated from His own body! Our union with Him is unbreakable. This should be reflected in our earthly relationships.

11 When there has been a separation, a woman may not marry again so long as her husband is living.

12 The rule where one is an unbeliever is modified to suit conditions. The believer is to make no move toward separation, but if the unbeliever obtains a divorce the believer is entirely free.

13 While it is not right for a believer to marry an unbeliever, grace makes ample provision for such, especially as many are called while married to an unbeliever. Just as everything which touched the altar was holy (Ex.29³⁷), so the unbeliever is hallowed by association with one of God's saints.

depriving one another, except it should be by agreement for a period, that you should have leisure for fasting and prayer, and you may be the same again, lest Satan should be trying you because of your incontinence. Now this I am saying as a concession, not as an injunction. For I want all men to be as I myself also, but each has his own gracious gift from God, some, indeed, thus, yet some, thus.

8 Now I am saying to the unmarried and widows, that it is ideal for them if they should be remaining even as I. Yet if they are not controlling themselves, let them marry, for it is better to marry than to be on fire.

10 Now to the married I am charging, not I, but the Lord: A wife is not to be separated from her husband. Yet if she should be separated also, let her remain unmarried or be conciliated to her husband. And a husband is not to desert a wife.

12 Now the rest I am saying, not the Lord. If any brother has an unbelieving wife, and she approves of making a home with him, let him not be deserting her. And a wife who has an unbelieving husband, and he approves of making a home with her, let her not be deserting her husband. For the unbelieving husband has been hallowed by the wife, and the unbelieving wife has been hallowed by the brother, else, consequently, your children are unclean. Yet now they are holy. Yet if the unbeliever is separating, let them be separating. A brother or a sister is not enslaved in such a case. Now God has called us in peace. For what are you aware. O wife, if you will be saving your husband, or what are you aware,

²³ Slavery has quite gone out of fashion, but those who have been bought with the blood of Christ should not be slow to acknowledge that in their case, it still exists. We are not our own. Let us glory in this. Not only are we His servants, but we are His slaves. We have no right to our own will and way. We are slaves of the Lord Christ, but not of any man, though he be Christ's apostle.

²⁵ The record of Paul's opinion is as much inspired as the injunction of the Lord. It is evident that no set rule can be laid down for the regulation of such matters which would not lead to license or undue restraint. So we have only the apostle's opinion, based on the condition of affairs in Corinth at the time. There was evidently much laxity of morals, due perhaps to the fact that the members of the Corinthian ecclesia had been themselves involved in the loose manners for which the city was noted, and to the low level of conduct prevailing all about them. This opinion does not apply at all times or places, for it would lead to monasticism. Hence the apostle is careful to add that those who do not follow his advice are not guilty of any wrong action.

O husband, if you will be saving ¹⁷ your wife, except as the Lord parts to each?

Each as God has called him, thus let him be walking. And thus am I ¹⁸ prescribing in all the ecclesias. Was anyone called having been circumcised? Let him not be de-circumcised. Has anyone been called in uncircumcision? Let him not be ¹⁹ circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the precepts of ²⁰ God. Each one in the calling in which he was called—in this let him ²¹ be remaining. Were you called a slave? You need not care. But if you are able to become free also, ²² use it rather. For the slave being called in the Lord is the Lord's freedman. Likewise, he who is called, being free, is a slave of ²³ Christ. You are bought with a price. Do not become the slaves ²⁴ of men. Let each one, in what he was called, brethren, in this be remaining with God.

²⁵ Now concerning virgins [or celibates] I have no injunction of the Lord. Yet I am giving an opinion as one who has obtained mercy of ²⁶ the Lord to be faithful. I am inferring, then, this to belong to the ideal, because of the present necessity, seeing that it is ideal for a ²⁷ person to be thus. Have you been bound to a wife? Be not seeking to be loosed. Have you been ²⁸ loosed from a wife? Be not seeking a wife. Yet even if you should be marrying, you did not sin. And if a virgin should marry, she did not sin. Yet such will be having affliction in the flesh. Yet I am sparing you.

³² No doubt both Paul and Peter were representative men whose personal affairs were in accord with the dispensations given them by the Lord. Peter went about with a wife, for the relationship between the Lord and the remnant in Israel, to whom Peter belonged, was figured by the marriage tie. They were the bride of the Lamb. Paul, on the other hand, revealed a nearer and closer union, that of the human body, in which Christ was the head and His saints the members. Paul, consequently, never married, but devoted himself undistractedly to the Lord's service. This is the ideal for this economy, yet the apostle is most careful not to press it as an injunction, for, unless such a course is entered upon wholeheartedly and with faith and fortitude which few possess, it would lead only to failure.

³³ In this economy of grace there is no room for divorce. The marriage tie is binding for life. What Moses gave the hard-hearted sons of Israel is no rule for us. And even the single cause to which our Lord confined divorce was based on the kingdom code, not on the superabundance of grace in which we revel. Death alone can sever the marriage bond today, so far as two saints are concerned. If one, however, is an unbeliever, and deserts the believer, this also leaves the believer free. But, apart from this, it is entirely out of keeping with God's grace for two who have tasted of His favor, to seek to sever the tie.

³⁰ may be as not having them, and those lamenting as not lamenting, and those rejoicing as not rejoicing, and those buying as not retaining, and those using this world, as not using it up. For the fashion of this world is passing by.

³² Now I want you to be without solicitude. The unmarried one is solicitous about the things of the Lord, how he should be pleasing the Lord. Yet he who marries is solicitous about the things of the world, how he should be pleasing his wife, and is parted. And the unmarried woman and the virgin: the unmarried one is solicitous about the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit, yet she who marries is solicitous about the things of the world, how she should be pleasing her husband. Now this I am saying with a view to your own expedience, not that I should be casting a noose over you, but with a view to that which is respectable and assiduous—to be undistractedly for the Lord.

³⁶ Now if anyone is inferring it to be indecent for his virgin, if she should be over her meridian, and thus it ought to occur, let him be doing what he will: it is not sinning. Let them be marrying. Yet he who stands settled in his heart, having no necessity, yet has authority over his own will, and has decided this in his own heart (to be keeping his own virgin) will be doing ideally. So that the celibate himself also who is marrying, will be doing ideally, yet he who is not giving in marriage will be doing better.

³⁹ A wife is bound by law for whatever time her husband is living. Yet

ΟΒΥΤΩΝ ΟΙΔΑΜΕΝ ΟΤΙ ΠΑΝΤ 13000
WE-HAVE-PERCEIVED THAT ALL

¹ Except in heathen lands, the question of eating that which has been offered in sacrifice to idols, is no longer a pertinent one, but the principle handed down is quite as important as ever. Those who are advanced in the faith know that there is no difference between food offered to idols and any other. Before God they may freely eat, but not before their brethren whose faith is not established. So we may freely do many things before God which might offend our brethren and cause them to stumble. Let us not flaunt our liberty in their faces, but rather let us refrain from that which may result in harm to a weak brother. Let us walk in love.

² We have here a marvelously exact and concise definition of the relationship which we sustain to God and to the Lord, which, in turn, throws much light on their respective relationship to each other. Briefly put, God is the Source and Object of all; Christ is the Channel of all. Thus it is always found. We are never said to come out of Christ, but out of God. Indeed, Christ asserts that He Himself, came out of God (Jn.8:42). All is out of God (Rom.11:36). But God never deals with us except through His Anointed. Creation began in the Son of God and was carried out through Him. He has the same place in redemption. There is no conflict, for, while the Son, as the Image of the Father, is entitled to be called God and to receive the same honor as the Father, yet He Himself insists that His Father is greater than all (Jn. 10:29). All that He had was received from His Father. His very life was a gift (Jn.5:26), and He lived by the Father (Jn.6:57). He did the Father's will, not His own. He sought the Father's glory, not His own. He was one with the Father, and desired that the disciples might become partakers of that unity (Jn. 17:23). So that He Himself was in every way, out of the Father. On the other hand, He is the only Way to the Father, the only means through Whom we may know God. Hence, while all is sourced in God the Father, all is channeled through the Son. It is only by clinging closely to the exact language of holy writ that we may hope to gain a clear conception of the relation of the Father to the Son.

if the husband should be reposing, she is free to be married to whom she will, only in the Lord. Yet she is happier if she should be remaining thus, according to my opinion. Now I presume that I also have God's spirit.

³ Now concerning the idol sacrifices: We are aware that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffs up, yet love edifies. If anyone is presuming to have known anything, he knew not as yet according as he ought to know. Now if anyone is loving God, he is known by Him. Then, concerning feeding on the idol sacrifices: We are aware that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is no other God except One. For even if so be that there are those being termed gods, whether in heaven or on earth, even as there are many gods and many lords, nevertheless to us there is one God, the Father, out of Whom all is, and we for Him, and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through Whom all is, and we through Him. But in all there is not this knowledge. Now some, hitherto used to an idol, are eating of it as an idol sacrifice, and their conscience, being weak, is polluted. Now food will not give us a standing with God, neither, if we should not be eating are we in want, nor if we should be eating are we surfeited.

¹ The Corinthians questioned the apostleship of Paul. The phrase, "the twelve apostles" has been used to throw doubt on his commission, for if there were but twelve apostles, Paul could not have been one of them. He did not have the qualifications, and Matthias was duly chosen to fill Judas' place. Only one who had been with the Lord from John's baptism onward to His ascension was qualified to be counted with the twelve (Ac.1:22). Paul did not meet the Lord until some years later. The kingdom apostles are limited to twelve, for there will be only twelve thrones provided for them when they rule the tribes of Israel in the kingdom (Mt.19:28). It is evident that Paul and Barnabas and Timothy and Apollos will have no apostolic reward in that kingdom. Their apostleship is of an entirely different order. The gospel of the Uncircumcision was committed to Paul as that of the Circumcision had been to Peter. James, Cephas and John, chief of the twelve apostles, recognized this and gave Paul and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, that they should go to the nations. The twelve confined themselves to the Circumcision. Thus there are two distinct orders of apostles, the twelve to the Circumcision, connected with the kingdom on earth, and an indefinite number, of whom Paul was chief, sent to the nations and connected with the successive ministries of the apostle Paul. Though the Corinthians denied his apostolic authority, he was not a whit behind Peter, the chief of the Circumcision apostles.

brethren, and beating their weak conscience, you are sinning against Christ. Wherefore, if food is snaring my brother, I should under no circumstances eat meat for the eon, lest I should be snaring my brother.

⁹ Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus, our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? If I am not an apostle to others, nevertheless I surely am to you. For you are the seal of my apostleship in the Lord.

³ My defense to those examining me is this: Have we no right at all to eat and drink? Have we no right at all to be leading about a sister as a wife, even as the rest of the apostles and the brothers of the Lord and Cephas? Or have I and Barnabas only no right not to be working? What soldier is at any time purchasing his own rations? Is anyone planting a vineyard and not eating of its fruit? Or is anyone tending a flock and not eating of the milk of the flock?

⁸ Am I speaking these things according to man, or is not the law also saying these things? For in the law of Moses it is written: "You shall not be muzzling the threshing ox." Is God caring for oxen? ¹⁰ Or is He undoubtedly saying it because of us? Because of us, for it was written that he who is plowing ought to be plowing in expectation, and he who is threshing, in his expectation of partaking in the expectation. If we sow the spiritual in you, is it a great thing if we shall be reaping of your fleshly things? If others are partaking of your right, are not we rather? Nevertheless we do not use this right, but we are foregoing all, lest we may be giving any hindrance to the evangel of Christ.

¹³ God has always made due provision for the support of His servants. The priests and Levites were not concerned with their own livelihood, hence had no allotment of land to till, but depended on the labors of their brethren. They were wholly devoted to God's service. The same rule applies to the proclamation of the evangel.

¹⁵ It seems a marvel that the saints who owed so much to the apostle would have allowed him to engage in menial labor, when they could easily have supplied his meager needs. Yet herein was his glory, that, though supporting himself, at least in part, he still found time and strength to do more than any other apostle. The natural course would have been to use his authority to the full so that he could give himself wholly to the work of the ministry. The marks of true greatness are apparent in his anxiety not to use his full authority, but to do everything which in any way may be a benefit to the evangel. Such a course as this ought to be all the more effective in these days when the stain of filthy lucre is a prominent mark on many religious enterprises. The world has learned to look upon religion as a means of gain. The history of the church has been one long endeavor on the part of the clergy (with many noble exceptions) to enrich themselves at the expense of the laity. Had Paul's spirit prevailed, what a different story there would be to tell!

¹⁹ Many otherwise inexplicable events in Paul's career, as narrated in the book of Acts, are to be explained on the principle of conduct here laid down by the apostle. His course often seems to contradict the truth he had enunciated in the epistles he had penned. However strongly he insisted on freedom from the law, he could, nevertheless, take part in the rites and ceremonies of the temple when among his Jewish brethren. The whole narrative of Acts shows him becoming all things to all with whom he came in contact. On his journeys, in Jerusalem, in jail, on board the foundering ship—wherever he was he adapted himself to the men and means at his disposal to forward the claims of the evangel. The same principle should regulate our efforts that we also may gain some.

¹⁶ For if I should be preaching the evangel, I have nothing to boast of, for necessity is laid upon me, for it were woe to me if I should ¹⁷ not be preaching the evangel! For if I am engaging in this voluntarily, I have wages, yet if involuntarily, I have been entrusted with an administration. What, then, are my ¹⁸ wages? That, in preaching the evangel, I should be placing the evangel without expense, so as not to use up my authority in the evangel.

¹⁹ For, being free of all, I enslave myself to all, that I should be gain-
²⁰ ing more. And I became to the Jews as a Jew, that I should be gaining Jews; to those under law as under law (not being myself under law), that I should be gaining ²¹ those under law; to those without law as without law (not being without God's law, but legally Christ's), that I should be gaining ²² those without law. I became as weak to the weak, that I should be gaining the weak. To all I have become all, that I should undoubt-
²³ edly be saving some. Now I am doing all because of the evangel, that I should be becoming a joint participant of it.

²⁵ Contestants in the Grecian games had to take an oath that they had been ten months in training, and that they would violate none of the regulations. They lived on a prescribed diet and exercised severe self-restraint. The wreath or "crown" was made of the leaves of the pine. Groves of these trees surrounded the stadium near Corinth. Other leaves were used in other cities. For some time parsley was substituted for pine, but it seems that, in the time of the apostle, they used the pine wreaths. To avoid confusing these chaplets with the symbol of regal authority they are never called a "crown" in this version.

²⁶ The subject before the apostle is not salvation, but service and reward. The apostle is not concerned lest he should be a "castaway", but whether he should win the prize. Two things are necessary, self-control and obedience to the rules of the game. Both are essential in order to win a wreath. In these days, when "success" is measured by human standards, it is of the utmost importance to press the fact that a violation of the rules absolutely bars the contestant from all hope of a prize. Service at the expense of truth or of conscience, to gain a livelihood or win popularity, no matter how strenuous, wins no prize. God looks on the motive and method, not on the apparent results. May we all so strive that He will be able to bestow the amaranthine wreath upon us!

²⁴ Are you not aware that those racing in the stadium are, indeed, all racing, yet one is obtaining the prize? Thus be racing that you may grasp it. Now everyone who is contending is controlling himself in all things; they, indeed, then, that they may be obtaining a corruptible wreath, yet we an incorruptible. Now then, thus am I racing, not as dubious, thus am I boxing, not as punching the air, ²⁷ but I am belaboring my body and leading it unto slavery, lest somehow, when proclaiming to others, I may be becoming disqualified myself.

¹⁰ For I do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, that our fathers all were under the cloud, and all came through the sea, and all are baptized into Moses in the cloud ² and in the sea, and all ate the same ³ spiritual food, and all drank the same spiritual drink, for they drank of the spiritual Rock following them. Now the Rock was Christ.

⁵ But God does not delight in the majority of them, for they were ⁶ strewn along in the wilderness. Now these things became types of us, so that we are not to be lusters after evil, according as they also lust. ⁷ Neither become idolaters, according as some of them, even as it is written, "The people are seated to eat and drink, and rise to sport." ⁸ Neither should we commit prostitution, according as some of them commit prostitution, and fall in one day, twenty-three thousand. ⁹ Neither may we be putting the Lord on trial, according as some of them put Him on trial, and were ¹⁰ destroyed by serpents. Neither be murmuring, even as some of them murmur, and were destroyed by the exterminator.

¹¹ The eons are divided into two classes, the first three, which are preparatory, and the last two, called the "eons of the eons", which turn the evil of the first class into good. The last two eons, including the thousand years' reign and the reign of the saints in the new heavens and new earth, are the fruit and consummation of the evil eons. In spirit, Paul brought those under his ministry into the new creation, which is the spiritual counterpart of the eon inaugurated by the new heavens and new earth. It is only thus that the consummations of the eons had already reached the Corinthians.

¹³ God does not try us to break us down but to build us up. Hence He sends nothing insupportable. He does not however, make "a way of escape", as many of His saints have found by experience. If He did, why or how could that enable them to undergo it? They would not need to endure it if He took them out of it. He makes a sequel. This word occurs again in Heb. 13: "contemplating the sequel (A. V. end) of their behaviour". All the great examples of trial were sustained by a contemplation of its sequel. Joseph held the sceptre in the prison. David wore the crown in Adullam. Even Job knew that he would see his Redeemer. We should not try to escape trial, but seek grace to endure it. We should not occupy ourselves with it, but contemplate the blessed outcome which it is designed to produce.

²⁰ There seems little doubt but that the heathen divinities were not mere myths, but actual demons. These are rampant today in Spiritism and often deceive the saints into believing that they are the holy spirit of God by mimicking the gifts which were bestowed during the proclamation of the kingdom.

¹¹ Now all this befalls them typically. Yet it was written with a view to our admonition, to whom the consummations of the eons have attained. So that, let him who is supposing he stands beware that he should not be falling. No trial has taken you except what is human. Now God is faithful, Who will not be leaving you to be tried above what you are able, but, together with the trial, will be making the sequel also, to enable you to undergo it.

¹⁴ Wherefore, my beloved, be fleeing from idolatry. I am saying this as to the prudent: judge you what I am averring. The cup of blessing which we are blessing, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we are breaking, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? Seeing that we, who are many, are one bread, one body, for all are partaking of the one bread.

¹⁸ Observe Israel according to the flesh. Are not those who are eating the sacrifices participants with the altar? What, then, am I averring? That an idol sacrifice is anything? Or that an idol is anything? ²⁰ But that which the nations are sacrificing, they are sacrificing to demons and not to God. Now I do not want you to become participants with demons. You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot be partaking of the table of the Lord and the table of demons. Or are we making the Lord jealous? Are we stronger than He?

³² It has been customary, in the study of "dispensational" truth, to divide the human race into "the Jew, the Gentile, and the church of God", and base the division on this passage. It is well, however, to note that the classification here is not Israel and the nations, but the Jew and the Greek. The Jew stands for the religious man, the Greek for the rationalist. One required signs, the other sought for wisdom. These, especially the Jew, would have a sensitive conscience on matters of small moment, and would be easily offended. Their modern representatives observe days, and abstain from foods, and have things sacred and profane. A tender solicitude for their conscience will keep us from becoming a stumbling block to them.

¹ Is it presumption on the part of Paul to set himself up for our imitation? Not at all, for he adds, as I also am of Christ. He knew how to follow Christ. He did not make the mistake of following "Jesus" in His earthly walk, before His death and resurrection, for he never knew Him then. He followed the Christ Who was in the glory, Whom He had met on the Damascus road. It is noteworthy that the Christ Whom Paul knew never appeared to the Circumcision after His ascension as He did to Paul. They were associated with His earthly career and its resumption when He reappears on the mount of Olives at His advent. Paul imitates Him in His gracious dealings with himself and the nations from His heavenly throne. This calls for conduct in many respects radically different from the example He left the twelve apostles. A single point will suffice to show this. The Lord Jesus never preached to any but Jews and proselytes. He warned His disciples not to go to the other nations. How could we imitate Him in this?

sold at the meat market, examining nothing because of conscience. For the earth and that which fills it is the Lord's.

²⁷ If any of the unbelievers is inviting you, and you want to go, be eating everything placed before you, examining nothing because of conscience. Yet if anyone should be saying to you, "This is a sacred sacrifice", do not eat, because of that one who divulges it, and conscience. Yet if anyone should be saying, not your own, but another's.

²⁸ For why is my freedom being decided by another's conscience? If I, with gratitude, am partaking, why am I being calumniated for that for which I am giving thanks? ²⁹ Then, whether you are eating or drinking, or whatever you are doing, be doing all for the glory of ³² God. And become not a stumbling block to Jews and Greeks and the ³³ ecclesia of God, according as I also am pleasing all in all things, not seeking my own expedience, but that of the many, that they may be

² Now I am applauding you that you have been reminded of all of mine, and are retaining the traditions according as I give them over ³ to you. Now I want you to be aware that the Head of every man is Christ, yet the head of the woman is the man, yet the Head of Christ is God.

⁷ The modern disregard and ridicule of these wise customs is but a symptom of the prevalent apostasy and insubordination to the truth of God, as well as of the ignorance which does not appreciate the profound wisdom which underlies them. It would seem that the messengers, or angels, realize these various headships and the signs which should acknowledge them. Hence, though men have lost all appreciation of their significance, it is still due to these unseen observers to comply with a custom which is in accord with both nature and revelation. The covering of a woman's head is no disrespect to her. It signifies that her head—the man—should be covered when in God's presence. The uncovering of a man's head is no boast of his. It represents his Head—Christ—Who is the Image and Glory of God.

¹⁸ The schisms of that early day did not begin to reach the open rupture we see everywhere about us today. The sects in the Corinthian ecclesias doubtless all came together in one place. No such thing was known as believers in Christ actually divided into independent ecclesias, though living in the same locality. The sin of schism and sectarianism seems to be the most incurable affliction of the church. The later history of the Corinthians shows that, though they were purged of the various heresies and immoralities into which they had fallen, after Paul's death they once more broke up into rival factions, each of which followed some distinguished leader. In recent times, various efforts have been made to restore this outward unity, but, in each case, it has led to another division. The true course for those who wish to please God seems to be indicated by the apostle's charge to keep the unity of the spirit in the tie of peace (Eph.4³), and to have fellowship with all who invoke the name of the Lord out of a clean heart (2 Tim. 2²²). The visible, outward unity of believers no longer remains. Let us cultivate fellowship with all, irrespective of the man-made walls which divide us. Soon we shall all be caught up into the presence of Christ and then every barrier will be banished. Let us do our share to realize this unity now.

to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered. For a man, indeed, possessing the image and glory of God, ought not to have the head covered. Yet the woman is the glory of the man. For man is not out of woman, but woman out of man. For man is not created also because of the woman, but woman because of the man. Therefore the woman ought to have authority on her head because of the messengers. However, neither is woman apart from man, nor man apart from woman, in the Lord. For even as the woman is out of the man, thus also the man is through the woman, yet all is of God.

¹³ Judge of them among you. Is it becoming in a woman to be praying to God uncovered? Is not the same instinct teaching you that if a man, indeed, should have tresses, it is a dishonor to him, yet if a woman should have tresses, it is her glory, seeing that tresses have been given her instead of clothing?

¹⁷ Now in giving this charge I am not applauding, seeing that you are coming together, not for the better, but for discomfiture. For first, indeed, at your coming together in the ecclesia I am hearing of schisms existing among you, and some part I am believing. For it must be that there are sects also among you, that those also, who are qualified, may be becoming apparent among you.

²¹ The phrase "the Lord's supper" is misleading. Supper denotes an evening meal, but the word here employed has no such significance, though its first observance was at night. The word denotes the principal meal of the day, just as the word dinner does with us, without any reference to the time when it is eaten. The Corinthians brought their own dinners and ate them in the ecclesia. This custom was not approved by the apostle. He would have them eat at home.

²⁴ The word "remembrance" fails to give the full force of the Greek word here used. It is a strengthened form of the usual term for remembrance, denoting a voluntary and sustained effort.

²⁵ At this time the believers among the nations were still subordinate to Israel. They were still partakers of their spiritual things, hence they were considered as coming under the blessings of the new covenant. The later revelations contained in the Perfection Epistles, gave them an independent standing outside the new covenant which Jehovah made with Israel.

²⁷ The manner in which the Corinthians partook of the Lord's dinner was not in keeping with the august solemnity befitting such a sacred recollection. The powers of the kingdom were still present among them and led to the judgment of those who had offended. Some suffered from illness and some even died. Even thus, the apostle explains, it is that such should not be condemned with the world. The discipline of the Lord is always salutary, even though it may seem most severe.

²² hungry, yet one is drunk. For have you no homes in which to eat and drink? Or are you despising the ecclesia of God, and mortifying those who have nothing? What may I be saying to you? Shall I be applauding you in this? I am not applauding.

²³ For I accepted from the Lord, what I give over also to you, that the Lord Jesus, in the night in which He was betrayed, took bread, and giving thanks, He breaks it and said, "This is My body which is broken for your sakes. Be doing this for a recollection of Me."

²⁵ Similarly, the cup also, after dinner, saying, "This is the cup of the new covenant in My blood. Be doing this, whensoever you should be drinking, for a recollection of Me." For whensoever you should be eating this bread and drinking this cup, you are announcing the Lord's death till He should be coming.

²⁷ So that, whoever should be eating the bread or drinking the cup of the Lord unworthily, will be liable for the body and blood of the Lord.

²⁸ Now let a man be testing himself first, and thus let him be eating of the bread and drinking of the cup. For he who is eating and drinking unworthily is eating and drinking judgment to himself, not discriminating the body of the ³⁰ Lord. Because of this many among you are infirm and ailing, and a considerable number are reposing. For if we adjudicated ourselves, we would not be judged. Yet, being judged, we are disciplined by the Lord, that we may not be condemned with the world.

³³ So that, my brethren, be waiting for one another when coming to-

⁷ The spirit we have received, though one, manifests itself in a variety of ways. This was far more manifest among the Corinthians than it is today, for the signs which characterized that immature economy were closely allied to the miraculous manifestations which accompany the proclamation of the kingdom. As the next chapter explains, now that maturity has arrived, such exhibitions of the spirit's power are not in keeping with the perfection or maturity of this secret economy.

Spiritual endowments were not confined to one member of an ecclesia, or even to a few. Each one was given some special evidence of the spirit's presence, with a view to the blessing of all. None of these endowments, whether wisdom, or healing, or languages, was the outgrowth of natural ability. Neither could any one acquire them. They were apportioned to each one quite apart from human instrumentality. Though these endowments are no longer given, the divine principle still remains, that God chooses His instruments quite apart from their natural qualifications.

¹² The figure of the human body is the most notable of all the illustrations of our relationship to Christ. It is the most marvelous example of unity with diversity in the realm of creation. Spirit baptism unites all who believe God to one another and to Christ, and dissipates all the physical distinctions which divide humanity into diverse and antagonistic classes, making them one in Him. In Christ there is no Greek and Jew, bond and free, male and female. In the Lord, however, in relation to service, these distinctions still remain.

²⁴ gether to eat. Now if anyone is hungry, let him be eating at home, that you may not be coming together for judgment. Now the rest I shall be prescribing as soon as I should be coming.

¹² Now concerning spiritual [endowments], brethren, I do not want you to be ignorant. You are aware that when you were of the nations you were led off to the voiceless idols as ever you were led. Wherefore I am making known to you that no one, speaking by God's spirit, is saying "Anathema Jesus". And no one is able to say "Lord Jesus" except by holy spirit.

⁴ Now there are apportionments of graces, yet the same spirit, and there are apportionments of service, yet the same Lord, and there are apportionments of operations, yet the same God Who is operating all in all.

¹¹ Now one and the same spirit is operating all these, apportioning to each his own, according as it is intending.

¹² For even as the body is one and has many members, yet all the members of the one body, being many, are one body, thus also is the Christ. For in one spirit we all are ¹³ The body of Jesus, or of the Lord, denotes His physical frame. The body of Christ, however, is quite a distinct thought. Christ, or the Anointed, is a title rather than a name. It suggests official position. We are not united to Him by physical ties, as Israel was, but by purely spiritual relationships. This is forcibly suggested by the two figures used, baptism, or dipping, and drinking. One spirit, within and without, binds us together and unites us to Christ. The true ecclesia, or "church", today is not to be seen in the multitudinous organizations of Christendom with their many heads, but in the one spiritual, invisible unity, composed of all who have God's spirit, by which they are vitally joined to the living organism of which Christ Himself is Head.

All the members of this spiritual body are mutually dependent on one another. Some perform one function, some another, but none can be dispensed with. No one can choose his own place in the body, for God reserves this entirely within His own power. It is futile to usurp some function for which we are not divinely endowed. It is failure when we do not exercise the function for which the spirit of God has fitted us. Each one should be deeply exercised to discover his own place in the body, whether high or low, respectable or mean, and seek, by God's grace, to fill it. None can be apostles or prophets now, for their work has been accomplished. Few can be teachers, but the work of a pastor, who shepherds the saints, or an evangelist, who proclaims the evangel, is, in measure, open to all in a private, if not in a public way.

²⁵ It is the privilege of all who love God to co-operate with Him in avoiding schism in the body of Christ, by cultivating a due sense of their dependence on all other members, and a godly solicitude and sympathetic regard for their welfare; and this, too, even when fellow members despise and oppose them and persecute them. The body is one. We need only act accordingly. Christ is its Head. We need only accord Him His place.

²⁸ In the later revelation (Eph.4¹¹) "suited to transcendence" (12³¹), we have a revised list of the gifts. There baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, and all are made to imbibe one spirit.

¹⁴ For the body is not one member,
¹⁵ but many. If a foot should be saying, "Seeing that I am not a hand, I am not of the body," not for this is it not of the body. And if an ear should be saying, "Seeing that I am not an eye, I am not of the body," not for this is it not of the body. If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the scent? Yet now God placed the members, each one of them, in the body according as He wills. Now if it were all one member, where were the body?

²⁰ Yet now there are, indeed, many
²¹ members, yet one body. Yet the eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no need of you", or, again, the head to the feet, "I have no need of you". Nay, much rather, the members belonging to the body supposed to be weaker are necessary, and which we suppose to be more to the dishonor of the body, these we are investing with more exceeding honor, and our indecent members have more exceeding respectability. Now our respectable members have no need, but God blends the body together, giving that which is deficient more exceeding honor, that there may be no schism in the body, but the members may be mutually solicitous over one another. And whether one member suffers, all the members are sympathizing, or one member is being esteemed, all the members are rejoicing together.

²⁷ Now you are the body of Christ,
²⁸ and members of a part, whom also God, indeed, placed in the ecclesia, the lesser graces, such as powers, healing, and languages are omitted. That this would be the case is predicted in the next chapter (13^a), where we are told of a time when the gift of languages would cease. The revised list given in Ephesians, however, looks backward as well as forward. Apostles and prophets are no longer necessary to the edifying of the body of Christ. We are distinctly told that prophecies will be abrogated (13^a) when maturity arrives. They were needed only so long as God's written revelation was incomplete. So that, today, the special gifts have narrowed down to three: evangelists, pastors and teachers.

³¹ Most of the graces were transient, suited to immaturity, hence the apostle seeks to lead them up to those which will remain in the impending transcendent economy, in which we find ourselves today.

¹ The "gift of tongues", even when it was a reality, was nothing but a noise unless impelled by the power of love.

Even those high endowments, such as prophecy and knowledge, amount to nothing unless love regulates their exercise. Yes, and every personal sacrifice, even martyrdom itself is without value apart from the spirit of love.

⁸ It would seem that a few were already mature (2^o), but the secret wisdom into which they were initiated was not made public until Paul wrote his Perfection Epistles, Ephesians (Eph.4¹³), Philippians (Phil.3¹⁰), and Colossians (Col.1²⁸4¹²). The writing of these epistles was the signal for the abrogation of the gift of prophecy, as they completed the word of God (Col. 1²⁵), for the cessation of the gift of languages, as it was a sign of earthly powers in the coming eon, and we are blessed among the celestials (Eph.1³), and for the abrogation of the gift of knowledge (directly revealed), as there was a final written revelation.

first, apostles, second, prophets, third, teachers, thereupon powers, thereupon graces of healing, supports, pilotage, species of languages. Not all are apostles. Not all are prophets. Not all are teachers. Not all have powers. Not all have the graces of healing. Not all are talking languages. Not all are interpreting. Yet be zealous for the greater graces. And still I am showing you a path suited to transcendence.

13 If I should be talking the languages of men and of messengers, yet have no love, I have become resounding copper or a clanging cymbal. And if I should have prophecy and should be perceiving all secrets and all knowledge, and if I should have all faith, so as to transport mountains, yet have no love, I am nothing. And if I should be parceling out all my possessions, and if I should be giving up my body, that I should be boasting, yet have no love, I am nothing benefited. Love is patient, is kind. Love is not jealous. Love is not bragging, is not puffed up, is not indecent, is not self-seeking, is not incensed, is not taking account of evil, is not rejoicing in injustice, yet is rejoicing together with the truth, is foregoing all, is believing all, is expecting all, is enduring all.

⁸ Love is never lapsing: yet, whether prophecies, they will be abrogated; whether languages, they will cease; whether knowledge, it will be abrogated. For we know out of an instalment, and we are prophesying out of an instalment. Now whenever maturity may be coming, that which is out of an instalment shall be abrogated. When ¹¹ The time came when the apostle admonished and taught in order that he should present every man mature in Christ (Col.1²⁸). Epaphras struggled in prayers that they should stand mature and complete in all the will of God (Col.4¹²). It is evident that maturity came with the last ministry of Paul, when he was a prisoner at Rome. Till then the saints, as a whole, were in a state corresponding to a man who has not yet attained his majority. But then, as was the case when a boy assumed the duties of manhood, there was a vast revolution. As a man discards the toys of his childhood, so they discarded the marks of minority. Chief among these were the gifts, especially prophecy and languages. Those who claim these now cannot avoid marking themselves as immature.

¹ Prophecy prepared them for further unfoldings and maturity. Languages tended to draw them back to the kingdom proclamation and its attendant signs.

I was a minor, I talked as a minor, I had a minor's disposition, I took account of things as a minor. Yet when I have become a man, I have discarded that which is a minor's.

¹² For at present we are observing by means of a mirror, in an enigma, yet then, face to face. At present I know out of an instalment, yet then I shall recognize according as I am recognized also.

¹³ Yet now are remaining faith, expectancy, love—these three. Yet ¹⁴ the greatest of these is love. Be pursuing love.

Now be zealous for spiritual [endowments], yet rather that you ² may be prophesying. For he who is talking a language is not talking to men, but to God. For no one is hearing, but in spirit he is speaking ³ secrets. Yet he who is prophesying is speaking to men to edification and consolation and comfort. ⁴ He who is talking a language is edifying himself, yet he who is prophesying is edifying the ecclesia. Now ⁵ I want you all to be talking languages, yet rather that you may be prophesying, for greater is he who is prophesying than he who is talking languages, outside and except he may be interpreting, that the ecclesia may be getting edification.

⁶ Yet now, brethren, if I should be coming to you talking languages, what shall I be benefiting you if I should not be speaking either in revelation, or in knowledge, or ⁷ in prophecy, or in teaching? Likewise, the sounds given by soulless things, whether flute or lyre, if it should not be giving a distinction to the utterances, how will the fluting or lyre playing be known? ⁸ For even if a trumpet should give a dubious sound, who will be preparing for battle? Thus, you also, if ⁹

¹⁰ Though without any manuscript evidence, it may be that the original reading of "nothing is soundless" was "none of them is senseless". This seems to be demanded by the context, which insists on sense as well as sound. A single letter P (which is the equivalent of our R) would change aphoonon, soundless, to aphroonon, senseless. As this version is founded on facts, rather than the judgment of its editor, he could not make this alteration, however much it may appeal to him.

¹² The gifts were given for mutual edification, not for entertainment or vain display. The misuse of the gift of languages was a clear indication of the childish immaturity of the Corinthians, for they were eager to display the possession of the gift without any regard for the edification of others. A foreign language is a mere babel of sounds to those who do not understand it. And even if it should be interpreted, of what real gain is it to use such a circuitous method when the same things could be told just as well without the need of interpretation? Such was not the divine intention in giving this gift. On the day of Pentecost this gift was used in a useful and rational way, for it was a sign that Jehovah was speaking to His people. Moreover, this sign is not for believers, or even to reach unbelievers, for it is written "neither thus will they be hearkening to Me". (Isa. 28¹²). Surely it is far better to speak five instructive words in the vernacular than any number in an unknown language, even if it be the exhibition of a spiritual endowment. The same argument applies with even more force to the use of a foreign language, which no one understands, in a church ritual. It may be imposing and spectacular but it fails utterly in edifying the saints.

²² Paul's high regard for the gift of prophecy is founded on the fact that it was the chief means used to bring the saints to that maturity which he earnestly desired they should attain. The gift of teaching, the exposition of the scriptures, now takes the place of prophecy, for God has fully revealed His will in His word.

you should not be giving an intelligible expression through the languages, how will it be known what is being spoken? For you will be talking into the air. There are, perchance, so many species of sounds in the world, and nothing is soundless. If, then, I should not be perceiving the import of the sound, I shall be a barbarian to the one talking and the one talking a barbarian to me. Thus you also, since you are zealots for spiritual [endowments], seek that you may be superabounding to the edification of the ecclesia.

¹³ Wherefore let even him who is talking a language be praying that ¹⁴ he may be interpreting. For if I should be praying in a language, my spirit is praying, yet ¹⁵ my mind is unfruitful. What is it then? Should I be praying in spirit, yet I will be praying with the mind also. In the spirit I will be playing, yet I will be playing ¹⁶ with the mind also. Else, if you should be blessing in the spirit, how shall he who is filling the place of a plain man be declaring "Amen!" at your giving of thanks, since, in fact, he is not aware what you are saying? For you, indeed, are giving thanks ideally, but the other is not edified.

¹⁸ I am thanking God I talk in a ¹⁹ language more than all of you. But in the ecclesia do I want to speak five words with my mind, that I should be instructing others also, or ten thousand words in a language?

²⁴ Predicting, or foretelling, is not necessarily involved in the gift of prophecy. The prophet, in Scripture, is the mouthpiece or spokesman of God. He may speak of the past, the present, or the future. Prediction is incidental, not essential, to prophecy. Before the canon was complete it was needful for the saints to have some means of knowing the mind of God. The Scriptures fully meet that need now. What a decided contrast there would be between a meeting at which all declared God's mind in sober succession, so that all are helped, and one in which each seeks an opportunity to display a gift which is of no benefit to his fellow saints! Even unbelievers have discrimination enough to see how foolish it is to talk into the air, and can appreciate the solemn declaration of God's spokesmen.

²⁵ To curb their childish desire to talk in unknown languages the apostle lays down rules to govern the exercise of this gift. It was not to be exercised unless there was an interpreter, so that the message would not be lost on the meeting. Not more than two or three were to speak in unknown languages in succession, and their speaking was to be in instalments, that is, they were to pause at frequent intervals to allow for interpretation. If no one could interpret, they were not to speak in the ecclesia.

²⁶ Prophecy, also, was to be exercised within bounds. It was not to be like the turbulent, unrestrained ranting of the oracles of the false gods to which they were accustomed, whose spirits were beyond their control, but peaceful, discriminating discourse, two or three in succession, yet ready to yield to another who may receive a revelation. The spirits of the prophets of the Greek gods were not subject to them. They worked themselves into a frenzy, foaming at the mouth. They were controlled by demon spirits rather than the spirit of God.

²⁷ "Now if anyone is ignorant, let him be ignorant!" (14³³) is the apostle's indignant protest to those who presume to oppose these words. And again "If anyone presumes to be a prophet or spiritual, let him be recognizing that what I am writing to you is a precept of the Lord."

will they be hearkening to Me', the Lord is saying''. So that languages are for a sign, not to those who are believing, but to the unbelieving. Yet prophecy is not for the unbelieving but for those who are believing.

²⁸ If, then, the whole ecclesia should be coming together in the same place, and all should be talking languages, and should plain persons or unbelievers be entering, will they not be declaring that you are mad?

²⁹ Yet should all be prophesying, and some unbeliever or plain person be entering, he is convinced by all, he is examined by all. The hidden things of his heart are becoming apparent, and thus, falling on his face, he will be worshipping God, reporting that God really is among you.

³⁰ What is it, then, brethren? Whenever you may be coming together each of you has a psalm, has a teaching, has a revelation, has a language, has a translation. Let all occur with a view to edification.

³¹ Whether anyone is talking a language, by two, or, at most, three, and by instalments, let one also be interpreting. Now if there should be no interpreter, let him hush in the ecclesia, yet let him be speaking to himself and to God.

³² Now let the prophets be speaking by two or three, and let the others be discriminating. Yet if it should be revealed to another sitting by, let the first hush, for you can all be prophesying one at a time, that all may be learning and all be consoled. And the spirits of prophets are subject to the prophets. For God is not for turbulence, but peace, as in all the ecclesias of the saints.

⁵ The evidence for the resurrection of Christ is as conclusive as it is possible for any evidence to be. There were over five hundred witnesses and some of these were especially appointed and given ample opportunity to convince themselves. But the crowning proof was the descent of the glorified Christ to call Saul, upon the Damascus road. Saul was His enemy, and would have done much to prove that He was not roused. His testimony is of special weight. The resurrection is of the utmost consequence to Paul, for he did not know the Lord before His death, like the twelve apostles. Consequently he never would have known Him nor would he have seen Him unless He had been raised. In a very special sense Paul is the apostle of the ascended and glorified Christ. He never bases his teaching on the life of Jesus before His death and resurrection.

⁹ Paul's persecution of the ecclesia was the necessary prelude to the transcendent grace which called and sustained him so that he became at once the least and the greatest of the apostles. It was necessary that he should be the most undeserving in order that he might become the pattern for God's present dealings in grace.

³⁴ Let the women in the ecclesias be hushing, for it is not permitted to them to be talking, but let them be subject, according as the law ³⁵ also is saying. Now, if they want to learn anything, let them be inquiring of their own husbands at home, for it is a shame for a woman to be talking in the ecclesia. Or came the word of God out from you? Or ³⁷ attains it to you only? If anyone presumes to be a prophet or spiritual, let him be recognizing that what I am writing to you is a precept of the Lord. Now if anyone is ignorant, let him be ignorant!

³⁹ So that, my brethren, be zealous to be prophesying, and do not forbid talking languages. Yet let all occur respectfully and in order.

¹⁵ Now I am making known to you, brethren, the evangel which I preach to you, which you accepted also, in which you stand also, ² through which you are saved also, if you are retaining what I said in preaching the evangel to you, outside and except your belief is a sham.

³ For I give over to you first what I accepted also, that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures, and that He was entombed, ⁴ and that He has been roused the third day according to the scriptures, and that He was seen by ⁵ Cephas, thereupon by the twelve. ⁶ Thereupon He was seen by above five hundred brethren at once, of whom the majority are remaining hitherto, yet some were put to repose also. Thereupon He was seen ⁷ by James, thereafter by all the apostles.

¹² The resurrection is the very fundamental of fundamentals. The death of Christ is essential to the evangel, yet it is not enough. A dead Christ cannot save. The resurrection is not only essential, but it involves His death, for only one who is dead can be roused from the dead. Without His resurrection we are still in our sins.

¹⁸ The state of the dead, apart from resurrection, is not one of ecstatic bliss, but of destruction.

²⁰ Christ was not the first one to be roused from the dead. The prophets, and the Lord Himself, recalled some to life before He Himself suffered death. But He is the first One to be made alive beyond the power of death. All the others were roused to die again. He is the Firstfruit of those who are vivified, and die no more.

²² The words "even as" mark a close parallel. The universality of death, through Adam, is beyond question. "Thus" we are told, "in Christ, shall all be made alive". This will not occur simultaneously but in three distinct classes at widely separated intervals of time. Christ, the Firstfruit, is already alive at God's right hand. We who are Christ's will be made alive at His presence. This includes His coming to the air for the believers of this economy (1Thes.4¹⁶, 1Cor.15⁵², Phil.3²¹) and His coming to Israel before the thousand years. The rest, who are not included in "those who are Christ's", must wait until the consummation, when death, the last enemy, is abolished. This will not occur until the eons have run their course and Christ hands over the kingdom to the Father. At the great white throne judgment no one is vivified or made alive. Hence it is passed over. Authority and power are still in exercise in the new earth. The throne of the Lamb is there. The consummation must be later, for sovereignty is abolished before death, the last enemy. The consummation is at the close of the eonian times, at the close of the last eon which is presented to our view in the final vision of the Unveiling.

¹⁰ the ecclesia of God. Yet, by the grace of God I am what I am, and His grace, which is for me, did not come to be for naught, but I toil more exceedingly than all of them—yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me. Then, whether ¹¹ I or they, thus we are proclaiming and thus you believe.

¹² Now if Christ is being proclaimed that He has been roused from among the dead, how are some among you saying that there is no resurrection of the dead? Now if there is no resurrection of the dead, neither has Christ been ¹⁴ roused. Now if Christ has not been roused, consequently our proclamation is for naught; your faith ¹⁵ also is for naught. Now we are being found false witnesses also of God, seeing that we testify in accord with God, that He rouses Christ, Whom, consequently, He rouses not if so be that the dead are not being roused. For, if the dead are not being roused, neither has ¹⁷ Christ been roused. Now if Christ has not been roused, vain is your faith—you are still in your sins! ¹⁸ Consequently they also, who are put to repose in Christ, were lost. ¹⁹ If we have an expectation in Christ in this life only, we are more forlorn than all men.

²⁰ Yet now Christ has been roused from among the dead, the Firstfruit of those who are reposing. For since, in fact, death is through a man, resurrection of the dead is through ²² a man also. For, even as, in Adam, all are dying, thus also, in Christ, all shall be vivified. ²³ Yet each in his own class: the Firstfruit, Christ; thereupon those who are Christ's in His presence: ²⁴ thereafter the consummation, whenever He may be giving up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when-

²⁵ The reign of Christ is so beneficent, it brings mankind to such a state of perfection, that all further need of the restraints of government vanishes. Rule implies insubordination, and is unnecessary where there is perfect subjection. Rule is a temporary expedient to cope with evil. When evil is banished rule also retires. The effects of evil for mankind are concentrated in death. When the universe has been purged of all other evil, then death itself becomes inoperative and yields up its victims. Not till then is it true that all are made alive in Christ.

²⁷ The universality of Christ's subjection of all under His feet is evident from the one exception—God Himself.

²⁸ God is All in Christ now. He will be All in His saints when we are made alive. He will be All in all when death is abolished, at the consummation. What a marvelous outcome of God's purpose! What a Christ we have, Who can accomplish such a complete reconciliation!

The Corinthians denied the resurrection of any: Paul insists on the vivification of all.

²⁹ The argument here is founded on the sixth chapter of Romans. Baptism is a symbol of death. Its benefits are confined to those who are united to Christ in His death. But even then it is absolutely valueless except as it also figures the resurrection. Apart from the resurrection of the dead, baptism, instead of introducing to a resurrection experience, will lead to carelessness and indifference.

³⁵ The human body is not composed of definite, unvarying substance, but is changing its components daily, so that, in a few years, it has completely renewed its elements. Yet it remains the same body. So it is in resurrection. We do not look for the identical elements to be roused in the resurrection, even though we will identify the body as our own.

³⁷ The miracle of resurrection is wrought each spring in the fields of the farmer. Death sustains our life now and it will be the entrance to eonian life, if we are not caught up to meet Him ere it comes.

ever He should be abrogating all sovereignty and all authority and power. For He must be reigning until He should be placing all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy being abolished is death. For He subjects all under His feet. Now whenever He may be saying that all has been subjected, it is evident that it is outside of Him Who is subjecting the universe to Him. Now, whenever the universe may be subject to Him, then the Son Himself also shall be subject to Him Who subjects the universe to Him, that God may be All in all.

²⁹ Else what shall they be doing who are being baptized for the sake of the dead? If the dead actually are not being roused, why are they being baptized also for their sake? Why are we also in danger every hour? By this boast of yours, brethren, which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I am dying daily. If, as a man, I fight wild beasts in Ephesus, what benefit is it to me? If the dead are not roused, we may be eating and drinking, for to-morrow we are dying. Be not deceived; evil conversations are corrupting kind characters. Sober up justly and do not be sinning, for some are ignorant of God. I am speaking to abash you.

³⁵ But someone will be protesting, "How are the dead being roused, and with what body are they coming?" Imprudent one! What you are sowing is not being vivified if it should not be dying. And what you are sowing you are not sowing the body which shall come to be, but a naked kernel, perchance of wheat or some of the rest. Yet God is giving it a body according as He wills, and to each of the seeds its own body. Not all flesh is ⁴⁰ There is no direct statement here that our bodies will be changed to celestial bodies, in accord with the later revelation of Ephesians, but such an inference would be in point. Even among the celestials there will be degrees of glory. Our Lord Himself has a body which excelled the noonday in its effulgence. Ours will be transfigured to conform to His (Phil.3²¹).

⁴² In death the body disintegrates and returns to the soil whence it came. This loathesome process is reversed in resurrection. Disease and weakness accompany its dissolution, but power and glory will be the portion of all who are Christ's when He comes.

⁴⁴ Our present bodies respond to the soul, or senses. They seek for physical comfort and satisfaction and pleasure. They do not respond to spiritual things. The soul is not a distinct entity. It is the effect of the combination of body and spirit. Adam was made of the soil. When the breath of life was breathed into him he became a living soul. He could feel, see, hear, smell. He became conscious. Such is the body which we have now. We are dominated by our senses. In the resurrection our bodies will respond to our spirit. Physical sensations will give place to spiritual perception.

⁵⁰ The soul (not the life) of the flesh is in the blood (Lev.17¹¹). The Lord has no blood in His resurrection body (Lu.24³⁹).

⁵¹ This is a secret. It had not been told before. It lies in the one word change. It leads us one step nearer the celestial destiny revealed in the epistle to the Ephesians. Soulless as our bodies are, they need to be radically changed before they can endure the same flesh, but there is one, indeed, of men, yet another flesh of beasts, yet another flesh of fliers, yet another of fishes. And there are bodies celestial and bodies terrestrial, but there is a different glory, indeed, of the celestial, and a different of the terrestrial, another glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars, for star excels star in glory.

⁴² This also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; ⁴³ it is roused in incorruption. It is sown in dishonor; it is roused in glory. It is sown in infirmity; it ⁴⁴ is roused in power. It is sown a soulless body; it is roused a spiritual body.

If there is a soulless body, there ⁴⁵ is a spiritual also. Thus also it is written, "The first man, Adam, became a living soul; the last Adam ⁴⁶ a vivifying Spirit". But the spiritual is not first, but the soulless, thereupon the spiritual.

⁴⁷ The first man was out of the earth, soilless; the second Man is the ⁴⁸ Lord out of heaven. What the soilless are, such are they also who are soilless, and what the celestial, such also are those who are celestials. ⁴⁹ And according as we wear the image of the soilless, we should be wearing the image also of the celestial.

⁵⁰ Now this I am averring, brethren, that flesh and blood is not able to enjoy an allotment in the kingdom of God, neither is corruption enjoying the allotment of incorruption. Lo! I am telling you a secret! ⁵¹ We all, indeed, shall not be put to repose, yet we all shall be changed. ⁵² in an instant, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump. For He will be trumpeting, and the dead will be a life celestial. This change will come in an instant when the Lord descends from heaven with the trumpet of God (1Thes.4¹⁶). As the last note sounds we who are alive, who are mortal, as well as those who repose, who have gone to corruption, shall be changed. What a glorious prospect! Our bodies shall be like His—not as it was in His weakness before He was roused, not even as it was before His ascension, marvelous as that was, but as it was when Saul met Him and was blinded by the brightness of His presence. He will transfigure the body of our humiliation, to conform it to His body glorious (Phil.3²¹).

⁵⁵ What a victory that will be! Now death is operating in our bodies at all times, and eventually succeeds in dragging us down to the grave. Then we shall not only be restored to life, but enjoy incorruption and deathlessness, and a body so changed and glorified that it corresponds to the one which befits the Head of the universe. Yet the enjoyment and appreciation of the glory will depend on our previous humiliation.

⁵⁵ The Septuagint reads "O Unseen, where is your sting?" (Hos.13¹⁴), and some manuscripts follow this reading. As the tendency is to conform a quotation to its original, it is probable that Death was changed to Unseen by a copyist who knew the Septuagint reading but did not see that the apostle had enlarged the scope of the quotation to include the consummation, when there is no unseen (Un.20¹⁴) and only the second death remains. A quotation is often varied from its original reading to fit it for its new context.

roused incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal put on immortality. Now, whenever this corruptible should be putting on incorruption and this mortal be putting on immortality, then shall come to pass the word which has been written,

"Death was swallowed up by Victory!

⁵⁵ Where, O Death, is your victory?

Where, O Death, is your sting?"

⁵⁶ Now the sting of Death is sin, yet the power of sin is the law. Yet thanks be to God, Who is giving us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁵⁸ So that, my beloved brethren, become settled, unmovable, superabounding in the work of the Lord always, being aware that your toil is not for naught in the Lord.

16 Now concerning the collection for the saints, even as I prescribe to the ecclesias of Galatia, thus also

² do you. On one of the sabbaths let each one of you lay aside in store whatever anyone may be prospered, lest collections should occur when I may come. Now whenever I should be coming along, whoever you should be attesting through letters, these shall I be sending to carry away your grace to Jerusalem. Now if it should be worth while, and I go, they shall be going together with me.

⁵ Now I shall be coming to you whenever I may come through Macedonia, for I am coming through Macedonia. Now, perchance, I shall be abiding with you, or even wintering, that you may be sending me forward where I may be going. For I do not want to see you at present on the way, for I am expecting to stay some time

²³ Maran atha is usually interpreted as "the (or our) Lord cometh" in accord with the Syriac version. But it seems far fetched to find a foreign expression here, whether it be Chaldee or Syriac, when the Hebrew furnishes a simpler and more agreeable solution. The Hebrew mgahram atah, "Cursed are you!" was probably the common phrase in which the anathema or doom was pronounced. The change of m into n is of frequent occurrence when Hebrew is turned into Greek. The Syriac version may simply insert the Hebrew without translating, in which case it should not receive a Syriac signification. The Hebrew ghahram and the Greek anathema are used for one another in the Septuagint and Hebrew Scriptures. Both mean to devote to destruction, to doom (Lev.27²¹⁻²⁹, Josh.7¹⁻¹⁵, 1Sam.15¹⁻²⁰). In these passages it is rendered destroy, devote, accursed, etc. The same form of expression, a repetition in a familiar tongue, is found in the phrase "Abba, Father". (Mk.14³⁶ Ro.8¹⁵ Ga.4⁶). Moreover, the coming of the Lord is never set before us as an act of judgment, but as the culmination of grace. That blessed expectation could never be used as an imprecation. It brings grace, not judgment.

with you, if the Lord should permit. Yet I shall stay in Ephesus till Pentecost, for a door has opened for me, great and operative, and many are opposing.

¹⁰ Now if Timothy should be coming, look to it that he should be with you without fear, for he is working at the work of the Lord, as I also. No one, then, should be scorning him. Now send him forward in peace, that he may be coming to me, for I am awaiting him with the brethren.

¹² Now concerning brother Apollos, I entreat him much that he may be coming to you with the brethren, and it was undoubtedly not his will that he should come now, yet he will come whenever he should have an opportunity.

¹³ Be watching! Stand firm in the faith! Be manly! Be staunch!

¹⁴ Let all your [actions] occur in love.

¹⁵ Now I am entreating you, brethren—you are acquainted with the house of Stephanas and Fortunatus: it is the firstfruit of Achaia, and they set themselves to the service of the saints—that you also may be subject to such, and to every fellow worker and toiler.

¹⁷ Now I am rejoicing at the presence of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, seeing that they fill up these deficiencies of yours, for they soothe my spirit and yours. Then be recognizing such.

¹⁹ The ecclesias of the [province of] Asia are greeting you. Aquila and Prisca are greeting you much in the Lord, together with the ecclesia of their house. All the brethren are greeting you. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

II. CORINTHIANS

SECOND Corinthians is an epistle for the heart. It engages us with the fond solicitude which stirs the affections of the apostle for his much loved Corinth. It was written because he wished to spare them and dreaded the severity which his presence might demand.

This loving epistle reveals an aspect of the evangel which is well-nigh lost. This is the conciliation. God is love. He will not rest satisfied in merely justifying us. He wishes to clasp us to His heart. To restore His creatures to righteousness may indeed erase the stain of sin, but offers no valid reason or excuse for sin's intrusion into the universe. But if the entrance of sin is to bear the precious fruit of reconciliation, if it is to bring us infinitely nearer to God than is possible without it, if it is the means of revealing God's love to us, then may we give thanks even for the sin which is the source of our sorrows. Sin made man not only a sinner, but an enemy of God. It brought in estrangement. The mediation of Christ not only saves and justifies, but removes every barrier for the free outflow of God's love. God now condescends to beseech the sinner to be reconciled to Him. What can be more gracious than this?

Such is the aspect of the truth in this epistle. More than anything else he has written, this reveals the personal experiences and inward emotions of Paul during one of the most fruitful periods of his ministry. Instead of the smiling, complacent, comfortable existence which is usually supposed to be the ideal of Christianity, we find him full of fears within, distracted with fightings without, restless, sick, and despondent. Yet all of this was in perfect accord with his fervent love for the saints and his vehement desire to lead them on into an appreciation of God's love. The consolation and comfort he received in his afflictions fitted him to console and comfort others. It reveals God in the light of His affections.

One short verse in the book of Acts (Ac.20²) hurries us over the whole period referred to in this epistle. This alone should suggest the total divergence of their respective themes. Acts deals with Christ after the flesh, as the Messiah of Israel, and always gives the other nations a place subordinate. At the juncture when this epistle was written Paul first made known the truth of the conciliation, that God, in Christ, is beseeching all men to be reconciled to Him. Physical relationship to Christ no longer counted with Paul after this.

Corinth was the chief city of Achaia, hence the whole province was interested in and influenced by its internal spiritual condition. The many specific references to the ecclesia in the city make it plain that it was for the saints in the province only in a secondary sense, much as we profit by it today.

⁵ Paul's afflictions were, in a very real sense, "the sufferings of Christ", for they came, not as the result of his misdeeds, but because he proclaimed Christ's evangel. Not long before he had been in danger of death at the hands of a mob in Ephesus. He was suffering from some physical ailment. He was in much suspense about the Corinthians and their reception of his previous epistle. When he finds that they, too, have suffered, though it be for their own wrong doing, he is swift to console them, and sees in his own afflictions the means used by God to prepare him for this ministry. All this should be an object lesson to us to show how sin and suffering is being used by God to bring our hearts into closer union with Himself and with one another. And affliction is the surest means of ridding us of confidence in ourselves and of placing our reliance in God. Suffering for Christ's sake is the highest honor which can be accorded to mortal man. Just as His sufferings are the basis of the glories that shall follow, so our sufferings for His sake are sure to yield an untold harvest of happiness and exultation when He appears.

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and brother Timothy, to the ecclesia of God which is in Corinth, together with all the saints who are in the whole of Achaia:

² Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

³ BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of pities and God of all consolation,

⁴ Who is consoling us in our every affliction, to enable us to be consoling those in every affliction, through the consolation with which we ourselves are consoled by God, seeing that, according as the sufferings of Christ are superabounding in us, thus, through Christ, our consolation also is superabounding.

⁶ Now, whether we are being afflicted for the sake of your consolation and salvation, or whether we are being consoled for the sake of your consolation, it is operating in the endurance of the same sufferings

⁸ For we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning our affliction which came to us in the [province of] Asia, that we were inordinately burdened, above our ability, so that we were despairing of life also. But we have had the rescript of death in ourselves in order that we may be having no confidence in ourselves, but in God.

⁹ It seems probable that Paul was doubly in danger of death in Ephesus. The "rescript" of death may refer to a dangerous illness, while the "prodigious" death seems best suited to the violence of the Ephesian mob. It is most likely that, had he attempted to speak to them during the excitement, nothing would have prevented the unruly multitude from tearing him to pieces in their frenzy. Now that he had come through these dangers he desired the Corinthians to join him in thanksgiving.

¹³ Perhaps some suspected him of writing privately, to individuals, what he did not dare to put in his public epistles. This he denies, and registers his assurance that ultimately they would recognize him as one in whom they might well boast in that day when the hidden motives of the heart will be made manifest.

²⁰ God's promises are not like those of His servants, but are always confirmed in Christ. He is not only able to carry out His will, but His promises are made with a full knowledge of all conditions such as might arise to change the course of one of His servants. They are fallible, He is infallible.

will be rescuing, on Whom we rely, that He will still be rescuing ¹¹ also; you also assisting together by a petition for us, that from many faces He may be thanked for us by many, for our gracious gift.

¹² For our boasting is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in holiness and sincerity of God, not in fleshly wisdom, but in the grace of God, we conducted ourselves in the world, yet more superabundantly toward you. For we are writing no other things to you than what you are reading or recognizing also. Now I am expecting that ¹⁴ you will recognize ultimately, according as you also recognized us in part, that we are your glory (even as you also are ours) in the day of our Lord Jesus.

¹⁵ And in this confidence I intended formerly to come to you, that you should be having a second
¹⁶ grace, and through you to come through into Macedonia, and to come again from Macedonia to you, and to be sent forward by you into ¹⁷ Judea. Intending this, then, consequently do I use lightness? Or what I am planning am I planning according to the flesh, that it may be with me "Yes, yes," and "No, no"?

¹⁸ Now God is faithful, seeing that our word toward you is not "Yes"
¹⁹ and "No", for the Son of God, Jesus Christ, Who is being proclaimed among you through us—through me and Silvanus and Timothy—became not "Yes" and "No", but in Him has become ²⁰ "Yes". For whatever promises are of God, are in Him "Yes". Wherefore through Him also is the "Amen" to God, for glory,

²¹ The operation of God's spirit is here seen under three distinct figures: the anointing, the seal, and the earnest. Prophets and priests and kings were anointed for their office. They were anointed with oil. We are anointed with the spirit, as Christ, the Anointed, was at His baptism. This qualifies us for service. The seal is the sign of possession. We belong to God. The earnest is that small instalment of the spirit which we have received, which is the pledge of its fullness in the day of deliverance.

²³ In view of the devious motives which have been suggested as the reason why he had avoided Corinth, Paul solemnly calls God to witness, when he discloses the real reason. He wished to give them time to repent. He did not wish to be under the necessity of dealing harshly with them again. He looked forward to the day when those whom he had made sorry would rejoice. He did not wish to force their faith, as might be necessary if he did not wait patiently until his former epistle had borne its full fruition. That time now seems to have come. The present epistle is the fruit of much forbearance.

⁵ Paul's sorrow over the incestuous person, concerning which he wrote to them in his former epistle (1Co.5¹), was much modified because it was not countenanced by the majority. He did not wish to burden them all with this serious sin. Now, indeed, that the majority have administered the needed rebuke, and it has had a salutary effect, he would have them restore him to their fellowship again. He had doubtless been "delivered unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh", yet this was "that the spirit may be saved" (1Co.5⁵). Such is the invariable object of God's judgments. They may seem harsh and vindictive, but they eventuate in salvation. They may seem baneful at first but they are all dictated by the love that uses them to reveal itself. Like the returned prodigal, the Corinthian sinner became the special object of their love. From this it is evident that God is able to use Satan himself, as a destroyer, for the ultimate welfare and blessing of the saints. It proved so in Job's case. May He not be able to undo all his deeds in this manner?

²¹ through us. Now He Who is confirming us together with you in Christ, and Who anoints us, is God, ²² Who also seals us and is giving the earnest of the spirit in our hearts.

²³ Now I am invoking God as a witness on my soul, that to spare you I came no longer to Corinth.

²⁴ Not that we are lording over your faith, but are fellow workers of your joy, for you have stood

² fast in the faith. Now I decide this with myself, not to be coming

² to you again in sorrow. For if I am making you sorry, who, also, is gladdening me, except he who

³ is made sorry by me? And I write this very thing to you lest, coming,

I may have sorrow from those who were obligated to be causing me to rejoice; having confidence in you

⁴ all, that my joy is all yours. For out of much affliction and pressure of heart I write to you, through many tears, not that you may be made sorrowful, but that you may know the love which I have more exceedingly for you.

⁵ Now if anyone has caused sorrow he has not made me sorry but in part, lest I should burden you all.

⁶ Enough to such is this rebuke, which is by the majority. So that,

⁷ on the contrary, you are rather to deal graciously and console, lest somehow such may be swallowed up by the more excessive sorrow.

⁸ Wherefore I am entreating you to ratify your love to him.

⁹ For I write also for this, that I may know your testedness, if you

¹⁰ are obedient in all things. Now with whom you are dealing graciously in anything, I, also. For in what I have dealt graciously (if I have dealt graciously in anything), it is because of you in the face of

¹⁴ The true servant of Christ is always triumphant. He need not be concerned whether his message be received or rejected, but rather let him be sure that he is preaching Christ and Him alone. His course then, as the apostle's, will be like the triumph of a Roman conqueror. Accompanied by his friends, and followed by captives laden with chains, while the whole procession is perfumed with the incense of many censers, the Roman triumph was but a rare occasion in the life of a general. It should be the continual course of the servant of Christ who so preaches His grace that its fragrance is found even on those who reject the message of life.

¹⁷ Too many in these days are like those the apostle condemns. They make the word of God a matter of commerce and a means of gain. May He forgive them for such an infamous offense! Such grace as we have to dispense loses its flavor when coupled with avarice or cupidity.

¹ How the apostle's heart must have ached to think that his beloved Corinthians, who had been called into the grace of Christ through his ministry, should be so unmindful of his claims on their affections! How pathetic his appeal! "You are our letter, engraved in our hearts." They certainly should not ask for his credentials, for they themselves were the very best that could be found. No doubt those who opposed him were of the Circumcision, for he brings in the contrast of the Mosaic law.

¹¹ Christ, lest we should be overreached by Satan, for we are not ignorant of his mind.

¹² Now, on coming to Troas for the evangel of Christ, and a door having been opened for me in the Lord, ¹³ I have had no ease in my spirit at not finding Titus, my brother, but, taking leave of them, I came away into Macedonia.

¹⁴ Now thanks be to God, Who always gives us a triumph in Christ, and is manifesting the odor of His knowledge through us in every

¹⁵ place, seeing that we are a fragrance of Christ to God, in those who are being saved and in those

¹⁶ who are being lost. To these, indeed, an odor of death for death, yet to those an odor of life for life. And who is competent for ¹⁷ this? For we are not as the majority, who are peddling the word of God, but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God in Christ, are we speaking.

3 Are we beginning again to commend ourselves? Or do we need, even as some, commendatory letters

² to you or from you? You are our letter, engraved in our hearts,

³ known and read by all men, seeing that you are manifestly a letter of Christ dispensed by us, and engraved, not with ink, but with the spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone, but in the fleshy

⁴ tablets of the heart. Now such is the confidence we have through ⁵ Christ toward God (not that we are competent of ourselves, to count anything as of ourselves, but our ⁶ competency is of God), Who also makes us competent dispensers of a

⁶ The covenant of the letter is the law of Moses which was engraven in stone, to symbolize its unyielding sternness. There is no reference to the letter of Scripture. It is the law that kills, just as it is the spirit (through the letter of Scripture) that gives life. The sayings that Christ spoke are both spirit and life to all who believe them.

⁹ A bright torch, which will illuminate the night, becomes black when held up to the noonday sun. So the law, a bright exhibition of the righteous character of God, turns to blackness before the transcendent effulgence of grace which is now revealed. It had a glory but lost it all by contrast to the glory excelling. Since, then, the law's glory is darkened by a greater glory, how much greater must be the glory of this dispensation of grace!

¹² Moses, finding that the glory of his face was not permanent, hid the fact by covering his face until he went into the Lord's presence again. Not so Paul. He had no need of any covering, for the dispensation of the spirit is not like the law. The law led from glory to gloom. Grace leads from glory to glory. One deals out condemnation and death. The other dispenses righteousness and life.

new covenant, not of the letter, but of the spirit, for the letter is killing, yet the spirit is vivifying.

⁷ Now if the dispensation of death by letters chiseled in stone came in glory, so that the sons of Israel were not able to look intently into the face of Moses, because of the glory of his face, which was vanishing, how shall not rather the dispensation of the spirit be in glory? For if the dispensation of condemnation is glory, much rather the dispensation of righteousness is exceeding in glory. For that also which has been glorious has no glory in this particular, on account of the glory transcending. For if that which is vanishing is through glory, much rather that which remains is in glory.

¹² Having, then, such an expectation, we are using much boldness, and are not even as Moses, who placed a covering over his face, so that the sons of Israel were not to look intently to the consummation of that which is vanishing. But their minds were calloused, for until this very day the same covering is remaining at the reading of the old covenant, it not being discovered that, in Christ, it is vanishing. But till today, if ever the reading of Moses should be reached, a covering is lying on their heart. Yet if ever it should reach a turning back to the Lord, the covering is taken from about it.

¹⁷ Now the Lord is the spirit: yet where the spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. Now we all,

¹⁸ The ancient mirror was a burnished metal surface which reflected the light as well as the image of the one who used it. Paul did not climb the steep slopes of Sinai and bring back a transient reflection of the Lord's glory, as Moses did. He beheld Him continually, as we behold our faces in a mirror. The glory of the Lord irradiated him. It did not fade, but became brighter and brighter. Contemplation of the Lord led to likeness to Him. This is a beautiful epitome of Paul's ministries. He began with grace on the road to Damascus. He dispenses justification at Pisidian Antioch. He reveals the conciliation to the Corinthians. He teaches the truth transcendent from his Roman prison. Grace upon grace and glory upon glory! His successive ministries led onward to the transcendent glories contained in his Perfection Epistles.

* "The evangel of the glory of Christ!" Would that our evangelism reached to this altitude! And why are Christ's glories so lacking in the gospel efforts of today? Because the god of this eon not only blinds the minds of the unbelievers, but he centers the gospel on sin and self and sanitation—anything except Christ and His glories.

* Few subjects for meditation will be found so full of blessing as that of the Image of God. John presents Him to us as the Word of God, through Whom we hear Him; Paul shows us the One in Whom we can see God. God Himself cannot be seen, for He is invisible. Hence it is that He has given us an Image of Himself which we can discern. And just as we give the picture or statue of a person the same place in our minds and in our speech as the person himself, so Christ is seen in the Scriptures, addressed as God as if equal to God. Unlike the inflexible image of a lifeless photograph, He is instinct with the life of God, and changes to accord with the divine assumptions (Heb. 1³).

⁷ The present pathway of God's saints and slaves is not calculated to glorify us, but God. And this is often best accomplished by contrast, for God will not give His glory to any of His creatures. We must be broken if we would be bearers of His blessing.

with uncovered face, viewing the Lord's glory as in a mirror, are transformed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as from the Lord the spirit.

⁴ Therefore, having this dispensation, according as we were shown
² mercy, we are not despondent. But we spurn the hidden things of shame, not walking in craftiness, nor adulterating the word of God, but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience before God.

³ Now if our evangel is covered also, it is covered in those who are ⁴ lost, in whom the god of this eon blinds the minds of unbelievers, so that the illumination of the evangel of the glory of Christ, Who is the Image of the invisible God, does
⁵ not irradiate them. For we are not proclaiming ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, yet ourselves
⁶ your slaves because of Jesus, seeing that God Who is saying "Out of darkness light shall be shining" is He Who shines in our hearts, with a view to the illumination of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

⁷ Now we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the transcendence of the power may be of God
⁸ and not of us. In everything—being afflicted but not distressed, perplexed but not despairing, persecuted but not abandoned, cast down
¹⁰ but not destroyed—always carrying about in the body the deaden-

¹⁰ The widespread fiction that the life of a Christian must be one of settled calm and contentment, prosperous and in every way advantageous in this life, is proven utterly fallacious by the experience of the apostle Paul. The carnal Corinthians may live and reign, but he is afflicted, perplexed, persecuted and cast down. As in Job's case, little was left him but his life. If we are faithful to God we will find but little in this life, and will look forward to resurrection life in Christ. Apart from resurrection we should be the most pitiable of all mankind. The reason that this conception of the believer's experience has been lost is the widespread apostasy and conformity to the world. Do you see a servant of Christ persecuted and despised? Do not judge him hastily. He may be manifesting the life of Jesus, Who was despised and rejected because the world did not know him.

¹⁷ How shall we characterize our trials if Paul's were only momentary and light? At times he even despaired of life. Just before this he had been crying to God to remove the thorn in the flesh. But what is all this to him, in view of the transcendent revelations of the future of which he had become the depository and dispenser? We would speak of our present burdens and of the lightness of our load in the resurrection, but he reverses this. The glory of that day would be an unbearable burden to our present bodies. Our burdens are light indeed in view of that transcendent outcome.

¹ Our present soulish body is here compared with the temporary tent of the Bedouins, but our spiritual bodies, which will be our eonian habitations, are compared to a house.

² Our present condition is aptly expressed in the two words, groaning and longing. We groan to be rid of ing of Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be manifested in our ¹¹ body. For we who are living are ever being given up to death because of Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be manifested in our ¹² mortal flesh. So that death is operating in us, yet life in you.

¹³ Now having the same spirit of faith—in accord with what has been written, "I believe, wherefore I speak also"—we also are believing, wherefore we are speaking also, ¹⁴ being aware that He Who rouses the Lord Jesus will be rousing us also, through Jesus, and will be presenting us together with you. ¹⁵ For all is because of you, that the increasing grace, through more thanksgiving, should be superabounding to the glory of God.

¹⁶ Wherefore we are not despondent, but even if our outward man is decaying, nevertheless our inner [man] is being renewed day ¹⁷ by day. For our momentary, light affliction is producing for us a transcendently transcendent eonian ¹⁸ burden of glory, not noting that of ours which is observed, but what is not observed, for what is observed is temporary, yet what is not observed is eonian.

⁵ For we are aware that, if our terrestrial tabernacle house should be demolished, we have a building of God, a house not made with ² hands, eonian in the heavens. For in this also we are groaning, longing to be dressed in our habitation ³ which is from heaven, if so be that, being dressed also, we shall not be ⁴ found naked. For we also, who are in the tabernacle, are groaning, our temporary tabernacle. We long to enter our eonian habitation. We have, however, no desire for any intermediate condition. Death is always viewed as an unwelcome enemy, in Scripture. Resurrection, vivification, is the true expectation of the believer. Even the apostle, in his infirmity and distress, never chooses death, but always suggests a far better alternative, the coming of Christ, when the mortal shall be swallowed up by life.

⁶ The article "the" in Greek, sometimes has almost the force of our "this". "The body" is not simply a body, but a particular body, that is, this body in which we are at home now. We have two homes. The tabernacle in which we now live and the eonian house in the resurrection; the soulish body and the spiritual body. We may be away from one home yet present in the other. Now we are away from home, from the Lord. Yet we would much prefer to be away from this home and be at home in our spiritual body, with the Lord. We have no third home, and if we had, the apostle has just made it clear that the naked, unsheltered condition is not at all to be desired. He could hardly reverse that conviction without some further explanation.

¹⁰ The dais, or raised platform from which games were judged and awards given, must not be confused with a judicial bench. The quality of our acts may determine the award to which we are entitled, but the question of condemnation is entirely foreign to such a tribunal. We are absolutely absolved from all condemnation, but we are eligible to an award for meritorious service. These awards will be distributed at the dais of Christ, according to our acts in "the" body, that is, our present soulish bodies.

¹⁴ The apostle looks upon the world as one vast charnel house. Since Christ died for the sake of all, then all died. He sees the end of all physical privilege and pretension in this great fact. This is the basis of the new departure in his ministry at this time.

being burdened, on which we are not wanting to be stripped, but to be dressed, that the mortal may be swallowed up by life. Now He Who is producing us for this same thing is God, Who is also giving us the earnest of the spirit.

⁶ Being, then, courageous always, and aware that, being at home in the body, we are away from home from the Lord (for we are walking by faith, not by perception), yet we are encouraged, and are delighting rather to be away from home out of the body and to be at home with the Lord. Wherefore we are ambitious also, whether at home or away from home, to be well pleasing to Him.

¹⁰ For all of us must be manifested in front of the dais of Christ, that each should be required for that which he puts into practise through the body, whether it is good or bad.

¹¹ Being aware, then, of the fear of the Lord, we are persuading men, yet we have been made manifest to God. Now I am expecting to have been made manifest in your consciences also.

¹² Not again are we commending ourselves to you, but are giving an incentive to you, boasting over you, that you may have it for those who boast in personal appearance and not in heart. For, whether we were beside ourselves, it is to God, whether we are sane, it is to you.

¹⁴ For the love of Christ is constraining us, judging this, that if One died for the sake of all, consequently all died. And He died for the sake of all that those who are living should by no means still be living to themselves, but to the One dying and being roused for their sakes.

¹⁸ "All is of God!" This is the key to real evangelism. Here we have, in brief, the heart of the true evangel for the world in this administration of grace. The key note is conciliation. Not the sinner conciliating God by penance or prayers, but God conciliating the sinner. The sinner may be most offensive and insulting, but God does not reckon these offenses against him. Let this be clear. God is not charging men with their sins, for Christ died for sins. He is not pressing their offenses, for He is bent on conciliation. The evangel is not concerned with the sinner at all but with God's attitude toward him and with the sufferings of Christ. He has placed in us, not the message of judgment, but the word of conciliation.

¹⁶ So that we, from now on, are acquainted with no one according to flesh. Yet, even if we have known Christ according to flesh, nevertheless now we know Him no longer. So that, if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation: the primitive passed by. Lo! it has become new!

¹⁸ Yet all is of God, Who conciliates us to Himself through Christ, and is giving us the dispensation of the conciliation, how that, in Christ, God was conciliating the world to Himself, not reckoning their offenses to them, and placing in us the word of the conciliation.

²⁰ We are, then, ambassadors for Christ, as God entreating through us. We are beseeching for Christ, ²¹ "Be conciliated to God!" For the One knowing no sin, He makes sin for our sakes that we may be becoming God's righteousness in Him.

6 Now, working together, we are also entreating you not to receive ² the grace of God for naught. For He is saying "In an acceptable era I hear you,

And in a day of salvation I help you."

Lo! Now is a most acceptable era!
Lo! Now is a day of salvation!

³ We are giving no one cause to stumble in anything, lest flaws be ⁴ found with the service, but in everything we are commending ourselves as servants of God, in much endurance, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, in blows, in jails, in turbulences, in toil, in ⁶ vigils, in fasts, in pureness, in knowledge, in patience, in kindness, in holy spirit, in love unfeigned, ⁷ in the word of truth, in the power of God, through the implements of righteousness of the right hand and made Christ a Sin Offering for our sakes that we may become God's righteousness in Him. There is nothing for you to do but to accept His proffered love. Simply thank and adore Him for His grace.

^a The true servant of God may well take heart from this list. Practically all the present day ministerial qualifications for service are absent. We know that Paul had no presence. His personal appearance did not commend him. His speech was counted contemptible. These were faults keenly felt by the carnal Corinthians, just as they are today. But he insists that he has given no one cause to stumble in anything. Paul deemed eloquence and physical appearance of no vital moment. Love, knowledge, toil, endurance, these ought to characterize the Lord's servant today even if he should not be called upon to bear affliction and distresses such as came to Paul. It is a vast comfort to the editor of this version to find himself able to enter fully into the apostle's experience in many particulars. His efforts have met with defamation and renown, he has been accused of deceiving yet is assured of his integrity, he is unknown yet recognized, disciplined yet not put to death, sorrowful yet ever rejoicing, poor yet enriching many.

¹⁴ The church has fallen so low and has compromised so thoroughly with the world that the sharp distinction between saint and sinner has been almost obliterated. And with this the separation between believer and unbeliever is rarely acknowledged. Were we, who are Christ's, living up to our privileges, we would not even consider any alliance with unbelievers. In business we should have a standard of righteousness unknown to them. No partnership is possible between righteousness and lawlessness. The social organizations of the world are darkness to one who is light in the Lord. There can be no agreement between the religions of the world and Christ. The true believer cannot share in that which appeals to the unbeliever.

¹⁵ A due sense of the solemn fact that God is making His home in us is the best preventive from contamination with the pollutions of the world.

¹¹ Our mouth has opened toward you, Corinthians, your heart has ¹² been broadened. You are not distressed in us, yet you are distressed ¹³ in your compassions. Now, as a recompense in kind (I am saying this as to children), you also be broadened!

¹⁴ Do not become diversely yoked with unbelievers. For what partnership have righteousness and lawlessness? Or what communion has ¹⁵ light with darkness? Now what agreement has Christ with Beliar? Or what part a believer with an ¹⁶ unbeliever? Now what concurrence has the temple of God with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, according as God said, that "I shall be making My home and shall walk among them, and I will be their God, and they ¹⁷ shall be My people." Wherefore "Come out of their midst and be severed", the Lord is saying, "and touch not the unclean, and I will ¹⁸ admit you, and I will be a Father to you, and you shall be sons and daughters to Me", is saying the Lord Almighty.

¹⁶ Lev. 26:11-12, LXX, with variations.

¹⁷ Isa. 52:11, LXX, with alterations.

Paul is not misquoting from memory, as is usually supposed. He makes inspired alterations to suit the occasion.

² What a tender yet cutting rebuke to the Corinthians! The idea that Paul had injured any of them! They owed all their blessings in Christ to him. They, indeed, had injured him by their ungrateful conduct. Whom, indeed, had he corrupted? He had led them out of the corruption of heathendom into the holiness which is in Christ. Had he overreached any of them? He did not even charge them with his bare subsistence, when he might have claimed all they had. They owed their very selves to him. But their ungratefulness did not alienate his affections from them. No doubt, at his coming into Macedonia, there would be much to engage his attention, much in Philippi to encourage and comfort him in his distress, yet nothing set his heart at rest until he had tidings from Corinth. This is but another example of the function of evil. Had the Corinthians been exemplary in their conduct, this marvelous interchange and expression of affection would never have found occasion. Men cannot bring good out of evil: that is God's prerogative. But God can, and does, control all the evil in the universe, so that its ultimate result will be blessing far beyond what could have been had evil never entered and marred His perfect creation. God is able to cope with evil. It is not stronger than He is.

² Make room for us. We injure no one; we corrupt no one; we ³ overreach no one. I am not saying this with a view to condemnation, for I have declared before that you are in our hearts to die together and to live together. ⁴ Much is my boldness toward you; much is my boasting over you. I have been filled with consolation, I am superexceeding in joy in all our ⁵ affliction. For even at our coming into Macedonia, our flesh had no ease, but we are afflicted in everything. Outside fightings; inside fears.

⁶ But God, Who is consoling the humble, consoles us by the presence ⁷ of Titus, yet not only by his presence, but by the consolation also with which he was consoled by you, informing us of your longing, your anguish, your zeal for my sake; ⁸ so that I rather rejoice that even if I make you sorry by an epistle. I am not regretting it, even if I did regret. For I am observing that that epistle makes you sorry, ⁹ even if it is for an hour. I am now rejoicing, not that you were made sorry, but that you were made sorry to repentance. For you were made sorry according to God, that ¹⁰ you forfeited nothing by us. For sorrow according to God is producing repentance for unregretted salvation, yet the sorrow of the world is working death.

¹¹ For lo, this same thing—for you to be made sorry according to God—how much it produces in you of diligence, nay, defense, nay, resentment, nay, fear, nay, longing, nay, zeal, nay, avenging! In everything resented it, and defended themselves. They made it clear that, as an ecclesia, they were pure in this matter. The majority laid aside their party affiliations and united to purge the ecclesia of its defilement.

¹² It would seem that the opposition to Paul in Corinth was not deep-seated, unless we except some of the Jewish leaders. At heart they were true to him though their conduct seemed to belie it. So Paul brings home to them for more than one reason the gross sin which was committed among them. Indeed, he might have made it an individual matter, and could have written to the offender personally. But he chose rather to involve the ecclesia that they might realize the true heart allegiance which they gave him, notwithstanding their schisms and divisions. Great calamities and persecutions of the saints have much the same effect still. Petty differences and party spirit disappear when some common danger recalls the saints to their allegiance to Christ.

¹³ Titus seems to have been much concerned about the Corinthians, lest they should prove refractory, and his visit to them lead to dissension and disobedience. Paul was the more concerned to know of his reception on this account, and because he had sought to soothe his fears and had boasted of the outcome of his endeavors. Titus must have been much pleased to find his fears unfounded, but not nearly so much as Paul, who would have been disgraced for boasting without cause, and for sending Titus to them in spite of his apprehensions.

¹ Macedonia, and especially its chief cities, Philippi and Thessalonica, were models in many ways. The epistles addressed to them have much praise and hardly any censure. If Paul could boast to others about Corinth, he surely had a right to boast about Macedonia. They seem to have been very poor and in the midst of trying circumstances, so that Paul did not expect them to take any part in the collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem. But they beg to have a share in it, and give beyond their ability, first, indeed, giving themselves to the Lord.

you commend yourselves to be
¹² pure in this matter. Consequently, even if I write to you, it is not on account of one who injures, but neither on account of the one being injured, but on account of manifesting to you your diligence for our sake before God.

¹³ Therefore we have been consoled, yet in our consolation we rather rejoiced more exceedingly in the joy of Titus, seeing that his spirit has been soothed by you all,
¹⁴ seeing that, if I have boasted any to him over you, I was not disgraced, but as we speak all in truth to you, thus also our boast to ¹⁵ Titus came to be truth. And his compassions for you are superabounding the more, having a recollection of the obedience of you all, as, with fear and trembling, you receive him. I am rejoicing that in everything I am encouraged in you.

8 Now we are making known to you, brethren, the grace of God which has been bestowed in the ecclesias of Macedonia, seeing that,
² in an extreme test of affliction, the superabundance of their joy and the corresponding depth of their poverty superabounds to the riches
³ of their generosity, seeing that, according to ability, I am witness, and beyond their ability, of their ⁴ own accord, with much entreaty beseeching of us the grace and fellowship in a service for the ⁵ saints; and not according as we expect, but they first give themselves to the Lord, and to us through the ⁶ will of God. So that we entreat Titus that, according as he under-

7 Is it not remarkable that Macedonia, poverty stricken, in the midst of extreme affliction, deterred from contributing by Paul, entreats for the privilege as a favor, while Corinth, undoubtedly far richer and more able to contribute, needs their example and all the urging and spurring which the apostle can bring to bear in order that they should not disgrace him by a meager contribution?

9 Paul begins his pleading by giving the true motive which should actuate us in our gifts to God's work and to His poor saints. Christ was rich once beyond all our conceptions of wealth. The whole universe was created for him (Col.1¹⁶). He subsisted in the form of God (Phil.2⁶). He had no peer on earth or in the heavens. All this He laid aside to enrich us. He emptied Himself, taking the form of a slave, coming to be in the likeness of humanity, and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross (Phil.2 7-8). What poverty can equal this? The highest in heaven becomes the outcast of earth. Who was ever impoverished as He was? He gave up all He had and all He was to enrich us. Now we are rich. But few of God's saints are rich in this world's goods, yet all are blessed with untold spiritual wealth. Such is the example He has set before us. If such was His disposition, it should be ours as well.

10 It is noteworthy that the apostle never commands them to give. He never forces them to be generous. It is no injunction. He gives his opinion. The tithe, which was regularly taken in Israel for the support of the Levites, is never applied to the nations, for it is a part of the law, and its spirit is entirely foreign to the spontaneous, hearty response which alone gives value to all donations.

13 It is evident that the Corinthians were blessed with more than sufficient for their wants or they could not have given of their superabundance.

takes before, thus also should he be completing for you this grace as well. But even as you are superabounding in everything—in faith and word and knowledge and all diligence and your love to us—you may be superabounding in this grace also. I am not saying this as an injunction, but, through the diligence of others, testing also this genuine love of yours.

9 For you know of the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, being rich, because of you He is poor, that you, by His poverty, should be rich. And in this I am giving an opinion, for this is expedient for you, who for a year past, undertake before, not only to do but to be willing also. Yet now complete the doing also, so that even in accord with the eagerness to will, thus also may be the completion, out of what you have. For if eagerness lies before, it is acceptable according to what one may have, not according to what he has not.

13 For it is not that, to others ease, yet to you affliction, but by an equality, in the current period, your superabundance is for their want, that their superabundance also may be coming to be for your want, so that there may be coming to be an equality, according as it is written: "The one with much increases not, and the scant one lessens not".

16 Now thanks be to God, Who is imparting the same diligence for you to the heart of Titus, seeing that he, indeed, receives the entreaty, yet belonging to the more diligent, of his own accord he came out to you. Now we send together with him the brother whose applause

¹⁸ It is probable that Titus' companion later returned with Paul when he conveyed the contribution to Jerusalem, and was one of the company which went with him into Asia (Ac. 20⁴). These were Sopater of Berea, Aristarchus and Secundus of Thessalonica, Gaius of Derbe, Tychicus and Trophimus of Asia. Timothy would have been mentioned by name. Luke also was with them. Trophimus, we know, went as far as Jerusalem. It would be especially fitting that he should be among the bearers of this offering to the saints at Jerusalem and that they should thus requite him for his kindness, for Paul's long imprisonment began as a result of Trophimus' presence in Jerusalem. The Jews thought that Paul had taken him into the sacred precincts of the temple.

²² This brother was probably another of those who accompanied Paul on his return to Asia, possibly Tychicus.

²³ It is interesting to note the usage of the word apostles in this connection. The Authorized Version hides it by translating "messengers". The American Revision repeats this, but puts "apostles" at the foot of the page. Others render it "ambassadors". But this occurrence is by far the best example by which to define the true meaning of "apostle". Sopater, Aristarchus, Secundus, Gaius, Tychicus and Trophimus are not ordinarily rated as apostles. While they were not apostles of the Lord, they certainly were apostles of the ecclesias. They had been elected and commissioned by the ecclesias to represent them in this matter. This shows that an apostle is an official representative, bearing a commission.

in the evangel is through all the ¹⁹ ecclesias, yet not only so, but who was elected also by the ecclesias to be our fellow traveler with this grace, which is being dispensed by us to the glory of the Lord Himself; our eagerness also putting it thus. No one should find flaws in us in this exuberance being dispensed by us, for we are providing the ideal, not only before the Lord, but before men also.

²² Now we send together with them our brother, whom we test in many things, often being diligent, yet now much more diligent. Now our confidence in you is much, whether for the sake of Titus, my mate and fellow worker for you, or our brethren, the apostles of the ecclesias, ²⁴ the glory of Christ. Then the display of your love and our boast over you to them is being displayed in the face of the ecclesias.

9 For, indeed, concerning the dispensation for the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you. For ² I am aware of your eagerness, of which I am boasting over you to the Macedonians, that "Achaia has been prepared a year past". And your zeal provokes the majority.

³ Yet I send the brethren, lest our boasting over you should be made void in this particular, that you may be prepared according as I ⁴ said, lest somehow, if the Macedonians should be coming together with me and finding you unprepared, we may be disgraced (not that we should say you!) in this assumption of boasting.

⁶ While giving should never be mercenary, in hope of some return, it is doubtless most profitable in every way. It brings immediate happiness and satisfaction and it bears a harvest in the future. The farmer who stints his seed will reap a spare crop. Many of us, in that day, will wish that we had been more bountiful in our sowing for, no doubt, the harvest will be a hundred fold.

⁷ Hilarious is the English adaptation of the Greek word we have rendered "gleeful". One may give with cheerful resignation, but more than this is desired by the Lord. When we do it with irrepressible joy, then we come into closest communion with the God Who gave His Son and with Him gives us all.

¹² Paul had promised James, Cephas and John, that, in carrying out his distinctive ministry, he would not fail to remember the poor saints among the Circumcision (Gal.2:10). They may have had no higher thought than to relieve their distressed brethren. Paul was impelled by a worthier motive. Jews of the Circumcision were continually harassing him and threatened to create a bitter antagonism between the Jews and the ecclesias he had founded. They were already at work in Corinth and Galatia. If he could carry to Jerusalem some signal proof of the good will of these foreign believers he might repair the widening breach, and bring glory to God through the mutual interest and the thankfulness it would create. But they responded by putting him in chains. When the apostle came to bring the alms to Jerusalem, instead of giving him an ovation and gladly sharing their spiritual wealth with the nations, the mere suggestion that Paul had brought one of the aliens into the temple precincts nearly cost him his life.

⁵ I deem it necessary, then, to entreat the brethren that they may be coming before to you and should be adjusting beforehand your previously promised bounty, that this be ready thus, as a bounty and not as greed, yet as this: who is sowing sparingly shall be reaping sparingly also, and who is sowing bountifully shall be reaping bountifully also, each according as he has proposed in his heart, not sorrowfully, or of compulsion, for God is loving a gleeful giver.

⁸ Now God is able to lavish all grace on you, that, having all contentment in everything always, you may be superabounding in every good work, according as it is written, "He scatters, He gives to the drudges, His righteousness remains for the eon". Now may He Who is supplying seed to the sower, and bread for food, be furnishing and multiplying your seed and be causing the product of your ¹¹ righteousness to grow, being enriched in everything, for all generosity, which is producing through ¹² us thanksgiving to God, seeing that the dispensation of this ministry is not only replenishing the wants of the saints, but is superabounding also through much thanksgiving, to God, through the testedness ¹³ of this dispensation, glorifying God at the subjection of your avowal to the evangel of Christ, and in the generosity of the contribution for them and for all, and in their petition for you, longing to be acquainted with you, because of the tran-

1 Paul now turns his attention to the minority in Corinth, who were still opposed to him. They may be that party which said, "I am of Christ" (1 Co. 1:12) and seem to have been led by an emissary of the Judaizers. These men were proud and imperious, quite unlike the Christ in Whom they boasted, hence Paul appeals to the meekness and lenience of Christ. They walked according to the flesh and were continually opposing him on that ground. They misinterpreted his gentleness, and called it cowardice, they said he was brave enough at a distance, but afraid to put his threats into execution when present. Paul, in reply, hopes he may not be called upon to exercise the authority he possesses in a destructive way, but makes it plain that he has the spiritual power to wage a campaign if necessary. By a bold figure he likens his spiritual warfare to the pulling down of the forts of the enemy, and leading all opposition into captivity. The most powerful weapons are not material but spiritual. Neither are place and prestige as potent as truth. Paul alone was more than a match for the judaizing legates sent out from Jerusalem. False brethren such as these were his most virulent enemies.

7 The unspiritual, fleshly minded man looks only on the surface. But nowhere are appearances so deceiving as in things spiritual. Our Lord Himself had none of the superficial marks of greatness. Paul seems to have been specially deficient in those qualities which were demanded from those who aspired to leadership in the world. His public speaking seems to have been the special point on which his enemies attacked him. Greek orators were probably the most accomplished the world has ever seen. By comparison Paul's presence was weak and his delivery contemptible. But what has become of all those masters of forensic art? They are dead and their efforts have died with them. The few that remain are models of beauty but are devoid of all spiritual power. Paul's words transformed his hearers, not by his mode of delivery, but by their truth and potency.

15 scendent grace of God on you. Now thanks be to God for His indescribable gratuity!

10 Now I, Paul, myself am entreating you through the meekness and lenience of Christ, who, as to personal appearance, indeed, am humble among you, yet, being absent, have courage toward you. Yet I am beseeching that I may not, being present, have courage with the confidence with which I am reckoning to dare some who reckon us as walking according to the flesh. For, walking in flesh, we are not warring according to the flesh. For the weapons of our warfare are not fleshly, but powerful to God toward the pulling down of bulwarks; pulling down reasonings and every height elevating itself against the knowledge of God, and leading into captivity every apprehension into the obedience of Christ, and in readiness to avenge every disobedience, whenever your obedience may be completed.

7 Are you looking on the surface? If anyone is presuming to have confidence in himself to be Christ's, let him be reckoning this again with himself, that, according as he is Christ's, thus also are we. For if I, as well, should be boasting somewhat more excessively concerning our authority (which the Lord gives us for edification and not for pulling you down), I shall not be put to shame, lest I should seem as though terrifying you through epistles, seeing that he is averring, "His epistles, indeed, are weighty and strong, yet his bodily presence is weak and his expression contemptible". Let such a one be reckoning this, that such as we are in ¹¹ Even forbearance and gentleness have their limits. The apostle makes it clear that, when he came to them again he would act quite as severely as he wrote in dealing with those who still opposed him. He does not wish to be judged by their standard, for it is of no use at all to measure men by men. Anyone can be great in a community of dwarfs. If the standard is false, so is the greatness.

¹² These opponents of his were overstretching themselves. They never came as far as Corinth in proclaiming the evangel, but after Paul had toiled, then they came along and boasted as if they, not he, had outstripped others in bringing it to them. Paul was planning to carry the evangel beyond them into regions where it had never been proclaimed. Were they intending to outstrip him in reaching out to virgin fields, that they might have a real cause for boasting? It is evident that it suited them better to boast in what was already accomplished by another, rather than endure the toil and privation of a missionary journey with all its difficulties and dangers.

Paul had a right to boast, if anyone had. He ought to have been so high in their esteem that no one could displace him in their regard, least of all those who had no real claim on them and who chose to defame the one who had toiled and suffered for them in their very midst.

¹ Paul did not wish the Corinthians to divide their allegiance among a number of men, nor indeed, to yield it to anyone but Christ. When a virgin is engaged, she is no longer free to follow other men, but should keep herself for her affianced. So with us. Let us not follow men, but be single toward Christ. The point in this figure is confined to the singleness and purity of the espoused virgin. It must not be overstretched into an allusion to the marriage state. The faithful in Israel are the bride of the Lambkin.

Israel was Jehovah's wife, but was divorced for her unfaithfulness. John the Baptist introduced the bride to the Bridegroom. His disciples left him for his Lord. The new Jerusalem will be on earth, the home of the twelve tribes of Israel. Ours is a heavenly allotment.

word, through epistles, being absent, such also are we in act, being ¹² present. For we do not dare to judge ourselves by, or compare ourselves with, some who are commending themselves. But they, measuring themselves by themselves and comparing themselves with themselves, do not understand.

¹³ Now we shall not be boasting immeasurably, but according to the measure of the rule which God parts to us—a measure to reach ¹⁴ as far as you also (for it is not as though, not reaching to you, we are overstretching ourselves, for we outstrip [others] even as far as you in the evangel of Christ), ¹⁵ not boasting immeasurably in others' toil, yet having the expectation, your faith being grown, to be magnified among you superabundantly, according to our rule, so as to preach the evangel beyond you, not to boast in another's rule ¹⁷ that which is ready. Now he who is boasting, let him be boasting in ¹⁸ the Lord. For not he that commends himself is qualified, but whom the Lord is commending.

¹¹ You ought to have borne with me in any little imprudence. Nay, ² and be bearing with me, for I am jealous over you with a jealousy of God. For I betroth you to one Man, to present a pure virgin to ³ Christ. Now I fear lest somehow, as the serpent deludes Eve by its craftiness, it should be corrupting your minds from the singleness and ⁴ the purity which is in Christ. For if, indeed, he who is coming is proclaiming another Jesus whom we do not proclaim, or you are obtaining a different spirit, which

⁴ The newcomers in Corinth did not have anything to proclaim more than Paul had already made known to them. Paul's speech may have been plain, but his knowledge was not deficient by any means. In this, more than in anything else, he was far beyond any other apostle. He knew all that the Circumcision had to proclaim. They could tell him nothing that he did not fully apprehend already. They, on the other hand, had to learn of his commission and the truth he taught, from him. Peter, the greatest of them, found some things in his epistles hard to understand (2 Pet.3¹⁶). We may well go further than his own words, and acknowledge that he towers far above all the rest, especially in those later revelations which, at the time this epistle was penned, had not yet been made known.

¹³ Satan changes his tactics to conform to God's administrations. At times he deceives, and again he destroys. Peter speaks of him as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour (1 Pet.5⁸). Such will be his course in the judgment era following the present administration of grace, when the epistles of Peter will have their application. Now Satan is transfigured into an angel of light. He is not hideous, but beautiful. His servants stand for righteousness and pose as apostles of Christ. His work is not found in the sinks of iniquity, but in the efforts to educate and reform mankind apart from the blood of Christ. He deceives by assuming the very role which he is popularly supposed to oppose.

you did not obtain, or a different evangel, which you do not receive, you are bearing with him ideally.

⁵ For I am reckoning to be deficient in nothing pertaining to the paramount apostles. Now even if I am plain in expression, nevertheless not in knowledge, but in everything being made manifest in all for you.

⁷ Or do I sin in humbling myself that you may be exalted, seeing that I preach God's evangel to you gratuitously? I despoil other ecclesias, getting rations for dispensing to you. And when I was present with you and in want, I am an encumbrance to no one (for the brethren coming from Macedonia replenish my wants), and in everything I keep and shall be keeping myself from being burdensome to you.

¹⁰ The truth of Christ is in me, seeing that I will not be barred from this boasting of mine in the regions of Achaia. Wherefore? Seeing that I am not loving you? God is aware! Now what I am doing and will be doing is that I may strike off the incentive from those wanting an incentive, that wherein they are boasting they may be found according as we also. For such are false apostles, fraudulent workers, being transfigured into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel, for Satan himself is being transfigured into a messenger of light.

¹⁵ It is no great thing, then, if his servants also are being transfigured as dispensers of righteousness—whose consummation will be according to their acts.

¹⁶ Again I am saying, no one should presume me to be imprudent. Yet if otherwise, receive me as imprudent, that I also should

²⁶ Travel was attended with much hazard in Paul's time, especially as he probably went unattended and unarmed. But more dangerous than the robbers who infested the highways was the constant plotting of the Jews to kill him, and the opposition on all sides to his evangel, which often clashed with the prejudice and material interests of the nations.

¹⁷ be boasting a little! What I am talking, I am not talking in accord with the Lord, but as in imprudence, in this assumption of boasting. Since many are boasting according to the flesh, I also shall be boasting. For with relish are you tolerating the imprudent, being prudent. For you are bearing with it if anyone is enslaving you, if anyone is devouring, if anyone is obtaining, if anyone is elevating himself, if anyone is lashing you in the face. I am saying this by way of dishonor, as that we are weak.

Now in whatever anyone is daring (I am saying it in imprudence), I also am daring. Are they Hebrews? I also. Are they Israelites? I also. Are they the seed of Abraham? I also. Are they servants of Christ? Being insane, I am talking for the sake of "I". In weariness more exceedingly, in jails more exceedingly, in blows inordinately, in deaths often. By Jews five times I got forty save one. Thrice am I flogged with rods, once am I stoned, thrice in a shipwreck, a night and a day have I spent in a marsh, in journeys often, in dangers of rivers, in dangers of robbers, in dangers of my race, in dangers of the nations, in dangers in the city, in dangers in the wilderness, in dangers in the sea, in dangers among false brethren; in weariness and labor, in vigils often, in famine and thirst, in fasts often. In cold and nakedness, apart from what is outside, that which is coming upon me daily, solicitude for all the ecclesias.

²⁹ Is anyone weak and I am not weak? Who is snared and I am not on fire? If I must boast. I will boast in that which is of my

24 DEATHs MANY-times by	IS-BINDING THE OF-THE UNFIRMNESS OF-

³² When Paul returned from Arabia to Damascus and preached boldly in the name of Jesus, he confounded the Jews who lived at Damascus, proving that he was proclaiming the Messiah. Here was something for him to boast about! But no. He boasts only in his weakness. He had no strength to withstand the Jews who sought to kill him. They had the whole garrison of the city on the alert to arrest him. So he boasts in his humiliating escape, being lowered through the wall, probably at some overhanging window, in a wicker basket!

¹ Now, however, Paul comes to that which is, doubtless, his greatest ground for glorying. Fourteen years before finds him on his first missionary journey after his severance at Antioch. At Lystra he is stoned and left for dead (Ac.14²⁶). It is more than likely that this, the time when his battered body was supposed to be finished with this life, is when he is transported in spirit to the third heaven. There are three heavens in Scripture. The first was of old (2Pet.3⁵) and perished, but was followed by "the heavens which are now" (2Pet.3⁷). But these, too, are transient. The third heaven is viewed by the apostle John in the Unveiling (Un.21¹). John, however, does not enter the new heaven, but confines himself to a description of the new earth. Paul entered the third heaven and there saw (what he afterward revealed in his Perfection Epistles) the universal supremacy of Christ and the supernal dignity and bliss conferred on the ecclesia which is Christ's body. He also enters the new earth and its park, which John describes (Un.22²). All of this he had seen, but he was not allowed to disclose it until the time was ripe. This came when Israel's apostasy was full blown, as recorded at the close of the book of Acts. Till then he does not even claim to be the man who had seen and heard such transcendent revelations.

⁷ Who would not be elated beyond

³¹ weakness. The God and Father of the Lord Jesus, Who is blessed for the eons, is aware that I am not lying. In Damascus the ethnarch of Aretus, the king, garrisoned the city of the Damascenes, wanting to arrest me, and I am lowered in a wicker basket through a window through the wall, and I escaped his hands.

¹² If I must boast, it is not expedient, indeed, yet I shall also be coming to apparitions and revelations of the Lord. I am acquainted with a man in Christ, such a one, fourteen years ago (whether in a body I am not aware, or outside of the body, I am not aware—God is aware) was snatched away to the third heaven. And I am acquainted with such a man (whether in a body or outside of the body I am not aware—God is aware) that he was snatched away into paradise and hears ineffable declarations, which it is not allowed a man to speak. Over such a one I shall be boasting; yet I shall not be boasting for myself, except in my infirmities. For, should I be wanting to boast, I shall not be imprudent, for I shall be declaring the truth. Now I am reticent, that no one should be reckoning me to be above anything that he is observing or hearing of me.

⁷ Wherefore also, lest I should be lifted up by the transcendence of the revelations, there was given me a splinter in the flesh, a messenger of Satan, that he may be buffeting me, lest I should be lifted up. For this I entreat the Lord thrice, that it should withdraw from me. And He has protested to me, "My grace is sufficient for you, for My power is perfected in infirmity". With the greatest relish, then, will I measure at such revelations as had been confided to him? But Paul had good reason to refrain from boasting. A painful physical infirmity was given him to keep him humble. A thorn in the flesh is hardly adequate, a splinter is nearer, but still too weak an expression, for Paul would not entreat thrice for the removal of some minor distress. But it was not removed. Instead, he received grace and the assurance that God's power finds infirmity its fittest tool. He needs none of man's strength. It hinders the manifestation of His power. O, that we could learn this lesson! We repine and are dejected when infirmity and persecution and necessity press upon us, when we should rejoice. Paul delighted in them, not for their own sake, but that the power of Christ may be manifested through them. May His grace be our sole sufficiency!

¹⁴ What a fund of fatherly affection is revealed in his protest, "I am not seeking yours but you!" And it must have humbled them to think of their own lack of care and consideration. They deserved nothing further at his hands. But instead of rebuking them and asserting his rights as an apostle, he proposes to lavish still more affection on them. And he will do this even if it should still further dampen their affection for him. Is not this a reflection of God's dealings with us in grace? We accept His bounty with all too feeble a response, yet He is not offended, but pours it out in more lavish style.

¹⁶ Paul anticipates a subtle insinuation which his enemies might suggest, even if he had cleared himself of their charges. He had sent Titus and others to them. Perhaps he had used them as tools to overreach them, so as to shield himself from blame. But it seems that Titus and those whom he had dispatched to them all were worthy delegates of the apostle, for they followed the same course he had done.

¹⁹ Thus he closes his appeal. His own defense was necessary for their edification.

rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ should be tabernacled over me. Wherefore I delight in infirmities, in outrages, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake, for whenever I may be weak, then I am powerful.

¹¹ I have become imprudent: you compel me. For I ought to be commended by you, for I am not deficient in anything pertaining to the paramount apostles, even if I am nothing. Indeed, the signs of an apostle are produced among you in all endurance, in signs as well as miracles and powers. For is there anything in which you were discomfited over the rest of the ecclesias, except that I myself am no encumbrance to you? Deal graciously with me for this injustice!

¹⁴ Lo! this third time I am in readiness to come to you, and I shall not be an encumbrance, for I am not seeking yours but you. For the children ought not to be treasuring up for the parents, but the parents for the children. Yet with the greatest relish shall I spend and be bankrupted for the sake of your souls, even if loving you more exceedingly diminishes your love for me.

¹⁶ Now, let be, I do not overburden you, but belonging to the crafty, I got you by guile! Did not any of those whom I dispatched to you? Through him I overreach you! I entreat Titus, and dispatch together with him a brother. Does Titus not overreach you in something? Walk we not in the same spirit? Not in the same foot-prints?

¹⁹ Again, you are presuming that we are defending ourselves to you. In God's sight, in Christ, are we speaking, yet all, beloved, for the ²¹ It was probably some months before Paul fulfilled his intention of visiting them again in person. During the interval he went over Macedonia, and possibly as far as Illyricum, giving them much exhortation. But all this time his heart was in Corinth. He had written to them. He had sent messengers to them. They had given him much sorrow not unmixed with joy. He had exhorted and he had threatened. He had made it plain that he would not spare when he came again in person. Can we imagine his feelings as he approached the city? How he shrank from being severe! Yet he must be severe, should it be necessary. Doubtless the majority would receive him with hearts full of joy and affection. But what of the rebellious minority? It was with such powerful emotions that he followed this epistle some months later.

It would seem from the uncanonical epistle of Clement, that his efforts for the Corinthian ecclesia were not in vain, but bore precious fruit. According to Acts (Ac.20²), he stayed in Greece three months, and, as usual, had to leave because the Jews lay in wait for him.

⁴ The power of Christ had been manifested amongst the Corinthians, yet Paul reminds them that even He was once crucified in utter weakness. Pilate and Herod and the chief priests all seemed stronger than He. But out of that very weakness came the power that saved them and that triumphed over His adversaries and that raised Him to the highest place in all the universe. So, says Paul, will it be with my weakness. The same power that raised Christ from the dead will impart strength to my weakness, and triumph over my adversaries.

²⁰ sake of your edification. For I am afraid, lest somehow, on coming, I may not be finding you such as I want, and I may be found by you such as you do not want; lest somehow there be strife, jealousy, fury, factions, vilifications, whisperings, puffing up, turbulences.

²¹ Not again at my coming will my God be humbling me toward you, and I shall be mourning for many who have sinned before and are not repentant of the uncleanness and prostitution and wantonness which they commit.

13 Lo! This is the third time I am coming to you. By the mouth of two witnesses, and three, shall every declaration be made to stand.

² I have declared before, and am predicting as if being present the second time, and now, being absent, to those having sinned before and to all the rest, that if I should be coming again, I shall not spare, ³ since you are seeking a test of Christ speaking in me, Who is not weak for you, but powerful ⁴ among you. For even if He was crucified out of weakness, nevertheless He is living by the power of God. For we also are weak together with Him, but we shall be living together with Him by the power of God for you.

⁵ Be trying yourselves, if you are in the faith; be testing yourselves. Or are you not recognizing yourselves that Christ Jesus is in you. ⁶ except some are disqualified? Now I expect that you will know that ⁷ we are not disqualified! Now we are wishing to God that you do no evil, not that we may appear qualified, but that you may be doing that which is ideal, yet we may be ⁸ as disqualified. For we are not able for anything against the truth, ¹⁰ Edification should ever be the aim of God's servant in dealing with His erring saints. All other means should be exhausted before sharpness and severity should be used. They are a last resort, and seldom need be called into play if the example of Paul were followed, as it is given us in this epistle.

⁹ but for the sake of the truth. For we are rejoicing whenever we may be weak, yet you may be powerful. Now this are we wishing also:
¹⁰ your readjustment. Therefore I am writing this being absent that, being present, I should not be using severity, according to the authority which the Lord gives me for edification and not for pulling down.

¹¹ Furthermore, brethren, be rejoicing, be readjusted, be entreated, be mutually disposed, be at peace, and the God of love and of peace ¹² will be with you. Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the ¹³ saints are greeting you.

PAUL's Galatian epistle is the divine commentary on the doctrine of justification as set forth in the first four chapters of his epistle to the Romans.

Some time after Paul had been severed (Ac.13²) and had gone among the nations preaching justification by faith (Ac.13³⁹) and had returned to Antioch, Judaizing teachers came down from Jerusalem teaching that "If you should not be circumcised after the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved." (Ac.15¹). The matter was taken up in the council of the apostles at Jerusalem, and Paul and Barnabas were sent with the decrees which made it manifest that circumcision was not necessary for the nations who believed.

After they had delivered these decrees Paul passed through the Galatian province (Ac.16⁶) and founded the ecclesias to which this epistle is addressed. Some years later he visited the Galatian province again, establishing the disciples (Ac.18²³).

We never hear again that the Judaizers taught that circumcision was essential to salvation. The decrees of the twelve effectually forbade this. Now, however, they try to graft the law on to the evangel and make circumcision and the keeping of the law a further privilege and a means of perfection for the believers among the nations. It is against this subtle form of error that this epistle is directed. Paul shows that spirit and flesh, grace and works, faith and law, cannot be reconciled.

Paul is called upon to present a defense of his evangel. This is divided into two distinct lines of thought. First he discusses its origin and then its essence. He proves that its origin was quite independent of Peter and the twelve. He demonstrates that its essence is incompatible with the keeping of the law. Then he further shows that its fruits cannot be produced in legal bonds.

The origin of the evangel involves Paul's personal history after his call, and his points of contact with the twelve, especially Peter. He carefully rehearses the details of his three meetings with Peter, showing that he had no opportunity to receive his evangel from him, but that, in each case, he communicated his evangel to Peter and the others.

The doctrinal defense discusses the difference between the Abrahamic and Sinaitic covenants, showing the priority of the Abrahamic promise and the subordinate and temporary function of the law. It acted as an escort, during the minority of the chosen nation, to lead them to Christ. It was a guardian, suitable only for those under age. It must not continue. If faith came four hundred years before its advent, it is in no need of law. When law utterly fails then faith remains. Hence the utter folly of the Galatian ecclesias, to whom the law was never given by God, in voluntarily subjecting themselves to its demands when they already had far more than it could ever give them. Before law came, and after it fails, the just lived by faith. It never could give either righteousness or life. The Galatians had both, by faith in Christ.

In practise the law is powerless through the flesh. But grace, working through faith, can overfill the law's demands by ignoring its commands and curses.

The two evangels were different in kind and could not be classed together. They had been called in the grace of Christ. They were being transferred to the bondage of law.

⁸ The intense zeal of the apostle for the evangel he had proclaimed comes out in the fact that he calls down this anathema on himself, in case he should be guilty of distorting the message he is proclaiming. It is worthy of note that he is not objecting to the apostles of the Circumcision preaching a distinct evangel to them. That was what they had been commissioned for. But they had agreed that they would not go to the nations. Hence he repeats the words to you thrice.

⁹ The apostle now includes the Judaizing teachers in the second anathema.

¹¹ Those who were disturbing the Galatians had no message except what they had received from the twelve apostles. But Paul is unwearied in his insistence that he received nothing from them. His evangel was a fresh revelation made known to him by the Lord Himself. If Paul merely proclaimed what the twelve taught, why did he not receive it through them? What need for the Lord to descend and call him on the Damascus road? Why should he be severed from the rest at Antioch? Why did the believing Jews in Jerusalem oppose his ministry among the nations?

PAUL, an apostle (not from men, neither through a man, but through Jesus Christ and God, the Father, Who rouses Him from among the dead), and all the brethren with me, to the ecclesias of Galatia:

³ Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ, the One giving Himself for our sins, so that He might extricate us out of the present wicked eon, according to the will of our God and Father, to Whom be glory for the eons of the eons. Amen!

⁶ I AM MARVELING that you are transferred thus swiftly, from Him Who calls you in the grace of Christ, to a different evangel, which is not another, unless some who are disturbing you want also to distort the evangel of Christ. But if we also, or a messenger out of heaven, should be preaching an evangel to you beside that which we preach to you, let him be anathema! As we have declared before and at present I am saying again, if anyone is preaching to you an evangel beside that which you accepted, let him be anathema! For, at present, am I persuading men or God? Or am I seeking to please men? If I still pleased men, I should not be a slave of Christ. For I am making known to you, brethren, the evangel which is being preached by me, that it is not in accord with man. For neither did I accept it from man, nor was I taught it, but through a revelation of Jesus Christ. For you hear of my behavior once, in Judaism, that I inordinately persecuted the eccle-

¹⁶ The first revelation which came to Saul of Tarsus prepared the way for those which were to follow. He was called outside the land. Hence he found his sphere of service among the nations. He was not seeking God, but was His most implacable human enemy. He is saved by a display of grace which had hitherto been unknown. Hence his evangel is the exponent of the unadulterated grace of God. His first meeting with Christ was after His ascension and glorification. Hence he is concerned, not with His earthly life, but with His heavenly position. He recognizes Him as the Son of God, and, as such, he immediately proclaims Him (Ac.9:1-20).

¹⁷ The natural course for one in Saul's case would be to go up to Jerusalem to the apostles and submit to them what he had received from the Lord and seek their patronage and fellowship in its proclamation, or, indeed, ask their opinion and permission to promulgate it. But what did he do? He went into the desert where no human influence was at work. He waited three years before telling Peter about it, and then he does not even form the acquaintance of the twelve or of the ecclesia. They actually did not know him personally, though they were glorifying God for the great change in him. All of this shows conclusively that Paul did not, at that time, derive his doctrine from Peter or the twelve.

¹ Paul's next visit to Jerusalem was pursuant to a revelation. The time had come to obtain official recognition of his apostleship and evangel. The occasion was furnished by those of the Circumcision themselves. They insisted that it was needful to circumcise those among the nations who had believed, and to teach them to observe the law of Moses. Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem to put this question before the apostles and obtained from them the assurance that circumcision and law keeping were not necessary for salvation.

¹⁵ Now when it delights God, Who severs me from my mother's womb and calls me through His grace, to unveil His Son in me that I may be evangelizing Him among the nations, I did not immediately submit it to flesh and blood, neither came I up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I came away into Arabia, and I return again to Damascus.

¹⁸ Thereupon, after three years, I came up to Jerusalem to relate my story to Cephas, and I stay with him fifteen days. Yet I became acquainted with none of the different apostles, except James, the brother of the Lord. Now what I am writing to you, lo! before God, I am not lying. Thereupon I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia. Yet I was unknown by face to the ecclesias of Judea who are in Christ. Only they were hearing that "He who was persecuting us once, now evangelizes the faith which once he ravaged".

²⁴ And they glorified God in me.

² Thereupon, after the lapse of fourteen years, I again went up to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus also along with us. Now I went up in accord with a revelation, and submitted to them the evangel which I am proclaiming among the nations, yet privately to those of repute, lest somehow I should be racing or ran for naught.

2 Paul's method in Jerusalem seems to have taken into account the low spiritual state and prejudices of the Jewish believers. It would have been practically impossible to impress the whole company with the character and divinity of his commission to the nations, so he singles out the leading brethren and seeks to show them how God has committed a distinct work to him. Peter and James seem to have grasped the essential points which he wished to impress upon them. Peter had had some preparation for this change, through the vision given him in connection with the proselyte Cornelius (Ac.15:7-11).

3 Titus was taken along as a test case. If circumcision was essential, then he must submit to it. If it was not essential, then he was to be a living proof that it was not necessary.

7 At the private meeting with those of repute Paul obtained the fullest recognition of his apostleship. James, Cephas and John, who were recognized as the chiefs, acknowledge his commission. This puts Paul on a par with Peter, the chief of the Circumcision apostles. There was a mutual understanding arrived at among them that they would confine themselves to the Circumcision, while Paul and Barnabas went to the nations. This agreement should have kept the Judaizing disturbers of the Galatian believers from interfering with them. Paul kept his part of the compact, especially that which concerned the collection for the poor saints in Judea. He brought gifts from the nations. In return they harassed those to whom he had been sent and would have killed him.

11 Paul's third meeting with Peter is most conclusive. At his first meeting he tells Peter of his commission. At his second he gets Peter's recognition. At his third he towers far above him and withstands him to the face. Peter had been taught not to call anyone common or unclean who had the witness of the holy spirit, so that, when he first came to Antioch, he ate with the uncircumcised. But he was afraid of the Circumcisionists, and changed his attitude when they came down from Jerusalem. What prestige these men had, who could intimidate the very chief of the apostles!

3 But not even Titus, who is with me, being a Greek, is compelled to be circumcised. Yet, because of the false brethren who were smuggled in, who crept in to spy out our freedom which we have in Christ Jesus, that they shall be enslaving us—to whom, not even for an hour do we simulate by subjection, that the truth of the evangel should be continuing with you.

6 Now from those reputed to be somewhat—what kind they once were is of no consequence at all to me (God is not taken up with the human aspect)—for those of repute submitted nothing to me. But, on the contrary, perceiving that I have been entrusted with the evangel of the Uncircumcision, according as Peter of the Circumcision (for He Who operates in Peter for the apostleship of the Circumcision operates in me also for the nations), and knowing the grace which is being given to me, James and Cephas and John, who are supposed to be pillars, give to me and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, that we, indeed, are to be for the nations, yet they for the Circumcision—only that we should be remembering the poor, which very thing I endeavor also to do.

11 Now when Cephas came to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, seeing that he was self-censured. 12 For before some came from James he ate with those of the nations. Yet when they came, he shrank back, and severed himself, fearing those of the Circumcision. And the rest of the Jews play the hypocrite with him, so that Barnabas also was led away with their hypocrisy. But when I perceived that they are not

¹⁴ Peter's double dealing did not deceive Paul, though he seems to have dragged all the rest of the Jews in Antioch with him, not even excepting Barnabas. Paul is left alone as the champion of the truth. He has far more cause to fear Peter than Peter has to fear his misguided subordinates, but he does not flinch. He exposes Peter's inconsistent conduct.

Paul's logic is unanswerable. Peter had been living as the nations. If he was right then the nations were right in living as they did, and the Judaizers were wrong in trying to make Jews out of them. He could not withdraw without incriminating himself.

¹⁵ Paul then takes up the case from the standpoint of the Jews who were with him. He and they were justified by the faith of Christ, apart from the law. Should they now voluntarily resume their former relations to the law they would become sinners, and Christ a dispenser of sin, for the law is not laid down for the just but for sinners. In fact, to go back under law would prove either that they had been wrong in leaving it or were wrong in returning to its bondage.

¹⁹ Death is the ultimate effect of the law, yet it is also deliverance from law.

²⁰ We have endeavored to transcribe this marvelous compendium of the faith as nearly as possible as it is in the original, for even the order of the words is exquisite. The sentence opens and closes with Christ. and a negative / occupies its center. It may be shown graphically thus:

with Christ

have I been crucified,

yet I am living—

no longer I,

but living in me is Christ.

²¹ What a contrast between the slavery of the law and the exultant life by faith of the Son of God and the gift of His love!

DOCTRINAL DEFENSE

correct in their attitude toward the truth of the evangel, I said to Cephas in front of all, "If you, belonging to the Jews, are living as the nations, and not as the Jews, how are you compelling the nations

¹⁵ to be judaizing? We, who are Jews by nature, and not sinners

¹⁶ of the nations, having perceived that a man is not justified by works of law, except it be through the faith of Christ Jesus, we also believe into Christ Jesus that we may be justified by the faith of Christ and not by works of law, seeing that by works of law shall no flesh be ¹⁷ justified. Now if, while seeking to be justified in Christ, we ourselves also were found sinners, is Christ, consequently, a dispenser of sin?

¹⁸ May it not come to that! For if I am building again what I demolish. I am commending myself as a

¹⁹ transgressor. For I, through law, died to law, that I should live to

²⁰ God. With Christ have I been crucified, yet I am living—no longer I, but living in me is Christ. Now that which I am now living in flesh. I am living in faith of the Son of God, Who loves me, and is giving ²¹ Himself up for me. I am not repudiating the grace of God, for if righteousness is through law, consequently Christ died gratuitously".

3 O foolish Galatians! What bewitches you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ has been graphically

² crucified? This only I want to learn from you: Did you obtain the spirit by works of law or by the

All injustice finds its earliest source in the unbelief of Eve, and all righteousness acceptable to God is based on a reversal of the lack of confidence her act revealed. Nothing can be more just than to take God at His word.

⁵ How striking the contrast! As many as are of faith are blessed. Accursed is everyone who does not remain in all which has been written in the scroll of the law to do it. Who would be so perverse as to choose law? Yet the heresy of Galatianism is far more prevalent today than ever. Life under law can only come to one who keeps every precept perfectly at all times, yet is forfeited at the slightest infringement. Life through faith does not depend on conduct but on the One in Whom the faith is placed.

¹³ The sacrifice of Christ made provision for all classes and all contingencies. For those under law He bore its curse, so that they may receive the blessing of Abraham. And He bore the sins of those not under law that they, too, may obtain the righteousness of Abraham. So both, through faith, receive the spirit, by which they may exceed the righteous demands of the law.

¹⁵ A contract, or agreement, or covenant, once ratified, cannot be set aside, neither can any of its provisions be altered. The Abrahamic covenant contained no conditions to invalidate it. It did not depend on obedience to confirm it. It depended solely on God, who swore by Himself that He would carry it out (Gen.22:16-18).

sham? If, to be sure, it was even a sham!

⁶ He, then, who is supplying you with the spirit, and operating works of power among you—did you get the spirit by works of law or by the hearing of faith, according as Abraham believes God, and it is reckoned to him for righteousness? Know, consequently, that those of faith, these are sons of Abraham. Now the scripture, perceiving before that God is justifying the nations by faith, preaches before an evangel to Abraham, that "In you shall all the nations be blessed". So that those of faith are being blessed together with believing Abraham.

¹⁰ For as many as are of works of law are under a curse, for it is written that "Accursed is everyone who is not remaining in all things which have been written in the scroll of the law to do them".
¹¹ Now that no one is being justified in law with God is evident, seeing that "The just by faith shall be living". Now the law is not of faith, but "Who does them shall be living in them". Christ reclaims us out of the curse of the law, becoming a curse for our sakes, seeing that it is written, "Accursed is everyone being hanged on a tree," that the blessing of Abraham may be coming into the nations in Jesus Christ, that we may be obtaining the promise of the spirit through faith.

¹⁵ Brethren (I am saying this as a man), a human covenant likewise having been ratified, no one is repudiating or modifying it. Now to Abraham the promises were declared, and to his Seed. He is not saying "And to seeds," as of 17 The priority of the promise is most important. Nearly half a millennium elapsed, before the law was given. The promise is in no way dependent on the law for its fulfillment.

19 Law changes sin from a mere mistake into the over-stepping of a divine command. It enhances the sinfulness of sin. Transgression is sin against a known law, entailing not only the usual penalties, but the added displeasure of God against one who defies His precepts. The law was not given to the people directly, but through Moses, who acted as the mediator. Neither was it given through Christ, the Seed of the promise.

21 Far from being against the promises, the law was intended to guard those to whom the promise was made and to lead them to Christ. It could not give life or justify in itself, but it could bring them to a realization of the sinfulness of sin and the need of a Saviour. These were its functions, and these it fulfilled. This was, however, only until the Seed should come.

24 It was the custom in well-to-do Greek families, to have the children taken to and from school under the guardianship of an escort, usually a slave. These were inclined to be somewhat severe in their discipline. Such was the law.

25 Those who believe are not under law. The grown sons would scorn the escort of their boyhood days. His presence would be an insult to their manhood. So those who know their maturity in Christ refuse the bondage of law as both unnecessary and humiliating. We are not children but sons. Law leads minors. Faith controls sons.

27 Baptism, as practised in Paul's early ministry, was a symbol of unity with Christ in His death, burial and resurrection. "As many as" shows that not all the Galatians had been baptized. Nevertheless the truth of unity with Christ held for all, for in Him all physical distinctions vanish. In service, or in the Lord, the slave was still a slave, the sexes were still recognized, but in Christ, by faith, all have the same high place of privilege. All are entitled to the promise and the righteousness which comes by faith in God.

many, but as of One. "And to your Seed", which is Christ. Now this am I saying, a covenant, having been ratified before by God, the law, having come four hundred and thirty years afterward, does not invalidate, so as to abrogate the promise. For if the enjoyment of the allotment is of law, it is no longer of promise. Yet God has graciously given it to Abraham through the promise.

19 What, then, is the law? It was added on behalf of transgressions until the Seed should come to Whom He has promised, being prescribed through messengers in the hand of a mediator. Now there is no mediator of one. Yet God is One.

21 Is the law, then, against the promises of God? May it not come to that! For if a law were given, able to vivify, really, righteousness would be out of law. But the scripture locks up all together under sin, that the promise out of Jesus Christ's faith may be given to those who are believing.

23 Now before the coming of faith we were garrisoned under law, being locked up together for the faith about to be revealed. So that the law has become our escort to lead us to Christ, that we may be justified by faith.

25 Now, on the coming of faith, we are no longer under an escort. 26 for, through faith, you are all sons of God, in Christ Jesus. For as many as are baptized into Christ. 28 put on Christ, in Whom there is no Jew nor yet Greek, no slave nor yet free, no male and female, for 29 you all are one in Christ Jesus. Now if you are Christ's, consequently you are of Abraham's seed, enjoy-

¹ The place of an infant heir differs from that of a slave in right but not in fact. Though entitled to all, he is treated as though master of nothing. He is watched by guardians, and supervised by stewards. This was the position of Israel under the law. There was the sonship and the glory and the covenants, but these are all reserved for future display. Dignities are suited to capacity; privileges to age. Infancy is debarred from their use, not merely by the formal legal prohibition, but by intrinsic disqualification. The responsibilities of property are beyond the strength and understanding of a child.

⁷ It is most remarkable that the apostle puts the Mosaic ceremonial on a par with heathen rites. They were not turning back to their previous idolatry but to the observances under the law, which they had not practised before. But he insists it is all the same in God's sight as if they really had returned to the rites of heathenism.

¹⁰ Do any of us observe these things? Paul would be afraid of us!

¹² If Paul had given up the Mosaic ritual and become as they were for their sakes, surely they ought to follow his example, for he certainly had far more reason to cling to it than they had to lapse back into it.

ers of the allotment according to the promise.

⁴ Now I am saying, for as much time as the enjoyer of the allotment is a minor, he is of no more consequence than a slave, being master of all, but is under guardians and stewards until the time proposed by the father. Thus also we, when we were minors, were enslaved under the elements of the world. Now when the full time came, God delegates His Son, come of a woman, come under law, that He should be reclaiming those under law, that we may be getting the place of a son. Now, seeing that you are sons, God delegates the spirit of His Son into our hearts, crying "Abba! Father!"

⁷ So that you are no longer a slave, but a son. Now if a son, an enjoyer also of God's allotment, through Christ.

⁸ But then, indeed, having no perception of God, you are slaves of those who, by nature, are not gods. Yet now, knowing God, yet rather being known by God, how are you turning back again to the infirm and poor elements for which you want to slave again anew?

¹⁰ You are scrutinizing days and months and seasons and years. I am afraid of you lest somehow my toil for you is a sham.

¹² Become as I, since I am even as you, brethren, I am beseeching you.

¹³ You injure me in nothing. Now you are aware that because of the infirmity of the flesh I preach the evangel to you formerly. And your trial, in my flesh, you do not scorn, neither do you loathe it, but you receive me as a messenger of God, as Christ Jesus. Where, then, is your happiness? For I am

¹⁵ Eye diseases are very common in the East. Paul's first acquaintance with the Galatians was when, as a sick traveler, he proclaimed the evangel to them in the midst of his infirmities. From this passage we get a glimpse of the fervent love his message evoked, and are led to suppose that he had some affliction of the eyes.

¹⁹ What affectionate mothering stirs the apostle as he broods over his erring children!

²² The controversy turns on the question "Who are the heirs of Abraham?" Is the ground of sonship circumcision and law keeping, or faith? The Judaizers said, We are Abraham's sons! Abraham had two sons, says Paul. Which line do you belong to, Ishmael or Isaac? You are Ishmaelites, sons of Hagar, born of the flesh, born into slavery. You are not heirs of Abraham! Isaac, the child of promise, is the true heir. These two sons of Abraham illustrate the relation between law and promise, flesh and spirit. Ishmael came into Abraham's home between the promise and the advent of the true heir. Born of unbelief, he was a continual trial and persecuted the son of promise. But finally the decree went forth: Cast out this maid and her son!

It could hardly be that the Galatians are listening to any but so-called "believing" Jews who were associated with the apostles, and with James. They would not listen to the persecutors of the ecclesia in Jerusalem. Tens of thousands of Jews "believed" but they all were zealous of the law (Ac. 21:20). This shows that those associated with the Pentecostal administration were virulently opposed to Paul and his doctrine of grace. When he was in Jerusalem they led the multitude against him and nearly killed him. These Jewish Christians were the most troublesome enemies of the ecclesias among the nations which had been founded by Paul.

testifying to you, that, if possible, gouging out your eyes, you would give them to me. So that I have become your enemy by being true to you!

¹⁷ They are jealous over you, not ideally, but they want to debar you that you may be jealous over them. Now it is ideal for you to be jealous in the ideal always, and not only in my presence with you.

¹⁹ Little children mine, with whom I am traveling again until Christ may be formed in you!—yet I wanted to be present with you at present, and to change my voice, seeing that I am perplexed about you.

²¹ Tell me, those wanting to be under law, are you not hearing the law? For it is written, that Abraham has had two sons, one out of the maid and one out of the free woman. But the one, indeed, out of the maid has been begotten according to flesh, yet the one out of the free woman through the promise. Which is allegorizing, for these women are the two covenants, one, indeed, from Mount Sinai, generating into slavery, which is Hagar. Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia, yet she is in line with Jerusalem which now is, for she is in slavery with her children. Yet Jerusalem above is free, who is mother of us all. For it is written, "Be glad, sterile one, who art not bringing forth; burst forth and implore, thou who art not travailing; seeing that many are the children of the desolate, rather than of her who has the husband".

²³ Now you, brethren, as Isaac, are children of promise. But even as then, he who is generated according to flesh persecuted him according to spirit, thus also it is

¹ This paragraph is the summary and conclusion of the doctrinal argument. Tersely, he puts the case. Which shall it be, Christ or circumcision? No half hearted allegiance here, no serving of two masters. Circumcision might have been a badge of privilege in the past, but now it has become a sign of apostasy. It does not lead to justification from sin, but to exemption from Christ. It is incumbent on such to keep the entire law. Grace has no room in which to operate.

* "Falling from grace" is not, as usually supposed, a loss of the benefits of Christ's salvation through breaking the law, but, on the contrary, through attempting to keep the law. He who falls into sin does not forfeit the grace of God. Blessed to relate, grace abounds in such a case (Rom.6:1). But he who seeks to establish his own salvation by works has no need of the grace of God and forfeits all right to the benefits flowing from His redemption. He thus repudiates grace. He falls out of the sphere where grace operates. This is what "falling from grace" really means.

⁵ Righteousness is here put before us as an expectation for which we are waiting. This is required by the contrast between that produced by the law and that effected by faith. At present, in God's sight, the one righteous thing to do is to believe Him. The man who believes God is absolutely right in that act. If we could view this from God's side we would see that such a man is just, and needs nothing more to make him righteous. The effect of this on his dealings with others may not be fully in harmony with this fact now, but the time is coming when our conduct will partake of the righteousness of faith. This is the "expectation of righteousness".

⁵ For freedom Christ frees us! Stand firm, then, and be not again enthralled with the yoke of slavery. ² Lo! I, Paul, am saying to you that if you should be circumcising, Christ will be of no benefit to you ³ at all. Now I am testifying again to every man who is being circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the ⁴ whole law. You were exempted from Christ, any who are being justified in law. You fall out of ⁵ grace. For we are awaiting, in spirit, the expectation of righteousness by faith. For in Christ Je- ⁶ sus neither circumcision is availing anything, nor uncircumcision, but faith, operating through love.

⁷ You raced ideally! What hinders you from being persuaded by ⁸ the truth? This persuasion is not ⁹ of Him Who is calling you. A little leaven is leavening the whole ¹⁰ kneading. I have confidence concerning you in the Lord that you will not be at all disposed otherwise. Now he who is disturbing you shall be bearing his judgment, whoever he may be.

¹¹ Now I, brethren, if I am still proclaiming circumcision, why am I still being persecuted? Consequently the snare of the cross of ¹² Christ has vanished. They who are raising you to insurrection ought to strike themselves off also.

¹⁵ The Galatians were biting and devouring one another, while they supposed themselves to be keeping the law. The law usually acts thus. It makes men self-righteous and contentious. Instead of fulfilling its letter they destroy its spirit. Law should lead to regard for others and find its fruition in love. But it leads its votaries to despise others and finds its fruit in hate.

¹⁷ In this list there are some sins which we have come to condone or even justify, yet they are in the midst of a catalogue of crimes. Enmity and strife, jealousy and faction, too often assume a righteous garb. Sectarianism is defended as though it were an improvement on the divine unity of the body of Christ. In the kingdom of God there will be no one practising such things.

¹⁸ The flesh acts, the spirit bears fruit, delicious not only to us but to God. Fruit is not the result of mechanical effort but the natural expression of life and growth. If we love others we will need no legal restrictions to keep us from injuring them. Law is a useless incumbrance to those who walk after the spirit. They need no promptings to do good and are above the penalties imposed on evil doers.

¹ A true self-knowledge will humble us so that we can deal meekly with a brother who has suddenly slipped. The law would condemn him, but we are to seek to bring him back into line.

¹⁴ For every law is fulfilled in one word, in this, "You shall be loving your associate as yourself". Now if you are biting and devouring one another, beware that you may not be consumed by one another.

¹⁵ Now I am saying, Be walking in spirit, and you should under no circumstances be consummating the lust of the flesh. For the flesh is lusting against the spirit, yet the spirit against the flesh. Now these are opposing one another, lest you should be doing what you want. Now, if you are led by spirit, you are not still under law.

¹⁷ Now the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, fidelity, meekness, self-control: against such things there is no law. Now those of Christ Jesus crucify the flesh together with its passions and lusts. If we may be living in spirit, in spirit we may be observing the fundamentals also.

¹⁸ We should not be becoming vain-glorious, challenging one another, envying one another.

⁶ Brethren, if a man should be overtaken also in some offense, you who are spiritual be attuning such a one, in a spirit of meekness, noting yourself, that you also may not be tried. Be bearing one another's burdens, and thus fill up

⁶ In order to perpetuate the instruction of His saints God has made it obligatory that such a service should be recognized and proper compensation provided for those who instruct.

⁷ The figure of sowing and reaping is a most encouraging one to consider. The farmer plants the seed and sees no results at all for some time. He waits long and patiently ere he reaps the harvest. So we, too, may see little come of our sowing for the spirit, but in the proper season we shall reap as we have sown. That which is for the flesh will rot. That which is for the spirit will endure for the eons. There is much, very much, to make us despondent, but we should ever keep in mind the eonian harvest for which we are preparing.

¹¹ It seems probable that the rest of the epistle was penned by Paul himself. His usual custom was to write only a short ending to attest the genuineness of a letter, but here he is so concerned that he rehearses the heart of the argument in his own handwriting. It has been suggested that the writing was in large characters because of his defective eyesight.

³ the law of Christ. For if anyone is supposing [himself] to be anything, being nothing, he is imposing on himself. Now let each one be testing his own work, and then he shall be having his boast for himself alone, and not for another, for each one shall be bearing his own load.

⁶ Now let him who is being instructed in the word be contributing to him who is instructing, in all good things. Be not deceived, God is not to be sneered at, for whatever a man may be sowing, this shall he be reaping also, seeing that he who is sowing for his own flesh, from the flesh shall be reaping corruption, yet he who is sowing for the spirit, from the spirit shall be reaping eonian life. Now we should not be despondent in ideal doing, for in due season we shall be reaping, not fainting. Consequently, then, as we have occasion, we are working for the good of all, yet specially for the family of faith.

¹¹ See with what big letters I write to you with my own hand! As many as want to put on a fair face in the flesh, these are compelling you to be circumcised, only that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ Jesus. For not even they who are circumcised are maintaining law, but they want you to be circumcised that they should be boasting in that flesh of yours. Now may it not be mine to be boasting, except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through Whom the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world. For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision is anything, but there is a new creation. And as many as

¹⁸ Note the emphasis on spirit, in line with the teaching of the epistle.

PAUL'S PERFECTION EPISTLES

PAUL's perfection epistles are emphatically the truth for the present. The Ephesian letter, being addressed to all believers in Christ Jesus, in contrast with the Circumcision, who hardly knew Him by this title, is the ranking revelation for the members of the body of Christ. Here first are revealed those secrets which distinguish this administration from all others. Never before has the heavenly destiny of the present ecclesia been declared. All the other scriptures deal with the elementary and immature, but here we find perfection. God's purpose had been only partially made known before and seemed confined to earth. But in this final transcendent revelation His ultimate universal goal is first revealed. These three letters are closely related to each other and should be studied together. As was shown in the outline of Paul's epistles, this may be graphically presented thus:

EPHESIANS 1-3, Doctrine—The Body: its Members

EPHESIANS 4-6, Department

PHILIPPIANS, Department

COLOSSIANS, Doctrine—The Body: its Head

Ephesians begins by presenting a careful and comprehensive statement of the truth for the present secret economy, laying stress on those aspects which concern the members of Christ's body. Colossians is the counterpart of this, dealing with the same doctrines but presenting them in their relation to the Head of the body.

Both begin with God and with His primordial purpose. The members of the body were chosen before the disruption and now become the beneficiaries in His heavenly allotment. Christ is His Image, being the First-born of all creation and now becomes the Head of all creation in heaven as well as on earth.

Ephesians, then, unfolds the truth of the joint body in which all the members are of equal rank. Colossians makes Him the Head over the body and the members subordinate to Him.

Two secrets or "mysteries" are disclosed in these epistles. The secret of Christ (Eph.1:9-10; Col.2:2-4) was previously revealed but not as it is now revealed. His headship over the earth had been made known to the prophets of old. His headship in the heavens was made known to the apostles, especially Peter (1Pet.3:22). But the secret economy, the present administration of grace, was never disclosed to any one except through Paul (Eph.3:9). It was not partially hidden, like the mystery of Christ, but was an absolute secret, hid in God. It is the function of the first three chapters of Ephesians to explain its three aspects for the believer, and of Colossians to reveal the position which it accords to Christ.

These letters should be read in this light. It is only when we apprehend their radical difference and vast advance over the epistles written by others than the apostle of the nations (Eph.3:1) that we can appreciate their marvelous message. It is only as we allow them to dominate and modify Paul's previous epistles, of which they are the ripened fruit, that we are able to entertain the transcendent nature of their contents.

The title Christ Jesus, calling attention to His present place of power, is the key to the marvelous grace which came to them after the nation of Israel had been rejected, as recorded at the close of the book of Acts. As associated with Jesus Christ they would be still subordinate to the favored nation, for He is still rejected. But the title which recognizes His present glory in the heavens makes it possible for the far off "Gentiles" to be blessed in celestial realms equally with a favored few of the nation of His choice.

Paul's Perfection epistles are based upon his Preparatory epistles to the Thessalonians, the Romans, the Corinthians, and the Galatians. They are addressed to those who had received the truth taught in his earlier ministries, who were in a state of prior expectancy (Eph.1¹² 1Thes.1¹⁰), who had been sealed with the holy spirit (Eph.1¹³ 2Co1²²), which was an earnest of more to come (Eph.1¹⁴ 2Co.5⁵). They had been enjoyers of an allotment (Ro.8¹⁷ Ga.4⁷), and now become joint allottees (Eph.3⁶). Once they were members of a body in which the members were of various rank (Ro.12⁴ 1Co.12¹²). Now that Israel is set aside and the celestial destiny revealed, it is changed to a joint body, in which all the members are equally exalted (Eph.3⁶). The nations become joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus (Eph.3⁶) which once they held as guests of Israel's covenant.

All saints, during the eonian times, are under God's government, belong to His family, and become the nucleus of His worship. On earth, the nations are subordinate, for Israel must be the head. Such was the place of those who received Paul's message, before the Perfection epistles were penned. The new revelation not only changed their destiny to heaven, but made them the peers of the favored nation. We are fellow citizens. We are not merely guests, but members of God's family. We are an integral part of the temple which God is building for His worship (Eph.2¹⁹⁻²²).

The Perfection epistles should be studied as a group. The truth is set forth didactically and logically in the opening chapters of Ephesians. Philippians goes over the ground experimentally, showing the truth operating in Christ and Paul and other examples. It applies the teaching of Ephesians to daily conduct. The "calling above" (Ph. 3¹⁴) is the celestial calling of Ephesians 13. Colossians corrects departure from Ephesian teaching, with special stress upon the glories of Christ in creation and reconciliation.

Some of the chief figures in these epistles have often been misunderstood, especially that of Christ's headship of the ecclesia. It is usually taken that all of the body except the head figures the ecclesia. This is not true. The head is reckoned as a member. The headship of Christ is not figured by the head of the body. Its parts, such as the eyes and nose, are members. Christ is not a member of the body, but Head over the ecclesia, as a husband is head over his wife (Eph.5²³). The wife has a head apart from the headship of her husband.

The new humanity (Eph.2¹⁵) is an entirely distinct figure from that of the body. It refers to the race, giving Christ the place lost by Adam. It can be put on (Eph.5²⁴), or taken off. This cannot refer to our union with Christ under the figure of the body.

It should also be remembered that the "mystery", or secret, is not the body of Christ, for that had been known before. It is threefold, and includes our relationship to God as allottees, and to saints as partakers, as well as to Christ as His body. It consists in the fact that, in each of these relationships, grace has raised those among the nations who believe to equal rank, so that all are joint allottees and joint partakers, and members of a joint body.

EPHESIANS

THE zenith of divine revelation, this heavenly epistle, leaving the earth, where the Christ is repudiated by His own people Israel, seats us among the celestials, where He is enthroned at God's right hand (1²⁰). His saints, blessed with every spiritual blessing in Him (1³) in heaven (2⁶), are an object lesson to manifest God's manifold wisdom to celestial beings (3¹⁰), so that the purpose of the eons (3¹¹), which embraces Christ's headship over the heavens as well as the earth (1¹⁰), may be effected through the transcendent riches of grace (2⁷) which has come to the nations through the repudiation of faithless Israel, until their salvation and reception (Ro. 11¹²).

The dimensions of the present grace are not constricted as with Israel. It reaches back to a time prior to the entrance of sin and forward to its exit. It includes not only all mankind who believe in the present economy, but is intended to affect the heavens as well. It takes men far below the plane of privilege on which Israel dwelt, with no claims whatever on God's mercy, and seats them far above the highest in heaven. May He help us to learn something of this grace! This knowledge leads us into the realm of the unknowable, for it reveals to us the transcendent love of Christ which we will never be able to fathom fully and which will always yield new delights.

As to time, it reverts to a period prior to the disruption of the first of Genesis (1⁴Gen.1²) and leads to the exaltation of Christ, not only in the coming eon (1²¹), but in the eon of the eons, too (2⁷3²¹), which is the economy of the fullness of the eras (1¹⁰).

Being addressed to those who believe in Christ Jesus, in contrast to those of the Circumcision whose blessings, on the earth, are postponed until His return in glory, this letter was intended only for those who had received Paul's previous ministries and were expecting to be with Him before His coming to the earth (1¹²).

The omission of "in Ephesus" (1¹), the lack of the slightest local allusion, and the very general character of the epistle, all tend to show that it is the charter of the church of this economy, a treatise on present truth—the touchstone and standard by which all truth for today must be tested.

The letter proper is an elaboration of the definition of the present secret economy (3⁶) "that, in spirit, the nations are to be joint-enjoyers, and a joint-body, and joint-partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus" through the evangel of which Paul became the dispenser.

The joint allotment is distinctly stated in 1³⁻¹⁴. It is expanded in 1³⁻¹⁸, and enforced in 6¹⁰⁻²⁰.

The joint body seats both Jew and Gentile together (2⁶) among the celestials in Christ Jesus. This is detailed in 1¹⁹⁻²¹ and in 5^{21-6:9}.

The joint participation is seen in creating the Circumcision and the Uncircumcision into one new humanity (2¹⁵). It is fully discussed in 2¹¹⁻²², and is applied to our deportment in 4^{17-5:20}.

A summary of the new revelation is given in 3¹⁻¹³, which is reviewed as to its results in 4⁷⁻¹⁸.

The heart of the epistle is filled with two petitions, one to the Father, and one to the saints to preserve the spiritual unity which is founded on the transcendent truths and fathomless favor and limitless love which are revealed in this lovely letter.

¹ The title "Christ Jesus" is the token of His exaltation; "Jesus Christ" refers us to His humiliation. "Christ Jesus" is used by Paul, especially in his later ministries.

The words "in Ephesus" seem to have been added after the significance of "Christ Jesus" had been lost. The epistle is confined to those who, in contrast with the Circumcision, base their blessings on His present heavenly exaltation, rather than on His future glorious manifestation to the earth for the blessing of Israel and the other nations.

THE JOINT ALLOTMENT —IN HEAVEN

BLESSING

⁴ "Disruption" is demanded by its elements (down-casting) as well as its usage, rather than "foundation", which represents another Greek word. The disruption suggests the sin of celestial beings and the cataclysm of Gen.12.

⁴ Not, as the English words suggest, that we may be in the future, but "to be" at present.

⁷ "Pardon" of sins becomes forgiveness when associated with offenses.

¹⁰ The heading up of the universe in Christ is the so-called "mystery" or secret of Christ referred to in 3:4-5 (see 1Pe.3:22). It must not be confounded with the secret economy (39) which is in force at present. The two are in accord, but distinct. Christ's headship over the earth had been previously revealed. His heavenly headship was revealed to Peter. The present economy was an absolute secret made known to Paul only.

¹² The "perfect" or complete form of the verb marks a state rather than an action. The Circumcision looked for signs and did not expect Messiah until after the great affliction. Those under Paul's ministry were expecting Him at any time. Hence they were in a state of prior expectancy. To such as these this letter was written. To others the epistle to the Hebrews is addressed.

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, to all the saints who are, and believe in, Christ Jesus:

² Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

³ BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who blesses us with every spiritual blessing among the celestials, in ⁴ Christ, according as He chooses us in Him before the disruption of the world, we to be holy and flawless in His sight, in love designating us beforehand for the place of a son for Him through Christ Jesus; in accord with the delight of ⁶ His will, for the laud of His grace glorious, which graces us in the ⁷ Beloved: in Whom we are having the deliverance through His blood, the forgiveness of offenses in accord
⁸ with the riches of His grace, which He lavishes on us in all wisdom and ⁹ prudence, making known to us the secret of His will (in accord with His delight, which He purposed in ¹⁰ Him) to have an administration of the complement of the eras, to head up the universe in the Christ—in the heavens as well as on the ¹¹ earth—in Him in Whom our lot is cast also, being designated beforehand according to the purpose of the One Who is operating the universe in accord with the counsel of ¹² His will, that we should be for the laud of His glory, who are in a state of prior expectancy in the Christ.
¹³ In Whom you also—when hearing the word of truth, the evangel

¹³ The subject of these paragraphs is the evangel of the nations: its seal¹³, its recognition¹⁷, its prospect¹⁸, its allotment^{14 18}, and its power¹⁹. This subject is kept in mind throughout.

The argument is as follows: Paul and his associates of the Circumcision received the celestial, spiritual blessings which have been detailed. The earnest of their allotment in Christ was the holy spirit which was a pledge of its deliverance. As the believers among the nations received the same spirit when they believed, it is a seal to them that they too¹³ will enjoy the celestial, spiritual favors which are lavished upon those of the Circumcision who believe in Christ Jesus during His rejection by the nation of Israel.

¹⁴ The "spirit of promise" is not what was promised, but a spirit which promises, a promissory spirit.

Note carefully the pronouns us ^{3 4 5 6 8 9} and we ^{7 12} and our ¹⁴, and the contrastive you ^{13 15 16 18} and your ¹³.

¹⁵ "The faith which relates to you" refers to the new truth set forth in this epistle.

This letter was probably sent to Ephesus where Paul had taught for two years (Ac.19¹⁰) and where he had not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God (Ac.20²⁷). His prayer for "a spirit of revelation" makes it evident that this epistle deals with a secret (³⁰) of God's purpose (³¹) quite distinct from His counsels which had been revealed before.

THE BODY—IN CHRIST

THE MEMBERS

²³ The sovereignty of the earth is given to the nation of Israel, according to the prophets. The sovereignty of the heavens is the portion of the ecclesia which is His body. Between the two the entire universe is brought under the administration of Christ. Thus His body is the plerōma, or complement, which fills up the lack which earth's deliverance would still leave in the celestial realms. Its function is to fulfill God's purpose for the entire universe, only part of which He is able to accomplish through His people Israel.

of your salvation—in Whom, when believing also, you are sealed with the holy spirit of promise (which is an earnest of the enjoyment of our allotment, until the deliverance of that which has been procured) for the laud of His glory!

¹⁵ Therefore, I also, when hearing of the faith which relates to you in the Lord Jesus, and that for all the ¹⁶ saints, do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention in my ¹⁷ prayers that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father glorious, may be giving you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in its realization, ¹⁸ the eyes of your heart having been enlightened, for you to perceive what is the prospect of its call, and what the glorious riches of the enjoyment of its allotment among the ¹⁹ saints, and what the transcendent greatness of its power for us who are believing, in accord with the operation of His mighty strength, ²⁰ which has operated in the Christ when rousing Him from among the dead and seating Him at His right ²¹ hand among the celestials(up over every sovereignty and authority and power and dominion and every name that is named, not only in this eon, but also in that which is ²² future: and subjects all under His feet, and gives Him the headship over all to the ecclesia which is His body, the complement which is completing the entire universe.

 ING DEAD to-THE BESIDE-FALLS

⁵ We have not only been saved by grace, but salvation also introduces us into the sphere of grace's operation. Salvation calls for further favors of being vivified, and roused, and seated in Christ together with an election out of Israel. We are not risen with Christ, for rise refers particularly to the body.

⁸ Salvation, in its beginning, is of faith, in order to accord with grace (Ro.4¹⁶). As a state, or condition, it continues to preserve its gracious character. It is not of us; it is God's way of winning our favor. This is the force of the technical term "oblation", which was used of the corban, or approach offering (Lev.1:23¹, etc., Mk.7¹¹).

PARTICIPATION—BELIEVERS

THE NEW HUMANITY

¹¹ This section deals only with the place that believers among the nations occupied in flesh, as physically uncircumcised, in the era before this epistle was penned. It is a complete contrast to the place occupied by the nations, as set forth in Acts, not as presented in Paul's previous epistles. Physically only may it be said that they had been apart from Christ, aliens, having no expectation, without God. Trophimus, the Ephesian, would understand this, for when he was in Jerusalem the mere rumor that he had approached as near to the reputed dwelling place of God as a Jew caused the whole city to rise up against Paul who, they supposed, had brought him into the sanctuary. What Paul was accused of doing then, physically, he does now, in spirit, and far more, for we have free access to the Father's presence.

² And you, being dead to your offenses and sins—in which you once walk, in accord with the eon of this world, in accord with the chief of the aerial jurisdiction, the spirit now operating in the sons of Stubbornness (among whom we also all conducted ourselves once, in the lusts of our flesh, doing the behests of the flesh and of the comprehension, and were, by nature, children of Indignation, even as the rest), yet God, being, rich in mercy, because of His vast love with which He loves us (we also being dead to the offenses and the lusts), vivifies us together in Christ (you have been saved for grace) and rouses us together and seats us together among the celestials, in Christ Jesus, in order that, in the on-coming eons, He should be displaying the transcendent riches of His grace in His kindness to us in Christ Jesus. For you have been saved through faith for grace, and this is naught of yours: it is God's oblation, not of works, lest any one should be boasting. For we are His achievement, being created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God makes ready beforehand in order that we should be walking in them.

¹¹ Wherefore, be remembering that once you, the nations in flesh—who are being termed "Uncircumcision" by that being termed "Circumcision", in flesh, made by hands—that in that era you were apart from Christ, being alienated from the citizenship of Israel, and guests of the promise covenants, having no expectation, and without God in the world.

¹⁴ The central wall of the barrier was the so-called "soreg", a stone wall, for a partition, with inscriptions which forbade any foreigner to go in under pain of death. One of these was recently unearthed with the following inscription:

ΜΗΘΕΝΑ ΑΛΛΟΓΕΝΗΙΣ ΠΟ

No alien is to enter within the balustrade and embankment about the sacred place. Whoever is caught will be responsible for his death, which will ensue.

¹⁵ The decrees issued from Jerusalem by the apostles (Ac. 15:20, 16:4).

¹⁶ The new humanity is quite a distinct matter from the one body. It can be put on (4:24, 25) and is in contrast with the old humanity (4:22).

¹⁹ Here we have our relation to the saints of other economies defined. All saints, whatever their peculiar position, have three things in common. They all are under God's government; all belong to His family; all are His dwelling place. These do not define the blessings which are our special privileges, but those which we share with the saints of every other administration.

SUMMARY

¹ Paul insists that he is the one through whom God's revelation to the nations is given. It can be found nowhere but in his writings.

¹³ Yet now, in Christ Jesus, you, who once were far off, are become near by the blood of Christ. For He is our Peace, Who makes both one, and razes the central wall of the barrier (the enmity in His flesh), abrogating the law of precepts in the decrees, that He should be creating the two, in Himself, into one new humanity, making peace; and should be reconciling both to God in one body, through the cross, killing the enmity in it.

¹⁷ And coming, He preaches the evangel of peace to you, those afar, and peace to those near, seeing that, through Him, we both have had the access, in one spirit, to the Father.

¹⁹ Consequently, then, you are no longer guests and sojourners, but are fellow-citizens of the saints, and members of God's family, being built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, the capstone of its corner being Christ Jesus, in Whom the entire building, being connected together, is growing into a holy temple in the Lord: in Whom you, also, are being built together for God's dwelling place, in spirit.

3 On this behalf, I Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for you, the nations—since you surely hear of the stewardship of God's grace which is given to me for you, seeing that the secret is made known to me by revelation (according as I write before, in brief, to enable those who are reading to appre-

Summary of the Present Grace

The present secret economy, of which there is no hint in any scriptures before this epistle was penned, consists essentially of three separate items, all of which are marked by the prefix joint. The nations enjoyed much blessing before this (Ro.15^{9-12, 16, 27}), they were members of the body of Christ (1Co.12^{13, 27}), they were guests of the promises (2¹²), but they had all this subordinate to the Jews. They were not joint allottees, or a joint body or joint sharers in those promises. Now they have their heavenly allotment on equal terms, they are members of a body in which no member can claim precedence on account of physical descent, the promises in Christ Jesus are equally theirs with Paul and his Jewish companions. It is of the utmost importance to note that Paul only was given this stewardship and that it is worse than useless to seek for it outside of his writings. It was concealed in God, not in the scriptures. No trace of it can be found in the prophets or in the preceding books of the Greek scriptures.

8 The "untraceable riches of Christ" include celestial honors which were not revealed before. His earthly riches can be traced throughout the previous Hebrew and Greek scriptures. He was to be the King of Israel and the Ruler of the whole earth. But now we know of heavenly honors which were hid from us before. These are revealed at the same time that the heavenly destiny of the body of Christ is disclosed, for it is necessary that He should have the highest place in heaven before we could be associated with Him in its administration.

PETITIONING THE FATHER

14 This petition commences at 3¹ but was interrupted by a summary of the grace which is its motive. Now the prayer is resumed.

It is evident, and experience has confirmed the fact, that the greatest power is required, not for service, but to enable us to realize and appreciate the marvelous revelation of God's grace and love which is ours in Christ Jesus. May God exercise our hearts to this end!

hend my understanding in the 5 secret of Christ, which is not made known to other generations of the sons of humanity as it was now revealed to His holy apostles and
 6 prophets: in spirit the nations are to be joint enjoyers of an allotment, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ
 7 Jesus, through the evangel of which I became the dispenser, in accord with the gratuity of God's grace, which is granted to me in accord
 8 with His powerful operation. To me, less than the least of all saints, was this grace granted: to preach the evangel of the untraceable riches of Christ to the nations,
 9 and to enlighten all as to the secret administration which has been concealed from the cons in God.
 10 Who creates the universe, that now, to the sovereignties and the authorities among the celestials, may be made known, through the ecclesia, the multifarious wisdom
 11 of God, in accord with the purpose of the cons, which He makes in 12 Christ Jesus, our Lord; in Whom we have boldness and access with confidence, through His faith.
 13 Wherefore I am requesting you not to be despondent at my afflictions for you, which are your glory.
 14 —On this behalf am I bowing my knees to the Father of our 15 Lord Jesus Christ, after Whom all the kindreds in the heavens and on

Petitioning the Father

¹⁷ Every lack in the universe is filled by Christ. He is God's Plerōma, or Complement, Who supplies every deficiency. We, as members of His body, are His complement. To fit us for this place He wishes us to grasp the grace which this involves, which in turn will reveal the transcendent love of Christ. Thus we will be filled or completed—brought to that finished state which fits us for our future destiny.

²⁰ It is most satisfying to know that God's ability is not limited to our requests, neither are His purposes for us confined to our meagre apprehension.

DEPORTMENT

DESECHING THE SAINTS

¹ How apt the titles used by our Lord and his servants! Here it is the prisoner in the Lord who deals with our walk.

⁴ During the era covered by the book of Acts there were several bodies, and baptisms, and faiths, and expectations, but now that the secret economy is in operation there is no longer one faith for the Jew and another for the Gentile; but all have the same faith. Nothing should ever divide the saints of this economy.

THE PREVIOUS GRACE

⁷ The readjustment of the saints, changing them from a condition of tutelage and dependence on the blessings of Israel to mature manhood and independent celestial blessings, was effected by sending them specially endowed apostles and prophets, pastors and teachers. The service of the apostles and prophets is now superseded by the scriptures, such as this epistle, which were written to accomplish the same end. This is in contrast to the giving of the law, which brought them into captivity (Ps.68¹⁸). This grace sets aside all enslaving laws and decrees.

¹⁷ inner man, Christ to dwell in your hearts through faith, that you, having been rooted and grounded in love, should be strong to grasp, together with all the saints, what is its breadth and length and depth and height—to know the love of Christ as well, which transcends knowledge—that you may be completed for the entire complement of God.

²⁰ Now to Him Who is able to do exceedingly above all that we are requesting or apprehending, according to the power which is operating in us, to Him be glory in the ecclesia and in Christ Jesus for all the generations of the eon of the eons! Amen!

⁴ I am entreating you then—I, the prisoner in the Lord—to walk worthily of the calling with which you were called, with all humility and meekness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit with the tie of peace: one body and one spirit, according as you were called also with one expectation in your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, Who is over all, and through all, and in all.

⁷ Now to each one of us was given grace in accord with the measure of the gratuity of Christ. ⁸ Wherefore He is saying,

“Ascending on high
He captures captivity
And gives gifts to mankind.”

⁹ Now the “He ascended”, what is it except that He first descended also into the parts of the earth below? He Who descends is the Same Who ascends also, up over all

Summary of Previous Grace

¹³ Before the revelation of the secret administration by means of this epistle the saints among the nations were in a period of adolescence. This is fully set forth by the apostle in writing to the Corinthians (1Co.13¹⁰). The gifts then given were for the purpose of leading them on to maturity but were to be set aside when "perfection" came. Paul's prison epistles bring maturity (Phil.3¹⁵Col.1²⁸4¹²). The shifting changes incident to the period of growth which characterized the era from Paul's call until his imprisonment, which brought the saints among the nations from a position like proselytes to Judaism to a place entirely independent of Israel, were all intended to prepare them for this final revelation in which they become Christ's complement.

We should not build upon all the doctrines of that transitional era, but only such as accord with the present grace. In Romans "to the Jew first" (Ro.2¹⁰) is now obsolete; in Corinthians the gift of prophecy and of languages (1Co.13⁸) have become inoperative.

¹⁶ This is a notable comparison between the spiritual body of Christ and our physical bodies. Not only does the Head preside over the actions of the members of the body but only through it do the members receive sustenance and grow. Just as the nervous system unites the head to every individual member of the body, so each member of Christ's body is in touch with the Head and is dependent on Him for food and development.

the heavens, that He should complete the universe. And He, indeed, it is Who gives the apostles, the prophets, the evangelists, the pastors and teachers for the re-adjusting of the saints, with a view to the work of dispensing, for the upbuilding of the body of Christ, until we should all attain to the unity of faith, and the realization of a son of God, to mature manhood, to the adult stature of Christ's complement, that we should by no means still be minors, surging hither and thither and being carried about by every wind of teaching, by human caprice, by craftiness with a view to the systematizing of the deception. Now, being true, in love in all we should be growing into Him Who is the Head—Christ—out of Whom the entire body, being articulated together and united through every assimilation of the supply, in accord with the proportionate operation of each single part, is making for the growth of the body, for the upbuilding of itself in love.

¹⁷ This, then, I am saying and testifying in the Lord: You are by no means still to be walking according as the nations also are walking, in the vanity of their mind, their comprehension being darkened, having been estranged from the life of God because of the ignorance which is in them, because of the callousness of their hearts, who, being past feeling, greedily give themselves up with wantonness to all uncleanness as a vocation.

²² In Christ there is a new humanity. The divisions which mar the present humanity are gone in Him and the conduct which disgraces mankind should also be "put off" like a worn-out, filthy garment. The new humanity is "put on" by acting as those who no longer belong to the race of Adam but acknowledge Christ as their Head. Let us then be renewed in the spirit of our minds. Every exhortation here given depends upon our previous apprehension of His grace. Previous standards of conduct are far too low and in an entirely different key.

²⁶ "Being indignant" may also be rendered "Be indignant" but the context is against this rendering. It certainly is not a command to be angry, for we are distinctly charged to forego anger in this very chapter (³¹Col.3⁸). The next statement is evidently a parallel to this. In one we have indignation, in the other vexation. In both we are exhorted not to carry what may be quite right and just to an extreme which will make them injurious and sinful. It may be paraphrased: "Do not let indignation degenerate into anger: do not cherish a grudge. Do not flare up: do not let your resentment smoulder."

¹ God "walks in love"—He is Love. He is our Father. Just as pet children copy the actions of their parents, so we should reflect His love to all with whom we come in contact. God's glory should be the underlying motive of every act.

²⁰ Now you did not thus learn
²¹ Christ, since you surely hear Him and were taught by Him (according as the truth is in Jesus) to put off, as regards your previous behavior, the old humanity which is being corrupted in accord with ²³ its seductive desires, yet to be rejuvenated in the spirit of your ²⁴ mind, and to put on the new humanity, which, in accord with God, is being created in righteousness and benignity of the truth. Wherefore, putting off the false, let each be speaking the truth with his associate, seeing that we are members of one another.

²⁶ Being indignant, do not be sinning also. Do not let the sun
²⁷ sink on your vexation, nor yet be
²⁸ giving place to the slanderer. Let him that steals by no means still be stealing: yet rather let him be toiling, working with his hands at what is good, in order that he may have
²⁹ to share with one in need. Let no tainted word be issuing out of your mouth, but whatever is good for needful edification, that it may be giving grace to the hearers.

³⁰ And do not be sorrowing the holy spirit of God by which you are sealed for the day of deliverance. Let all bitterness and fury and anger and clamor and calumny be taken away from you with all ³² malice, and become kind to one another, tenderly compassionate, dealing graciously among yourselves, according as God also, in Christ, deals graciously with you.

⁵ Become, then, imitators of God,
² as beloved children, and be walking in love, according as Christ also loves you, and gives Himself up for us an offering and a sacrifice

² The sacrifice of Christ has many aspects. The opening chapters of Leviticus deal with these in detail. The sin and trespass offering seem to be entirely for man's benefit. But the first offering of all, and the most important, the ascending offering, called a "burnt" offering, seems to have been entirely for God; nothing in it was for man. So with Christ. The questions of human sin and transgression were secondary in His sacrifice. It was, first of all, His obedience to the will of God which gave His death its infinite value. His object was to please His Father. This is the true motive for service acceptable to our God.

³ Here the spirit of God has laid a finger on the sore spots which all our advance in civilization has only served to accentuate. Physical excesses, sordid cupidity and questionable speech are but symptoms of the cankerous evil which pervades society in this day of boasted advance. As the literal Greek puts it, "more-having", or avarice, is more pronounced than ever, and does not need to hide its face, for it is disguised as a virtue. In the kingdom of God none of these will be able to take root.

⁶ To behave as children of light is the complement of imitating Him as beloved children, for God is Light as well as Love. In nature light is indispensable for fruit: nothing will produce without it. The same is true in spiritual things. The most flourishing saint is the one who has the most light, who knows what his Lord's will is. The most strenuous endeavor to serve God will not meet His approval if it is out of line with His revealed purpose and plans. Let us rouse ourselves from our lethargy and the darkness which surrounds us and bask in the light of Christ.

³ to God, for a fragrant odor. Now, all prostitution and uncleanness or greediness—let it not be named among you, according as is becoming in saints—and vileness and stupid speaking or jesting, which are not proper, but rather thanksgiving. For this you perceive, knowing that no paramour or unclean or greedy person, who is an idolater, has any allotment to enjoy in the kingdom of Christ and of God. Now let no one be seducing you with empty words, for because of these things God's indignation is coming on the sons of ⁷ Stubbornness. Do not, then, become joint partakers with them, for you were once darkness, yet now you are light in the Lord.

Be walking as children of light ⁹ (for the fruit of the light is in all goodness and righteousness and ¹⁰ truth), testing what is well pleasing to the Lord. And be not joint-participants in the unfruitful acts of darkness, but rather be exposing ¹² them, for it is a shame even to say what hidden occurrences are done ¹³ by them. Now all that which is being exposed by the light is made manifest, for everything which is ¹⁴ being manifested is light. Wherefore He is saying,

"Rouse! O drowsy one,
And rise from among the dead
And Christ shall dawn upon you!"

¹⁵ Then be observing accurately, brethren, how you are walking, not as unwise, but as wise, reclaiming the era, seeing that the days are ¹⁷ wicked. Therefore do not become imprudent, but understand what ¹⁸ the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, in which is ¹⁸ Excess of wine leads to drunkenness, which is not good, but an overflowing spirit is to be commended. It manifests itself in songs and thanksgiving and subjection.

¹⁹ Spiritual songs suggests the need of conforming even our songs to the truth of this present time and singing with understanding as well as the lips. Most of the destructive errors of the day are based on or supported by popular hymns.

THE JOINT BODY—IN THE LORD THE HEAD

²¹ As is the case with every exhortation in the second division of the epistle, the deportment of husbands and wives is founded on the doctrine previously developed in the first division. A reference to the framework will show that it is based on the truth of the joint body. Wives are to be subject because the man is head of the woman as Christ is Head of the body. Husbands cannot be exhorted to love their wives on the ground that the ecclesia occupies this relation to Christ, for the faithful in Israel, who have no part in the blessings of this epistle, are figured as the wife or bride, not of Christ (an official title), but of the Lamb. Hence the argument of Eden is introduced showing that husband and wife become one flesh. Christ and the ecclesia are one body. Hence the husband is exhorted to love his wife as his own body, for it is thus that Christ loves the ecclesia. What limitless love is involved in the statement, "No one at any time hates his own flesh"! Men have hated their wives: Jehovah divorced His unfaithful wife (Jer.38-20). But Christ is so one with the members of His body that He cannot cast them off. Thus should a husband love his own wife, who has become one flesh with him. How exultantly precious is this close relationship to Him! What could be nearer? What could be dearer? Even evil, sinful men cannot hate their own bodies. So much the more Christ cannot but love us as He loves Himself! God grant that we may drink deeply of this delicious draught!

¹⁹ spirit, speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and playing in ²⁰ your hearts to the Lord, giving thanks to God the Father always for all things in the name of our ²¹ Lord, Jesus Christ, being subject to one another in the fear of Christ.
²² Wives, be subject to your own husbands as to a master, seeing that the husband is head of the wife even as Christ is Head of the ecclesia, and He is the Saviour of the body.
²⁴ Nevertheless, as the ecclesia is subject to Christ, thus are the wives also to their husbands in everything.
²⁵ Husbands, be loving your wives according as Christ also loves the ecclesia, and gives Himself up for ²⁶ it, in order that He should be hallowing it, cleansing it in the bath
²⁷ of the water (in a declaration), in order that He should be presenting to Himself a glorified ecclesia, not having spot or wrinkle or any such things, but that it may be holy and ²⁸ flawless. Thus, husbands also ought to be loving their own wives as their own bodies. He who is loving ²⁹ his own wife is loving himself. For no one at any time hates his own flesh, but is nourishing and cherishing it, according as Christ also the ³⁰ ecclesia, seeing that we are mem-
³¹ bers of His body. Corresponding to this a man will be leaving his father and mother and will be joined to his wife, and the two will be one flesh.

The Joint Body—in the Lord

³² There are three secrets in Ephesians: the secret of Christ (¹⁹), the secret economy (³⁹) and the secret of marriage, here referred to. The physical fact that the marriage union makes husband and wife a physical unit is used as one premise in the argument that husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. The secret of the evangel is also referred to (⁶¹⁰). There is no such expression as "the bride of Christ" in scripture.

It is of principal importance that we distinguish the double relationship which we sustain to Christ and to the Lord. In Christ all physical distinctions vanish. There are no slaves and masters, even the sexes are not distinguished "in Christ" (Gal.3²⁸). But "in the Lord" these physical distinctions are recognized and made the basis of our conduct toward one another. Wives are subject, children are obedient, slaves are subservient "in the Lord".

The key to all correct conduct lies in the recognition of our heavenly Master. The true slave seeks to please Him; the master acknowledges Him in his behavior toward his slave. Children obey their parents "in the Lord", for such is His wish. Fathers train them "in the Lord", conforming to His gracious methods.

The slave is especially encouraged by the fact that he will receive his due from his heavenly Master even though he receives nothing from his earthly one.

¹⁰ Israel's warfare is with flesh and blood on the earth. Ours is with wicked spirits in the celestial realms. We should always remember that those who oppose us are merely the intermediaries used by the spiritual forces and treat them accordingly. It is not our place to wrestle with blood and flesh but to look beyond the human instrument to the real adversary in the spirit world. Material weapons are worse than useless. Our attitude toward men should be one of purest conciliation, not strife (⁶¹⁵).

³² This secret is great: yet I am speaking as to Christ and as to the ³³ ecclesia. Moreover, you also, individually, each be loving his own wife thus, as himself, yet that the wife may be fearing the husband.

6 Children, be obeying your parents, in the Lord, for this is just.

² Be honoring your father and mother (which is the first precept ³ with a promise) that it may be becoming well with you, and you should be a long time on the earth.

⁴ And fathers, do not be vexing your children, but be rearing them in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.

⁵ Slaves, be obeying your masters as to flesh, with fear and trembling, in the singleness of your heart, ⁶ as to Christ, not with eye slavery, as man pleasers, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from ⁷ the soul, slaving with good humor, as to the Lord and not to men, ⁸ having perceived that, whatever good each one may do, for this he will be requited by the Lord, whether slave or free.

¹⁰ Furthermore, brethren mine, be invigorated in the Lord and in His ¹¹ mighty strength. Put on the panoply of God, to enable you to stand in spite of the stratagems of ¹² the Slanderer, seeing that it is not ours to wrestle with blood and flesh,

The Joint Allotment in Heaven

¹⁴ The spiritual armor here given covers the whole body and is for defense only. Truth will give us strength to withstand the attacks of error. Righteousness will preserve us from the wounds of wickedness. The evangel of peace, wherewith we go, will conciliate the human weapons used by the spirit powers which are directing human affairs.

¹⁷ When all this has been done then we receive (not take) the helmet of salvation. And then we are entrusted with the sword of the spirit—a divine declaration. We have no offensive power at all except an explicit statement of God. The scriptures contain many statements of men, such as the assertions of Job's friends, which are false. Hence only the declarations which proceed out of the mouth of God constitute the spirit's sword.

THEIR PRAYER FOR PAUL

¹⁸ What a marvelous picture Paul presents of the ministry of conciliation! God's ambassador in a chain! Could anything show more clearly God's attitude towards mankind? Nothing is surer to provoke war than the maltreatment of an ambassador. God's ambassador goes to Rome, the greatest of earth's governments, and he gets a chain. Yet, instead of declaring war, he proclaims peace. This is the true spirit of the evangel for the present economy. It calls for conciliation notwithstanding everything which should provoke hostilities. The answer to this prayer is found in Phil. 1:12.

TYCHICUS' COMMISSION

²¹ Tychicus means "Fortunate", and such he was, for no fortune could compare with the riches which this epistle was to him and to those to whom he brought it.

but with the sovereignties, with the authorities, with the world-mights of this darkness, with the spiritual forces of wickedness among the celestials. Therefore be taking up the panoply of God, that you may be enabled to withstand in the wicked day, and, having effected all, to stand. ¹⁴ Stand, then, girded about your loins with truth, and putting on ¹⁵ the cuirass of righteousness, and your feet sandaled with the readiness of the evangel of peace; with all taking up the large shield of faith, by which you will be enabled to extinguish all the fiery arrows of ¹⁷ the wicked one. And receive the helmet of salvation and the sword of the spirit, which is a declaration of God.

¹⁸ In every prayer and petition be praying on every occasion, in spirit, and be vigilant for it ¹⁹ with all perseverance and petition concerning all saints, and for me, that expression may be granted to me, in the opening of my mouth with boldness, to make known the ²⁰ secret of the evangel, for which I am conducting an embassy in a chain, that in it I should be bold, as I must speak.

²¹ Now that you also may become acquainted with my affairs, and what is engaging me, all will be made known to you by Tychicus, a brother beloved and a faithful servant in the Lord, whom I send to you for this very thing, that you may know what concerns us, and he should be consoling your hearts. ²²

PHILIPPIANS

The Philippian epistle is a divine commentary on the latter half of Ephesians, and, like it, is especially concerned with the deportment demanded by the transcendent doctrines developed in the first half of the Ephesian letter. This is the key to its contents. It does not deal with doctrines, but with deportment. This will illumine many a difficult passage in it and this has been allowed to color the wording of the version.

As shown in the literary framework, the epistle is a perfect, though complex reversion. Its controlling theme is Participation in the Evangel, not only by its public proclamation, but especially by a conduct consistent with its teachings.

Following the Introduction and preceding the Conclusion the Philippians' fellowship with Paul by contributions and in sufferings is detailed, interspersed with Paul's own experiences in preaching the evangel.

The main subject, the Living Expression of the Evangel, or, "Having on the Word of Life" (2:16), is illustrated by four examples: Christ and Paul, Timothy and Epaphroditus. Four exhortations are introduced in this division. The entreaty to imitate Christ opens it and Paul places himself before them as a model at its close. So, too, the service of Timothy is preceded by an exhortation and the sufferings of Epaphroditus are followed by an appeal.

These two themes, suffering and service, pervade the whole epistle, from the introduction, where Paul and Timothy style themselves slaves, rather than apostles, to the end where the grace of the Lord, or Master, rather than Christ, is invoked.

The humility of Christ is presented, in harmony with the transcendent truth of this economy. It did not begin with His birth or result only in His exaltation over the earth. It commenced in glory before His incarnation, which was but a step in His downward path of obedience to God's will. It led from the highest place in the universe to the lowest, under the curse of the cross. It will exalt Him to headship over all creation, which will bow to Him as its Master, for God, the Father's glory.

For Christ to become flesh meant humiliation. Paul's physical connections were his boast. They pledged to him all the privileges and advantages which belonged alone to the Jew. But all of these are flung away once he knows Christ after the spirit, and His heavenly exaltation.

PARTICIPATION IN THE EVANGEL
THE LIVING EXPRESSIONS OF THE EVANGEL

¹ This epistle was not written by Paul and Timothy in the character of apostles, but slaves. This is important, as it gives us a key to the character of the whole letter. The mention of the overseers, or supervisors, and servants leads to the same conclusion. The grace also is from the Lord. If we keep this in mind it will greatly simplify the understanding of difficult portions of the epistle.

THE PHILIPPIANS' CONTRIBUTION

A contribution, in its scriptural sense, is a sharing in common. The servant of God shares with the saints what he has received from God, and his hearers share with him the material wealth which they have obtained.

How refreshing it is to see the intimate interest of the Philippians in Paul's welfare and the mutual love which made their intercourse so delightful to read about after all these years! Here we have a picture of the ideal relations between the Lord's saints and those of His slaves who are seeking to defend the evangel. There is greater need now than in Paul's day. The evangel needs to be recovered before it can be confirmed or defended. God still uses such miserable means as an imprisoned apostle to make it known.

PAUL'S BONDS

¹² When Paul was taken to Rome he was permitted to dwell by himself with a soldier who guarded him. He had liberty to speak to the chief Jews and he delivered the final kingdom message to them. And then he lived two whole years in a rented house and received all who came to him. He spoke with all boldness and no one forbade him (Ac.28¹⁶⁻²¹). These unusual privileges proved plainly, as the incidents on the voyage had already shown, that he was indeed a "prisoner of the Lord" (Eph. 4:1). His bonds were "in Christ" and,

PAUL and Timothy, slaves of Christ Jesus, to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, together with the supervisors and servants:

² Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

³ I AM THANKING my God at every
⁴ remembrance of you, always, in every petition of mine for you all,
⁵ making the petition with joy, for your contribution to the evangel
⁶ from the first day until now, having this same confidence, that He Who undertakes a good work in you will be performing it until the ⁷ day of Jesus Christ: according as it is just for me to be thus disposed toward you all, because, having me in your heart, in my bonds as well as in the defense and confirmation of the evangel, you all are joint participants with me of ⁸ grace, for God is my Witness how I am longing for you all in the ⁹ compassions of Christ Jesus. And this I am praying, that your love may be superabounding still more and more in realization and all
¹⁰ sensibility, for you to be testing what things are of consequence, in order that you may be sincere and no stumbling block for the day
¹¹ of Christ, having been filled with the fruit of righteousness which is through Jesus Christ, for the glory and laud of God.

¹² Now I am intending you to know, brethren, that my affairs have rather come to be for the ¹³ progress of the evangel, so that my bonds in Christ become apparent in the whole pretorium and to all though they were designed to put a stop to the evangel, they aided its progress. Hitherto Paul had worked to support himself, now he was free to give all his time to the Lord's service. He evidently reached some in the very household of Cæsar (422).

¹⁶ Paul was located at Rome, at the very center of government, where his influence, even though he was a prisoner, especially among Cæsar's retinue, was doubtless used by God to control the opposition to the evangel. How like Him to station the defender of the faith in the very citadel of His enemies!

PAUL'S INDIFFERENCE TO DEATH

²⁰ The historical record emphasizes the fact that Paul taught the things which concern our Lord Jesus Christ "with all boldness, unforbidden" (Ac. 28³¹).

²³ The solution of Paul's dilemma, life or death (neither of which he would choose because of his longing for another, much better condition) is the resurrection life with Christ. This "solution" might be referred to the dissolution of his body at death (2Tim.4⁶) if it were not set in contrast with death. The same term is used in Lu.12³⁰ of the breaking up of a wedding party. Words used in the physical sense are often used in a metaphysical sense in the epistles. We dissolve material things but solve spiritual problems.

¹⁴ the rest, and the majority of the brethren, having confidence in the Lord as to my bonds, are more exceedingly daring to speak the word of God fearlessly. Some, indeed, are even proclaiming Christ because of envy and strife, yet some also because of delight, these, indeed, of love, having perceived that I am located for the defense of the evangel, yet those are announcing Christ out of faction, not purely, surmising to arouse affliction for my bonds. What then?—Moreover, seeing that, by every method, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is being announced, I am rejoicing in this also, and will be rejoicing nevertheless.

¹⁹ For I am aware that, for me, this will be eventuating in salvation through your petition and the supply of the spirit of Jesus Christ, in accord with my premonition and expectation, that in naught shall I be put to shame, but with all boldness, as always, now also, Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether through life or through death. For to me to be living is Christ, and to be dying gain. Now if it is to be living in flesh, this to me means fruit from work, and I am not making known what I shall be preferring. (Yet I am being pressed out of the two, having a yearning for the solution, even to be together with Christ. ²⁴ for it, rather, is much better.) Yet to be staying in the flesh is more necessary because of you. And, having this confidence, I am aware that I shall be remaining and shall be abiding with you all for your progress and joy of faith, in order that your glorying may be superabounding in Christ Jesus in me

²⁷ The citizenship or enfranchisement here referred to is in heaven (3²⁰), not on earth.

THE PHILIPPIANS' SUFFERING

²⁹ It is our privilege to enjoy the sufferings which come to us in seeking to do God's work, for they are not, as we are wont to think, a token of His displeasure, but a favor which is granted to the few who are faithful in the performance of His will.

PUTTING ON THE EVANGEL

This division takes up the body of the epistle, setting before us the four models, Christ, Timothy, Epaphroditus and Paul, mingled with exhortations to imitate their example.

EXHORTATION TO IMITATE CHRIST

1 Our conduct should reflect the unselfish humility of Christ, considering others and their honor rather than our own.

THE EXAMPLE OF CHRIST JESUS

⁶ Form denotes outward appearance, as is shown by Paul's use of it in the contrast, "having a form of devotion, yet denying its power" (2Ti.3⁵). We have found it impossible to sustain the idea that it refers to intrinsic essence. Figure or fashion denotes the form prevailing at any time. Christ was the Image of God, the visible representation of the Deity. He appeared as God to the saints of old, as in Eden and on Sinai. This form was laid aside for that of a slave, at His incarnation.

Adam and his progeny seek to exalt themselves and will be humbled. But Christ, Who might easily assume the place of equality with God, found His delight in submission and humiliation.

The ending -mos of the word for pillaging denotes the act, not the object of pillage. When He was in the form of God He was given the same place as God by men (Gen.16^{11,13} 22^{11,12} 32^{28,30} Ex.32⁶ Josh.5^{13,15} Judges 6^{12,23}). All of the divine titles, Elohim, Jehovah, Adonai, etc., were assumed by Him just as if He were God, because He is His Image.

through my presence with you again. Only be citizens worthy of the evangel of Christ, in order that, whether coming and making your acquaintance, or being absent, I should be hearing of your concerns, that you are standing firm in one spirit, one soul, competing together in the faith of the evangel, and not startled at all by the opposers, which is to them a proof of destruction, yet of your salvation, and this from God, seeing that to you it is graciously granted, for Christ's sake, not only to be believing on Him, but to be suffering for His sake also, having the same struggle such as you perceive in me, and now hear to be in me.

2 If, then, there is any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any communion of spirit, if any compassion and pity, fill my joy full, that you may be mutually disposed, having mutual love, joined in soul, being disposed toward one thing—nothing according with strife, nothing according with vain glory—but with a humble disposition deeming one another superior to one's self, not each noting his own things, but each those of the others also.

⁵ For let this disposition be in you, which is in Christ Jesus also, Who, subsisting in the form of God, deems it not pillaging to be equal to God, nevertheless empties Himself, taking the form of a slave, coming to be in the likeness of humanity, and, being found in fashion as a man, He humbles Himself, becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

The Example of Christ

The enormous sweep of this synopsis of Christ's service and suffering takes in the whole universe and all the eons, from the beginning to the consummation. Being in the form of God, He was above all, under the curse of the cross He was beneath all. Yet, as He voluntarily descended from the highest to the lowest place, so, too, shall be His exaltation. Every tongue will acclaim Him Lord for God the Father's glory. This cannot be until every heart will have been subdued at the consummation (1Cor. 15²⁸). Until then there are enemies who oppose His rule. Ever since His resurrection God has been engaged in His exaltation. Even now, many celestial powers are subordinate to Him (1Pe. 3²²). When He comes again the earth will be added to His domain, until finally the whole universe will be reconciled to God by the blood of His cross (Col. 1²⁰). This is His reward. It is as Jesus (Jehovah the Saviour), the name of His humiliation, that He will be exalted to the place supreme. He Who was lowest shall become the highest.

EXHORTATION TO OBEDIENCE

¹² There is no question here of sinners working for salvation. This is an exhortation to saints to make the salvation they have effective in their daily life and action.

¹⁶ The "word of life", or a living expression of the evangel consists in conduct so consistent with it that the life alone will proclaim the spirit of the message apart from its formal announcement. Christ, Paul, Timothy and Epaphroditus were living expressions, for their service and sufferings exemplify its message.

¹⁷ The priest in Israel, officiating at the altar, poured a libation, usually of wine, upon the sacrifice (Num. 15⁵). Paul wished to be the libation on their sacrifice.

TIMOTHY

¹⁹ Timothy was the ideal servant. Though himself suffering with infirmities, he was not concerned about himself but took a genuine interest in the saints whom he served.

⁹ Wherefore, also, God highly exalts Him, and graces Him with the name which is over every name, that in the name of Jesus every knee should be bowing, celestial and terrestrial and subterranean, and every tongue should be acclaiming Jesus Christ as Lord, for the glory of God, the Father.

¹² So that, my beloved, according as you always obey, not as in my presence only, but now much rather in my absence, be carrying your own salvation into effect with fear and trembling, for it is God Who is operating in you to will as well as to work for the sake of His delight. Be doing all without murmuring and reasoning, in order that you should be becoming blameless and artless, children of God, flawless, in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you are appearing as luminaries in the world, having on the word of life, for me to glory in, in the day of Christ, that I did not run for naught, neither that I toil for naught. Nay, even if I am a libation on the sacrifice and ministration of your faith, I am joying and rejoicing together with you all. Now, to be mutual, you also be joying and be rejoicing together with me.

¹⁹ Now I am expecting, in the Lord Jesus, to send Timothy to you quickly, in order that I also may be of good cheer when I know of your concerns. For I have no one equally sensitive, who will be so genuinely solicitous of your concerns, for all are seeking their own, not that which concerns Christ Jesus. Now you know the test of him, that as a child with a father he slaves with me for the evangel. This one, indeed, then,

The Living Examples

EPAPHRODITUS

²⁵ This is a most pathetic picture of the suffering which often accompanies the service of the Lord in this economy. In the previous economy Paul could and would have healed Epaphroditus, for his very handkerchief was potent with power. That course was in keeping with the kingdom which he then proclaimed. But now, when all blessing is spiritual (Eph.1³), Paul does not attempt to heal Epaphroditus and tells Timothy to use a sip of wine for his frequent infirmities (1Tim. 5²³). How full of feeling is the statement that he was depressed, not by his own condition, but because the Philippians had heard of it and would be concerned about him!

²⁶ Epaphroditus was commissioned by the Philippian ecclesia to bring their contribution to Paul. He was their apostle. His case aptly illustrates the meaning of the term.

EXHORTATION TO BEWARE

² Those who are elsewhere called the Circumcision are here termed the "Maimcision", and true believers in Christ Jesus are the genuine Circumcision. Circumcision signified the cutting off of the flesh, but speedily became a badge in which the flesh took great pride. Instead of cutting off the flesh it gave it the place of privilege. Only those circumcised dared to hope for God's blessings. Now a mere mutilation of the flesh is replaced by doing, in spirit, what circumcision typified. We cut off the physical altogether.

³ The divine ritual of Judaism is replaced, in our case, by real spiritual worship, acceptable to God wherever it is offered.

THE EXAMPLE OF PAUL

⁴ Paul is the most brilliant example of the results of a divine religion in which the flesh is given a place. His birth gave him the most favored place among men. His attainments gave him the highest place among his own race.

I am expecting to send forthwith, as soon as I should drop my concerns. Now, I have confidence in the Lord that I myself shall also be coming quickly.

²⁵ Now I deem it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier, and your apostle and minister ²⁶ for my need, since, in fact, he was longing for you all and was depressed, because you hear that he is infirm. For he is infirm, also, ²⁷ very near to death, but God is merciful to him, and not to him only, but to me also, lest I should be ²⁸ having sorrow on sorrow. The more diligently, then, I send him, that you may be rejoicing at seeing him again and I may be more sorrow ²⁹ free. Receive him, then, in the Lord with all joy, and have such ³⁰ in honor, seeing that he draws near unto death because of the work of the Lord, risking his soul in order that he should fill up your want of ministration toward me.

3 Furthermore, my brethren, be rejoicing in the Lord. To be writing the same to you is not, indeed, irksome for me, yet it is your ² security. Beware of curs, beware of evil workers, beware of the ³ maimcision, for we are the circumcision who are offering divine service to God in spirit, and are glorying in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in flesh.

⁴ And am even I having confidence in the flesh, also? If any other one is presuming to have confidence in the flesh, I rather: ⁵ circumcised the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews, in ⁶ relation to law, a Pharisee, in

But he forfeits all this and flings it from him because it interferes with the superior position accorded to him in Christ. His religion made him the chief of sinners, Christ's bitterest enemy. Now he will have no more of his own, but that which is founded on Christ.

⁸ Refuse is defined (Syr.27*) "as when one sifts with a sieve, the refuse remains." "What is thrown to the dogs." (Suid.)

¹⁰ It is notable that Paul never engages our attention with the life of Christ while on earth. Then, he tells us, He was a Servant of the Circumcision (Rom.15*). All His practises and precepts were directed toward the proclamation of the kingdom, which is now in abeyance. We have no vital relation with Him until His resurrection. We, too, are accounted as alive in resurrection. We, too, are ascended and seated among the celestials in Him (Eph.2⁵⁻⁶). Let us conduct ourselves, then, in harmony with this. This is our goal. Let us approximate it as nearly as we can in anticipation. The apostle has no doubts about attaining the actual resurrection. He is not so sure that he realizes its power in his present experience. All will be raised then. Not all realize it now. We should, however, accommodate ourselves to those who are still observing the rudiments.

¹⁴ We have here the ideal experience of a believer in Christ Jesus. The shortcomings and sins, the aims and ambitions of the past are all forgotten, lest they hinder us in our race to the goal, which is conformity to Christ Jesus in His glory. Though we cannot fully attain this until resurrection, we should aim to come as near it as possible in our present experience. He who comes nearest this ideal will obtain the prize.

EXHORTATION TO IMITATE PAUL

¹⁷ The imitation of Christ, when He was concerned with an economy which was, in some ways, the opposite of the present, has led to endless failure and confusion. The reason for Paul's exhortation that he be made a model for their imitation arises from the relation to zeal, persecuting the ecclesia, in relation to the righteousness which is in law, becoming blameless. But what things were gain to me, these I have deemed a ⁸ forfeit because of Christ. But, to be sure, I am also deeming all to be a forfeit because of the superiority of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord, because of Whom I forfeited all, and am deeming it to be refuse, that I may be gaining

⁹ Christ, and may be found in Him, not having my righteousness, which is of law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is from God for faith:
¹⁰ to know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the participation of His sufferings, being conformed to His death, if somehow I should be attaining to the resurrection
¹² out from among the dead. Not that I already obtained, or have already been perfected, yet I am pursuing, if I may be grasping also that for which I was grasped
¹³ also by Christ Jesus. Brethren, not as yet am I counting myself
¹⁴ to have grasped, yet one thing—forgetting, indeed, that which is behind, yet stretching out in front toward the goal—I am pursuing for the prize of God's calling above in ¹⁵ Christ Jesus. As many, then, as are mature may be thus disposed, and if in anything you are differently disposed, this also shall God
¹⁶ reveal to you. Moreover, in what we outstrip others, there is to be a mutual disposition to observe the same fundamental rule.

Exhortation to Imitate Paul fact that in him alone do we see the resurrection life of Christ interpreted in terms of present conduct. Christ's earthly life needs no such interpretation, so none of the other apostles are models in this sense even for the Circumcision.

¹⁸ The enemies of the cross of Christ are those who, failing to apprehend the significance of His shameful death, still cling to the earthly and the physical.

The cross of Christ brings before us the manner of His death. It was an ignominious, shameful, malefactor's death, to which God's curse was attached. Hence we may avail ourselves of the efficacy of His blood, and yet, by clinging to the world and the flesh, become enemies of His cross.

²⁰ Our citizenship, or enfranchisement, in contrast to that of Israel, is in the heavens. We have no political privileges where the sovereignty of our Lord has been rejected. But we have high hopes both politically and physically. We shall reign with Christ in the celestial spheres. And this body of humiliation will be transfigured to conform to His glorious body. He is coming as a Saviour.

⁵ The Lord is always near when men are high handed with us. It is not our place to retaliate but to be lenient and considerate, for He is near and will take care of our interests.

⁶ Worry kills more men than war. To get beyond its reach is one of the most precious privileges of all who belong to Christ. There is no promise here that our prayers will be answered, or that, if several agree, they shall have their request. It goes far deeper than that. The knowledge that God is guiding all things to the goal He has set before Him, unhindered by the stress and storm which so distresses us, leads us to wonder whether our own petitions are in line with His will, and whether it is better to leave all with Him, confident that He will grant that only good which we crave but do not apprehend. We enter into His peace and acquiesce in His will whether our prayer be answered or not.

you, and now am lamenting also, as I tell it, who are enemies of the cross of Christ, whose consummation is destruction, whose God is their bowels, and whose glory is in their shame, who are disposed to terrestrial things. For our citizenship belongs to the heavens, out of which we are awaiting a Saviour also, the Lord, Jesus Christ, Who will transfigure the body of our humiliation, to conform it to His body glorious, in accord with the operation which enables Him to subject even the universe to Himself.

⁴ So that, brethren mine, beloved and longed for, my joy and wreath, stand firm thus in the Lord, my beloved. I am entreating Euodia and I am entreating Syntyche, to be mutually disposed in the Lord. Yes, I am asking you also, genuine yokefellow, be aiding these women who compete together with me in the evangel, with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow workers whose names are in the scroll of life. Be rejoicing in the Lord always! Again, I will declare, be rejoicing! Let your lenience be known to all men: the Lord is near. Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus. Furthermore, brethren, whatever is true, whatever is dignified, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is agreeable, whatever is renowned—if there is any virtue and if any applause, be taking these into account. What you learned also, and accepted

THE PHILIPPIANS' CARE OF PAUL

10 The Philippians seem to have had Paul constantly on their hearts though circumstances, at times, kept them from contributing to his needs.

PAUL'S COMPLACENCY IN WANT

11 It is blessed for the believer to recognize the fact that his environment and his condition are all of God, Who is using them for his welfare. Wealth or want, opulence or poverty are alike means for our blessing. There is no real contentment apart from this.

PAUL'S STRENGTH IN CHRIST

12 What encouragement there is in this brief word! Nothing is too great for those who know their own weakness and the invigorating power of Christ.

THE PHILIPPIANS' CONTRIBUTION

13 The gift of the Philippian ecclesia is especially precious because of the memories it awakens in Paul's mind. They alone came to his aid at the first, and then helped him even in Thessalonica, among his friends. Their contribution, being a token of their heartfelt appreciation and love, not only meets his need, but ascends, like the sacrifice of old, redolent with the perfume which speaks of the sacrifice of Christ. In return he reminds them of the glory that Christ has brought to God and that they, in Him, shall have all their needs supplied according to God's estimate of His work.

14 While God does not fill all our wants, He supplies all our needs. Nor does He do this in accord with our service or deserts, but in harmony with the glory which has come to be His in Christ Jesus. Thus He ever deals with us, not as we are in ourselves, but as He sees us in Christ. This should assure our hearts of His continual care and provision notwithstanding appearances to the contrary. Paul was humbled at times, and hungry, yet this to him was an evidence of His care as well as the times of superabundance.

21 Every saint "in Christ Jesus" limits this greeting to those who know Christ, not after the flesh, but after the spirit. The Circumcision are not included.

and hear and perceived in me, these be putting into practise, and the God of peace shall be with you.

10 Now I rejoiced greatly in the Lord that somehow, at length, your disposition toward me blossomed, to which you were disposed also, yet you lacked occasion.

11 Not that I am hinting at a want, for I learned to be content in that 12 in which I am. I am aware what it is to be humbled and I am aware what it is to be superabounding also. In everything and among all I have been initiated even to be satisfied and to be hungering, even to be superabounding and to be in want. I have strength for everything in Him Who is invigorating me—Christ!

14 Moreover, you do ideally in your joint contribution in my affliction.
15 Now you Philippians also are aware that, in the beginning of the evangel, when I came out from Macedonia, not a single ecclesia participates with me in the matter of giving and getting, except you
16 only, seeing that, in Thessalonica also, you send, once and again, 17 to my need. Not that I am seeking for a gift, but I am seeking for fruit which is increasing for 18 your account. Now I am paid in full, and am superabounding. I have been filled full, receiving from Epaphroditus the things from you, a fragrant odor, an acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing
19 to God. Now my God shall be filling your every need in accord with His riches in glory in Christ
20 Jesus. Now to our God and Father be glory for the eons of the eons! Amen!

21 Greet every saint in Christ Jesus. The brethren with me are

COLOSSIANS

COLOSSIANS is the complement of Paul's epistle to the Ephesians. Two mysteries dominate both. Ephesians elaborates the present Secret Economy, which concerns the members of the body of Christ: Colossians dwells upon the secret of Christ, Who is the Head of that body. Ephesians, however, teaches the truth, while Colossians corrects departure from it.

The literary framework gives us a clear clue to its contents. Within the Salutations and Mutual Reports, the whole body of the epistle deals with the details of the Secret of Christ. First the apostle, in one of the most sublime passages in Holy Writ, sets forth the secret glories of Christ as the Son of God.

At the close of the epistle he speaks of this again, desiring to make it known.

The bulk of this letter deals with correction in doctrine and deportment necessitated by departure from the Secret of Christ. A knowledge of this secret is vital to the spiritual welfare of all who know God.

Rationalism and ritual, the philosophy of the nations and the religion of Israel, are the two great enemies to the truth which find correction in Colossians.

Gnosticism, with its false fullness or plerōma of angelic intermediaries between God and man, is set aside by the great truth that Christ is God's Complement. As our Complement He displaces all the decrees and rites of Judaism. In Christ we are complete and need naught else to fit us for the Father's presence.

The secret of Christ is presented in its future aspect in Ephesians. There is to be a harvest era in which Christ is to be supreme, not only on earth, but in the heavens also. His sway will be universal (Eph.1:10³³). In Colossians, however, the emphasis is placed on His past headship in creation and His present headship in redemption with a view to a future reconciliation of the universe. The unity of creation has led philosophers to trace it back to a common origin, by some called a "primordial germ." This first element in creation, however simple it may be said to be, must possess within itself a potential universe. The Son of God, the Firstborn of Creation, is the satisfactory solution to all questions which concern creation. Creation did not begin in chaos but in Christ. It will not end in ruin wrought by man but in universal reconciliation wrought by the blood of His cross.

1 "Paul, a commissioner of Christ Jesus," introduces us to a glorified Christ in heaven and invokes the authority vested in Paul as His legate. Contrast the character assumed by Paul in Philippians.

4 Their faith in Christ Jesus and their heavenly hope reminds us of the opening words of Ephesians. Before these letters were written the saints among the nations had no clear indications of a heavenly destiny. This is practically unknown outside Paul's epistles, and even in them it is gradually approached. The Thessalonians are taught the Lord's descent from heaven to meet them in the air (1 Thess. 4:16). The secret of the resurrection is made known to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:51), showing that our bodies will be changed to fit the celestial spheres. But not until the prison epistles were penned are we given definite assurance that the saints are destined to enjoy a heavenly allotment.

6 A true realization of God's grace is the accomplishment most to be desired of all things, for it is impossible to please God without faith and an intelligent grasp of His gracious purpose. Zeal must be directed by knowledge.

THE SECRET OF CHRIST ITS REALIZATION

9 Here we have a prayer which is well worthy of our imitation.

13 The kingdom of His Son is a figurative allusion to the kingdom of Christ. Messiah's kingdom is literal and future and destroys and displaces earth's kingdoms (Dan. 2:44). The kingdom of the Son here spoken of is a present spiritual power. We are not rescued from earth's governments but from the powers of Darkness which direct and dominate them. The term "pardon" is borrowed from the kingdom phraseology to accord with this figure.

15 God is an invisible Spirit (Jno. 4:24 1Ti. 6:16). The Son of God is the visible, tangible embodiment of Deity. Only in Him can we see God. All other images are condemned because they are false and dishonor God (Deut. 5:8). All creation was in Him, as the tree and its fruits are found in the seed. In Him

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and brother Timothy, to the saints and faithful brethren in Christ in Colosse:

Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We are thanking the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always concerning you, when hearing of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love which you have for all the saints, because of the expectation which is reserved for you in the heavens, which you hear before in the true expression of the evangel, which, being present with you, according as in all the world also, is being fruitful and growing, according as it is among you also, from the day you hear and realized the grace of God in truth, according as you learned it from Epaphras, our beloved fellow slave, who is a faithful dispenser of Christ for us, and who makes evident also to us your love in spirit.

9 Therefore we also, from the day we hear, do not cease praying for you and requesting that you may be filled with the realization of His will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, you to walk worthily of the Lord for all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and growing in the realization of God; being endued with all power, in accord with His glorious might, for all endurance and

The Secret of Christ

God created all else, for the whole universe was created in Him. This includes the celestial as well as the terrestrial spheres and every form of spiritual power and dignity. These exist through Him and for Him and He makes all a unit for the accomplishment of God's purpose.

18 As God's Complement, His supremacy becomes pre-eminent in redemption as well as creation. Their relation may be shown as follows:

THE PRE-EMINENCE OF THE SON OF GOD	The Image of God	Firstborn of all Creation The Universe Heaven and Earth Created in Him
	The Comple- ment of God	Firstborn from the Dead The Universe Earth and Heaven Reconciled thru Him

The two paramount points in universal history are the creation and the resurrection of the Son of God. Through His death and vivification He will yet more than restore the lost creation to the Father. The cross, which speaks of His estrangement from God, is the basis on which reconciliation is built. The benefits it brings are not confined to earth or mankind, but include the celestial realms as well.

20 Just as His glories in creation take us back to the very beginning, so the greater glories of reconciliation take us to the very consummation. The universal reconciliation cannot be fully accomplished until the close of the eonian times, when all sovereignty and authority and power and even death are rendered inoperative (1Cor. 15:24-27) and when all mankind are saved (1Tim. 4:10) and justified (Rom. 5:18). This takes us far beyond the new earth portrayed at the end of the Unveiling of Jesus Christ, for there He still reigns, many of mankind are still lost, and death is not yet abolished.

21 At present reconciliation includes only those who, like the Colossians, believe in Him and have not lost their hold on this great truth (or indeed, have never heard of it). Salvation depends only on the work of Christ and is not affected by our moods: reconciliation depends, on our side, upon our enjoyment of His favor.

The Secret of Christ

²³ The scope of reconciliation is not confined to mankind: it is as broad as creation. Its proclamation was made to every creature under heaven. It is God's loving purpose to bind all His creatures to Him with the cords of affection. To accomplish this purpose demands suffering—not only the essential suffering of Christ on the cross, but those of His afflictions which He endures in His members in the course of its dispensation.

²⁵ This epistle was not by any means the last of the Greek scriptures to be penned. The Unveiling of Jesus Christ and all of John's writings were written, we are told, long afterward. Paul completed or filled up the word of God in another sense. All the other scriptures were limited in their scope to the earth, as to space, and to the eons, as to time. They were concerned with a fragment of the universe. In them the nations could have only a subordinate place and portion. As the secret of Christ breaks beyond the barriers of Judaism, these restrictions vanish. On earth Messiah never left the land of Israel. Now, in spirit, He walks among the nations, dispensing blessing as He did in the days of His earthly sojourn. Christ, Who never went among the nations before His ascension, met Paul outside the land, on the Damascus road, not as the lowly Jesus, but as the glorified Son of God. Gradually, in spirit, through the apostle's ministries, He unfolds His secret purpose to be to the nations, in spirit, all that He had been to Israel in flesh, and far more. This is the secret: Christ among the nations, a glorious expectation. Not a subordinate place in the earthly kingdom, but a pre-eminent place in His celestial domains.

Let us, too, note the tremendous importance which he attaches to an appreciation of this most marvelous mystery or secret. It satisfies both the heart and the head. It reveals depths of affection in which we may revel. It discloses the treasures of wisdom and knowledge for which earth's sages and philosophers have been groping without avail. It solves the riddle of the universe—its beginning and its end, its creation and its reconciliation.

the expectation of the evangel which you hear, which is being proclaimed in the entire creation which is under heaven, of which I, ²¹ Paul, became a dispenser. I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for you, and fill up in my flesh, in His stead, the deficiencies of the afflictions of Christ, for His body, ²⁵ which is the ecclesia of which I became a dispenser, in accord with the stewardship of God, which was granted to me for you, to complete ²⁶ the word of God—the secret which has been concealed from the eons and from the generations, yet now ²⁷ is made manifest to His saints, to whom God wills to make known what are the glorious riches of this secret among the nations, which is: Christ among you, a glorious ex- ²⁸ pectation—Whom we are announcing, admonishing every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, in order that we should present every man mature in Christ Jesus; ²⁹ for which I am toiling also, struggling in accord with His operation, which is operating in me in power. 2 For I want you to perceive the stupendous struggle I am having for your sakes and for those in Laodicea, and as many as have not seen ² my face in flesh, that their hearts may be consoled, being united in love, even unto all the riches of the assurance of understanding, unto a realization of the secret of ³ the God and Father of Christ, in Whom all the treasures of wisdom ⁴ and knowledge are concealed. DOCTRINAL CORRECTION

⁸ It is difficult to discern that the divine religion given to Israel in the flesh may be one of the greatest hindrances toward an appreciation of the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus. Hence the spirit of God forces it down to the same level with human philosophy and tradition by alternating them in this passage. The empty seduction and rudiments, the circumcision, baptism, and shadows refer to the rites and ritual Jehovah gave His earthly people. Yet they are interspersed with references to the authority and teachings of men. Ritual is just as dangerous an enemy as rationalism. As God's Complement, Christ is the answer to philosophy: as our Complement, He is the end of religion.

⁸ By a striking figure the apostle warns us lest we lose all our possessions in Christ by a legal process, such as is served when property is seized for debt. Legality levies an attachment on us so that we lose the enjoyment of our possessions and philosophy interferes in the same way.

¹¹ The spiritual history of those who know Christ as their Complement may be summarized in three words: death, burial, and resurrection. Not, of course, literally, but in Him. Two rites, in Israel, set this forth in figure. Circumcision is the cutting off of the flesh. It signifies death. Baptism pictures both burial and resurrection. Now the believer need not be circumcised, for Christ, his Complement, descended into death itself. In Christ's burial he has been baptized. In His resurrection he has been raised from the dead. Faith in God's operation is all the ceremony needed to place the believer beyond the tomb in full possession of every privilege ever procured by the rites of religion. Christ, our Complement, makes full provision for our approach into the divine presence, just as the brazen altar and the laver provided for the approach of the priest in the tabernacle (Ex.27:30-17).

I am saying this, that no one of you should be beguiled with persuasive words. For even if I am absent in flesh, nevertheless I am with you in spirit, rejoicing and observing your order and the stability of your faith in Christ.

⁶ As, then, you accepted Christ Jesus, the Lord, be walking in Him, having been rooted and built up in Him, and being confirmed in the faith according as you were taught, superabounding in it with thanksgiving.

⁸ Beware that no one shall be despoiling you through philosophy and empty seduction, in accord with human tradition, in accord with the elements of the world, and not in accord with Christ, seeing that in Him the entire complement of the Deity is dwelling bodily. And you are complete in Him, Who is the Head of every sovereignty and authority, in Whom you were circumcised also with a circumcision not made with hands, in the stripping off of the body of flesh in the circumcision of Christ. Being entombed together with Him in baptism (in Whom you were roused together also through faith in the operation of God, Who rouses Him from among the dead, you also being dead in the offenses and the uncircumcision of your flesh), He vivifies us together jointly with Him, dealing graciously with all our offenses, erasing the handwriting of the decrees against us, which was hostile to us, and has taken it away out of the midst, nailing it to the cross, stripping off the sovereign-

Doctrinal Correction

13 Not only is the believer exempt from the authority of the apostles of the Circumcision, but, in spirit, he is beyond the reach of all human jurisdiction. Even before His resurrection our Lord reminded Pilate that he had no authority whatever in His case except what had been granted him from above (Jno. 19¹⁰⁻¹¹). By His rising He reversed the sentence of death pronounced against Him by the Sanhedrin and the Roman governor.

16 The prohibition of certain foods under the law, the observance of festivals and fasts and rest days, all foreshadowed the rest and joy and plenty of that future kingdom on the earth, in which the body of Christ has no part. The divine picture of our portion is the physical body of Christ, risen and ascended and seated at God's right hand in the celestial spheres. As the physical members are to this body, so we, His spiritual members, are to Him. We, too, are roused and seated there, and are the instruments through which He will effect His Father's will in the empyrean.

19 "Holding the Head" is a succinct expression of our duty as members of the body of Christ. A conscious connection and subjection to Him as our Head will sever us from the things of the world, whether it be its religion (however divine its origin) or its philosophy. Any attempt to improve our position before God by physical means, whether it be an appeal to the senses or a curbing of its normal needs, denies our completeness in Christ.

CORRECTION—DEPORTMENT

1 The secret of pleasing God is a conduct conformed to our spiritual position. The key to this position is the great truth that we have not only died and have been roused with Christ, but we have ascended into heaven with Him. Our interests, our expectations, are no longer on earth at all, but in the celestial regions. Let this great and glorious truth be behind our motives and guide us into the path that pleases Him.

ties and authorities, He boldly makes a show of them, triumphing over them in it. Let no one, then, be judging you in food or in drink or in a particular festival, or new moon, or sabbaths, which are a shadow of those things which are future—but the body is of Christ. Now let no one be arbitrating against you willfully, by humility and the ritual of messengers, parading what is seen, affectingly puffed up by his fleshly mind, and not holding the Head, out of Whom the entire body, being supplied and united through the assimilation and ligaments, is growing in the growth of God. If, then, you died together with Christ from the elements of the world, why, as living in the world, are you subject to decrees: "You should not be touching, nor tasting, nor having the slightest contact" (which things are all for corruption by use) in accord with the directions and teachings of men, which are, indeed, an expression having its wisdom in a willful ritual and a humble disposition and asceticism—not of any value against the surfeiting of the flesh.

3 If, then, you were roused together with Christ, be seeking that which is above, where Christ is sitting at the right hand of God. Be disposed to that which is above, not to that on the earth, for you died and your life has been hid together with Christ in God. Whenever Christ, our Life, should be manifested, then you also will be manifested together with Him in glory.

5 Put to death, then, your members which are on earth: prostitution, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, and greed, which is idol-

Correction—Deportment

⁵ We are exhorted to transform faith into fact. Are we dead to the world? Then let us live as those who are past the practises which pollute it. How can we keep on in the course which will draw down God's indignation—not upon us—but upon those who do not trust Him?

¹² The greater our appreciation of our Lord's grace toward us, the greater grace will we show towards all who belong to Him. Without this compelling power we shall be able only to exercise our natural, ungracious dispositions.

¹⁴ Love, the greatest of the abiding trinity (1Cor.13:13), is the tie which binds us to the Lord and should be the tie which unites us to our fellow saints. Before maturity, in the preparatory era preceding the present economy, the saints were united (or rather divided) by a common rite, as Circumcision, or a common ancestor, as Israel. Now that these are abolished there is a spiritual unity unmarred by any division (Eph.4:2-6). Love is the tie that makes us one, peace is the tie that keeps us one.

¹⁵ All difficulties should be submitted to the arbitration of the peace of Christ.

¹⁷ God is jealous that His Son be duly honored in all we do or say. Even our thanksgiving must be accompanied by the incense of His name.

⁶ atry, because of which God's indignation is coming on the sons of ⁷ Stubbornness—among whom you also once walked, when you lived in these things.

⁸ Yet now you also be putting away all these—anger, fury, malice, calumny, obscenity out of ⁹ your mouth. Do not lie to one another, stripping off the old humanity together with its practises, and putting on the young, which is being renewed into recognition, to accord with the Image of the

¹² Put on, then, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, pitiful compassion, kindness, humility,
¹³ meekness, patience, bearing with one another and dealing graciously among yourselves, if anyone should be having a complaint against any. According as the Lord also deals graciously with you, thus also you.

¹⁴ Now over all these is love, which is ¹⁵ the tie of maturity. And let the peace of Christ be arbitrating in your hearts, for which you were called also in one body; and become thankful. Let the word of Christ make its home in you richly, in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing yourselves; with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs, singing, in the grace which is in ¹⁷ your hearts, to God. And everything, whatever you may be doing, in word and in act, let all be in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Correction—Deportment

17 We should always distinguish between our place "in Christ" and "in the Lord". "In Christ" physical distinctions vanish, even the distinction between the sexes is gone. There is neither male nor female (Gal.3²⁸). But "in the Lord" these are all recognized and regulated. Let us never base conduct on our place in Christ, always in the Lord. Service is to the Lord, not to Christ. In the Lord, woman is subject, in Christ, she is the equal of the man.

18 The ideal family is characterized by love on the part of the husband, which smoothes the way for subjection on the part of the wife and obedience on the part of the children. It is a sign of the last days that children no longer heed this injunction (2Tim. 3²).

22 As slavery is almost a thing of the past, these injunctions may well be the guide of those whose service is voluntary rather than compulsory. It is a marvelous help to look beyond all earthly masters and work for One above. Our employer may be hard to please, or unjust, or harsh, not giving proper compensation, but if we become the slave of Christ our work will be sincerely done and we will look to Him for appreciation and due deserts. On the other hand we will be restrained from injurious acts by the fear of Him in that day.

1 Masters, too, by remembering that they are His slaves, will deal justly with those who serve them.

THE SECRET OF CHRIST

ITS EXPRESSION

2 The great burden on the apostle's heart at this time was the transcendent revelation of Christ and His secret glories, which had been common which smoothes the way for subjection his message when he was a prisoner at the court of Rome? God's ways are not our ways. If the apostle had been free he would probably have proclaimed Christ's universal dignities by word of mouth. Being bound, he committed his message to writing, a method which has been immeasurably more effective.

giving thanks to God, the Father, through Him.

18 Wives, be subject to your husbands, as is proper in the Lord.
19 Husbands, be loving your own wives and be not bitter toward them. Children, be obeying your parents in all things, for this is well pleasing in the Lord. Fathers, do not be vexing your children, lest they may be disheartened.

22 Slaves, in all things be obeying your masters according to the flesh, not with eye-slavery as man pleasers, but with singleness of heart, fearing the Lord. All whatever you may be doing, be working from the soul, as to the Lord and not to men, being aware that you will be getting the compensation of the enjoyment of an allotment from the Lord: you are slaving for the Lord Christ. For he who is injuring shall be requited for that which he injures, and there is no partiality.

4 Masters, be tendering that which is just and equitable to your slaves, being aware that you also have a Master in heaven.

2 Be persevering in prayer, watching in it with thanksgiving.
3 and praying at the same time concerning us, that God should open up for us a door of the word, to speak the secret of Christ, because of which I have been bound also,
4 that I should be making it manifest,
5 as I must speak. Be walking in wisdom toward those outside, reclaiming the era, your word being always with grace, seasoned with salt, perceiving how you must answer each one.

7 Tychicus is well named, for who ever had a better "chance" than the bearer of this epistle as well as the letter to the Ephesians? (Eph.6²¹). The spiritual wealth with which he was entrusted passes our utmost comprehension.

10 The mention of Mark is another affectionate touch. Barnabas and Saul brought him from Jerusalem to Antioch (Acts12²⁵) and took him with them on their first missionary journey, but he forsook them and returned to Jerusalem (Acts13¹³). For this Paul refused to take him the next time, causing the separation of Paul and Barnabas (Acts 15³⁷⁻⁴⁰). But Paul has been drinking deeply of grace. He no longer holds Mark's failure against him. He tells Timothy that "he is useful for the service" (2 Ti. 4¹¹). Now he makes sure that his friends receive him. And this man, whose service was so unsatisfactory, is the one chosen by God to write the account of the perfect Servant!

10 Aristarchus, Mark and Justus are not to be reckoned as members of Christ's body destined to a celestial allotment. They were of the Circumcision, who still proclaimed the kingdom. Here we have the point of contact between these two companies. The course of the Circumcision is traced in the epistle to the Hebrews.

12 Epaphras seems to have been the principal teacher in the Colossian ecclesia (17) through whom they learned the grace of God. How effectively that grace wrought in his own heart is evident by his prayers and anguish while absent from them. His great concern was that they should be mature and complete in all the will of God. How rare are such saints in these days!

16 It is likely that the Laodicean epistle here referred to is the same as that now called the epistle to the Ephesians. It has the character of a circular letter, copies of which were sent to various ecclesias.

18 The epistle was probably penned by a professional scribe, but the apostle appended the greeting with his own hand.

loved brother and faithful servant and fellow slave in the Lord, whom I send to you for this same thing, that you may know what concerns you and he should be consoling your hearts, together with Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They shall make known to you all things here.

10 Aristarchus, my fellow captive, is greeting you, and Mark, cousin of Barnabas (concerning whom you obtained directions—if he should be coming to you, receive him), and Jesus, termed Justus, who are of the Circumcision: these are the only fellow workers for the kingdom of God who became a solace to me. Epaphras is greeting you, who is one of you, a slave of Christ Jesus, always struggling for you in prayers, that you may stand mature and fully assured in all the will of God. For I am testifying of him that he has much misery over you and those in Laodicea and those in Hierapolis.

14 Luke, the beloved physician, is greeting you, and Demas. Greet the brethren in Laodicea, and Nympha, and the ecclesia at her home. And whenever the epistle should be read to you, cause that it should be read in the Laodicean ecclesia also, and that you also may be reading that of Laodicea. And say to Archippus: "Look to the service which you accepted in the Lord, that you fulfill it."

18 The salutation is by my hand—Paul. Remember my bonds!

Grace be with you! Amen!

PAUL'S PROMISE EPISTLES

THE blessed expectation of our Lord's return before the day of His indignation is the subject of these, Paul's earliest epistles. It is the early opening wedge between those who received his ministry among the nations and those of the Circumcision, who looked for Messiah's advent after the display of His indignation and the destruction of man's kingdoms.

The historical background for this change is given in the book of Acts, though the doctrine itself is not found there because the Acts is a treatise on the kingdom of God for Israel. In the ministry of our Lord and His twelve apostles His coming is always presented in its connection with the promised kingdom. It will be with power and great glory (Mt.24³⁰Mk.13²⁶Lu.21²⁷). His feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives (Acts11¹¹⁻¹²Zech.14¹⁻⁵). All the predictions of the prophet Daniel and in the Unveiling of Jesus Christ will be fulfilled at that time. It will follow an era of the most awful and terrific judgments mankind will ever be called upon to endure. So long as the kingdom was impending these judgments, also, were hanging over a rebellious race.

At first Paul, like all the rest, confined his ministry to the Jews. At Antioch, where the disciples were first called "Christians," there were none except Jews and proselytes. From this he was separated (Acts 13²). At Pisidian Antioch he first turned to the nations, or Gentiles. After that, though he spoke to the Jews first, he proclaimed Christ freely among the nations, preaching grace. One of the first questions for these believers among the nations was, What shall become of us in the great judgments which precede the coming of the kingdom? Will God pour out His bowls of wrath upon our heads? In answer to this the apostle is given an entirely new revelation concerning the future presence of the Lord. The believers among the nations were saved on the ground of grace. This is to characterize all God's dealings with them. Hence they cannot remain in the scene which is visited by His indignation. They must be sheltered or removed. Some saints in Israel are sheltered, but the new company, composed principally of saints from the other nations who have believed Paul's preaching, are to be removed. Paul receives the revelation that, long before the Lord descends in glory to set up His kingdom, He will descend, not to the earth, but to the air, and His saints will be caught up to meet Him there. Thus they will be above the lightnings and thunders of the terrible day of the Lord.

In later epistles, as the truth was gradually developed, more details were added to this glorious revelation. The Corinthian mind found difficulties in this doctrine, so the apostle unfolds to them the secret or mystery of the resurrection (Co.15^{51,52}), that our bodies, which, at present, are adapted only to an earthly environment, are to be changed to suit the celestial spheres. The Philippian letter caps the climax by the added revelation that they shall be transfigured into the glorious likeness of our Lord Himself!

I THESSALONIANS

THE historical setting and occasion for this epistle is found in the book of Acts (17:1-18:5). By constraint of the spirit of God, after he had revisited the scenes of his first missionary journey, Paul is led to go across to Macedonia. He perceived a vision in which a Macedonian entreated him, "Cross over into Macedonia. Help us!" In response to this appeal Paul and his party founded an ecclesia in Philippi, to which also he afterwards penned the epistle of that name. After being beaten and imprisoned, they are besought to leave the city, and came to Thessalonica.

Paul first reasoned with the Jews in the synagogue for three sabbaths, showing from their scriptures that Christ must suffer and rise from the dead and that Jesus was their Messiah. Some believed but some did not. As at Pisidian Antioch (Acts 13:46-48), Paul then turns to those outside the pale of Judaism and of these a vast multitude believe. But, as at Pisidian Antioch, the unbelieving Jews stirred up a persecution against them so that they were sent away. After going to Berea (Ac. 17:10) and Athens (Ac. 17:15-34), he came to Corinth, where both Silas and Timothy joined him (Acts 18:5, 1 Thess. 3:6) and where he probably wrote this, the first of all the writings of the Greek scriptures.

Paul did not desire to leave the Thessalonians. They had only just received the evangel and needed to be taught and confirmed in the faith. He was deeply concerned about them and sought twice to return to them, but was hindered. So he sent Timothy in his stead. The report of Timothy greatly comforted him. Not being able to go to them, he pens this epistle.

The literary framework shows that the whole epistle takes its color from the persecutions endured by the Thessalonians. At present they are suffering from the anger of men, but they shall be saved from the indignation of God. The Jews who persecute them are drawing down God's indignation, but the Thessalonians will never be subjects of His wrath (1¹⁰ 2:1059).

The doctrinal burden of the epistle is based on the truth of the Lord's future presence. He had taught this during the few days he was with them but it needed further explanation.

Some had died and some were indifferent. Would these two classes be left out when He comes? The answer is that those who are asleep will be roused first and accompany the living when they are caught up to meet the Lord in the air. They will not be left behind.

So, too, those who do not watch. The death of Christ provides for their salvation from future wrath quite apart from their present walk. All who are His, whether watchful or drowsy, shall live together with Him.

PAUL'S THANKSGIVING

² This is the pattern pastoral epistle. Paul's deep concern leads him to constant prayer for them, for he knows their need and has been torn from them before it was possible for him to teach them much.

It is the character not the quantity of work that counts with God. Apart from faith it is impossible to please Him. Let us avoid all efforts which are not firmly founded on faith. Even toil and weariness depend on their motive to meet His approbation. Love alone can give value to our toil. Expectation, not the indefinite, uncertain desire which "hope" suggests, but an assured and confident prospect of their Lord's return, gave these young believers their endurance in the midst of persecution.

⁴ Paul might well question the reality of the work done in Thessalonica. In a few weeks' time a great multitude heard and believed. There was danger that the enthusiasm of the moment had carried many into their company who were never the subjects of God's grace. But as Paul reflects upon the vision which sent him there (Ac. 16⁹) and the mighty power of the preaching, and their subsequent service and sufferings, he is convinced that God has chosen them. At this very time God assures him that He had many people in Corinth (Ac. 18¹⁰).

⁶ What fervor, what zeal, was shown by this ecclesia! Only a few months before they bowed down to idols. Now, in the face of a furious persecution, they fearlessly proclaim Christ. They have no thought of confining themselves to their own city or even their own province. This was indeed a model even at that time, and how

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the ecclesia of the Thessalonians in God, the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

² We are thanking God always concerning you all, making mention
³ of you in our prayers, unintermittingly remembering your work of faith and toil of love and endurance of expectation of our Lord Jesus Christ, in front of our God
⁴ and Father, having perceived, brethren beloved, your choice by
⁵ God, seeing that the evangel of our God did not come to you in word only, but in power also, and in holy spirit and much assurance, according as you are aware, such as we became among you because of you.

⁶ And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, receiving the word in much affliction with joy of ⁷ holy spirit, so that you become models to all those who are believing in Macedonia and in Achaia.
⁸ For from you the word of the Lord has been sounded forth, not only in Macedonia and in Achaia, but in every place your faith toward God has come out, so that we have
⁹ no need to be speaking aught, for they are reporting, concerning us, what kind of entrance we have had to you, and how you turned back to God from idols, to be slaving for the living and true God
¹⁰ and to be waiting for His Son out much more so now! Every member was a missionary. Their conduct forced the very enemies of Paul to bear testimony to the reality of his work amongst them (Ac.17⁶).

Thanksgiving

¹⁰ Waiting has no English equivalent. It is used in the papyri of those who were required to settle their debts without waiting the full term.

The secret of Paul's Thessalonian evangelism is twofold. He did not seek to turn them from their idols. That was incidental. He turned them to God. God and His grace provide the impelling power. In doing this they must needs turn their back on the idols they had worshiped. But more than this, he put before them a vital expectation. It was not a dead Christ he proclaimed to them. Nor did he stop with the resurrection. He engaged their hearts with the ascended Son of God, Whom they might expect to leave His place in heaven in order to receive them to Himself.

PAUL'S ENTRANCE

⁴ There is an overwhelming temptation to please men, in evangelistic work. The marvelous success of Paul's short ministry in Thessalonica arose from his determination to please God at any cost.

⁵ The apostle, in discussing his own motives and methods, gives us an ideal by which to test all such efforts. Flattery is barred out. Avarice is denounced. He himself did not even get a living for his labor, for the Philippians sent him aid even in Thessalonica (Phil.4¹⁶). How many are willing to work for such wages today? As an apostle he deserved the highest honors, and could have demanded them, but he preferred to get no glory from men. His personal presence was weak and his oratory despicable (so said the Corinthians. 2 Cor.10¹⁰), but his love was great, his tenderness was touching, his toil and labor, to avoid being a burden to them, were more eloquent than words, and his conduct above reproach.

of the heavens, Whom He rouses from among the dead, Jesus, Who is rescuing us out of the coming indignation.

² For you yourselves are aware, brethren, that our entrance to you has not come to be for naught, ² but, though suffering before and being outraged at Philippi, according as you are aware, we are bold in our God to speak the evangel of God to you with a vast struggle. ³ For our entreaty is not out of deception, nor yet out of uncleanness, ⁴ nor yet with guile, but, according as we have been tested by God to be entrusted with the evangel, thus are we speaking, not as pleasing men, but God, Who is testing our hearts. ⁵ For neither did we at any time become flattering in expression, according as you are aware, neither with a pretense of greed. ⁶ God is witness, neither seeking glory from men, neither from you, nor from others, when we could be ⁷ a burden as Christ's apostles. But we became gentle in your midst, as if a nurse should be cherishing her ⁸ own children. Thus being ardently attached to you, we are delighting to share with you not only God's evangel, but our own souls also, because you came to be beloved by us.

⁹ For you remember, brethren, our toil and labor: working night and day so as not to burden any of you, we proclaim to you God's ¹⁰ evangel. You are witnesses, and God, how benignly and justly and blamelessly we became to ¹¹ you who are believing, even in

PAUL'S THANKSGIVING

¹³ Nothing is more important than that the scriptures, in their pristine purity, be received as the word of God. Greece and the adjacent provinces were famed for their philosophies. Yet which of them ever produced effects to compare with the few words spoken by the apostle? He who fails to get beyond the preacher to the One Whose word he speaks has less than nothing. The one who hears the words of God receives everything.

¹⁰ What an exhibition of God's sovereign grace! The Jews, with all their advantages and their divine ritual, suffer a foretaste of God's indignation as it will be displayed in the day of the Lord. After the siege of Jerusalem under Titus, their temple was destroyed, their city razed and their whole polity brought to an end. When they go back to their land and establish their religious rites again they will meet the more disastrous indignation of Jehovah. The Thessalonians, who had no claims on God's mercy, suffer, indeed, from their countrymen, but are promised immunity in the day of His indignation.

PAUL BEREAVED

¹⁷ Paul was torn from the Thessalonians long before he wished to go, but God had other work for him to do, especially in Corinth, where he wrote this letter. It does not seem that his desire was gratified till some years later, when he went over Macedonia on his way to Greece (Ac.20²).

accord with what you are aware—to each one of you, as a father to his own children, consoling and ¹² comforting you and testifying unto you to walk worthily of God, Who calls you to His own kingdom and glory.

¹³ And therefore we also are thanking God unintermittingly that, in accepting the word heard from us, you receive of God, not the word of men, but (according as it truly is) the word of God, which is operating also in you who are believing.

¹⁴ For you became imitators, brethren, of the ecclesias of God which are in Christ Jesus in Judea, seeing that you suffered the same—even you by your own fellow-tribesmen according as they also ¹⁵ by the Jews, who also killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets and banish us, and are not pleasing to God, and are contrary to all mankind, forbidding us to speak to the nations that they may be saved, to fill up their sins always. Yet they have a foretaste of the consummating indignation.

¹⁷ Now we, brethren, being bereaved of you for the period of an hour, in face, not in heart, endeavor the more exceedingly to see your face, with much yearning.
¹⁸ because we want to come to you, indeed I Paul, once—even twice—¹⁹ and Satan hinders us. For what is our expectation, or joy, or wreath of glorying? Is it not even you, in front of our Lord Jesus. at

¹⁰ The "deficiencies" in the faith of the Thessalonians are met in this epistle and in his second letter to them, as well as in all his nine letters to the seven ecclesias. The historical order of Paul's epistles should always be borne in mind. While the Thessalonian epistles come after the Ephesian group in the canon, they were written long before, during one of the earlier ministries of the apostle. Perhaps one of the important lessons for the apostle himself lay in his enforced absence from Thessalonica. The spiritual contact of an epistle accords much more with the trend of his ministries than his personal presence. His epistles, also, have ministered to millions who have found themselves in need of the same help that he extended to the Thessalonians.

This is the key to much that is inexplicable in the later epistles of Paul. He is always looking forward with confidence to a physical presence with those to whom he wrote. Even if the expectations were fulfilled, the Scriptures are silent, and leave us with the impression that his presence, like his ministry, forsook the physical.

²⁰ His presence? For you are our glory and joy.

3 Wherefore, when we could by no means longer refrain, it seems well for us to be left at Athens alone, and we send Timothy, our brother and God's servant in the evangel of Christ, to establish and to console you in behalf of your faith. Now no one is to be swayed by these afflictions, for you yourselves are aware that we are located for this. For even when we were with you we predicted to you that "we are about to be afflicted", according as it occurred also, and you are aware.

⁵ Therefore, when I could by no means longer refrain, I send to know of your faith, lest somehow the tryer try you and our toil may be coming to be for naught. Yet at present, because of Timothy's coming to us from you and bringing us the evangel of your faith and love, and that you have a good remembrance of us always, longing to see us even according as we also you—therefore we were consoled, brethren, over you in all our necessity and affliction, through your faith, seeing that now we are living if you are standing in the Lord. For what thanksgiving are we able to repay to God concerning you for all the joy with which we are rejoicing because of you in front of our God, night and day beseeching exceedingly to see your face and to readjust the deficiencies of your faith? Now may God Himself, even our Father, and our Lord Jesus, direct our way to you!

THE LORD'S PRESENCE

¹² Paul gives us the true motive and incentive of a holy life and a steadfast faith. It springs from the overflow of love to our fellow saints and to all others as well. It looks forward to the presence of Him Who does not decide by the outward appearance, but rewards according to the secret motives of the heart. The presence of our Lord is to be understood in its plainest literal sense. This is His absence. Whenever He is actually near and known, He will be present.

ASKING AND ENTREATING

³ Looseness in marriage relations is one of the saddest spots on the history of mankind. The gods of the nations were most offensive in this regard and their reputed misdeeds gave ample excuse for the trespasses of their devotees. Besides this the religious ceremonies and rites by which they were worshiped gave sanction to the most debasing excesses and abuses. No wonder the apostle speaks plainly and sharply. He will allow no trifling. Each one is to have his own wife and is not to interfere with his brother in this matter. No doubt the apostle refers to special customs and abuses in Thessalonica.

WRITING NOT NECESSARY

⁹ One of the earliest impulses of the new life of the believer is to love his fellow saints. We are taught by God. It is instinctive and should be fostered and encouraged. Let us not allow party lines and differences in details to divide between us and all who have the same life and harbor the same love.

¹¹ In the midst of such a great spiritual awakening as occurred at Thessalonica there is a temptation to neglect the necessary duties of life and mistake enthusiasm and noise for the quiet yet powerful operations of the spirit. The apostle urges them to attend to their own affairs and provide for their needs, so that their enemies will not find occasion to reproach them.

¹² Now may the Lord cause you to increase and superabound in love for one another and for all, even according as we also for you, to establish your hearts unblamable in holiness in front of our God and Father, in the presence of our Lord Jesus with all His saints.

⁴ Furthermore, then, brethren, we are asking you and entreating in the Lord Jesus, that, according as you accepted from us how you must be walking and pleasing God (according as you are walking also), that you may be superabounding yet more, for you are aware what charges we give to you through the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God—your holiness. You are to be abstaining from all prostitution; each of you is to be aware of his own vessel, to be acquiring it in holiness and honor, not in lustful passion even according as the nations also who have no perception of God. No one is to be circumventing and overreaching his brother in this matter, because the Lord is the Avenger of all these, according as we said to you before also and certify, for God calls us, not for uncleanness, but in holiness. Surely, in consequence, then, he who is repudiating is not repudiating men, but God, Who is also giving you His holy spirit.

⁹ Now concerning brotherly affection we have no need to be writing to you, for you yourselves are taught by God to be loving one another, for you are doing it also to all the brethren who are in the

THOSE REPOSING

¹³ We do not sorrow when our dear ones are literally reposing. The reference is to death under a most beautiful figure for the distressed Thessalonian saints. The resurrection of Jesus is the guarantee that all who are His will likewise be raised. Until Paul received this revelation, the only resurrection of the saints was the "resurrection of life" (Jn.5²⁹) called the "former" resurrection (Un. 20⁵), at the beginning of the thousand years, after the judgment period. Then the Lord comes down to earth. The saints are not snatched into the air. But this resurrection follows the Lord's presence in the air long before His coming to the earth. It precedes the great judgment era which ushers in the day of Jehovah. Being justified in the blood of Christ, we shall be saved from God's indignation through Him (Rom.5⁹). God has not assigned us to indignation but to the procuring of salvation (5⁹). This new revelation is further unfolded to the Corinthians (1Co.15⁵¹), where the secret is disclosed that the living, as well as the dead, will be changed. Both will be given incorruptible, spiritual, celestial bodies, without which, indeed, they could hardly meet Him in the air. The crowning glory of this blessed expectation was made known to the Philippian. These bodies of humiliation will be transfigured to conform them to that glorious body which blinded Paul when first he beheld Him (Phil.3²¹; Ac.9^{3,8,16}).

¹⁷ "We, the living." Paul does not insist that he must survive to the advent, any more than he meant to assert positively that he should die when he said the Lord Jesus "shall raise us up" (2 Cor.4¹⁴).

² This is man's day (1 Cor.4³). It is near its end. The day of Jehovah, with its awful divine judgments, is fast approaching. It will give no notice of its coming. On the contrary, it will seem unnecessary and impossible. Is it not true that never, in the history of the race, was there such a hope and expectation of the end of war? The parliament of nations, the reduction of armaments, the federation of the world—are we not already boasting in peace and security?

whole of Macedonia. Now we are entreating you, brethren, to be superabounding yet more, and that you be ambitious to be quiet, and to be engaged in your own affairs, and to be working with your own hands, according as we charge you, ¹² that you may be walking respectably toward those outside, and you may have need of nothing.

¹³ Now we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning those who are reposing, lest you may be sorrowed according as others also ¹⁴ who have no expectation. For if we are believing that Jesus died and rose, thus also, those who are put to repose, will God, through Jesus, ¹⁵ lead forth with Him. For this we are saying to you by the word of the Lord, that we, the living, who are surviving unto the presence of the Lord, shall by no means outstrip those who are put to repose, seeing that the Lord Himself will be descending from heaven with the shout of command, with the voice of the Chief Messenger, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ ¹⁷ shall be rising first. Thereupon we, the living who are surviving, shall at the same time be snatched away together with them in clouds, for meeting the Lord in the air. And thus shall we always be together with the Lord. ¹⁸ So that, be consoling one another with these words.

⁵ Now concerning the times and the eras, brethren, you have no ² need to be written to, for you yourselves are accurately aware that the day of the Lord is as a thief in the night—thus is it coming. Now whenever they may be saying "Peace and security", then extermination is standing

THOSE DROWSING

4 The day of the Lord with its terrors and destruction is not for us. The cry of "peace and security" should not lull us to sleep. We should be on the alert, knowing the futility of all security and peace apart from Christ. And, though aware of the whirlpool into which this world is sweeping, we have no fear, for it will not engulf us. But, suppose that we, too, relax our vigilance and take a nap along with the rest. Will we be left for judgment? At His coming to set up the kingdom it is vital that they watch or they will lose their reward (Mt.24:25¹³Mk.13³⁴Lk.12³⁷Un.3^{16:15}). Not so here. Those who received Paul's gospel of faith apart from deeds, find their salvation a matter of pure unadulterated grace. This is true of the future as well as the past. The death of Christ, not our conduct, our watchfulness or the lack of it, is the foundation on which our future salvation rests just as really as the salvation which we already enjoy. This confidence will not lead to laxness.

8 The believer's armor is defensive. His only weapon is the spirit's sword, the word of God. Not, indeed, every statement in the scriptures, for some of it is an inspired record of human philosophy and the very lies of the adversary are contained in its pages, but every actual declaration which has proceeded forth from God through His accredited prophets and apostles. These are powerful and effective. No other weapon should be used. For defense we rely on faith and love for the present and on the blessed expectation of our gathering together unto Him for the future. This is figured by the helmet. No judgment from above can harm us. When heaven's judgments fall we will be safe above them in His presence.

ASKING AND ENTREATING

12 Love and patience should characterize all our intercourse with fellow saints. Love will lead us to acknowledge those who are over us and to bear with those below. It will rule out all retaliation.

16 Constant joy, constant prayer, constant thanksgiving is the normal privilege of all saints.

over them unawares, even as travail over the pregnant, and they may by no means escape.

4 Now you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should be
5 overtaking you as a thief, for you are all sons of the light and sons of the day. We are not of the night
6 nor of darkness. Consequently then, we should not be drowsing, even as the rest, but we may be watch-
7 ing and sober. For those who are drowsing are drowsing at night, and those who are drunk
8 are drunk at night. Yet we, being of the day, may be sober, putting on the cuirass of faith and love, and the helmet, the ex-
9 pectation of salvation, seeing that God did not appoint us to indignation, but to the procuring of salvation through our Lord Jesus
10 Christ, the One dying for us, that, whether we may be watching or drowsing, we should be living at the same time together with Him.
11 Wherefore, be consoling one another and edifying one the other, according as you are doing also.

12 Now we are asking you, brethren, to perceive those who are toiling among you and presiding over you in the Lord and admonishing you, and to deem them exceedingly distinguished in love, because of their work. Be at 14 peace among yourselves. Now we are entreating you, brethren, admonish the disorderly, comfort the faint-hearted, uphold the infirm, be patient toward all. See that no one may be rendering evil for evil to anyone, but always be pursuing that which is good for one another and for all. Be rejoicing always. Be praying uninter-
18 mittingly. In everything be giving thanks, for this is the will of ²⁰ These exhortations are made in view of the changing character of Paul's ministries. They became more spiritual as time advanced. The gift of prophecy was especially adapted to meet the need of the saints until God's complete revelation should be given (1 Cor.12¹⁰13⁸). Yet they were to be tested and only those in line with the ideal toward which God was working were to be permanent.

²³ The lame man who sat at the Beautiful gate of the temple (Ac.3²⁻¹⁰) had unimpaired health and strength after he was healed. The same word is used here but is extended to the soul and spirit as well. This, and far more, will be our lot in His presence even should any part be lame or deficient now!

God in Christ Jesus for you.

¹⁹ Quench not the spirit. ²⁰ Scorn not prophecies, but be testing all, retaining the ideal. Be abstaining from every appearance of wickedness.

²³ Now may the God of peace Himself hallow you wholly; and may your unimpaired spirit and soul and body be kept blameless in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ!

²⁴ Faithful is He Who is calling you, Who will be doing it also.

²⁵ Brethren, be praying for us also.

²⁶ Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss. I am adjuring you by the Lord, that this epistle is to be read to all the holy brethren.

²⁸ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you! Amen!

II THESSALONIANS

This second letter to the Thessalonians is a sequel to the first. The Thessalonians are still unable to distinguish between the rage of man and the wrath of God. Their continued trial and persecution leads them to conclude that God is against them instead of for them. The kingdom of God, which was proclaimed among them, is to be introduced with divine judgments. The day of the Lord, in which it will be set up, opens with an unparalleled display of divine indignation. They still persist in imagining that this day had begun, especially as, in some way, this was represented to be the apostle's teaching (2^o).

In reply Paul and his fellow workers define these dreaded judgments as those which fall only on those being unacquainted with God and who do not obey the evangel, especially on such as their persecutors. Their main argument is founded on the teaching of the first epistle in reference to the Lord's presence and our assembling with Him in the air. There they had been definitely taught that this must occur before the day of His incarnation.

The secret phase of lawlessness has been in operation throughout this economy, but its full development has been held in check by the presence of the saints. When we are taken out of the midst, then, and not till then, will the apostasy bear its bitter fruit. Its presence will be indicated by the presence of the man of lawlessness, corresponding to the head of the wild beast of the Unveiling of Jesus Christ (Un.13¹) who will be seconded by the false prophet who does signs and miracles to prove his claims (Un.13¹¹). By these mankind is deluded to its destruction.

But the Thessalonians are not deceived by God but preferred for salvation and belief of the truth and the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The latter part of the epistle is devoted to some practical disorders, especially busybodies who do not work for their living.

SALUTATION, Peace and grace 3¹⁶-3¹⁸

The literary framework is a simple alternation within the salutations. A thanksgiving, a prayer, and an admonition are found in this order in both the former and latter half of the letter.

If the epistle is read with its leading thought in mind—that we are delivered from the coming divine indignation—it will be seen to give it color and warmth everywhere, and especially in the assurances of God's mind toward them in their trials.

THANKSGIVING

² The sufferings which were distressing the Thessalonians were the occasion of joy and boasting on the part of the apostle, for it proved the reality of their faith in Christ and developed their affection for one another. He adroitly turns their mistaken idea, that God is afflicting them, into the opposite, that their very sufferings are a sure index that those who afflict them will suffer at His hands. He lays due stress on the fact that God's indignation comes upon those who do not know Him and who do not obey the evangel. By thus turning the minds of the Thessalonians to the future he consoles them in their present trials. Then the opposers will suffer, not only for their sins, but for their persecution of God's saints, while those who are now in distress will enjoy ease and relaxation during the unveiling of the Lord Jesus from heaven. This passage alone should restrain us from including the saints of this economy in any of the companies of the saved mentioned in the scroll of His Unveiling. The persistence with which this thought clung to the Thessalonians is accounted for by the fact that the Circumcision did expect to go through the terrors of that day. Those who endured to the end would be saved. Paul was introducing a new and unknown doctrine, corresponding to his evangel for the nations, in which God's unadulterated grace is far more pronounced than in the gospel of the kingdom as proclaimed by the other apostles.

PRAYER

¹² His prayer for them was that they might respond to this grace of God by a present conduct, in the midst of suffering, which would glorify God and His Christ.

PAUL and Silvanus and Timothy to the ecclesia of the Thessalonians in God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

² Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

³ We ought to be thanking God always concerning you, brethren, according as it is meet, seeing that your faith is flourishing and the love of each one of you all for one
⁴ another is increasing, so that we ourselves glory in you in the ecclesias of God, for your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and the afflictions which you are
⁵ bearing—a display of the just judgment of God, to deem you worthy of the kingdom of God, for
⁶ which you are suffering also, if so be that it is just of God to repay
⁷ affliction to those afflicting you, and to you who are being afflicted, ease, with us, at the unveiling of the Lord Jesus from heaven with
⁸ His powerful messengers, in flaming fire dealing out vengeance to those who are not acquainted with God and those who are not obeying the evangel of our Lord
⁹ Jesus Christ, who shall incur the justice of eonian extermination from the face of the Lord, and from the glory of His strength;
¹⁰ whenever He should be coming to be glorified in His saints and to be marveled at in all who believe (seeing that our testimony to you was believed) in that day—
¹¹ For which we are always praying also concerning you, that

ADMONITION—APOSTASY

1 The controlling thought in this section of the epistle is based on the teaching of the first letter. Had they fully accepted and understood what he had already written to them they never would have been led to believe that the day of the Lord was already present. In the meantime it seems that Paul has been misrepresented in this matter, perhaps by a forged letter (3¹⁷). He now gives two of the salient signs which will be present when the day of the Lord comes: the apostasy and the man of lawlessness. Neither of these was present at that time.

2 The man of lawlessness (as the two best manuscripts name him) seems to correspond closely with the head of the wild beast (Un. 13¹⁻⁸). The whole earth will worship him except the few whose names are written in the Lamb's scroll of life. It is evident from this passage that, at the time of the end, there will be a temple of God. That this should be elsewhere than Jerusalem seems impossible. So we may look, not only for a return of the Jews to their own land, but also for a restoration of their ancient ritual and a rebuilding of their temple. For anyone except a priest to enter the holy place is itself a terrible desecration, but for any man to usurp Jehovah's place in the holy of holies and demonstrate his own divinity is the most awful and appalling crime of which a human being is capable. This leads to the desolating abomination of Daniel 9²⁷, which probably consists in placing the image of the wild beast (Un. 13¹⁴) in the holy place of the temple. Our Lord warns those living in Judea to flee to the mountains (Mt. 24¹⁵⁻²²), for then the great affliction (which alarmed the Thessalonians) would come.

7 The influences which will bring about the great apostasy of the end time have been at work from the beginning, but have been restrained by another, counteracting force. What is this? Some have supposed it to be the spirit of God. But the spirit of God will continue to work throughout the apostasy, enabling a few to endure to the end, and empowering our God should be counting you worthy of the calling, and should be fulfilling every delight of goodness and work of faith in power, 12 so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in Him, in accord with the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 Now we are asking you, brethren, in behalf of the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ and our 2 assembling with Him, that you be not quickly shaken from your mind, nor yet be alarmed, either through a spirit, or through a word, or through an epistle as through us, as that the day of the 3 Lord is present. No one should be deluding you by any method, for, should not the apostasy be coming first and the man of lawlessness be unveiled, the son 4 of destruction, who is opposing and elevating himself above everything termed a god or an object of veneration, so that he is seated in the temple of God, demonstrating 5 that he himself is God? Do you not remember that, being still with you, I told you these things?

6 And now you are aware what is detaining, for him to be unveiled 7 in his own era. For the secret phase of lawlessness, already in operation, is only till that which is detaining at present may be 8 coming to be out of the midst. And then the lawless one will be unveiled (whom the Lord Jesus will despatch with the spirit of His mouth and will abolish by the advent of His presence), whose presence is in accord with the operation of Satan with all power and 10 signs and false miracles, and with others to be faithful unto death. It has been suggested that Satan "holds fast" his place in the celestial spheres, for when he is cast out the apostasy commences. His ejection does mark the crisis between the secret and open manifestation of the apostasy, but that which is restrained is evidently the apostasy, not a place in the celestial realms. The apostasy is restrained by the presence of the saints. When we are taken out of the midst by our assembling with Christ in the air, then the apostasy and all its terrible train of afflictions will deluge the earth with fire. Thus the apostle proves that their own presence on earth is conclusive evidence that they were not enduring the afflictions of the Lord's day.

^a Nothing is more necessary in these declining days of this dispensation than to warn the saints of the danger of being deceived, not by that which appears evil, but by that which has all the outward evidences of good. Satan is transformed into a messenger of light and his servants are servants of righteousness (2Co.11^{14,15}). But, in the next era, God will be back of the deception. The false prophet will do the very signs which, in Elijah's day, proved the deity of Jehovah (1Ki.18²⁴Un.15¹³), and he is empowered even to give a spirit to the image of the wild beast (Un.13¹⁵) so that it will actually speak. Thus will the man of lawlessness demonstrate his divinity.

THANKSGIVING

¹³ The Thessalonian saints (and all who believe in Christ) need have no fear of the terrible trial which is coming on the earth, for God has not sent them a deception, to condemn them, but prefers them for salvation through belief of the truth and for the procuring of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. What a glorious contrast!

PRAYER

¹ Paul desired their prayers that he might lead others into the blessed position which they occupied.

every seduction of injustice among those who are being destroyed, because they do not receive the love of the truth, for ¹¹ their salvation. And therefore God will be sending them an operation of deception, that they ¹² should believe the falsehood, that all may be judged who do not believe the truth, but delight in injustice.

¹³ Now we ought to be thanking God always concerning you, brethren, beloved by the Lord, seeing that God prefers you from the beginning for salvation, in hallowing of the spirit and belief of the truth, into which He also calls us through our evangel, for the procuring of the glory of our Lord
¹⁴ Jesus Christ. Consequently, then, brethren, stand firm, and hold to the traditions which you were taught, whether through word or ¹⁵ through our epistle. Now may our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and God, our Father, Who loves us, and is giving us an eonian consolation and a good expectation in ¹⁶ grace, console your hearts and establish you in every good work and word.

³ Furthermore, be praying, brethren, concerning us, that the word of the Lord may race and be glorified, according as it is with you also,
² and that we may be rescued from abnormal and wicked men, for not
³ all have faith. Yet the Lord is faithful, Who will establish and guard you from the wicked one.
⁴ Now we have confidence in you in the Lord that what we are charging, you are doing also and will be ⁵ doing. Now may the Lord be

⁵ The appreciation of God's love would destroy the idea that He was pouring out His indignation upon them. The contemplation of the endurance of Christ would help them to endure.

ADMONITION

⁶ Discipline was necessary even in such a warm-hearted, zealous ecclesia as Thessalonica. The occasion was not doing wrong but doing nothing. Just as the grace of God provides for our salvation from all trial and all affliction in the future, but brings both in the present, so it will also bring rest and relaxation in that day but calls for toil and labor until then. We should not shirk our work. He who does not work has no right to eat. And if anyone goes about as a busybody, seeking his food from his friends, we should avoid him, yet treat him with all the grace necessary to correct his disorderly conduct.

⁷ "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn" is the divine law for God's servants. They have a right to require support, for the Lord has appointed that those who are proclaiming the evangel should live of the evangel. But Paul did not use this right, but availed himself of the higher privilege of making the evangel absolutely free (1 Cor. 9:1-19). He pursued the same course in Corinth and doubtless wrote this letter in an interval between evangelistic labors and tent making, for he worked with Aquila and Priscilla at that trade (Ac. 18:1-3). Thus he was able to point to his own conduct as a model for the disorderly. The power of such an argument is apparent.

directing your hearts into the love of God and into the endurance of Christ!

⁶ Now we are charging you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you be putting from you every brother who is walking disorderly and not in accord with the tradition which they accepted from us. For you yourselves are aware how you must be imitating us, seeing that we are not disorderly among you, neither did we eat bread gratuitously from any one, but, with toil and labor, we worked night and day, so as not to burden any of you. Not that we have not the right, but that we may be giving you ourselves as a model, that you should be imitating us. For even when we were with you we charged you thus, that "If anyone is not willing to work, neither let him eat".
¹¹ For we are hearing that some among you are walking disorderly, not working at all, but are meddling. Now such we are charging and entreating in the Lord Jesus Christ, that, quietly working, they may eat their own bread. Now you, brethren, should not be despondent in well-doing. Now if anyone is not obeying our word through this epistle, let this be a sign to you not to commingle with him, that he may be abashed, and do not deem him as an enemy, but be admonishing him as a brother.

¹⁶ Now may the Lord of peace Himself give you peace continually by every means! The Lord be with you all!

PAUL'S PERSONAL EPISTLES

PAUL's letters to Timothy and Titus are concerned with conduct in service. Not only are they given instructions for their own guidance, but rules are laid down for the selection and service of elders, or supervisors, and servants. These two classes were officially recognized and appointed and their functions defined. Besides this there are exhortations for all the various classes in the ecclesias, old and young, the rich and the dependent widow, and slaves. Indeed, these epistles contain the constitution of the church. The second epistle to Timothy is especially applicable to the last days, showing whom and what to avoid, and with whom we may associate.

Philemon makes most gracious provision for those in bondage to believing masters.

I TIMOTHY

As a guide in understanding the great contrast between Paul's two epistles to Timothy it is important to know when the first epistle was penned. If it was written to Timothy in Ephesus while Paul went to Macedonia, we have no situation corresponding to it in the book of Acts, and it is difficult to understand why the instructions given should be needed in Ephesus where Paul had labored so long and which had the benefit of his personal superintendence for years.

If we reverse the situation and send Timothy to Macedonia to the ecclesias from which Paul had been driven before he could set them in order, and to which he dared not go on peril of his life, every precept in the epistle is full of point, and we have circumstances which exactly correspond in Acts 19²². This places the epistle at the second crisis in the apostle's ministry (Ac.19²¹ Ro.15¹⁹ 2Cor.5¹⁰). His second epistle was written after the third and final crisis. This places a great gap between them which accounts for the vast difference in the aspect of affairs.

In the first epistle we have the ecclesia described as God's house, the pillar and base of the truth (3¹⁵). In the second it has become a "great house" with utensils of various kinds, both honorable and base (2²⁰). In the first the pristine power of faith holds all together. In the second the dominant note is apostasy.

CONCLUSION 6²¹

³ Translators have experienced much difficulty with this opening sentence, because it seemed to lack the principal verb. The A. V. adds so do, the Revisers, so do I now. If, however, we take the first word, "accordingly", as an independent link with some previous consultation of Paul and Timothy, and render "entreat" by its alternative, "console", (as in Mt.2:18 1 Thes.4:1⁸ etc.), there is no need of supplying any verb. Furthermore, the clause "going into Macedonia that you may charge . . ." may be allowed its natural sense, which is, that Timothy, not Paul, is the one referred to. Then, connecting the infinitive with the verb to which it refers, we find that Paul is to remain in Ephesus. It was dangerous for Paul to go to Macedonia. Timothy entreats him to delay until he had gone first. So Paul dispatches him (Ac.19²²), following himself later (Ac.20:1). This letter combines Timothy's instructions and credentials.

⁸ The law, too, had its place and mission. It was never given to the nations (Ro.2:14). By it is the recognition of sin (Ro.3:20). It was added, long after the promise was given, to involve Israel in transgression, until the Seed came to Whom the promises were made (Gal.3:19). He redeems them from it and gives them the place of sons (Gal.4:5). Christ is the law's consummation to everyone who believes (Ro.10:4). Against the believer there is no law (Gal.5:23). We are not under law, but under grace (Ro.6:14).

¹¹ "Happy" seems to be the only word we have which enables us to distinguish between this term and "blessed".

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, according to the injunction of God our Saviour, and the Lord Jesus Christ, our Expectation, to Timothy, a genuine child in faith:

Grace, mercy, peace, from God, our Father, and Christ Jesus, our Lord.

- ³ ACCORDINGLY, I console you by remaining in Ephesus, that you, while going into Macedonia, should be charging some not to be teaching differently, nor to be heeding myths and interminable genealogies, which are affording exactions, rather than God's stewardship which is in faith.
- ⁵ Now the consummation of the charge is love out of a clean heart, and a good conscience, and unfeigned faith, from which some, swerving, were turned aside into vain prating, wanting to be teachers of the law, neither apprehending what they are saying, nor that concerning which they are insisting.
- ⁸ Now we are aware that the law is ideal if anyone is using it lawfully, being aware of this, that law is not laid down for the just, but for the lawless and insubordinate, the irreverent and sinners, the malign and profane, parricides and matricides, homicides, paramours, sodomites, kidnapers, liars, perjurers, and if there is any other thing opposing sound teaching, in accord with the evangel of the glory of the happy God, with which I was entrusted.
- ¹² I am grateful to Him Who invigorates me, Christ Jesus, our Lord, seeing that He deems me faithful, assigning me a dispensation, who formerly was a cal-

13 INTO THRU-SERVICE THE BEFORE-MORE

¹⁴ Paul's case is a pattern of God's present ways in grace. Instead of reforming and repenting and seeking to gain God's favor, he was madly endeavoring to do all in his power against Christ and His people (Ac.9¹⁻²). He was the foremost sinner of his day, and deserved the direst doom. Instead, he receives the greatest grace. Once outside the land of Israel, where God's grace was unrestrained by the law and His dealings with the covenant people, God calls him and transforms him into His most brilliant exponent of grace. Corresponding to the gracious character of his call, he is assigned to the dispensation of God's grace among the nations, a ministry distinct and different from that of any of the twelve apostles. They had mercy for the nations as a result of Israel's blessing; he dispensed grace in spite of, and resulting from, Israel's failure.

⁴ God's will for all mankind will not be fulfilled until the consummation (1 Cor.15²⁴). Only those who believe receive eonian salvation now. Those who acknowledge that God is greater than man, and that His will is more powerful than man's will, believe and exult in the final salvation of all mankind.

umniator and a persecutor and an outrager: but I was shown mercy, seeing that I did it ignorantly, in ¹⁴unbelief. Yet the grace of our Lord overwhelms, with faith and ¹⁵love in Christ Jesus. Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all welcome, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, foremost ¹⁶of whom am I. But because of this was I shown mercy, that in me, the foremost, Jesus Christ should be displaying all patience, for a pattern of those who are about to be believing on Him for eonian life.

¹⁷ Now to the King of the eons. the incorruptible, invisible, only wise God, be honor and glory for the eons of the eons! Amen!

¹⁸ This charge I am committing to you, child Timothy, according to the preceding prophecies about you, that in them you may be warring the ideal warfare, ¹⁹having faith and a good conscience, which some thrusting away, have made shipwreck as concerns the faith; of whom are Hymeneus and Alexander, whom I give up to Satan, that they may be trained not to blasphemous.

2 I am entreating, then, first of all, that petitions, prayers, pleadings, thanksgiving be made for all ²mankind, for kings and all those in a superior station, that we may be leading a mild and quiet life ³in all devoutness and gravity, for this is ideal and welcome before ⁴God our Saviour, Who wills all mankind to be saved and to come into a realization of the truth.

⁵ This passage is primarily intended to break down the bounds in which salvation had hitherto been confined. The testimony of past eras is no basis on which to build in this era. The testimony to the nations, committed to the apostle Paul (which he deems it necessary to solemnly affirm) is to the effect that Christ was not only the Son of David, to confirm the kingdom to Israel, or the Son of Abraham, to bring blessing to the faithful, but He is Adam's greater Son, a Man, and as such, is the Mediator for the whole human race. Nor is Israel's God limited to them: for there is only one God for all mankind. The Man Christ Jesus is giving Himself as a Ransom for all. Only a few, comparatively, are vitally affected by this fact at present, but, in due time, the offense of Adam will be much more than offset by the just award of the Man, Christ Jesus (Ro.5¹⁸). Paul was assigned this testimony for the present era. No other apostle presents it, for it is foreign to their ministry. Christ gave His soul a ransom for many (Mt.20²⁸), but gives Himself a ransom for all. Redemption is for the saints, during the eons. Ransom is for all when the eons end.

¹⁴ The part played by Adam in the temptation receives much light from this passage. While Eve was utterly deluded, Adam was not, and probably partook so as to involve himself in the same plight as Eve. In this light, his defense, "the woman that thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat" (Gen.3¹²) has more of truth than is usually conceded. Perhaps it is especially in this sense—as deliberately involving himself in Eve's transgression—that we are to consider him as a type of Christ.

⁵ For there is one God, and one Mediator of God and mankind, a ⁶ Man, Christ Jesus, the One giving Himself a correspondent Ransom for all (the testimony in its own ⁷ eras), for which I was appointed a herald and an apostle (I am telling the truth, I am not lying), a teacher of the nations in knowledge and truth.

⁸ I am intending, then, that men pray in every place, lifting up benignant hands, apart from anger and ⁹ reasonings. Similarly, the women also are to be adorning themselves in decorous raiment, with modesty and sanity, not with braids and gold, or pearls or costly vesture. ¹⁰ but (what is becoming to women professing a reverence for God) ¹¹ with good works. Let a woman be learning in quietness with all ¹² subjection. Now I am not permitting a woman to be teaching, neither to be domineering over a ¹³ man, but to be quiet (for Adam was first molded, thereafter Eve, ¹⁴ and Adam was not seduced, but the woman, being deluded, has come ¹⁵ to be in the transgression). Yet she shall be saved through the bearing of children, should they be remaining in faith and love and holiness with sanity.

¹ Each ecclesia in Paul's day seems to have had two distinct classes of officers, if we may so term them. There were the supervisors (sometimes called overseers or bishops), and the servants (or deacons). The supervisors seem to have had a general oversight of the ecclesia and its members, while the servants took a subordinate place, rendering such service as the ecclesia stood in need of. The qualifications for these positions are here given. Young and untested men were not welcome to these responsibilities. Indeed, it seems taken for granted that the supervisor is an elder (Compare Tit.1⁵ and 1⁷). Both supervisors and servants must show their fitness by controlling their own households.

¹⁵ In this epistle the ecclesia is the public exponent of the truth. It is called "God's house." Like a pillar in the temple it upheld and manifested the truth of God. In Paul's second letter to Timothy, written after the apostasy had set in, he calls the ecclesia a "great house" in which are utensils both honorable and otherwise. Such is the case today. The church is no longer "the pillar and base of the truth."

¹⁶ Not only is the manuscript evidence against the reading "God manifest in flesh", but other considerations force us to the same conclusion. In the typical teaching of the tabernacle the curtain represented His flesh (Heb. 10²⁰). Now the veil did not reveal, but rather hid the Divine presence. It could not be said to manifest it. The phrase "justified in spirit" is also inept when applied to Christ. The proclamation among the nations is out of place, as no such ministry was attempted until long after He had been "taken up in glory."

The whole passage is concerned with conduct. The secret of devout conduct is traced in its various manifestations in those who are its subjects. It should be manifested in flesh by the ideal acts which it produces, it enjoys justification in spirit, is the subject of angelic inspection (Eph. 3¹⁰), is proclaimed among the nations, and will be removed from the world before the Lord appears in judgment.

aware how to preside over his own household, how will he care for the ecclesia of God?—no novice, lest, being conceited, he should be falling into the judgment of the Slanderer.

⁷ Yet he must have an ideal testimony also from those outside, that he should not be falling into the reproach and trap of the Slanderer.

¹⁴ These things I am writing to you, expecting to come to you speedily, ¹⁵ yet, should I be tardy, that you may be perceiving how one must conduct one's self in God's house, which is the ecclesia of the living God, the pillar and base of the ¹⁶ truth. And avowedly great is the secret of devoutness, which was manifested in flesh, justified in spirit, viewed by messengers, proclaimed among the nations, believed in the world, taken up in glory.

⁴ Now the spirit is saying explicitly, that in subsequent eras some will be withdrawing from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits and the teaching of demons,

1 The signs of the last days are all present with us now. The teaching of deceiving spirits and demons has become one of the great and popular cults of the day. Their deception seems chiefly to take the form of pretended communication with the dead, whom they personate. Their teaching, so far, has been fragmentary and contradictory, but an effort is being made to collect and publish their vague presentations. The following is a condensed epitome of their creed:

1. The Fatherhood of God.
2. The Brotherhood of Man.
3. Continuous Conscious Existence.
4. The Communion of Spirits.
5. Personal Responsibility.
6. Compensation and Retribution in the Hereafter.
7. Endless Progression.

That most of these are held for truth in Christendom proves this passage to be true. We should thoroughly purge ourselves of these doctrines of demons.

3 The prohibition of marriage, for a limited class, has long defied this scripture, but now the sentiment against it is growing in many quarters which hitherto have not opposed it. Abstinence from certain foods, especially meat or flesh food, has become a recognized feature of some creeds.

7 Physical gymnastics has largely replaced spiritual exercise in many religious institutions.

9 There are three "faithful sayings" in this epistle (1:53:49). These should be especially heeded and enforced. There is a logical relation between this one and the first. If Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and has saved the foremost, it follows that, since all men are sinners, He is the Saviour of all mankind. At present this takes effect only in those who believe: the rest are not saved until the consummation. Worthy of all welcome as this faithful saying is, it led Paul into reproach. Nevertheless, he charged Timothy: These things be charging and teaching.

15 How expressive is the phrase "be in them"! Such meditation makes these things a part of our very being and so molds our motives that our progress will appear in all our actions.

2 in the hypocrisy of false expressions, their own conscience having
3 been cauterized, forbidding to marry, abstaining from foods, which God creates to be partaken of with thanksgiving by those who be-
4 lieve and realize the truth, seeing that every creature of God is ideal and nothing is to be cast away, being taken with thanksgiving, for it is hallowed through the word of 6 God and pleading. By suggesting these things to the brethren, you will be an ideal servant of Christ Jesus, fostering with the words of faith and the ideal teaching which you have fully followed.
7 Yet be refusing profane and old womanish myths, but be exercising
8 yourself in devoutness, for bodily exercise is beneficial for a few things, but devoutness is beneficial for all, having promise for the life which now is, and that which is future.

9 Faithful is the saying and
10 worthy of all welcome (for for this are we toiling and being reproached), that we rely on the living God, Who is the Saviour of all mankind, especially of those 11 who believe. These things be
12 charging and teaching. Let no one be despising your youth, but become a model of those who are believing, in word, in behavior,
13 in love, in faith, in purity. Till I come, give heed to reading, to entreaty, to teaching. Neglect not the gracious gift which is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the imposition of the hands of the eldership. Be meditating on these things: be in them: that your progress may be 16 apparent to all. Be attending to

 THAT OF-YOU THE progress apparent

¹ Much love and consideration should characterize the acts of one who, like Timothy, has temporary oversight of an ecclesia. This applies especially to his dealings with the older men, some of whom, when he is absent, supervise its affairs. Widows presented a special problem, and they were the wards of the ecclesia under some circumstances. Young widows, or those having a claim on relatives, were not
 • to become dependent on the ecclesia. The younger ones are charged to marry; those having children are expected to be supported by them.

³⁻¹⁶ It is supposed that a list of church widows was kept, which probably included all widows of sixty years and over, whether self-supporting or not. Those who were entered on this list undertook certain duties and promised to give themselves to the work. The younger widows were not to be put on this list lest they should tire of their promise and break faith (¹³). They might grow restive, and so fall into judgment. As the whole passage refers to widows, this is supplied in verse fourteen, after "younger".

⁵ The widows seem to have been a special charge even in the pentecostal era (Ac.6¹).

¹⁷ The highest place in an ecclesia seems to be accorded to an elder who makes it his task to teach. Indeed, the passages quoted seem to suggest that such a one should receive support. In the East grain was threshed by driving cows over it to separate the grain from the stalk. It was a law (Deut.25⁴) that such animals should not be muzzled, but allowed to eat as much as they needed. The apostle claims this privilege for all who minister the word (1 Cor.9⁹). The Lord has prescribed that those who proclaim the evangel should live of the evangel (1 Cor.9¹⁴). The Lord Himself said to the seventy He sent forth, "The worker is worthy of his wages." (Lu.10⁷).

yourself and to the teaching. Be persisting in them, for doing this will save both yourself and those who are hearing you.

⁵ You should not be upbraiding an elder but be entreating him as a father, the younger men as brethren, the elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, in all
² purity. Be honoring widows who
³ are really widows. Now if any widow has children or descendants, let them learn to be devoted to their own household first and reciprocate by paying their progenitors, for this is welcome before God.
⁴ Now one really a widow, and alone, relies on God and is continuing in petitions and prayers
⁵ night and day. Yet she who is ⁶ living as a prodigal is dead. And these things be charging, that they ⁷ may be irreprehensible. Now if anyone is not providing for his own, and especially his family, he has disowned the faith, and is ⁸ worse than an unbeliever. Let no widow be listed of less than sixty years, having been the wife of one
⁹ man, having the testimony of ideal acts: if she nourishes offspring, if she is hospitable, if she washes the saints' feet, if she relieves the afflicted, if she follows up every
¹⁰ good work. Yet be refusing younger widows, for whenever they should be restive against Christ.
¹¹ They are wanting to marry, having judgment, seeing that they repudiate their first faith. Yet they are learning at the same time to be idle also, wandering about the homes. Yet not only are they idle, but gossips also, and meddlers, speaking what they must not. I am
¹² intending, then, for younger

14 THE NO BINDING I-AM-intending

¹⁹ Unless sufficient evidence to establish his guilt is produced, no charge against an elder is to be entertained. A single witness may be mistaken, or biased: he must be corroborated by one or more others. When, however, an elder's guilt is clearly established, his sin is to be made public. Such a punishment will deter others from similar offenses.

²¹ Prejudice and partiality should have no place in the judicial acts of an ecclesia. Natural inclination should be laid aside and all done in view of the Invisible.

²² The imposition of hands for the impartation of some grace (2 Tim.1⁹) was to be done deliberately, without haste, so that only those who would honor the gift might receive it.

Paul's ministry was divided into four periods separated by three crises. The first crisis occurred in Antioch when he was severed from the rest (Ac.13²). The second crisis occurred while Paul is at Ephesus, and is brought before us in the words "As these things were fulfilled" (Ac.19²¹). The third was at Rome, when the Jews finally refused the kingdom (Ac.28 25-28). We have found that this letter was written at the second, central crisis in his career. Then it was that he no longer knew anyone according to the flesh. Except in the lingering testimony to the kingdom, all physical blessing vanishes. Otherwise he surely would have cured Timothy and Epaphroditus (Phil.2²⁸). When once the progress of Paul's ministries is recognized, from glory to glory (2Co.3¹⁸), away from the earthly and physical to the celestial and spiritual, healing and other gifts will be seen to be among those things which belong to immaturity.

[widows] to be marrying, bearing children, managing the household, giving an opposer not the least incentive to revile: for some al-
¹⁵ ready turn aside after Satan. If
¹⁶ anyone who is believing has widows let him be relieving them and let not the ecclesia be burdened, that it should be relieving those who are really widows.

¹⁷ Let elders who have presided ideally be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who are toiling in word and teaching, for the ¹⁸ scripture is saying: "You shall not be muzzling the threshing ox" and "The worker is worthy of his ¹⁹ wages". Be assenting to no accusation against an elder outside and except with two or three ²⁰ witnesses. Those who are sinning be exposing before all, that the ²¹ rest also may have fear. I am conjuring, before God and Christ Jesus and the chosen messengers, that you should guard these things, apart from prejudice, doing ²² nothing from bias. Impose hands hastily on no one, neither be participating in the sins of others. Be keeping yourself pure.
²³ By no means still be drinking water, but be using a sip of wine for your stomach and your frequent ²⁴ infirmities. Some persons' sins are taken for granted, preceding them into judgment, yet some ²⁵ are following up also. Similarly the ideal acts also are taken for granted, and those which are otherwise cannot be hid.

6 Let as many as are slaves under the yoke deem their own owners worthy of all honor, lest the name of God and the teaching may be ² blasphemed. Yet let those having

⁸ Material gain, beyond what is needed for sustenance and shelter, is not true capital. It cannot give contentment in the present, and is a total loss in the future. True capital is contentment, which gives happiness now, and devoutness, which insures a reward in the life to come. These, indeed, are great capital—far greater than the billions which men amass, but which they cannot use, and which they are sure to lose. The really rich man is he who, having provided for shelter from the elements, a house and clothing and sustenance in the form of food and drink, banks the balance in such a way that it will follow him into the future.

¹³ To make alive or vivify does not refer to the giving of life in creation, but is always used of the impartation of immortality and incorruption when used of mankind (Ro.4¹⁷ 1 Co.15³⁰).

believing owners not be despising them, seeing that they are brethren, but rather let them slave for them, seeing that they are believing and beloved, being supported by the benefaction.

These things teach and entreat.

³ If anyone is teaching differently and is not approaching with sound words, even those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the teaching in accord with devoutness, he is conceited, versed in nothing, but morbid concerning questionings and controversies, out of which is coming envy, strife, calumnies, wicked suspicions, altercations of men of a decadent mind and deprived of the truth, who infer that devoutness is capital. Now devoutness with contentment is great capital; ⁶ for it is evident that we carry nothing into the world, neither can we carry anything out. Now, having sustenance and shelter, with these ⁹ we shall be sufficed. Now those intending to be rich are falling into a trial and a trap and many foolish and harmful desires, which are submerging men in extermination and destruction. For fondness for money is a root of all that is evil, which some, craving, were led astray from the faith and probe themselves on all sides with much pain.

¹¹ Now you, O man of God, be fleeing from these things: yet be pursuing righteousness, devoutness, faith, love, endurance, suffering with meekness. Be contending the ideal contest of the

			TENDING THR IDEAL CONTEST OF-THR

It is distinguished from resurrection (Jn.5²¹) in that it refers to spiritual life (Ro.8¹¹ 2Co.3⁰). Resurrection refers primarily to the body, rousing to the soul, and vivification to the spirit. Elsewhere we are told that all mankind will be vivified (1Co.15²²). Here the whole universe is included in God's mighty purpose to defeat death.

¹⁶ Christ Jesus is the only One Who has been vivified. No one else has life beyond the reach of death. Immortality is His exclusive possession. The glory of deathlessness shines forth in Him with an intensity beyond the possibility of human perception. The apostle himself came as near to this as anyone, but the brilliance blinded him. He saw Him (1Co.9¹), but He appeared as a Light, which his eyes could not bear. At His advent, they shall be like Him, since they shall view Him as He is (1 Jn.3²).

¹⁷ Those who are rich, in contrast to those already considered, who are fond of money with the intention of becoming wealthy, are exhorted not to place their dependence on their possessions, which may desert them at any moment, but to rely on God, Who alone can make their enjoyment possible. Their most profitable course lies in the employment of their wealth for the benefit of others. This brings them present happiness (for it is blessed to give), and, at the same time deposits their wealth in the divine treasury where it will appear to their account in that day. In this way they will assure for themselves real life, both now and for the eons.

²⁰ All knowledge or "science" which is not in line with God's revelation has been found false in the past and will be so in the future. There is no conflict between true science and the Scriptures.

faith. Get hold of eonian life, for which you were called, and you avow an ideal avowal before many witnesses.

¹³ I am charging you before God, Who is vivifying all, and Jesus Christ, Who witnesses an ideal
¹⁴ avowal before Pontius Pilate, that you keep this precept unspotted, irreprehensible, unto the advent of our Lord, Christ Jesus, which will be showing, to its own eras, the happy and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords, ¹⁶ Who alone has immortality, making His home in light inaccessible, Whom not one of mankind perceived or can be perceiving, to Whom be honor and might eonian! Amen!

¹⁷ Be charging those who are rich in the current eon not to be haughty, nor to rely on the dubiousness of riches, but on God. Who is tendering us all things
¹⁸ richly for our enjoyment; to be doing good acts, to be rich in ideal acts, to be liberal contributors,
¹⁹ treasuring up for themselves an ideal foundation for the future, that they may get hold of real life.
²⁰ O Timothy! Guard that which is committed to you! Turn aside from the profane prattlings and antipathies of falsely named
²¹ "knowledge", which some are professing. They swerve from the faith.

II TIMOTHY

PAUL's second epistle to Timothy is, perhaps, the last letter from his pen. In all his other epistles he looks forward to further service. Now he tells Timothy that he had finished his career (4⁷). The period of his dissolution was imminent (4⁶). The whole epistle takes character from this fact.

The first epistle was probably written at that great crisis in the apostle's ministry when he first formed his purpose to go to Rome (Ac.19²¹). Its subject is service. Its object was the organization of the ecclesias to uphold God's truth. The subject of the second epistle is suffering (2³). The ecclesias themselves have become filled with evil. Separation from the evil becomes the duty of all who wish to please God.

This letter should be especially prized by the Lord's slaves in these last days, for the apostasy which began even in Paul's time has become worse with each succeeding century. The practical question, How shall we serve in the midst of present day departure? is fully answered in this, Paul's latest letter.

The remedy for the present distress is clearly shown in the literary framework. The epistle proper begins with an exhortation to have the pattern of sound words (1¹³). It closes with the charge to proclaim the word (4²). Its central subject contains the command to "correctly partition" the word of truth (2¹⁵). The Sacred Scriptures are the one great need for these degenerate days (3¹⁸). It is the aim of the CONCORDANT VERSION to furnish a pattern of sound words, without which the truth has eluded us. It is the aim of the notes to "correctly partition" the truth, assigning each truth its proper place out of which it becomes dangerous error.

2 Timothy had been with the apostle in Rome, whence he was probably sent to Philippi (Phil.2:19). The most loving and intimate relations existed between them, and Paul continually refers to him as his own child in the faith. His father was a Greek, but his mother was a Jewess (Ac.16:1). His grandmother Lois and his mother were believers and he seems to have inherited their faith. He was constantly associated with the apostle in his labors, often being sent on some mission which Paul himself could not fulfill. His name is joined with Paul's in the salutation of six of his epistles (2Cor.1:1, Phil.1:1, Col.1:1, 1Thess.1:1, 2Thess.1:1, Philemon:1). He seems to have suffered imprisonment for a time but was set at liberty (Heb.13:23). Paul gives him the highest possible praise, so that he himself is given as an example of true service and the letters sent to him are most important to all who wish to engage in a like service.

6 The apostle's prolonged imprisonment, and the growing evils which were creeping into the ecclesias, seem to have had the effect of dampening and discouraging Timothy. To counteract this tendency the apostle reminds him that God's calling is not dependent on men's acts but on His own purpose and grace, and this cannot be disturbed or hindered by the flood of evil, for it was given us in Christ Jesus before eonian times. The eons are the times of evil. Before the times of the eons there was no evil, neither will there be any after they have run their course. As a result, God's purpose is before and above evil, and we should not be unduly moved by its presence. Death is sin's ultimate. The crucifixion of Christ is the furthest limit to which sin can go. The vivification of Christ is the first step in the abolition of death. He can die no more. At His coming advent the saints will triumph over death and receive eonian life. Its final abolition, however, is at the end of the eons, called the consummation.

10 The abolition of death is put in the indefinite or aorist tense, as He has done it in His own case and will do it for all in the future.

PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, in accord with the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus, to Timothy, a child beloved:

Grace, mercy, peace, from God, the Father, and Christ Jesus, our Lord.

3 GRATEFUL am I to God, to Whom I am offering divine service from my ancestors with a clear conscience, as I have an unintermittent remembrance of you in my petitions, night and day, longing to see you, remembering your tears, that I may be filled with joy, getting a reminder of the unfeigned faith which is in you, which first makes its home in your grandmother Lois, and in your mother Eunice, and I am persuaded that it is in you also.

6 For which cause I am reminding you to be rekindling the gracious gift of God which is in you through the imposition of my hands, for God gives us, not a spirit of timidity, but of power and of love and of sanity. Then you should not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, or of me, His prisoner, but suffer evil with me in the evangel in accord with the power of God, Who saves us and calls us with a holy calling, not in accord with our acts, but in accord with His own purpose and the grace which is given to us in Christ Jesus before eonian times, yet now is manifested through the advent of our Saviour, Christ Jesus, Who, indeed, abolishes death, yet illuminates life and incorruption through the evangel of which I was appointed a herald and an apostle and a teacher of the nations. ¹² The transcendent truths committed to the apostle Paul always meet with opposition and bring suffering on their exponents. But God Himself guards them and revives them from time to time even though the vast majority of His saints hardly know of their existence.

³ To inflict evil is the object of the world's soldiers. All their training is to this end. To suffer evil is the duty of the ideal soldier in the ranks of faith.

⁵ A most important principle, almost unheeded. Effort and endeavor is of no avail in God's service unless it be in strict conformity to the rules. Hence it is of prime importance to acquaint ourselves first of all with God's instructions and adhere to them closely. Otherwise the most pretentious effort, which seems to meet with most success, may be utterly rejected at the judge's stand. Do not attempt to work for God until you know the will of God.

am suffering these things also, but I am not ashamed, for I am aware Whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that He is able to guard what is committed to me, for that day.

¹³ Have a pattern of sound words, which you hear from me, in faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.

¹⁴ Guard that ideal thing committed to you, through the holy spirit which is making its home in us.

¹⁵ Of this you are aware, that all those in the [province of] Asia turned from me, of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

¹⁶ May the Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, seeing that he often refreshes me and ¹⁷ was not ashamed of my chain, but coming to be in Rome, he seeks ¹⁸ me diligently and found me. May the Lord grant to him to be finding mercy from the Lord in that day! And how much he serves in Ephesus you know quite well.

2 You, then, child of mine, be invigorated by the grace which is in Christ Jesus. And what things you hear from me through many witnesses, these commit to faithful men, who shall be competent to teach others also.

³ Suffer evil with me as an ideal
⁴ soldier of Christ Jesus. Now no one who is warring is involved in the business of a livelihood, that he should be pleasing the One enlisting him. Now if anyone should be competing also, he is not given a wreath if he should not be competing lawfully. The farmer who is toiling must be first to partake of the fruits. Apprehend what I say, for the Lord will be giving you understanding in it all.

⁸ Remember, Jesus Christ, Who has been roused from among the dead,

 ING-been-ROUSED OUT OF-DEAD OUT

⁸ The literal resurrection of Christ as the Seed of David seems to be the apostle's answer to the theory of a spiritual resurrection. The Seed of David can be nothing less than a literal Man.

¹⁰ "The salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eonian glory" is a most apt description of the grace shown to us.

¹¹ This faithful saying shows that our life and all that comes to us by His grace is immutable—it depends on His faithfulness. Service, however, has two sides, reward and loss. Endurance will be recognized by a place of authority in His celestial realm. If we disown Him we cannot expect Him to give us a public place of power in the future. This does not infringe in the least degree on our salvation or life or anything which is ours by His grace.

¹⁵ Translators have found great difficulty in rendering the phrase "correctly partitioning". Desiring to improve on the common rendering "rightly dividing", the Revisers have translated it very loosely "handling aright". This is very vague. The meaning is clear from the illustration which follows. Hymeneus and Philetus did not deny the resurrection, like the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:12), but they misplaced it. They made it past, when it was future. So all truth has its appropriate place, out of which truth itself becomes the most insidious error, because it seems to have the support of scripture. We must not transfer the truth of one eon into another, nor of one economy into another. We should leave truth concerning Israel to them and that for us should not be mixed with it. In no other way can we really have the truth.

¹⁹ God's solid foundation still stands. The "pillar of the truth" (1 Tim. 3:15) has fallen under the flood of false teaching, which is found in the Bible, but through misplacement has become distorted into error. But the foundation is fixed. The Lord Himself is never at a loss to recognize His own. We, on our part, may demand that those who take His name upon them should act accordingly.

is of the seed of David, according
⁹ to my evangel, in which I am suffering evil unto bonds as a malefactor—but the word of God
¹⁰ has not been bound. Therefore I am enduring all because of those who are chosen, that they also may happen upon the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eonian glory.

¹¹ Faithful is the saying: "For if we died together, we shall be living
¹² together also; if we are enduring, we shall be reigning together also; if we are disowning, He also will ¹³ be disowning us; if we are unfaithful, He is remaining faithful—He cannot disown Himself."

¹⁴ Remind them of these things, conjuring them before the Lord not to engage in controversy for nothing useful, to the upsetting of those who are hearing.

¹⁵ Endeavor to present yourself to God, qualified, an unashamed worker, correctly partitioning the ¹⁶ word of truth. Yet stand aloof from profane prattlings, for they will be progressing to more irreverence, and their word will spread as gangrene, of whom are ¹⁷ Hymeneus and Philetus, who swerve from the truth, saying that the resurrection has already occurred, and are subverting the faith of some.

¹⁹ Howbeit, God's solid foundation stands, having this seal: "The Lord knew those who are His" and "Let everyone naming the name of the Lord withdraw from injustice."

²⁰ Now in a great house there are not only gold and silver utensils, but wooden and earthenware also, some indeed for honor, yet some ²¹ for dishonor. If, then, anyone should be purging himself from

²² On the positive side, we are to confine our fellowship to those who call upon the Lord out of a clean heart. This is the true basis of fellowship in the midst of the failure in which we find ourselves. It is not doctrine, however desirable it is that we should agree. It is not church government. It is not the knowledge of the truth, but the motive which underlies it. We should not exclude from our fellowship anyone who calls on the Lord out of a clean heart, however much his person or his doctrine may repel us. Every creed, man-made, is crude and full of error. No one should subscribe to aught but the Word of God.

²⁴ The Lord's slave must not fight, for his object is not destruction, but salvation. He does not aim to wound or disable, but to capture his antagonists alive and subject them to God's will.

¹ We, who are living in these last days, will bear witness to the truth of the Scriptures, for no one today could give a more accurate indictment of the times than is given in this passage. The whole list from selfishness to self-gratification is characteristic, yet nothing more so than the form of devoutness which is devoid of its vital power. We are not asked to correct this condition, but to shun those who are involved in it.

⁶ The diminutive, "little women", expresses contempt.

these, he will be a utensil for honor, hallowed, and useful to the Owner, ready for every good act.

²² Now youthful desires flee: yet pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace, with all who are invoking the Lord out of a clean heart.

²³ Now stupid and crude questionings refuse, being aware that they are generating fightings. Now the Lord's slave must not be fighting, but be gentle to all, apt

²⁵ to teach, bearing with evil, in meekness training those who are antagonizing, if perchance in time God may give them repentance to come into a realization of the truth.

²⁶ and they should be sobering up out of the Slanderer's trap, having been caught alive by him for that one's will.

3 Now know this, that in the last days perilous periods will be present, for men will be selfish, fond

² of money, ostentatious, proud, calumniators, stubborn to parents,

³ ungrateful, malign, without natural affection, implacable, slanderers, uncontrollable, fierce, averse

⁴ to the good, traitors, rash, conceited, fond of their own gratification

⁵ rather than fond of God, having a form of devotion, yet denying its

⁶ power. These, also, shun. For of these are they who are slipping into homes and are leading into captivity little women, heaped with sins, being led by various lusts and gratifications, always learning and yet

¹² This is a crucial test of our true state. Are we suffering persecution? If not, are we in earnest in our will to live devoutly in Christ Jesus? All who tread this path will be persecuted. Paul himself delighted in persecutions for Christ's sake (2Cor.12¹⁰). His bold stand for the evangel invited them at every turn. At Lystra they stoned him and left him for dead (Ac. 14¹⁹). Nor are we to look for any improvement in the course of time, for wicked men and swindlers will wax worse and worse, not only deceiving others but being themselves deceived.

¹⁴ Again and again the apostle returns to the Sacred Scriptures as the one sufficient recourse. What Timothy had heard from Paul has since been incorporated in them, being recorded in the epistles he has penned, both in his personal letters and in his epistles to the seven ecclesias.

¹⁶ The inspired Scriptures are the sole and sufficient equipment for the man of God in these trying times. All else has failed and fallen into ruin. It has become an imperative and absolute necessity that the sacred writings should be recovered in something like their pristine purity, for they alone are the last resort of the saints. Their inspiration is confined to the original text. Whatever promises the closest contact with the inspired records, and the safest index of their contents is the best equipment possible for the man of God. The accompanying version, with its consistent sublinear and its concordance, will, we trust, be used by God to meet the one prime necessity of the times.

³ Proclaim the word! This is the greatest need in the last days. There is no lack of preaching or of proclaiming, but the word of God has entirely too little place in them. The next need is to stand by it, whether it seems opportune or not.

method by which Jannes and Jambres withstand Moses, thus these also are withstanding the truth, men of a depraved mind, disqualified for the faith. But they shall be progressing no more, for their folly shall be obvious to all, even as theirs became.

¹⁰ Now you fully follow my teaching, motive, purpose, faith, ¹¹ patience, love, endurance, persecutions, sufferings, such as occurred to me in Antioch, in Iconium, in Lystra: which persecutions I undergo, and out of them

¹² all the Lord rescues me. And all also who want to live devoutly in Christ Jesus shall be persecuted.

¹³ Yet wicked men and swindlers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived.

¹⁴ Now you be remaining in what you learned and were entrusted with, being aware from whom you ¹⁵ learned it and that from a babe you are acquainted with the sacred scriptures which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus.

¹⁶ All scripture is inspired by God, and is beneficial for teaching, for exposure, for correction, for discipline in righteousness, that the man of God may be equipped, fitted out for every good act.

⁶ The pathos of this passage appears when we recall the many plans of the apostle which it repeals. He intended to go into Spain (Ro.15²⁴), he wished to winter in Nicopolis (Titus 3¹²) and he hoped to be granted to the Colossians (Philemon ²²). There is no record that any of these wishes were fulfilled. Now he faces death with an exultant cry of triumph. His contest is over, his career is ended, the faith is kept, the reward remains. Hitherto the advent filled his heart and his horizon. Now that he realizes the imminence of his dissolution, he passes on that blessed expectation. The wreath of righteousness is promised to all who love His advent. This alone should be a sufficient incentive for us not only to love but to proclaim that blessed expectation. There is no evidence in the scriptures that Paul was released and later imprisoned a second time. Even if it was a fact, the truth demands the entire removal of everything physical from the scene.

⁹ "Loving the present eon" is in direct contrast to loving His advent. If the present evil eon appeals to us, and engages our affections, we will have no desire for the glorious grace which His advent will reveal.

¹⁶ There was a custom in Rome that, when a man was tried for any crime, his friends attended him in court to countenance and assist him. Roman law recognized the legality of such assistance and even the emperors did not shun their friends under such circumstances. The early believers were derided because they availed themselves of this privilege. How majestic stands the solitary figure of the apostle! His friends in Asia had abandoned him (1¹⁵). Demas abandoned him (4¹⁰). And now all abandoned, expose, rebuke, entreat, with all patience and teaching.

⁸ For the era will be when they will not tolerate sound teaching, but, their hearing being tickled, they will heap up for themselves teachers in accord with their own desires, and, indeed, they will be turning their hearing away from the truth and will be turned aside to myths.

⁵ Yet you be sober in all things, suffer evil as an ideal soldier of Christ Jesus, do the work of an evangelist, fully discharge your service. For I am already a libation, and the period of my dissolution is imminent. I have contended the ideal contest, I have finished my career, I have kept the faith. Furthermore, there is reserved for me the wreath of righteousness, which the Lord, the just Judge, will be paying to me in that day; yet not to me only, but also to all who have loved His advent.

⁹ Endeavor to come to me quickly.
¹⁰ For Demas, loving the current eon, abandoned me, and is gone to Thessalonica, Crescens to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia. Only Luke is with me. Taking Mark, lead him back with you, for he is useful to me for service. Now Tychicus I dispatch to Ephesus. When you come, bring the valise which I left in Troas with Carpus, and the scrolls, especially the vellums.

doned him to his fate. He stands before his accusers unfriended and alone, except for his faithful Lord. Nor did this embitter him. Like his Lord, he prays, "May it not be counted against them!" This is our last glimpse of the apostle of the nations. To the last he stands as God's herald, welcoming death itself if it only gives him an opportunity to proclaim the evangel to all the nations.

¹⁸ Paul realizes, at length, that his work on earth is finished and he now looks forward to the celestial kingdom, of which he, and all who accepted his message, were participants.

²⁰ Trophimus is a picture of the place the nations occupied before Paul's final ministry. His name means "nourished". The nations were nourished at Israel's board. As their apostasy increased the nations received less and less spiritual food from them. If it had not been for Paul's last letters from Rome they, too, like Trophimus, would have pined away. His case is significant, too, of the fact that all blessing is now spiritual, else Paul could easily have healed him. But neither he nor Timothy nor Paul himself is healed. God's grace becomes their sufficiency, in the midst of physical weakness.

¹⁵ his acts—whom you also guard against, for very much has he withstood words of ours. At my first defense no one came along with me, but all abandoned me. May it not be counted against them!

¹⁷ Yet the Lord stood beside me, and He invigorates me, that through me the proclamation may be fully discharged, and all the nations should hear, and I am rescued out

¹⁸ of the mouth of the lion. The Lord will be rescuing me from every wicked work and will be saving me for His celestial kingdom: to Whom be glory for the cons of the cons. Amen!

TITUS

THE only recorded visit of the apostle Paul to Crete was when his ship was detained there some time on his journey to Rome (Ac.27¹⁻¹²). The writer of the Acts was with the apostle, and doubtless others, as Demas and Crescens, accompanied him, including, it would seem, Titus, as far as Crete. Paul's direction that he should leave the island and meet him in Nicopolis (3¹²) seems to confirm this, for, later, Paul writes to Timothy that Titus had gone to Dalmatia (2 Tim.4¹⁰). There was a Nicopolis on the Adriatic near the boundary of Macedonia and Dalmatia. Hence this letter was probably written from Rome not long after his arrival. His early intention to visit Spain (Rom.15²⁴), and his decision to winter in Nicopolis (3¹²), seems to have failed of fruition, for he is still in Rome when he informs Timothy of his imminent dissolution (2 Tim.4⁶).

The evident purport of the epistle is hortatory. It deals with the practical duties of life. No doctrine is developed. As shown by the literary framework, the chief subjects are the appointment of elders who are to serve as supervisors, and the conduct of those who are slaves. The paragraph dealing with elders is logically followed by one describing their duties and difficulties due to the insubjection of some. The section on slaves is fittingly followed by one on subjection, for even those who are not in physical bondage owe subjection to the government and to their fellow men.

The central subject sets forth the ideal character of men and women, old and young.

² Eonian life, usually called "everlasting" life, is here put, as is usual in Paul's epistles, as a future expectation. God promised it before the times of the "evers" or eons and it will last until the eons come to an end (Heb.9²⁶).

⁴ Titus is not mentioned in the narrative of the Acts, doubtless because his case and ministry were not at all in line with the subject of that treatise. Only that aspect of Paul's work is there touched upon which was in subjection to the Circumcision and connected with the proclamation of the kingdom to Israel. Titus was a Greek whom Paul refused to circumcise, so that he might be a standing reminder of the fact that circumcision was not a part of his evangel for the nations (Gal.2¹⁻⁵).

⁵ The island of Crete is now named Candia. It is the most fertile island in the Mediterranean.

¹⁰ It was very natural for the Circumcisionists to arrogate to themselves the supervision of the ecclesias to which they belonged, but they were often unfit for the office.

¹¹ In the very early days impostors set themselves to use devious means for securing their own advantage and getting dishonest gain. This is a most destructive plague in teachers, for, as soon as they make wealth their

PAUL, a slave of God, yet an apostle of Jesus Christ, in accord with the faith of God's chosen ones and a realization of the truth which accords with devoutness, in expectation of eonian life, which God, Who does not lie, promises before eonian times, yet manifests His word in its own eras by a proclamation with which I was entrusted, according to the injunction of God, our Saviour; to Titus, a genuine child according to the common faith:

Grace and peace from God, the Father, and Christ Jesus, our Saviour.

⁵ On this behalf I left you in Crete, that you should be amending what is lacking and constitute elders to suit each city, as I prescribe to you. If anyone is unimpeachable, the husband of one wife, having believing children not accused of profligacy or insubordinate—for a supervisor must be unimpeachable as a steward of God, not given to self gratification, not irritable, no toper, not quarrelsome, not avaricious; but hospitable, fond of that which is good, sane, just, benign, self-controlled; upholding the faithful word according to the teaching, that he may be able to entreat also with sound teaching and to expose those who contradict.

¹² One of them, their own prophet, said: "Cretans are ever liars, evil wild beasts, idle bellies." This object of pursuit, they necessarily endeavor to be popular and obtain the favor and support of the people. This is almost sure to be followed by corruption in teaching.

¹² It is supposed that this is a quotation from Epimenides, a poet and philosopher who lived about six hundred years before Christ. It was common to give the Cretans a bad name, for to "Cretanize" was the equivalent of lying and deception. Paul adds his confirmation in order to aid them in guarding against these grave defects in the national character.

⁹ Slaves are given the privilege of adorning the teaching, by their good behaviour.

¹¹ The saving grace of God, properly appreciated, has no equal as a means for training God's saints to live ac-testimony is true. For which cause be exposing them severely, that they may be sound in the faith, not heeding Jewish myths and precepts of men who are turning from the truth. All, indeed, is clean to the clean, yet to the defiled and unbelieving nothing is clean, but their mind as well as conscience has been defiled. They are avowing an acquaintance with God, yet by acts are denying it, being abominable and stubborn, and disqualified for every good act.

2 Now you be speaking what is becoming to sound teaching. The aged men are to be sober, grave, sane, sound in the faith, in love, in endurance; the aged women, similarly, in demeanor as becomes the sacred, not slanderers, nor enslaved by much wine, teachers of the ideal, that they may bring the young wives to a sense of their duty to be fond of their husbands, fond of their children, sane, chaste, domestic, good, subject to their own husbands, that the word of God may not be blasphemed. The younger men, similarly, be entreating to be sane, in all things tendering yourself a model of ideal acts, in teaching, uncorruptness, gravity, sound, uncensurable speech, that those of the contrary part may be abashed, having nothing bad to say concerning us.

⁹ Slaves are to be subject to their own owners, to be pleasing them well in all things, not contradicting; not emblezzling, but displaying all good fidelity, that they may ceptably in His sight even in the midst of the abounding evil of this eon. It softens the heart, and attracts the will, and provides the power for putting its precepts into practise. The law was not so. Its demands withered the arm that would fulfill it. In some measure God's grace enables us to anticipate the overwhelming bliss which will be brought to us at His glorious advent, which will mark the end of sin and suffering for His saints.

¹⁴ The ransom of Christ has a present power. Lawlessness is that basic conception of sin in which it is viewed as a departure from the normal and natural course of things. The ransom of Christ will eventually restore us into that ideal condition which conformity to the laws of the universe produces. At present this takes the form of zeal for good deeds.

³ The emphatic we, repeated in the fifth verse, suggests that the apostle is now referring to himself as one of the Circumcision—those who, indeed, ought to have kept the law and who thought that their salvation depended on their righteousness, but who needed to be regenerated and renewed by the holy spirit, as the Lord taught Nicodemus (Jn. 3⁵), according to His mercy.

⁵ The Septuagint uses this word loutron twice for a bath in the Song of Solomon (4²⁶), but renders laver by another form, loutër, in all of its occurrences. Hence it is evident that here it is not the instrument which contained the water, but the element itself which is a figure of renascence. Though literally regeneration, the word is always used in a much looser sense of any renewal, much like our word renascence.

be adorning the teaching of God, our Saviour, in all things.

- ¹¹ For the saving grace of God made its advent to all humanity,
¹² training us that, disowning irreverence and worldly desires, we should live sanely and justly and devoutly in the current eon,

- 3 Remind them to be subject to sovereignties, to authorities; to be yielding, and to be ready for every ² good work, not to be calumniating anyone, to be pacific, lenient, displaying all meekness toward all
³ mankind. For we also were once foolish, stubborn, deceived, slaves of various desires and gratifications, led on by malice and envy, detestable, hating one another.
⁴ Yet when God our Saviour's kindness and fondness for humanity
⁵ made its advent, He saves us, not for works of righteousness which we do, but according to His mercy, through the bath of renascence
⁶ and renewal of holy spirit, which He pours out on us richly through

^a It would seem that by far the largest share of the difficulties of the early ecclesias was introduced by the Circumcision—the very ones who ought to have been a help instead of a hindrance. The record of the book of Acts is full of their opposition to the evangel and they were directly responsible for Paul's imprisonment in Rome. Even those who believed were the source of continual turmoil. They could not clear themselves of the trammels of Judaism. They could not rise to the new revelation vouchsafed to Paul. With their genealogies, and circumcision, and contentions about the law, they were continually drawing the saints from the ground of grace and faith down to law and works. Finally the apostle put a stop to the discussion of these subjects.

¹⁰ Though this is the Greek hairesis, it does not refer to a heretic, but one who belongs to a sect. It is applied to the Sadducees (Ac.5¹⁷), the Pharisees (Ac.15⁵26⁵), and the Nazarenes (Ac.24⁵). These could not all be called heretics. Sectarianism is essentially preferring to associate with a class or clique. The Circumcision would readily prefer their kind.

¹² Tychicus was later sent to Ephesus (2 Tim.4¹²). As he delivered the letter to the Ephesians (Eph.6²¹), it appears that this letter to Titus was written some time before the Perfection epistles. Titus seems to have gone to Nicopolis, but Paul remained in Rome.

ing justified by that grace, we should be becoming enjoyers, in expectation, of the allotment of eonian life.

⁸ Faithful is the saying, and I am intending you to be insistent concerning these things, that those who have believed God may be concerned to preside for ideal acts. These things are ideal and beneficial for humanity. Yet stand aloof from stupid questionings and genealogies and strifes and fightings about law, for they are ⁹ without benefit and vain. A ¹⁰ sectarian man, after one and a ¹¹ second admonition, refuse, being aware that such a one has turned himself out, and is sinning, being self-condemned.

¹² Whenever I shall be sending Artemas to you, or Tychicus, endeavor to come to me in Nicopolis, for I have decided to winter there. ¹³ Forward Zenas, the lawyer, and Apollos diligently, that nothing ¹⁴ may be lacking to them. Now let those who are ours also be learning to preside for ideal acts for necessary needs, that they may not be unfruitful.

¹⁵ All those with me are greeting you. Greet our friends in faith. Grace be with you all. Amen!

Conclusion 23.25

³ There is a pleasing play upon the name "Onesimus", which means profitable. Paul uses it as a verb in verse twenty. He may be regarded as a picture of those of the nations who had strayed away from God, who are the fruit of Paul's bonds as Onesimus was, and who now return to God to become His "profitable" slaves. He is also a marvelous example of God's method of transforming evil into good. No one would condone the act of Onesimus in running away from his master, yet God made it a blessing not only to Onesimus, but to his master and to Paul. All were enriched by it. In this way He is able to make all evil subserve His purpose. It is the background of His grace and will become the means of drawing His creatures infinitely closer to Himself and His affections than would be possible if sin had never invaded the universe.

⁴ The short period of Onesimus' absence was not worth reckoning compared with the fact that, as a brother in Christ, Philemon would have him for all the eons. So the short term of sin (which seems to us so long) is not worth reckoning compared with the eonian and everlasting tenure of the bliss which follows it.

PAUL, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and brother Timothy, to Philemon, the beloved, and our fellow worker, and to Apphia, our sister, and to Archippus, our fellow soldier, and to the ecclesia at your house:

⁵ Grace to you and peace, from God, our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

⁶ I AM THANKING my God always, making mention of you in my prayers, hearing of your love and the faith which you have toward the Lord Jesus and for all the saints, so that the fellowship of your faith may be becoming operative in the realization of every good thing which is in us for Christ Jesus. For I have had much joy and consolation in your love, seeing that the compassions of the saints are soothed through you, brother.

⁷ Wherefore, having much boldness in Christ to be enjoining you as to what is proper, through love I am rather entreating, being such a one as Paul the aged, and now a prisoner also of Christ Jesus. I am entreating you concerning my child, whom I beget in my bonds, Onesimus [Profitable], once useless to you, yet now useful to you as well as to me, whom I send back to you. Him—this means my compassions—take to yourself, whom I intended to be retaining for myself that, for your sake, he may be serving me in the bonds of the evangel. Yet apart from your opinion I will do nothing, that your good may not be as of compulsion but voluntary. For perhaps he is separated for an hour because of ¹⁵ Have as a liquidation, FROM-HAVE, is a special term used in the papyri for receiving in full for any debt or obligation. The noun means a receipt in full. Thus the Lord, in the sixth of Matthew, said concerning those whose deeds were done before men, that "they have their wages in full"—there is no more due them from God.

¹⁸ Philemon was evidently called under Paul's preaching, so that he owed all he had in grace to his ministry. With all this to his credit, Paul may well assume all of Onesimus' debts to his master.

²⁰ There is a play on the name Onesimus, or Profitable. If he should be sent back to Paul, to serve him in the evangel, he would indeed be "Profitable" to Paul, both in name and in fact.

²² At this time Paul still hoped to be released and return to his itinerant ministry. But the very spiritual character of his latest ministry did not demand his physical presence. It was more in keeping to convey it by epistles. We have no evidence to show that he ever went to Colosse.

²³ Later, all except Luke left him (2Ti.4¹¹). Demas abandoned him. And to this very day his inspired epistles, by means of which he still speaks, and which are the only source of the truth for this economy of God's grace, are unheeded, neglected, abandoned, forsaken.

this: that you may have him as an conian liquidation, no longer as a ¹⁶ slave, but more than a slave, a brother beloved, especially to me, yet how much rather to you, both ¹⁷ in the flesh and in the Lord! If, then, you have me for a mate, take ¹⁸ him to yourself as me. Now if in anything he injures you, or is owing aught, be charging this to my ¹⁹ account. I, Paul (I write with my own hand), I will refund it. (Not that I may tell you that you are ²⁰ owing me even yourself!) Yea, brother, may I be "profiting" from you in the Lord! Soothe my compassions in Christ!

²¹ Being confident of your obedience, I write to you, seeing that I perceive that you will do even ²² more than I say. Now, at the same time, make ready also a lodging for me, for I am expecting that, through your prayers, I shall be graciously granted to you.

²³ Epaphras, my fellow captive in ²⁴ Christ Jesus, Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, Luke, my fellow workers, are greeting you.

²⁵ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit! Amen!

THE CIRCUMCISION EPISTLES

At the notable conference in Jerusalem when Paul submitted his evangel to those of repute, they submitted nothing to him, but perceived that he had been entrusted with the evangel of the Uncircumcision as Peter had been with that of the Circumcision (Ga. 2⁶⁻⁹). James, Cephas and John gave him the right hand of fellowship. He was to be for the nations, they for the Circumcision. The decision of this conference is reflected in the epistles written by those who were present. The epistles written by James, Peter, John, and Jude, the brother of James, form the greater part of the following collection, hence we term them

THE CIRCUMCISION EPISTLES.

Nothing will contribute more to the understanding of these writings than the clear cut apprehension that, in every detail, they differ from Paul's epistles, and do not apply at all to the present interval of God's gracious dealings with the nations, during Israel's temporary defection. Not a single truth is discussed in these writings which cannot be duplicated on a higher plane in the writings for the Uncircumcision.

The vital difference is this: In these epistles all blessing comes to or through faithful Israel: in the present economy of grace all blessing overflows notwithstanding that Israel's apostasy choked the channel of blessing. We are blessed in spite of Israel's failure. They will be blessed, and the nations will be blessed through them, in the coming day to which these epistles apply, on the ground of their return to God.

The final sphere of blessing in Paul's epistles was transferred to heaven (Eph.13). No such note is struck in the Circumcision epistles. They are all concerned with Israel on the earth, not with an election from the nations having a celestial destiny. They are all based on a physical relationship to Messiah, and lay great stress on His flesh, while Paul came to the point where he eliminated this from his ministry entirely (2 Co.5¹⁰).

They deal with Christ as He was on earth and as He will return to earth. Paul commences at His ascension and reveals a prior return of Christ, not to the earth, but to the air, to call His saints to Him there.

As Paul's name implies, he deals with an interval, a parenthesis in God's program. Hence we should read from the book of Acts right on to Hebrews and through to Jude (omitting Paul's parenthetic epistles) to get the true connection between the proclamation of the kingdom in the book of Acts, and the epistles dealing with the temporary consequences of its rejection.

Paul's ministries changed with fresh revelations, so that his career in the book of Acts is only premonitory to his written revelation, especially that given at its close. Not so with the other apostles. Nothing new is revealed in their epistles; they are but the modification of their former ministry due to the conditions consequent on the temporary rejection of the kingdom.

The perplexities of those Pentecostal believers who remained faithful to the end are answered in Hebrews. The difficulties of those who will suffer when the kingdom is once more on the divine program are met by Peter, who enters the kingdom through suffering and death. The course of those who will be guided through the time of trouble and enter the time of blessing alive is prefigured and provided for by John (See Jn.21¹⁸⁻²³). James deals especially with the rebellious and the rich.

None of these writings can be "applied" to the saints today without incalculable confusion and loss. As it is of more present importance to distinguish this line of truth from our own than to fully understand its message for the Circumcision, special attention will be given to its contrast with the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus.

These epistles do not treat of such themes as the body of Christ, the church as a spiritual organism, the believers' identification with Christ before God, crucifixion with Christ, exemption from law, righteousness by faith, the conciliation, and the heavenly destiny. Failure or refusal to discern that Paul brought a distinct revelation accounts for the prevailing confusion as to what the gospel for the present administration really is.

Much has been written concerning the authorship of Hebrews, but nothing is so helpful as the fact that the writer did not reveal himself. Anyone who has imbibed the spirit of his epistles will agree that Paul not only did not but could not write such an exhortation. It is impossible for him to associate himself with a company of people from which he had been separated by the holy spirit, whose destiny is utterly different from his. In contrast with this, the epistles of James, Peter, John, and Jude are to be interpreted in the light of their characters and careers.

James links us with the last and lowest period, in the book of Acts, for the nation will be in an even more serious spiritual state when God begins to recall them to Himself. Peter was destined to suffer. Hence he writes with reference to the sufferings which are still in store for the apostate nation. John was to tarry to His coming. Consequently he writes for those who will live through the day of indignation, and will enter the kingdom without dying.

The main point to perceive is that all of these men belong to the Circumcision, and write for the Circumcision, not for the nations. Their ministry and message is in abeyance so long as the present administration of celestial favor, apart from the mediacy of Israel, will continue. Paul alone writes for us. He, with a few Hellenists, are granted a grace which far transcends anything in the Circumcision epistles. And, as it is pure grace, those among the nations who believe are associated with them on equal exalted terms.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS

HEBREWS resumes the subject of the book of Acts. Paul's epistles are a parenthesis in God's administrations. In Acts the kingdom is proclaimed, and rejected by the nation of Israel as a whole. Yet there was a remnant who believed. Of these the Hellenists followed the revelations given to Paul and found a new and a celestial destiny. But the Hebrews, associated with the twelve apostles and James, whose destiny is the kingdom as promised by the prophets, are left in a distressing situation due to the national defection of Israel. What is to become of them during the time that the nation stumbles? The kingdom cannot come until after the fulness of the nations has come in. That could hardly be during their lifetime. The book of Hebrews deals with the problem of these Pentecostal believers and takes them back to the same position as was occupied by the patriarchs and prophets of old, as explained in the eleventh chapter. They died in faith, not having received the promises.

An important distinction between Hebrews and Hellenists will help in understanding this epistle. Both were Jews, of the stock of Israel as to the flesh. Both are brought before us in the sixth of Acts, where the widows of the Hellenists were distinguished from the widows of the Hebrews. Both spoke Greek. But the culture and training of the Hebrews was essentially Eastern and according to the traditions of their ancestors. The Hellenists, who were composed mostly of those who had lived in foreign lands, were Greek in culture and customs. So distinct were they that they had special synagogues in Jerusalem. The Hebrews were strong for ritual and the religion of their fathers. They are the special subject of this epistle, as is manifest from the opening strain.

As the faith of the Pentecostal believers rested on signs and wonders and miracles in anticipation of the powers of the kingdom, some fell away when these manifestations ceased and the promised kingdom failed to appear. Their apostasy is dealt with in the sixth and tenth chapters—passages which can have no application in the present administration of grace, but which have hung as a cloud over the heads of those who imagine themselves in a similar position. Saints in Israel were conditionally pardoned. Its continuance depended upon their extension of this pardon to the other nations, as in the parable of the ten thousand talent debtor. The pardon could be and was withdrawn. It is not in force now. We have the infinitely higher favor of justification.

Hebrews is the antitype of the wilderness journey of Israel from Egypt to the promised land. It brings Christ before us as the true Mediator, greater than Moses, the true Saviour, greater than Joshua, the true Chief Priest, greater than Aaron. It holds forth better promises concerning the land and the kingdom. Its type is the tabernacle and its ministry, before Israel entered the land.

² The Son is the Speaker to Whom the Hebrews are directed. His glories, as they relate to the kingdom and their blessing, is the great theme of the epistle. Beginning with a brilliant cluster, showing His relationship to God, He is given a place superior to angels, and to all the great figures in Hebrew history.

² "Tenant" seems the nearest word in English for one who has the possession and enjoyment of a thing, yet is not the owner. But it should also include the distribution by lot. So we have used the phrase "enjoyer of the allotment". The whole universe was created for the Son (Col.1¹⁶). He is Elohim, the God of Space. He is Jehovah, the God of Time, for He also made the eons. Thus the Hebrews are informed that the Son is the God of their ancient oracles.

³ We speak of seeing the sun, but it is hid behind its brilliant beams. So the Son is the Effulgence of the invisible God. The shekinah glory, which filled the temple, was a token of His presence. God condescends to assume certain characters in relation to His creatures in order to reveal Himself to them. Even as Father, He cannot be known except through the Son (Jn. 14 ^{9,10}). It is only through His Emblem that God reveals Himself. Not only the creation, but the operation of the universe is in His hands. The entrance and presence of sin in the universe is all accounted for by one word—He has made a cleansing of sins. It is evident that, in His grand concerns, sins are considered only as a temporary stain on His escutcheon, already disposed of in truth, as they will be eventually in fact. The right hand of the divine Majesty is the true place of the One Who wields all the power of God, and Who, for creatures such as we, is the only One in Whom we can apprehend and approach the Deity.

By many portions and many modes, of old, speaking to the fathers in the prophets, God, in the last of these days, speaks to us in a Son, Whom He appoints enjoyer of the allotment of the universe, through Whom He makes the cons also; Who, being the Effulgence of His glory and Emblem of His assumption, as well as carrying on the universe by His powerful declaration, making a cleansing of sins, is seated at the right hand of the Majesty in the heights; becoming so much better than messengers as He has enjoyed the allotment of a more excellent name than they.

⁵ For when said He to any of the messengers,

*"Thou art My Son,
Today have I begotten Thee?"*

And again,

*"I shall be to Him for a Father
And He shall be to Me for a Son?"*

⁶ Now, whenever He may again be leading the Firstborn into the inhabited earth, He is saying,

"And let all the messengers of God worship Him."

⁷ And, indeed, to the messengers He is saying,

*"Who is making His messengers blasts,
And His ministers a flame of fire."*

⁸ Yet to the Son:

*"Thy throne, O God, is for the eon of the eon,
And a scepter of rectitude is the scepter of Thy kingdom."*

⁹ Thou lovest righteousness and hatest injustice, Therefore God, Thy God, anoints Thee with the oil of exultation beyond Thy partners."

¹⁰ And

*"Thou, Lord, in accord with sovereignties, dost found the earth.
And the heavens are the works of Thy hands."*

¹¹ They shall be destroyed, yet Thou art continuing, And they all shall age as a cloak,

⁵ God has had many "sons". When earth's corner stone was laid, all the sons of God shouted for joy (Job 38⁷). Adam was a son of God (Lu.3³⁸). The sixth of Genesis speaks of the sons of God. Hosea foretells the time when all Israel shall be called the sons of God (Hos.1¹⁰). So that the particular point in this passage is the introduction of His Son, not by creation, but by begetting. He is His only begotten Son (Ps.2(1)⁷; Mt.1²³; Lu.1^{32,33}; Jn.1¹⁴). As such He is infinitely better fitted to communicate the heart of God to man.

⁶ This, in its first application, was said of Solomon (2 Sam.7¹⁴) the type of David's greater Son.

⁷ See Ps.97⁷ and Deut.32⁴³.

⁸ The messengers are like the forces of nature, mere instruments to carry out His will (Ps.104⁴).

⁹ As Christ, He reigns over the next eon, including the thousand years. After that, in the new earth, He reigns as Son. This is called "the eon of the eon", because it is the fruit of His reign during the preceding eon. When the Son has reigned to such purpose that there is no further need of His rule, He abdicates, turning over the kingdom to God the Father (1 Co.15²⁸; see also Ps.45⁷).

¹⁰ The Greek word here used means "beginning" in the singular, referring to time. But in the plural, as here, it often denotes sovereignties (Eph.3¹⁰; Col.1¹⁶; Tit.3¹). These were associated with Him in the foundation of the earth, much as the saints in Israel will be in the administration of the kingdom. It corresponds to "hands" in the parallelism.

¹² And, as if clothing, Thou wilt be rolling them up as a cloak, And they shall be changed. Yet Thou art the same, And Thy years shall not be defauling."

¹³ Now when has He declared to any of the messengers

"Be sitting at My right hand till I should be placing Thine enemies for a footstool for Thy feet"?

¹⁴ Are they not all ministering spirits commissioned for service because of those who are about to be enjoying the allotment of salvation?

2 Therefore we must more exceedingly be heeding what is being heard, lest at any time we may be

² drifting by. For if the word spoken through messengers came to be confirmed, and every transgression and disobedience obtained a fair re-

³ ward, how shall we be escaping when neglecting a prodigious salvation, which, obtaining a beginning through the speaking of the Lord, was confirmed to us by those who

⁴ hear Him, God corroborating, by signs as well as miracles and various powers and partings of holy spirit, according to His will?

⁵ For not to messengers does He subject the future inhabited earth concerning which we are speaking.

⁶ Yet someone somewhere certifies, saying,

"What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?

Or a son of man, that Thou art visiting him?

⁷ Thou makest him some whit inferior to the messengers.

Thou wreathest him with glory and honor.

And dost place him over the works of Thy hands.

⁸ Thou dost subject all underneath his feet."

For in the subjection of all to him, He leaves nothing unsubject

¹¹ The destruction of the earth and the heavens is but a crisis in their change (¹²), for they are not to be made non-existent, but created anew. All things are in a state of flux until the consummation. Only the Son remains the same, and through Him all else attains permanence and perfection.

¹³ David's Son and David's Lord will, like him, subdue all His enemies (1 Chron. 22:18; Ps. 110:1). It is the very essence of His glory that this is only "till". When the last enemy has been abolished, the Son subordinates Himself. All enmity being banished, His sovereignty ceases.

⁵ Nowhere are messengers or angels accorded a place of rule. In the future, in the heavens, we shall judge them. On the earth the Circumcision saints will have dominion. Even now the sovereignties and authorities in the heavens are distinguished from the messengers (Un. 58.12).

⁶ Man's inferiority to angels is only temporary. In the resurrection they will no longer be greater in strength and power (2 Pe. 2:11). Even in the heavens the saints of this economy will be above them. This is only hint-to him. Yet now we are not as yet seeing all subjected to him. Yet we are observing Jesus, having been made some whit inferior to messengers (because of the suffering of death, wreathed with glory and honor), so that He should, by the grace of God, be tasting death for the sake of all. For it behooved Him, because of Whom all is, and through Whom all is, in leading many sons into glory, to perfect the Inaugurator of their salvation through sufferings. For He who is hallowing as well as those who are being hallowed are all of One, for which cause He is not ashamed to be calling them brethren, saying,

"I shall be reporting Thy name to My brethren,
In the midst of the ecclesia shall I be singing hymns to Thee."

¹³ And again,

"I shall have confidence in Him."

And again,

"Lo! I and the little children whom God gives Me!"

¹⁴ Since, then, the little children have participated in blood and flesh, He also was very nigh in partaking of the same, that, through death, He should be abolishing him who has the control of death. that is, the Slanderer, and should be clearing those whoever, in fear of death, were through their entire life liable to slavery. For assuredly it is not taking hold of messengers, but it is taking hold of the seed of Abraham. Whence He must in all things be made like the brethren, that He may be becoming a merciful and faithful Chief Priest in that which is toward God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. For in that He has suffered, being tried, He is able to help those who are being tried.

ed in Hebrews. The immediate "all" refers only to the earth (Ps.8).

^a The resurrection and exaltation of the suffering Saviour is the promise and pledge that He will elevate all who are His during the eons into the place of dominion over the universe. Only the One Who has been lowest can claim the place supreme.

^a The words "by the grace of God" may, originally, have been "apart from God". This reading is supported by several early fathers and versions, as well as by the context.

ⁱ It is not easy, in English, to distinguish between the celestial calling, here referred to, and the "calling above" (Phil.3¹⁴) of Paul's latest revelation. That which is celestial as to location is often spoken of in Ephesians, as our blessing among the celestials (1³), His seat (1²⁰), our seat (2⁶), the sovereignties and authorities (3¹⁰), our conflict (6¹²). This is in the dative case, which gives us the place in which anything is found. It occurs once in Hebrews (12²²). The genitive denotes source or character. The shadow of the divine service of the celestials (Heb.8⁶) was on earth. So the city sought by the faithful (Heb.11¹⁰) will descend to earth (Un. 21¹⁰), and the celestial calling is from the ascended Christ, not to heaven, but from heaven. We are called to heaven, the Hebrews are addressed from heaven. They have no part in the calling above. Their blessings, though celestial in character, are on earth.

Our calling is gracious (Ro.11²⁹), for God's glory (1 Co.1²⁶), fraught with the highest expectations (Eph.1¹⁸), not in accord with our acts, but in accord with His own purpose and the grace which was given us in Christ Jesus before eonian times (2 Tim.1⁹), but this calling is conditional (3⁶⁻¹⁴) as in Peter, who exhorts his readers to confirm their calling through ideal acts (2 Pet.1¹⁰).

The spiritual in Israel are God's house (1 Pet.2⁵). Just as, at the exodus, Moses was over the nation, so now, God's Son is their Mediator. And as Moses combined the office of apostle with that of priest, so Christ is commissioned by God to the people and stands before God for the people.

⁷ The Pentecostal period is the anti-

3 Whence, holy brethren, partners of a celestial calling, consider the Apostle and Chief Priest of our avowal, Jesus, Who is faithful to Him Who makes Him, as Moses also was in His whole house. For this One is worthy of more glory than Moses by as much as He Who constructs it has more honor than the house. For every house is being constructed by some one, yet He Who constructs all is God. And Moses, indeed, was faithful in His whole house as an attendant, for a testimony of that which shall be spoken. Yet Christ, as a Son over His house—whose house we are, that is, if we should be retaining the boldness and glorying of the expectation confirmed unto the consummation.

7 Wherefore, according as the holy spirit is saying,

"Today, if you should be hearing His voice,

8 You should not be hardening your hearts

As in the embitterment of the day of trial in the wilderness,

9 Where your fathers try Me in the testing

And were acquainted with My acts forty years.

10 Wherefore I am disgusted with this generation, and said,

'Ever are they straying in heart; Yet they know not My ways.'

11 As I swear in My indignation, 'If they shall be entering into My stopping—!'"

12 Beware, brethren, lest at some time there shall be in any of you a wicked heart of unbelief, in withdrawing from the living God. But be entreating yourselves, each day, until what is called "today", lest any of you may be hardened by the seduction of sin. For we have become partners of Christ, type of the wilderness experiences. As Israel wandered forty years in the desert, so now they wander a like period in the wastes of unbelief. The kingdom does not come.

⁷ The Hebrew of Ps.95⁷⁻¹¹ reads "as at Meribah" and "the day of Massah", and the passage refers to the twentieth of Numbers. The quotation substitutes their meanings. Meribah is "contention," or "bitterness," Massah is "trial." Thus he brings before us the two great occasions which exhibited the unbelief of the people. They followed the report of the ten spies, and refused to go into the land (Nu. 13, 14). Jehovah proposed to wipe them out and make a greater nation of Moses. But He relented, yet doomed them all, but Caleb and Joshua, to die in the wilderness. At Meribah or Massah the people had no water and they murmured against Moses and Jehovah (Ex.17¹⁻⁷; Nu.20¹⁻¹³). All those in the wilderness had been redeemed out of Egypt, yet they failed to enter the land because of unbelief. The Pentecostal believers who are addressed here find themselves in precisely the same predicament. The Lord had come, offering the kingdom, but they had refused to enter in. Now again the kingdom had been proclaimed, and now those who had been redeemed murmur because the kingdom is not set up. This epistle is meant for those at Meribah.

This quotation is the keynote of the warnings of this epistle. Despite them the bulk of the nation drew back, and we witness its wanderings to this day. Abraham was not an Israelite, nor a Jew, but his descendants who imitated his faith in obedience to the exhortations of this epistle are Hebrews indeed.

³ That the entrance into the land was only a typical suggestion of the reality is evident when the psalmist speaks of a future entrance. The word "rest" is not a correct rendering of the Hebrew "sabbath" or the Greek word here used. God was not tired when He first instituted the sabbath (Gen.2²). He stopped, not rested. So the unbeliever is not asked to rest from his works, to gather strength to resume them, but to stop because God has finished His work.

that is, if we should be retaining the beginning of the assumption confirmed unto the consummation, while it is being said

"'Today', If you should be hearing His voice,
You should not be hardening your hearts
As in the embitterment."

¹⁶ For some, hearing, embitter Him; but not all who come out of ¹⁷ Egypt through Moses. Now with whom is He disgusted forty years? Was it not with those who sin, whose carcasses fall in the wilderness? ¹⁸ Now to whom does He swear, not to be entering into His stopping, except to those who are stubborn? ¹⁹ And we are observing that they could not enter because of unbelief. ⁴ We may be fearing then, lest, when a promise is being left of entering into His stopping, some one of you may be seeming to have been ² deficient. For we also have been evangelized, even as they. But the word heard does not benefit them, not having been blended with faith ³ in those who hear. Then we who believe are entering into the stopping, according as He has declared.

"As I swear in My indignation.
'If they shall be entering into My stopping—!'"

although the works occur from the ⁴ disruption of the world. For He has declared somewhere concerning the seventh thus: "And God stops on the seventh day from all ⁵ His works." And in this again.

"If they shall be entering into My stopping—!"

⁶ Since, then, it is left for some to be entering into it, and those to whom the evangel was formerly preached did not enter because of ⁷ stubbornness, He is again specifying

⁹ The sabbatism which remains for Israel is the millennial kingdom. Those who, like Caleb and Joshua, spy out the land, and have confidence that God will fulfill His promise, enjoy the sabbatism by faith. All the rest are strewn along the wilderness.

¹² The soul has to do with the physical senses. It is usually confused with the spirit. The nation in the wilderness was soulless. They sighed for the flesh pots of Egypt. They were sensual. So too with the people in our Lord's day, who responded to the loaves and fishes, but could not digest His words. And this is the danger with these Hebrew believers. They sighed for the physical blessings of the kingdom. But when the signs which accompanied its proclamation in the Pentecostal era withdrew, they fell away. Only the word of God is able to judge whether an action is spiritual or soulless.

¹³ "Him to Whom we are accountable" is an impressive and suggestive description of God whose Word makes apparent every thought of the heart.

¹⁴ Priesthood is a standing symbol of distance and alienation. There was no priest in Eden. There is no temple in the new creation (Un.21²²). In the present economy of grace each one has unhindered access, by one spirit, to the Father (Eph.2¹⁸). The Aaronic priesthood arose out of Moses' inability to perform all the functions of a mediator. As Christ has no such disabilities He exercises all the duties pertaining to mediatorship, and thus becomes a Priest of a different order. From the time when no priest was needed, through Melchisedec, who was both priest and king, down to Aaron was a descent. The ascent is through Christ, Who is both Priest and King, to the last eon, when priesthood vanishes in reconciliation.

ing a certain day, "Today"—saying in David after so much time, according as has been declared before,

"Today, if you should be hearing
His voice,
You should not be hardening your hearts."

⁸ For if Joshua causes them to stop. He would not have spoken concerning another after these days.

⁹ Consequently a sabbatism is left for the people of God. For he who is entering into His stopping, he also stops from his works even as God from His own.

¹¹ We should be endeavoring, then, to be entering into that stopping, lest some should be falling into the same example of stubbornness. For the word of God is living and active, and keener than any two-edged sword, and penetrating up to the parting of soul and spirit, as well as the articulations and marrow, and is a judge of the sentiments and thoughts of the heart.

¹³ And there is not a creature which is not apparent before it. Now all is naked and bared to the eyes of Him to Whom we are accountable.

¹⁴ Having, then, a great Chief Priest, Who has come through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, we may be holding to the avowal.

¹⁵ For we have not a Chief Priest not able to sympathize with our infirmities, but One Who has been tried in all respects alike, apart from sin. With boldness, then, we may be approaching the throne of grace, that we may be obtaining mercy and finding grace for opportune help.

⁵ For every chief priest obtained from among men is constituted for

⁴ The honors of the priesthood have been coveted or usurped only at awful cost. Korah, Dathan and Abiram claimed the priesthood and were swallowed up by the earth (Nu.16). The censers of those with them were made into broad plates to cover the altar as a memorial that no stranger, not of the seed of Aaron, may come near to offer incense before the Lord (Nu. 16⁴⁰). King Uzziah also transgressed against the Lord his God, and went into the temple of the Lord to burn incense upon the altar of incense. In consequence, the leprosy rose up in his forehead before the priests, and he was thrust out, and was a leper to the day of his death (2 Chron.26¹⁶⁻²¹). Hence it would appear a most serious matter for anyone outside the line of Aaron to set himself up as a priest. Only one called by God dare aspire to the honor. It is necessary, therefore that Christ Himself, Who was not of the tribe of Levi, much less a son of Aaron, should have a definite call. Not by personal ambition, but by the call of God which involved such suffering as is most repugnant to flesh and blood, did Christ obtain His priesthood. God did save Him out of death, but not from the "cup".

¹¹ The Jews were blind to the failures and disabilities connected with the Aaronic priesthood, hence could not appreciate the necessity of a new order for the Messiah. This made the whole subject a difficult one to unfold to them. The principal lessons are drawn from the inspired omissions in the record, which require a measure of spiritual apprehension which they did not possess.

men in that which is toward God, that he may be offering oblations
² as well as sacrifices for sins, able to be moderate with the ignorant and straying, since he also is encompassed with infirmity, and because ³ of it, he ought, according as for the people, thus for himself also, be offering concerning sins.

⁴ And no one is getting the honor himself, but on being called by God, according as even Aaron, also.
⁵ Thus Christ also does not glorify Himself by becoming a chief priest, but He Who speaks to Him,

*"Thou art My Son,
Today have I begotten Thee,"*

⁶ according as in a different place also He is saying,

*"Thou art a priest for the eon
According to the order of Melchisedec,"*

⁷ Who, in the days of His flesh, offering petitions as well as supplications with strong clamor and tears to Him Who is able to save Him out of death, was hearkened to also for ⁸ His piety. And even He, being a Son, learned obedience from that
⁹ which He suffered. And, being perfected, He became the cause of eternal salvation to all who are obeying Him. being accosted by God "a Chief Priest according to the order of Melchisedec," concerning whom there are words, many and abstruse, for us to say, since you have become dull of hearing.

¹² For when also, because of the time, you ought to be teachers, you have need again of one to teach you what are the rudimentary elements of the oracles of God, and you have come to have need of milk, and not
¹³ of solid nurture. For every one

¹ The six rudiments which form the foundation which the Hebrews are exhorted to leave for more mature teaching are closely connected with the proclamation of the kingdom, and are not the substructure of present truth. Repentance and baptism are the keys to the kingdom, and are not for the body of Christ. Peter, at Pentecost, proclaims repentance and baptism to the Jews—perhaps to some who later received this epistle. Faith is the basis on which the present administration of grace is built. The Jews were zealous religionists. Their ritual was the dead works of which they repented when they turned to Messiah.

"Faith on God" is probably the equivalent of our "belief in God", that is believing that He is, rather than what He has said. Believing God, as in Abraham's case, leads to justification, a grace entirely absent from this list.

² Paul did not put baptism in the foundation of his evangel. He insisted that Christ had not sent him to baptize, but to evangelize (1 Co.1¹⁷). Now there is only one baptism—that in spirit, which unites us into one body (Eph.4⁵). In the kingdom proclamation, however, baptism in water was essential.

The imposition of hands for the conveyance of spiritual benefits especially through the apostles is also a characteristic of the kingdom economy.

There seems to be no reference here to the "resurrection from among the dead", but rather to resurrection in general, apart from which the kingdom cannot be set up. At that time will the saints in Israel awake and possess the kingdom promised to them in the prophets.

Eonian judgment characterizes the inception and progress of Messiah's reign. It begins with the severest judgments this earth has known.

These are the six foundation stones cast down by those who fell away among the Hebrews. They should have left them for maturity. Instead, they forsake them for apostasy. Instead of going back to Judaism, they would crucify again for themselves the Son of God.

⁴ This description applies only to those who participated in the Pentewho is partaking of milk is untried in the word of righteousness, for he ¹⁴ is a minor. Now solid nurture is for the mature, who, because of habit, have faculties exercised to discriminate between the ideal and the evil.

⁶ Wherefore, leaving the rudiments of the word of Christ, we should be brought on to maturity, not disrupting again a foundation of repentance from dead ² works, and faith on God, of the teaching of baptizings, besides the imposition of hands as well as the resurrection of the dead, and ³ eonian judgment. And this will we be doing, that is, if God should be permitting.

⁴ For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, besides tasting the celestial gratuity, and becoming partakers of holy ⁵ spirit, and tasting the ideal declaration of God, as well as the ⁶ powers of the future eon, and are falling aside, to be renewing them again to repentance while crucifying for themselves the Son of God again and holding Him up to infamy. For land which is drinking the shower coming often upon it, and bringing forth herbage fit for those because of whom it is farmed also, is partaking of blessing from ⁸ God, yet, bringing forth thorns and star thistles, it is disqualified, and near a curse, whose consummation is burning.

⁹ Now we are persuaded better things concerning you, beloved, and those which have salvation, even if ¹⁰ we are speaking thus. For God is not unjust, to be forgetting your work and the love which you display for His name, when you serve ¹¹ the saints, and are serving. Now costal blessings. They were enlightened, they tasted the celestial gratuity, they became partakers of holy spirit, and God's declaration, and they only experienced the powers of the kingdom eon, and many of them fell aside. These blessings were based on their repentance, or change of mind, which was induced largely by the miracles which they saw. When the kingdom failed to appear, and its powers vanished, their repentance went also. Hence the impossibility of renewing it, for the means which produced it were no longer in evidence. Such a course is not possible in a day of grace, such as we live in. In place of repentance and pardon, we have faith and justification, which know no falling away, being entirely of grace, from first to last.

¹³ That all are not to apostatize is evident from God's oath to Abraham. This truth is offered as an incentive to those who still remain faithful, to persevere to the consummation. It is only thus that the salvation of the Pentecostal saint was assured. The general fulfilment of God's oath to Abraham was beyond question, for God swore by the highest possible power to fulfil it, yet the special blessing of each one of his physical descendants depends, in some degree, not merely on their faith, but their faithfulness. This is the great distinguishing feature, which sinks it far below the grace which is lavished on us, sinners of the nations. We do not need this anchor of the soul, hence it is extended only to those who belong to Abraham by ties of flesh.

¹ Melchisedec is notable chiefly for what is not recorded of him. There is no reason to believe that he was, personally, the mystical and miraculous character which is his as a picture of the priesthood of Christ. He doubtless was a man like other men, for God had some among the nations who we are yearning for each of you to be displaying the same diligence toward the assurance of the expectation until the consummation, that you may not be becoming dull. Now be imitators of those who through faith and patience are enjoying the promises of the allotment.

¹³ For God, promising Abraham, since He had no one greater to swear by, swears by Himself, saying, "In sooth, if it is blessing, I shall be blessing you, and multiplying, I shall be multiplying you!" And thus, being patient, he happened on the promise.

¹⁴ For men are swearing by a greater, and to them an oath for confirmation is an end of all contradiction, in which God, intending more superabundantly to exhibit to the enjoyers of the allotment of the promise the immutability of His counsel, interposes with an oath, ¹⁷ that by two immutable matters, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we may have a strong consolation, who are fleeing for refuge to lay hold of the expectation lying ¹⁸ before us, which we have as an anchor of the soul, both secure and confirmed, and entering into the interior beyond the curtain, where the Forerunner, Jesus, entered for our sakes, becoming Chief Priest according to the order of Melchisedec for the con.

⁷ For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of God Most High, who meets with Abraham returning from the combat with the kings ² and blesses him, to whom Abraham parts a tithe, also, from all, being had been brought to a close acquaintance with their Creator.

The Melchisedec priesthood should be studied in its contrasts with the Aaronic priesthood. Its greatest difference lies in the fact that it combines the office of king with that of priest. This is the ideal way. It was only because of the failure of Moses that Aaron was given a share in his mediatorial office. It is God's purpose that the nation of Israel shall be a kingdom of priests (Ex.19⁶), a royal priesthood (1 Pet.2⁹). They will rule the nations for God and bring the nations' offerings to God. So it behooves their Head to be both Priest and King.

The other great point of dissimilarity lies in the matter of succession. The continuance of the Aaronic priesthood was made a matter of descent, and nothing was so vital to a priest as his genealogy. He must be able to tell his father and his mother and trace his lineage clear back to Aaron or he could not even be a priest. And he must provide for this succession by marrying within the priestly caste. In notable contrast to this we have no recorded genealogy of Melchisedec whatever, no mention of father or mother, and no succession, for his death is carefully excluded from the fleeting glimpse we get of him on the pages of inspiration. These omissions are intentional, for only thus can his priesthood picture the priesthood of Christ, Who does not require a genealogy or a successor.

² The writer fixes our attention on the significance and sequence of these titles. Righteousness must underlie peace in Christ's priestly work as elsewhere (Psa.72³ 85¹⁰ Isa.32¹⁷ 94⁴). So also justification is the ground of the infinitely greater favor of peace (Ro.5¹).

⁴ As further evidence of the superiority of the Melchisedec priesthood, our attention is directed to the tithe, first, indeed, translated "king of righteousness", yet thereupon king of Salem also, which is "king of Peace", fatherless, motherless, without a genealogy, nor having a beginning of days or consummation of life, yet picturing the Son of God, is remaining a priest to a finality.

⁴ Now you are beholding how eminent this one is to whom the patriarch Abraham gives a tithe also of the best of the booty. And, indeed, those of the sons of Levi who obtain the priestly office have directions to take tithes from the people according to the law, that is, their brethren, though they have come out of the loins of Abraham. Yet he who is not in their genealogy has tithed Abraham, and has blessed him who has the promises.

⁷ Now, beyond all contradiction, the inferior is blessed by the better. ⁸ And here, indeed, dying men are obtaining tithes, yet there one of whom it is testified that he is living. ⁹ And, so to speak, through Abraham, Levi also, who is obtaining tithes, ¹⁰ has been tithed, for he was still in the loins of his father when Melchisedec meets with him.

¹¹ Indeed, then, if perfection were through the Levitical priesthood (for the people have been placed under law by it) what need is there still for a different priest to arise according to the order of Melchisedec, and not be accounted according to the order of Aaron? For, the priesthood being transferred, of necessity there is coming to be a transference of law also, for He of Whom these things are said has partaken of a different tribe, from which no one has given heed to the altar. For it is taken for granted that our Lord has risen out of Ju-which, in Israel, was the special portion of the Levites. Abraham, himself, the progenitor of the nation, actually paid tithes to this priest, and in him, the whole Levitical priesthood paid tithes to another and higher order. Nor is this all, for Melchisedec blessed Abraham, and so bestowed his benediction on the Levitic succession. This alone shows that his order is distinctly superior to that of Aaron.

¹¹ It would be very difficult for the Hebrews to acknowledge the failure of the Aaronic priesthood. Yet this is distinctly involved in the announcement of a priest after a different order. Had our Lord come of the family of Aaron, He would have been associated with an order which began in failure and which will never effect the reconciliation between God and His creatures which priesthood is intended to bring about: Hence His genealogy proclaims Him Israel's King, but He ignores all genealogies in His priestly place. Instead, He has the much higher honor of being qualified for office by the divine oath, including an assurance that, unlike the Aaronic priesthood, there will be no regrets for the failure and insufficiency of His ministry.

²³ If the Melchisedec priesthood should last forever (instead of for the eon) then it too, would come under the condemnation of never bringing anything to perfection or finality. Then there would be a temple and priesthood on the new earth; indeed, it would continue beyond the consummation, and form an insurmountable barrier between God and some of His creatures. Priesthood is a sign of estrangement; it vanishes when God is at peace with His people. Hence, though the Lord's life is indissoluble (⁷¹⁶) and the priesthood inviolate (⁷²⁴), unbroken by death, it is always limited to one eon, beyond which there can be no priesthood, because there is no estrangement.

²⁶ The glories of this Chief Priest refer to His relation to God, to men, to the law. He is knit to God by loving devotion. He is innocent of any tinge of malice toward men, and He is undefiled by a spot of moral defilement. He is separate from sinners because of His exaltation to His office.

dah, to which tribe Moses speaks
¹⁵ nothing concerning priests. And it is still more superabundantly sure, if a different priest is arising according to the likeness of Melchisedec, Who has not come to be according to the law of a fleshly precept, but according to the power of an indissoluble life. For He is ¹⁷ testifying that

"Thou art a priest for the eon
According to the order of Melchisedec."

¹⁸ For, indeed, there is coming to be a repudiation of the preceding precept, because it is weak and ¹⁹ without benefit, for the law perfects nothing, yet is the superinduction of a better expectation, through which we are drawing near to God.

²⁰ And, inasmuch as it was not apart from the swearing of an oath (for they, indeed, are priests, having become so apart from the ²¹ swearing of an oath, yet He with the swearing of an oath by Him Who is saying to Him,

"The Lord swears and will not be regretting it,
"Thou art a priest for the eon
According to the order of Melchisedec,"")

²² by so much also has Jesus become the sponsor of a better covenant.

²³ And they, indeed, are more [than one], having become priests because death prevents them from ²⁴ abiding, yet He, because He is remaining for the eon, has an inviolate priesthood. Whence, also, He is able to save to the uttermost those approaching God through Him, always being alive to be pleading for their sakes.

²⁶ For such a Chief Priest became us, benign, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners, and coming to

AND HIGHER OF-THE heavens

²⁷ The fact that the sacrificial system under the law demanded sacrifices for the sins of the priests as well as for the people, shows that it was a weak and imperfect and temporary expedient. Add to this the fact that these sacrifices continued to be offered daily, and never brought any permanent relief, and we see clearly that it was never intended to do more than suggest the true Sacrifice, which the Son offered once, which needs no repetition. It is evident, therefore, that He could not have associated Himself with the Aaronic order without degrading His great sacrifice. They served among the shadows of the heavenly tabernacle. He entered the true.

¹ The tabernacle and temple furniture did not include a seat. The high priest's work was never completed, hence, he never sat down in the holy places. In striking contrast, the Chief Priest of the new order has finished His work, and sits at the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens.

The "sum" is that the sanctuary is heaven itself: the Chief Priest is the Son of God. His priestly work began after His ascension (v. 4). Aaronic priesthood was instituted at Sinai (Ex.24) after Israel had been redeemed, for the purpose of maintaining the people in the blessedness of redemption.

² The tabernacle and its service were patterned after a heavenly original. It was not an exact copy, however, but an adumbration or shadow, merely giving the main outlines. The heavenly offerings seem to be mainly oblations or gifts, and probably had no sacrificial victims other than the great sacrifice of Christ. The earthly copy was given to teach the great lessons of God's righteousness and holiness, and man's unfitness and distance from Him, as well as the way of approach which is acceptable to Him until the true Sacrifice pours out His soul and makes an end of sins.

²⁷ be higher than the heavens, Who has no necessity daily, even as the chief priests, to be offering up sacrifices previously for their own sins, thereupon for those of the people, for this He does once, when offering up Himself. For the law is constituting men chief priests who have infirmity, yet the word sworn in the oath which is after the law, the Son, perfected for the eon.

³ For every chief priest is constituted to offer oblations as well as sacrifices. Whence it is necessary for This One also to have something which He may offer. Indeed, then, if He were on earth He would not even be a priest, there being those who offer oblations according to the law, who are offering an example and shadow of the divine service of the celestials, according as Moses has been apprized when about to complete the tabernacle, "For be seeing," He is averring, "that you shall be doing all in accord with the model shown you in the mountain."

⁶ Yet now He has happened upon a more excellent ministry, inasmuch as He is the Mediator, also, of a better covenant, which has been instituted on better promises. For if that first one were unblamable, no place would have been sought for a second. For, blaming them, He is saying,

"Lo! the days are coming", the Lord is saying,

"And I shall be concluding with the house of Israel and with the

* Few phrases are so unfortunately confusing as "the New Testament". The Greek word for "testament" and its Hebrew equivalent never carry the ordinary meaning of a will, or legal instrument for the disposal of property after death. They are close equivalents of our "covenant" or "contract". To speak of the Greek Scriptures as "the New Testament", and the Hebrew as "the Old Testament" is most misleading, because, as a matter of fact the new covenant is found in the "Old Testament". Jeremiah gives it in full (Jer.31³¹⁻³⁴). It has never been in force yet, and "New Testament times" will not come until after the time of great affliction when Jehovah calls Israel and Judah back to Himself. In truth, the new covenant is not for the nations at all, though, of course, a large section of the "New Testament" is especially for the nations.

The "old covenant" is not the Hebrew scriptures, but the compact made with Israel at Mount Sinai. It was two-sided. The people proposed to do their part and Jehovah engaged to do His. They promised to obey Him, but dismally failed to do so, consequently He could not fulfill His promises to bless them.

The new covenant which He will make with them after they have been restored to their land, and have received their Messiah, is radically different from the old. The people have no active part in it whatever. All depends on Jehovah. Hence it will not be a failure. The law that was written on stones will be written on their hearts. Instead of demanding a penalty for every infraction, He will be propitious. Instead of recalling their sins and lawlessnesses, He will blot them out. Instead of an "atonement" or shelter for sin made by the blood of he-goats and calves, the blood of Christ will put them completely away. At present we have the infinitely higher privilege of confidence in God Himself, not His promises or His covenants. The law is not inscribed on our hearts, but we were caused to die to the law through the body of Christ. We are not a regeneration but a new creation.

house of Judah a new covenant,
 9 Not in accord with the covenant which I make with their fathers
 In the day of My taking hold of their hand to be leading them out of the land of Egypt,
 Seeing that they do not remain in My covenant,
 And I neglect them', the Lord is saying,

10 'Seeing that this is the covenant which I shall be covenanting with the house of Israel after those days,' the Lord is saying:
 'Imparting My laws to their comprehension,
 Even on their hearts shall I be inscribing them,
 And I shall be to them for a God, and they shall be to Me for a people.

11 And by no means should each be teaching his [fellow] citizen, And each his brother, saying, "Know the Lord!"

Seeing that all will be acquainted with Me, from their little to their great,

12 Seeing that I shall be propitious to their injustices,
 And of their sins and their lawlessnesses should I under no circumstances be still reminded."

13 In saying "new" He has made the former old. Now that which is aging and decrepit is near its disappearance.

9 The former also, indeed then, had just statutes of divine service, besides a worldly holy place. For a tabernacle is constructed, in the front of which is the lampstand as well as the table and the showbread, which is termed the holy place.

3 Now after the second curtain is the tabernacle which is termed the 4 holy of holies, having the golden censer and the ark of the covenant covered about everywhence with gold, in which was the golden urn having the manna, and Aaron's staff which germinates, and the

² In the holy place of the tabernacle, just before the curtain which separated it from the holy of holies, were two pieces of furniture, the table with the bread on the north, the lampstand on the south (Ex.26³⁵; 40²²⁻²⁶). These typified the great truths of communion and testimony. No sunlight could enter the holy places. All light was supplied by the holy oil, which typified the holy spirit, thus indicating that all real knowledge of God must come, not through the light of nature, but through divine revelation. The bread is typical of Christ, the Bread which is God's delight and man's sustenance. Communion with God is possible only through Him.

The holy place speaks of man's need in approaching God. The holy of holies exhibits the higher truth of God's desire for worship. Sweet incense floated up to Him from the golden altar. His Presence abode above the ark of the covenant between the cherubim. The stone tablets of the covenant were securely hid from sight beneath the lid of the ark, which was the propitiatory or mercy seat. Here it is that Jehovah met the mediator of His people.

The word rendered "censer" is sometimes translated "golden altar". But it is used twice in the LXX of a "censer in his hand" (2 Chron.26¹⁹; Ezek.8¹¹), and never of the golden altar. This was before the curtain, not in the holy of holies. Worship is not in view, so the altar is not mentioned.

⁶ The chief lesson of the tabernacle structure (as well as that of the temple) never seems to have entered the minds and hearts in Israel. A God Who hid Himself behind thick curtains, and Who forbade access into His presence except on rare occasions, Who divided the holy places into two compartments and dwelt alone in the furthest one, out of reach of all except the high priest once a year, makes it evident that the way to Him is far from open. And, as a consequence, the services based on these barriers must be impotent to clear the way, and were temporary measures, lasting only until Christ would crush all barriers by His surpassing sacrifices, and open the way of access to His presence.

¹³ For if the blood of he-goats and of bulls and the ashes of a heifer, sprinkling the contaminated, is hallowing to the cleanness of the flesh, ¹⁴ how much rather shall the blood of Christ, Who, through the eonian spirit offers Himself, flawless to ¹³ This refers to the two great sin-offerings of Lev. 16 and Num. 19. The victim was burned, the ashes preserved, and water that flowed over them availed to purify. This ordinance fills an important place in Israel's future as well as its past (Ezek. 36²⁵).

¹⁵ This new covenant is for Israel and Judah only. The nations have no part in it at all. They never had the law and never will have it. They never had a divine service or a tabernacle, neither were the promises made to them. All of this is for the Hebrews only.

¹⁶ The rendering "testament" and "testator" has no concord whatever with the context. It is true that a testament is of no force while the testator is living, but that has no possible application here. If the covenant with Abram were a testament made by God, then, according to the reasoning, it has no force so long as God lives! The old covenant was confirmed by death—not the death of either party to the covenant, but by the sacrifices which the young men offered (Ex. 24⁵⁻⁸). The blood of these victims was sprinkled on the scroll of the covenant and on the people.

¹⁸ The old covenant, under which the people rashly contracted to do all that the law demanded, was dedicated with the blood of calves and he-goats. The new is inaugurated with the blood of Christ, which has power to fend all failure, and refuses all human help.

God, be cleansing your conscience from dead works to be offering divine service to the living and true God?

- ¹⁵ And, therefore, He is the Mediator of a new covenant, so that, a death occurring for the deliverance of the transgressions of those under the first covenant, they who have been called may be obtaining the promise of an eonian enjoyment of the allotment. For, where there is a covenant, it is necessary to bring in the death of the covenant [victim], for a covenant is confirmed over the dead, since it is availing at no time when the covenant [victim] is living.
- ¹⁸ Whence neither the first has been dedicated apart from blood.
- ¹⁹ For, every precept being spoken by Moses to the entire people according to the law, taking the blood of calves and of he-goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, he sprinkles the scroll itself as well as the entire people, saying, "This is the blood of the covenant which God directs with you." Now the tabernacle also, and all the vessels of the ministry he likewise sprinkles with blood. And almost all is being cleansed in blood according to the law, and apart from bloodshedding is coming no pardon.
- ²³ It is necessary, then, for the examples, indeed, of what is in the heavens to be cleansed by these, yet the celestial things themselves by better sacrifices than these. For Christ entered not into holy places made by hands, representations of the true, but into heaven itself, now to be disclosed before the face of God for our sakes. Nor is it that He may be offering Himself

²⁶ It is evident that Christ did not appear at "the end of the world", nor, indeed, at the conclusion of the eons. Neither has sin been completely eliminated. Such, however, is the efficacy of His sacrifice, that we know that sin must eventually be banished from the universe. And we know also that this will be at the conclusion of the eons. Hence this somewhat complicated sentence has been rendered to this effect.

²⁸ This appearance of Christ refers to His return to Israel. He will bring salvation to all, whether they watch or are drowsy (1 Thess.5¹⁰) when He comes for us. But to Israel He brings salvation to those awaiting Him. Just as the high priest entered the holy of holies on the great day of atonement and came out to bless the waiting throng, so Christ has entered the heavenly sanctuary and will bring a benediction when He comes.

⁵ The unbeliever's objection that the God of Israel was a terrible God Who delighted in the blood of slain beasts, is here directly denied. The whole sacrificial system, not only as an often, even as the chief priest is entering into the holies of holies yearly by the blood of others, since then He must often be suffering from the disruption of the world, yet now, once, has He been manifested through His sacrifice, for the repudiation of sin at the conclusion of the eons.

²⁷ And, inasmuch as it is reserved to the men to be dying once, yet ²⁸ after this a judging, thus Christ also, being offered once for the bearing of the sins of many, will be seen a second [time], by those awaiting Him, apart from sin, for salvation, through faith.

10 For the law, having a shadow of future good, not the very image of the matters, they with their same sacrifices which they are offering yearly are never finally able to perfect those approaching. Else should they not cease being offered, because those offering divine service, having been once cleansed, have no longer a conscience as to sins? But in them there is a recollection of sins yearly, for it is impossible for the blood of bulls and of he-goats to be eliminating sins.

⁵ Wherefore, entering into the world, He is saying,

"Sacrifice and offering

Thou wilt not,

Yet a body dost Thou adapt to Me.

⁶ In holocausts and those concerning sin

Thou dost not delight.

⁷ Then said I,

'Lo! I am arriving (in the summary of the scroll it is written concerning Me)

To do Thy will, O God."

⁸ Further, when saying that "Sacrifice and offering and holocausts atonement for sin, but also as a means of worship by whole burnt offerings, gave Him no pleasure in itself, but only as it was typical of the true. The physical perfection of an animal was nothing to Him except as a reminder of the moral and spiritual perfection of the One Who came to do His will. The blood of beasts could cover sins, but had no power to put them away, yet it foretold the true Sacrifice, and the sufferings which suffice to offset all sins—covered or uncovered—and eventually to justify all who have committed them as well as to vindicate God for the presence of sin in the world. These grander results are not, of course, in view in this epistle.

7 So Christ "offers Himself flawless to God", not at the cross, but on coming into the world, as the Israelite presented his sacrifice at the door of the tabernacle (Lev.11-5).

11 The great difference between the Levitical sacrifices and that of their Antitype is graphically brought before us in the action of the chief priests and the inaction of Christ. Indeed, had the sacrifices of the law been really efficacious, like that of Christ, there never would have been a priesthood and a sacrificial system. Moses would have offered one sacrifice, such as that at the inauguration of the covenant (Ex.24⁵), and, there being no further necessity for sacrifice, there would have been no need for a priesthood. The Aaronic priesthood is built on its own inadequacy. Its continuous round of unavailing ritual knew no goal, brooked no cessation, and gave no rest. No priest was allowed to sit in the holy places, for his work was never final. In these things the type is in contrast with the antitype, for Christ is seated in the holy of holies so far as His priesthood is concerned.

15 Under the new covenant, when Judah and Israel are restored to their land, the sin offering will be offered again (Eze.43²²), but it is evident that it will not be for those who have been pardoned.

19 The "recently slain way" is a reference to the path into the temple. On either side were the bodies of the sacrifices which had just been slain, and offered to Jehovah. It, however, was a dead way, and no one but a priest and those concerning sin Thou wilt not, neither dost Thou delight" (which are being offered according to law) then He has declared, "Lo! I am arriving to do Thy will, O God!" He is despatching the first, that He should be establishing the second. By which will we are hallowed through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once.

11 And every chief priest, indeed, stands ministering daily and offering often the same sacrifices, which never can take sins from about us. 12 Yet This One, when offering one sacrifice for sins, is seated to a finality at the right hand of God, 13 waiting furthermore till His enemies may be placed as a footstool 14 for His feet. For by one offering He has made those who are hallowed perfect to a finality.

15 Now the holy spirit also is testifying to us, for after having declared, "'This is the covenant which I shall be covenanting with them after those days', the Lord is saying, 'imparting My laws to their hearts, I shall be inscribing them on their comprehension also, and of their sins and their lawlessnesses shall I under no circumstances be still reminded.' " Now where there is a pardon of these, there is no longer offering concerned with sin.

19 Having, then, brethren, boldness for the entrance of the holy places 20 by the blood of Jesus, by a recently slain and living way which He dedicates for us, through the curtain, that is, His flesh, and a great 21 Priest over the house of God, we 22 may be approaching with a true dared enter upon it. The way now lies through the death and resurrection of Christ, hence is a living way, though recently slain. Then even the priest dares not venture through the curtain, behind which the Shekinah glory dwelt. Now, however, the Hebrews of every tribe have access, not only into the outer court of the priests, but into the holy place and into the holy of holies, where the high priest went but once a year. He went with fear and trembling, but they are invited to enter with assurance, because of the efficacy of this sprinkled blood and the cleanliness which comes through His word (Jn.15³). It is as worshipers they are to approach. This epistle speaks of Christ's priesthood, and not of that of His people.

²⁷ Under the law, one who sinned "presumptuously" (Nu.15³⁰), or, as the Hebrew has it, "with a high hand", was to be cut off from among his people, because he had despised the word of Jehovah and broken His commandment. The man who gathered sticks on the sabbath day was stoned to death (Nu.15³²⁻³⁶). The voluntary sin here referred to is doubtless the repudiation of the truth and apostasy from the faith. The faith of the Hebrews, having been founded on the powers and signs which were given as a token of the near approach of the kingdom, was sorely tried when these signs ceased and the kingdom did not come. But those who drew back could not do so without reproaching God and trampling on the Son of God and inviting the fiery jealousy of Jehovah. For such there is no sin offering, since they refuse the only Sacrifice that is of any avail. They are calling down the vengeance of God.

How great is the contrast between these Hebrews and those who came under the ministry of Paul! Their faith did not fail for lack of evidence, because it was never founded on it (2 Co.5⁷). They come so completely under the dominion of grace, that persistence in sin would only increase the outflowing of favor (Ro.6¹). We are beyond the sphere of condemnation (Ro.8¹). The Hebrews were never introduced into such grace as this, for their destiny is the kingdom.

heart, in the assurance of faith, with hearts sprinkled from a wicked conscience, and a body bathed in clean water.

²³ We may be retaining the avowal of the expectation without wavering, for faithful is He Who promises. And we may be considering one another to incite to love and ²⁴ ideal acts, not abandoning the assembling of ourselves together, according as the custom of some is, but entreating, and so much rather as you are observing the day drawing near.

²⁹ Now be recollecting the former days in which, being enlightened, you endure a vast competition of ³⁰ sufferings, in this, indeed, being a gazing stock of reproaches as well as afflictions, yet in this, becoming participants of those behaving

1 Faith is neither "substance" nor "evidence", as is the usual rendering of this passage. The word "substance" is changed to "confidence" in most later translations, as this word seems to agree with its context in 2 Co. 9:11¹⁷. But "confidence" is not at all suitable in He. 13, where the A. V. has "person". The Revisers change this to "substance"—the very rendering they refuse in this passage! But faith is intangible, the very opposite of substance. It assumes that to be truth which it expects to become fact in the future. The word "assumption" fits every passage in which this word occurs and opens up a marvelous vista of truth, as when we are told that the Son is the Emblem of the divine assumptions. God assumes various characters during His administration of the eons. He is Creator, Saviour, Judge, and Reconciler. In every assumption He is represented by His Son, Who, as His Emblem, is also the Creator, Saviour, Judge, and Reconciler. In his second epistle to the Corinthians, Paul assumes the attitude of boasting. Faith cannot become "substance" without being transmuted into sight.

3 That the worlds were framed is not pertinent to this passage. It deals with the change in God's administration of the eons as a result of the refusal of the kingdom proclamation. God has come in afresh, and, through the revelations made to the apostle Paul, has readjusted the eons to suit the conditions brought about by the apostasy of Israel. Those associated with this new grace find that, in spirit, not the kingdom, but the new creation has come (2 Co. 5:17), and not only so, but the very consummation has arrived (1 Co. 10:11). This does not preclude the actual kingdom in the future for which the Hebrews hope. They died in faith, like the elders, not having received the promises. The faith of the Pentecostal Hebrews was largely founded on miracles and signs. Our sheer faith has no foundation but God's declaration. Therefore, in spirit, we soar far ahead of the Hebrews, beyond the Regeneration, into the New Creation.

4 Cain is a type of natural religion, which offers a bloodless sacrifice, 34 thus. For you sympathize with my prisoners also, and anticipate the pillage of your possessions with joy, knowing you yourselves have better and permanent property in the heavens.

35 You should not, then, be casting away your boldness, which is having a great reward, for you have need of endurance, that, doing the will of God, you should be requited with the promise. For still how very little, "He Who is coming will be arriving and not delaying." "Yet My just one shall be living by faith," and "If he should be shrinking, My soul is not delighting in him." Yet we are not of those shrinking back to destruction, but of faith for the procuring of the soul.

11 Now faith is an assumption of what is being expected, a conviction concerning matters which are not being observed; for in this testimony was borne to the elders. By faith we are apprehending the eons to have been readjusted to a declaration of God, so that what is being observed has not come out of what is apparent.

4 By faith Abel offers to God more of a sacrifice than Cain, through which it was testified that he was just, having God's testimony to his oblations, and through this, dying, he is still speaking.

5 By faith Enoch was transferred, so as not to perceive death, and was not found, because God transfers him. For before his transference he has the testimony of having been well pleasing to God. 6 Now apart from faith it is impossible to be well pleasing, for he who is approaching God must believe that He is, and is becoming a Re-which it has "acquired" from the cursed ground. Abel, "vanity", recognizing sin, was the first man whose blood was shed. Cain would not shed the blood of an animal, but does not shrink from shedding his brother's.

⁵ Enoch, in order to believe God, had a special revelation. Jude quotes from this early prophecy (Ju.^{14,15}). Though he walked with God, he evidently walked in the midst of a most ungodly generation, which, indeed, prepared the earth for the deluge. He registered his faith in the approaching judgment by naming his firstborn son Methuselah, which has been interpreted as "when he is dead it shall be sent". The deluge came in the year of his death. His longevity speaks of God's longsuffering.

⁷ As Enoch's faith kept him out of the impending judgment to which he testified, so Noah's faith led him safely through it. One was called upon to warn, the other to work. The building of the ark must have been a tremendous task to undertake in the face of the derision and opposition of the whole world. It was a continual reminder of the threatened doom, and condemned them by its very presence.

¹³ Here we have the key to this notable chapter. The Hebrews did not desire faith; they wanted fulfilment. They wanted no more promises, but performances. They wanted the kingdom to come. But the time had not yet arrived. The nation is apostate. God had begun a work among the nations, through the apostle Paul, which must be finished first. What then, is left for the Hebrews? They are ex-warder of those who are seeking Him out.

⁸ By faith Abraham, being called, obeys, coming out into the place which he was about to obtain to enjoy as an allotment, and came out, not versed in where he is coming.

⁹ By faith he sojourns in the land of promise as an alien, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the joint tenants of the same promise. ¹⁰ For he waited for the city having the foundations, whose Artisan and Architect is God.

¹¹ By faith Sarah herself also obtained power for the disruption of seed, and brought forth beyond the period of her prime, since she deems the Promiser faithful. ¹² Wherefore also were begotten by one, and these of one made dead, according as the constellations of heaven in multitude, and as the sand beside the sea shore innumerable.

¹³ These all died in faith, not being required with the promises, but, perceiving them at a distance, salute them also, and avow that they are strangers and expatriates on the earth. ¹⁴ For they who are saying such things are disclosing that they are seeking for a country of their own. ¹⁵ And, if, indeed, they had remembered that from which they came out they might have had occasion to go back again. ¹⁶ Yet now they are craving a better, that is, a horted to take the same ground as the faithful of old, who died in faith, not having received the promised blessings. Only in resurrection would they find the fulfilment which they longed for. Abraham never really enjoyed the land which was given to him. In the resurrection he and his seed will not only possess the land, during the day of the Lord, but they will have the still higher and better portion of the holy city, new Jerusalem, in the new creation.

¹⁷ That all this is in resurrection is further enforced by the offering of Isaac. Abraham had such confidence in God, that he was ready to slay his son, believing that God would rouse him from the dead in order to fulfil His promise. This is the faith that pleases God and which will count in the kingdom. Though Isaac was not killed on this occasion, his very birth had been like life from the dead, and his sacrifice, was practically accomplished, so far as Abraham's faith was concerned.

²⁰ Isaac was the depository of the promises, and it was his faith that led him to pass on the blessing. Nothing is said here of his failure to perceive that Jacob, not Esau, the firstborn of the flesh, was in the line of promise. See Gen. 27.

²¹ Jacob had learned one lesson of faith, doubtless from his own case. The firstborn of the flesh are not necessarily the first in the purpose of God. So Jacob had received the blessing Isaac intended for Esau. And now, when blessing Joseph's sons, he guided his hands deliberately so as to give the greater blessing to the younger son, even though Joseph had purposely placed them so that the first-born should be at his right hand (Gen. 48^{8,20}). And so Ephraim was preferred to Manasseh, though Joseph would have desired to have it otherwise.

²² Joseph believed the word that God had spoken to Abraham, saying that his people should sojourn in Egypt and be afflicted, and afterward should come out (Gen. 15^{13,14}). Therefore he told them before his death, "God will notably note you, and you shall bring up my bones from this place" (Gen. 50²⁵).

celestial, wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as their God, for He makes ready for them a city.

¹⁷ By faith Abraham, being tried, has offered Isaac, and he who receives the promises offered the ¹⁸ only begotten; he to whom it was spoken that "In Isaac shall your ¹⁹ seed be called," reckons that God is able to be rousing him from among the dead also, whence he recovers him in a parable also.

²⁰ By faith Isaac blesses Jacob and Esau concerning the future also.

²¹ By faith Jacob, when dying, blesses each of the sons of Joseph, and worships on the top of his staff.

²² By faith Joseph, at his decease, remembers concerning the exodus of the sons of Israel, and gives directions concerning his bones.

²³ By faith Moses, being born, was hid three months by his fathers, because they perceived that the little boy was handsome, and they were not afraid of the mandate of the king.

²⁴ By faith Moses, becoming great, disowns the term "son of Pharaoh's daughter", preferring rather

²⁵ to have evil with the people of God than to have a temporary enjoyment of sin, deeming the reproach

²⁶ of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt, for he looked ²⁷ away to the reward. By faith he left Egypt, not being afraid of the fury of the king, for he is staunch as seeing the Invisible.

²⁸ By faith he has the passover made and the pouring of blood, lest

 SON of-ISRAEL remembers OVER AND THE TOWARD-POURING OF-THE ²³ Moses' fathers also believed what God had spoken to Abram, and looked for Him to judge Egypt and deliver His people. No mandate of Pharaoh could thwart God's purpose or hinder the fulfilment of the promise. They were confident that the mandate would not be carried out. It is quite evident that it was not, or there would not have been a man in Israel, at the exodus, under forty years of age. On the contrary, this astute method of curbing Israel's power was used by God to place Moses in the family of Pharaoh, so that the brilliant king himself might provide the very instrument to defeat his own purpose.

²⁵ Moses feared when he found that his attempt to help his brethren became known (Ex.2¹⁴). And we would naturally suppose that it was fear that drove him to the back side of the desert, but we are assured that he did not fear, though he fled. Far greater still must have been the faith that stood firm before Pharaoh, that prepared the passover, that led the people out of the land in defiance of the forces of Egypt, and brought the people into the wilderness through the Red Sea.

³⁰ The wilderness seems to be almost devoid of faith, for the enumeration of faith's victories passes from Egypt to the land. Indeed, with faith there would not have been the wanderings in the wilderness. And this is the inspired type of which the Pentecostal era is the antitype! Had the nation believed, the kingdom would have come. Now the few faithful who are left are pointed to the worthies who, like themselves, have nothing but God's bare word, yet believed it, and anticipated its fulfilment, seldom receiving the benefits which it promised.

the exterminator of the firstborn should come into contact with them.

²⁹ By faith they crossed the Red Sea as through dry land, which attempting, the Egyptians were swallowed up.

³⁰ By faith the walls of Jericho fall, being surrounded on seven days.

³¹ By faith Rahab the prostitute perished not with the stubborn, receiving the spies with peace.

³² And what may I still be saying? For time will be lacking for me to relate concerning Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephtha, David, as well as ³³ Samuel and the prophets, who, through faith, subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, happened on promises, barred the mouths of lions, ³⁴ quenched the power of fire, fled from the edge of the sword, were invigorated from infirmity, became strong in battle, routed the camps of aliens, ³⁵ women obtained their dead by resurrection, yet others are bastinadoed, not anticipating deliverance, that they may be happening upon a better resurrection.

³⁹ And these all, having testimony through faith, are not requited with

¹ This cloud of "witnesses" consists of those just enumerated, who witness to the life of faith. It has no reference to any who are watching the Hebrews. A witness is one who testifies, and it is the testimony of all the faithful, from Abel down, which constituted the moral atmosphere in which the Hebrews lived. Nevertheless, their popular sin was unbelief. Even as their fathers had witnessed the faith of Moses and saw the signs, yet were strewn along the wilderness for their lack of faith in God, so the Hebrews were prone to question the promises and to turn from the trials that lay along the path of faith.

² All the other examples of faith pale before the supreme Example. Even Abraham, the father of the faithful, failed once and again in the very virtue for which he is distinguished. But the Saviour, as a man, never faltered in His implicit confidence in God. He did always those things which pleased God without regard to the consequences to Himself. When His message was rejected, He acquiesced. Even though His God forsook Him in the hour of deepest need and sorest suffering, it did not shake His faith, for, at the very last, He committed His spirit into the Father's hands. And He alone, of all the faithful, has risen and received some reward for His faithfulness, for He has ascended to the right hand of God's throne. Such an example as this should be the most powerful of all incentives for the Hebrews to endure the trials of the way, and persevere to the end.

⁷ God's discipline is too often mistaken for His indignation. The presence of trials and distresses are not a proof of sin and God's anger, but may be the tokens of His love. Job's friends tried to convince him that his calamities came as the penalty of his own misdeeds. Job himself thought that God was his enemy and had conspired against him. All were wrong, for the blessed result of a closer knowledge of his Maker fully vindicated God for all the afflictions He had brought upon him. Job had heard of Him, but after his trial he could say that he had seen Him—a more intimate acquaintance.

⁴⁰ God's promise concerning us, looking forward to something better, that, apart from us, they may not be perfected.

¹² Surely, in consequence, then, we also, having a cloud of so many witnesses encompassing us, putting off every impediment and the popular sin, may be racing with endurance the contest lying before us, ² looking off to the Inaugurator and Perfecter of faith, Jesus, Who, instead of the joy lying before Him, endures a cross, despising the shame, besides has been seated at the right hand of the throne of God.

³ For take into account One Who has endured such contradiction by sinners among them, lest you should be faltering, fainting in your souls. ⁴ You did not as yet repulse unto ⁵ blood, contending against sin. And you have been oblivious of the entreaty which is arguing with you as sons,

"My son, do not disdain the discipline of the Lord,
Nor faint when convicted by Him.

⁶ For whom the Lord is loving He is disciplining.

Yet He is scourging every son to whom He is assenting."

⁷ You are enduring for discipline: God is bringing it to you as to sons, for what son is there whom the father is not disciplining? Now if you are without discipline, of which all have become partakers, consequently you are bastards and ⁹ not sons. Thereafter, indeed, we had discipliners—the fathers of our flesh—and we respected them. Yet shall we not much rather be subject to the Father of spirits and be living?

¹⁰ For they, indeed, disciplined for

¹⁸ The nation in the wilderness, at Mount Sinai, came to the terrible spectacle which inaugurated the law (Ex. 19:12-20). The whole scene was prophetic of the relation they would sustain to Jehovah under the legal covenant. He forbade a near approach under pain of death. It brought no peace or assurance, but fear and terror. This is the function of the law. It came, not to bring them near to God, but to convict them of their inability and unworthiness.

a few days as it seemed [best] to them, yet He for our expedience, for us to be partaking of His holiness. Now all discipline, indeed, at present is not seeming to be a joy, but a sorrow, yet subsequently it is rendering the peaceable fruit of righteousness to those exercised through it. Wherefore stiffen the flaccid hands and the paralyzed knees, and make upright tracks for your feet, that the lame may not turn aside, yet rather may be healed.

¹⁴ . Be pursuing peace with all, and holiness, apart from which no one shall see the Lord; supervising, that no one be wanting of the grace of God, nor any root of bitterness, sprouting up, may be annoying you, and through this the majority may be defiled, nor any paramour, or profane person, as Esau, who, for one feeding, gave up his own birthright. For you are aware that afterwards also, wanting to enjoy the allotment blessedness, he is rejected, for he did not find a place of repentance, though seeking it carefully with tears.

¹⁸ For you have not approached that which is tangible and burning with fire, and murkiness, and gloom, and tornado, and the blare of a trumpet, and the voice of declarations, which they who hear refuse, that no word be added to them, for they did not carry out that which was cautioned, "And if a wild beast should come in contact with the mountain, it shall be pelted with stones," and, so fearful was the spectacle, Moses said, "I am terrified and in a tremor;" but you have approached mount Zion, and the city of the living God, the celestial

OF-God LIVING JERUSALEM

²² There is a studied contrast here between the scene presented to the physical eye at Mount Sinai and the prospect of faith in connection with the new covenant. Mount Sinai itself is suggestive of another mountain which is the ultimate home of Israel in the new earth. The Lord is present, as He was in the wilderness, but here He is the Light, rather than the Lightning. Instead of being warned away for fear of death, the saints dwell near Him and enjoy the fruits of the tree of life and the draught of the river of life (Un.21, 22).

The law was given by the mandate of messengers (Ac.7⁵³). Now they are ministering spirits commissioned for service because of those who are about to be enjoying the allotment of salvation (Heb. 1¹⁴).

The universal convocation here referred to is probably that which is convoked at the opening of the day of the Lord when the representatives of the whole creation are summoned together before the judgments which usher in the kingdom are visited on the earth (Un.4, 5).

²³ The ecclesia of the firstborn recalls the passover, when the firstborn in Egypt were saved by the blood (Ex. 12¹⁵). As a consequence Jehovah claimed all the firstborn for Himself (Ex.13²; 34¹⁹). Later the Lord took the Levites in exchange for the firstborn (Nu.3¹²⁻¹³). Thus those ransomed by blood were the "ecclesia of the firstborn" in the wilderness. These Jehovah claimed for His own and these He brought near to Him in the Levites. So that the "church of the firstborn" comprises those under the shelter of the blood before the kingdom is set up. In the wilderness they were numbered on earth (Nu.3¹²), here they are registered in heaven.

God as Judge is especially appropriate to those who were waiting for Him to arise and judge His own people and the whole earth, as a preparation for the establishment of the kingdom. Not so do we know God.

²⁴ Under the law the spirits of the just never reached perfection, for its rites brought nothing to a finality. Perfection comes only through the Antitype of the ritual of the law.

Jerusalem, and ten thousands of messengers, a universal convocation, and the ecclesia of the firstborn registered in the heavens, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of the just perfected, and to Jesus, the Mediator of a fresh covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling which is speaking better than Abel.

²⁵ Beware! You should not be refusing Him Who is speaking! For if those escaped not, refusing the One appraising on earth, much rather we, who are turning from Him ²⁶ from the heavens, Whose voice then shakes the earth! Yet now He has promised, saying, "Still once more shall I be quaking, not only the earth, but heaven also." Now the ²⁷ "Still once more" is making evident the transference of that which is being shaken, as of that having been made, that what is not being shaken should be remaining.

²⁸ Wherefore, accepting an unshakable kingdom, we may be having grace through which we may be offering divine service in a way well pleasing to God with piety and ²⁹ dread, for our God is also a consuming fire.

13 Let brotherly affection be remaining. Be not forgetting hospitality, for through this some were ² oblivious when lodging messengers. Be mindful of those bound, as bound together; of those maltreated, as being yourselves also in ³ the body. Matrimony is honorable in all, and the bed undefiled, for God will be judging prostitutes and adulterers.

⁴ In manner not fond of money, being sufficed with what is present, for He has declared,

"Under no circumstances may I be lax,

²⁴ Moses was the mediator of the old covenant, but now One Who is more than Moses inaugurates a fresh covenant which cannot fail as the former, because it is founded on God's faithfulness alone.

²⁵ The judgments which will usher in the kingdom will be far more terrible and widespread than those at Mount Sinai. Under the sixth seal, the great cataclysm includes the sun, moon, and stars (Un.612,13).

⁷ The leaders were not official rulers, but men who were guides in ministry of the word and exemplary conduct.

⁸ It should be remembered that "the same" is a pronoun, and has reference to His personality, not to His administrations or assumptions. The same One pours out grace upon us and indignation on the nations in the Lord's day. The same One Who was weary at Sychar's well is now all-powerful. He Who was once lowly is now exalted, Who healed hundreds when on earth, refused to remove Paul's thorn in the flesh, Who hung on Calvary's cross and lay lifeless in the tomb is now alive and has ascended to God's right hand. His person, service, and dispensations change to accord with God's purpose, but He Himself remains the same.

⁹ It is evident that the strange teachings here referred to do not tend toward grace but physical gratification.

¹¹ The camp can refer to nothing else than the established ritual of Judaism. The great Sin Offering suffered outside the city of Jerusalem. So it behooved His followers to forsake the city and the system of religion which cast Him out, and follow Him outside of it all. Jerusalem was not the permanent abode of God's saints. It was to be utterly destroyed. This was done not long after this epistle was written. The eye of faith looked forward to the heavenly Jerusalem on the earth.

Neither may I be abandoning you by any means."

⁶ So that we have courage to say,

"The Lord is my helper,
And I shall not be afraid of what man shall be doing to me!"

⁷ Be remembering your leaders, who speak the word of God to you, contemplating the sequel of their behavior, whose faith be imitating: Jesus Christ, yesterday and today; the same for the eons also.

⁹ Be not carried aside by varied and strange teachings, for it is ideal to confirm the heart by grace, not by foods, by which those who walk were not benefited.

¹² Wherefore Jesus also, that He should be hallowing the people through His own blood, suffered outside the gate. Now, then, we may be coming out to Him outside the camp, carrying His reproach. For here we are not having a permanent city, but we are seeking for the future one. Through Him, then, we may be offering up the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of the lips, avowing His name.

¹⁶ Now be not forgetful of well doing and contributing, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

¹⁷ Be persuaded by your leaders, and be deferring to them, for they are vigilant for the sake of your souls, as having to render an account, that they may be doing this with joy, and not with groaning, for this is disadvantageous for you.

¹³ This is the climax of the epistle. The choice is between faith and apostasy. The reference is to the ritual of the golden calf (Ex.33). It would have been apostasy to go outside the camp had there not been apostasy in the camp. Israel had again ceased to be "the congregation of the Lord", and they must either take sides with Messiah who suffered outside the gate or apostatize. An apostate recognizes truth and refuses to obey it.

²⁰ The God of peace—what an anchor for the turbulent souls of the Hebrews in the tumult of the times in which they lived! Josephus could write a whole book on the subject of the Jewish War which kept Palestine in continual turmoil up to the destruction of Jerusalem under Titus. How fitting to close the epistle with this title! In the coming kingdom Christ will be King of Salem (or peace) as well as King of righteousness. In perfect keeping with this is the pastoral picture of the great Shepherd. As the good Shepherd He gave His soul for the sheep. Now, as the great Shepherd, in resurrection, He still cares for and protects His own. Beautiful as this picture is, it finds its place on earth, and may be applied only to Israel, the nation of His choice. The church is not a sheepfold. Israel is not "one fold", as in A. V., but "one flock" (Jn.10¹⁶). Within the fold sheep do not need the Shepherd's care, but when they are led out to pasture he guides and defends them. These Hebrews were far from the fold.

¹⁸ Be praying concerning us, for we are persuaded that we have an ideal conscience, in all wanting to behave ideally. Now I am entreating you more exceedingly to do this, that I may be restored to you more speedily.

²² Now I am entreating you, brethren, bear with the word of entreaty, for I dispatch the letter to you by bits. Know that our brother Timothy has been released, with whom, if he should be coming more speedily, I shall be seeing you.

²⁴ Greet all your leaders, and all the saints. They from Italy are greeting you.

²⁵ Grace be with you all. Amen!

JAMES TO THE TWELVE TRIBES

NONE of the Circumcision epistles so clearly indicates the class to whom it is written as the letter of James to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Its conflict with Paul's epistles is so pronounced that Luther rejected its authority, and endless attempts have been made to find a means of reconciliation, without coming to any satisfactory solution. Once it is apprehended that this epistle is for a different people and a distinct administration, all need of reconciliation vanishes and we are not tempted to tone down Paul or drag up James to a common level.

The contrast between the ministry of James and that of Paul is graphically illustrated in their lives: Paul was born at a distance from the land of Israel, and had no relations with the Lord until after His ascension into heaven. James, on the contrary, was born of the same mother as the Lord, and lived in the land all his life. In Paul the spiritual comes to the fore, in James, the physical.

The very name of James is suggestive. It is practically the same as Jacob, or Supplanter, who, in his career, exemplified the energy of the flesh, and whose name was changed to Israel when the flesh was subdued. The name was also applied to the nation when their crooked ways called for it rather than for the name Israel. Hence it may be taken to indicate the low spiritual state of those to whom this epistle is addressed.

In the early part of Acts Peter has his rightful place at the head of the apostles, but, even as early as Paul's first visit to Jerusalem, James had a prominent place, though he was not an apostle (Gal.1¹⁹). Fourteen years later he had risen to be one of the pillars in Jerusalem and was named before Peter and John (Gal.2⁹). Peter was afraid of some who came from James (Gal.2¹²).

At the council in Jerusalem to consider the question of circumcising the nations and putting them under the law, James had the decisive word and formulated the decrees, which were hostile to the nations (Col.2¹⁴), and which were nullified when the present secret administration was inaugurated (Eph.2¹⁵).

At Paul's last visit to Jerusalem James was apparently the only one worth mentioning in authority in the city. The Lord's chosen apostles have disappeared and in their position the people have placed one whose chief claim was his physical relation to our Lord. James rises in proportion to the depth of the nation's apostasy.

So that, at the close of Acts we have two men who embody the two divergent lines, the downward trend of Israel and the upward trend of the nations. Paul repudiates all physical relationship to Messiah and enters the realm of spiritual blessedness among the celestials (2 Co.5¹⁰). James emphasizes his physical kinship with Christ and drags the nation down into the sphere of flesh, thus preparing the way for their repudiation by God.

In this light we are able to understand the unusually low plane of truth in this epistle. It begins with physical limitations and closes with physical healing. It teaches justification by works and law keeping. All these had their place in that failing economy, but let us beware that we do not adulterate the precious truth for the present with such unspiritual doctrines.

There are three Jameses mentioned in the Greek Scriptures, James, the son of Zebedee, the first martyr among the Twelve (Acts 12²); James the Less, the son of Alphaeus (Mat.10³); and the writer of this epistle.

¹ James is never called an apostle and does not write this epistle in that character. Rather, he puts himself in the place of a slave. Hence the epistle is not concerned with authoritative teaching so much as with service.

¹ Nothing can be plainer than the fact that this letter is addressed to a special class. It is not for the tribes in the land. It is absolutely impossible to apply it indiscriminately to the nations without causing the utmost confusion. It is solely and exclusively for the sons of Israel outside the land, in the dispersion.

² The tumultuous times, the provocation and persecution of the Romans, the fanatical commotions of the Jews, the repeated insurrections and revolts in the land, all contributed to bring many trials upon those of the dispersion who espoused the cause of Christ. At one time Claudius commanded all Jews to depart from Rome (Ac.18²), and those of the Circumcision who believed never ceased considering themselves Jews. The "Christians" were understood to be a Jewish sect.

³ It has been pointed out that the papyri sometimes use the word "testing" as an adjective, the equivalent of "tested" or "genuine", as it is in this passage and especially in 1 Pe.17, the only other occurrence. But it was not their faith which was producing endurance, but the testing of their faith. Hence the word has its usual grammatical force here. In Peter also, the Greek idiom, which we have tried to carry over into English, accounts for the difficulty, and allows us to translate the word uniformly. The papyri were mostly written in upper Egypt, far from the land of Israel and the countries to which the scriptures were first sent. Not only are they tinged with local idiom, but were written loosely, as we write English in our every day transactions, with little regard for the correctness and accuracy which characterize a divine revelation. They are no criteria as to the meaning of words which occur several times in the scriptures, or are found in the Septuagint.

⁵ This letter records more of our Lord's teaching as recorded in the gospels than any other epistle.

JAMES, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion, Rejoice!

² ALL joy deem it, my brethren, whenever you should be falling into ³ various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith is producing
⁴ endurance. Now let endurance have its perfect work, that you may be perfect and unimpaired, lacking in nothing.

⁵ Now if any of you is lacking wisdom let him be requesting it from God, Who is giving to all generously, and is not reproaching, and it
⁶ shall be given to him. Yet let him be requesting in faith, doubting nothing, for he who is doubting simulates a surge of the sea driven by ⁷ the wind and tossed. For let not that man be surmising that he shall be obtaining anything from the ⁸ Lord: a man double-souled, turbulent in all his ways.

⁹ Now let the humble brother be
¹⁰ glorying in his exaltation, yet the rich in his humiliation, seeing that, as the flower of grass, he shall pass
¹¹ by. For the sun rises, together with a scorching wind, and withers the grass, and its flower falls off, and the comeliness of its aspect was destroyed. Thus the rich also in his goings shall fade.

¹² Happy is the man who is enduring trial, seeing that, becoming qualified, he will be obtaining the wreath of life, which He promises
¹³ to those loving Him. Now let no one, being tried, be saying that "I am being tried by God". for God is not tried by evil, yet He is trying no one.

5 Even faith is different in quality in James from that found in Paul's writings. There faith is the necessary channel of grace, because it has no merit in itself. Here faith is more in the nature of a meritorious act, apart from which no blessing can be expected.

9 James doubtless has a very special application to Israel in the time of the end. At that time (we seem to be on the verge of it even now) there will be many wealthy men among the Jews, so that their combined riches will enable them to have "a kingdom over the kings of the earth". They will form a plutocracy such as the earth has never seen. Yet they will be destroyed in the fall of Babylon (Un.18). Some of God's people will be in the city (Un.18⁴). James' warning seems to be most apt in the case of these. Should they lose their wealth in the destruction of the city, they would have nothing but their own allotment in the land. Even if not involved in Babylon's overthrow, it is impossible for a rich man to enter the kingdom with his riches (Mk.10²³), for the readjustments of that day will take his wealth from him.

12 Life, in James, is the result of endurance to the consummation. Hence it is figured by the victor's wreath. We cannot boast of our life in Christ, but, in the kingdom, life comes to those who overcome.

17 It is a fact that all physical blessing may be traced to the sun as its source. All life that teems on the earth is directly or indirectly dependent on it. Hence God is compared to the sun in His beneficence. All spiritual good comes down from Him just as all natural good descends from the sun. The moon, however, is not a source of light, but a mere reflection. It is inconstant, now full orb'd and now a faint streak in the sky. The earth, too, in its turning, changes from light to darkness.

21 The salvation of the soul has to do with the feelings and experience, not, as is usually supposed, with ultimate destiny. The soul is the seat of sensations. If these are pleasant and agreeable, if there is comfort and joy, the soul is saved. To lose the soul is to part with the power of enjoyment.

14 Now each one is being tried, being drawn away and lured by his own desire. Thereafter, the desire, conceiving, is bringing forth sin. Now sin, fully consummated, is teeming forth death.

16 Be not deceived, my beloved brethren. All good giving and every perfect gratuity is from above, descending from the Father of lights, in Whom there is no mutation or shadow from its revolution. By intention, He teems forth us by the word of truth, for us to be some first-fruit of His own creatures.

19 Now be aware, my beloved brethren! Yet let every man be swift to hear, tardy to talk, tardy to anger, for the anger of man is not working the righteousness of God. Wherefore, putting off all filthiness and superabundance of evil, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.

22 Now become doers of the word, and not only listeners, beguiling yourselves, seeing that, if anyone is a listener to the word and not a doer, this one simulates a man considering the face he inherited in a mirror, for he considers himself and has come away, and immediately forgot what kind he was. Now he who peers into the perfect law of freedom and abides, not becoming a forgetful listener, but a doer of the work, this one will be happy in his doing.

26 If anyone is seeming to be a ritualist, not bridling his tongue, ²⁶ The outward form of divine service, the rites and ceremonies of the sacerdotal system of Moses, was but the exterior shell of truth. It was the letter: truth was the spirit. The ritual was full of precious meaning. But most ritualists feed on the husks and throw away the kernel. It should have its counterpart in a righteous and beneficent life. With us, who serve God in spirit, and have no confidence in flesh, ritual is a relapse into the shadows, when we have the substance in Christ. We are warned against it in the epistle to the Colossians. "Now let no one be arbitrating against you willfully, by a humble disposition and the ritual of messengers, parading what is seen, affectingly inflated by his fleshly mind, and not holding the Head . . ." (Col. 2:18).

² The scene here depicted could hardly be imagined outside the traditional synagogue of that early day, for the ecclesias or "churches" had not yet become as like the synagogues as those we know today. One of the signs of present apostasy is this spirit of toadying to the rich and despising the poor. It can have no place where our position in Christ is appreciated. A rich man who enjoys God's grace is pained by such partiality.

⁸ James writes to those under the law. Showing partiality to the rich and offending the poor is an infraction of the precept to be loving your associate as yourself. But the law is not only intersocial. It has a divine side. A single transgression, no matter what it is, brings in a breach between the One Who gave the law and the culprit. The breaker of one commandment is not "guilty" of all, but enters into the same condemnation as those who commit all the other crimes in its category.

but seducing his heart, the ritual of ²⁷ this one is vain, for clean ritual and undefiled with God, even the Father, is this, to be visiting the bereaved and widows in their affliction, to be keeping oneself unspotted from the world.

² My brethren, be having no partialities in the faith of our Lord ² Jesus Christ of glory. For if there should be entering into your synagogue a man with a gold ring, in splendid attire, yet there should be entering a poor man also in filthy ³ attire, and you should be looking on the one wearing the splendid attire and be saying, "You be sitting here in this fine seat," and to the poor be saying, "You be standing there", or "Be sitting here under ⁴ my footstool," were you not discriminating among yourselves and did you not become judges with wicked reasonings?

⁵ Hear, my beloved brethren! Does not God choose the poor in the world, rich in faith and enjoyers of the allotment of the kingdom which He promises to those who are ⁶ loving Him? Yet you dishonor the poor one. Are not the rich tyrannizing over you? And they are ⁷ drawing you to tribunals. Are not they blaspheming the ideal name which is being invoked over you?

⁸ Howbeit, if you are discharging the royal law, according to the scripture, "You shall be loving your associate as yourself", you ⁹ are doing ideally. Now if you are showing partiality, you are working sin, being convicted by the law ¹⁰ as transgressors. For anyone who should be keeping the whole law, yet be tripping in one thing, has be-

¹⁴ James looks at faith entirely from the human side, Paul from the divine. What a man says he has, if he has it not, cannot, of course, save him. But James is not speaking of a pretended faith. He boldly says that faith cannot save. He insists that faith apart from works is dead. Yet Paul is affirming that righteousness is through faith, that it may accord with grace (Ro.4¹⁶). And he insists that if it is grace, it is no longer out of works, else grace comes to be no longer grace (Ro.11⁶). The salvation to which James refers does not include justification, hence there is not the necessity for grace. Paul speaks of grace continually, and refers to it over a hundred times in his epistles. James only mentions it twice in one passage (4⁶). James is dealing with a nation in covenant relationship with God, and an administration in which faith and works are mingled, whereas Paul is connected with the dispensation of unadulterated grace to those who have no claim on God whatever.

Such a combination as James insists on would do away entirely with all the blessings which have come to the nations on the ground of grace, for it is impossible for grace to operate except through sheer, unaided faith. It will not do to say that such faith is vital and must manifest itself in works. This is true, yet such works are in no sense the root of righteousness. They are the fruit. To add works to a dead faith would not vivify it.

Briefly, the differences between Paul and James are not to be explained away. They are irreconcilable contradictions if we take them to refer to the same divine administration and the same people. Left to their own time and place, there is no reason why they should agree. God is continually changing His methods, to conform to the various objects He has in view.

¹⁸ The solid foundation stands with this seal: "The Lord knew those who are His" (2 Ti. 2¹⁹). Suppose we do not know? That does not affect their salvation. God knows the heart and does not need any demonstration. Not so with men. Before we accept a man's faith we demand that he depart

¹¹ come liable for all. For He Who is saying, "You should not be committing adultery" said also "You should not be murdering." Now if you are not committing adultery, yet are murdering, you have become a transgressor of law. Thus be speaking and thus be doing, as those about to be judged by means of the law of freedom. For the judgment is merciless to him who exercises no mercy. Mercy is vaunting against judgment.

¹⁴ What is the benefit, my brethren, if anyone should be saying he has faith, yet may have no works? The faith cannot save him. If a brother or sister should be naked and lacking nurture for the day, yet any of you may be saying to them, "Go away in peace, be warmed and satisfied", yet you should not be giving them what is requisite for the body, what is the benefit? Thus, also, is faith, if you should not have works: it is dead by itself.

¹⁸ But someone will be declaring. "You have faith and I have works." Show me your faith apart from the works and I shall be showing you my faith by my works.

¹⁹ You are believing that God is one. You are doing ideally. The demons also are believing and shuddering.

²⁰ Now are you wanting to know, O empty man, that faith apart

²¹ from works is dead? Was not Abraham, our father, justified by works, offering up his son Isaac

²² on the altar? You are observing that faith worked together with his works, and by works was faith

²³ perfected. And the scripture was fulfilled which is saying, "Now Abraham believes God, and it is reckoned to him for righteous-from iniquity. This is the ground of James. It is not what appears to the Lord, but to men.

²⁰ The case of Abraham is most helpful in further defining the distinct viewpoints of Paul and James. The former refers us to the fifteenth chapter of Genesis, the latter to the twenty-second. In the fifteenth chapter Abram's spiritual seed alone is in view, for Abram is taken outside his tent and shown the stars of heaven. And the Lord said to him, "So shall your seed be." And he believed the Lord; and He counted it to him for righteousness. This was followed by the unconditional covenant.

The twenty-second chapter is a trial of the faith which he had, in that the seed through whom his promised posterity should come was to be sacrificed and slain. Here we have the perfecting of his faith and the fulfillment of the previous passage.

The fifteenth chapter deals with Abram before circumcision, and his spiritual seed, and their justification. The twenty-second chapter deals with Abraham after his circumcision, and his physical seed (some of whom would be spiritual also), and their blessing, as well as their becoming a channel of blessing to the other nations. Paul cannot take the latter passage because he speaks of faith righteousness to the uncircumcised in an era when no blessing flows through Abraham's physical seed. James naturally and rightly takes it because it is the one which refers especially to the twelve tribes to whom he is writing. It was Abraham's faith combined with his obedience which was the basis of their blessing, and it is their faith combined with works which saves them. The works of Abraham were meritorious only as an evidence of faith.

Let us leave this to those who belong to the Circumcision, who are Abraham's seed according to the flesh, and who live under the kingdom administration. We have an immeasurably better and higher place than can be accorded those who mix their own efforts with God's beneficence. His undiluted grace brings blessings which are possible only when God is left to carry out the dictates of His heart unhindered by human help.

ness", and he was called "the friend of God". You see that a man is being justified by works, and not by faith only.

²⁵ Now likewise, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when entertaining the messengers and ejection them by a different way? For even as the body apart from the spirit is dead, thus also faith apart from works is dead.

³ Do not become many teachers, my brethren, being aware that we shall be getting greater judgment.

² For we all are tripping much. If anyone is not tripping in word, this one is a perfect man, able to ³ bridle the whole body also. Now if we are putting the horses' bits into their mouths so that they are yielding to us, we are steering their
⁴ whole body also with it. Lo! the ships also, being prodigious, and driven by the hard winds, are being steered by the least rudder, where the impulse of the helmsman is
⁵ intending. Thus the tongue, also, is a little member and is grandiloquent.

Lo! A stupendous fire is kindling a stupendous amount of material. And the tongue is a fire, a world of injustice. The tongue is constituted among our members that which is spotting the whole body, and setting the wheel of our lineage aflame, and is set aflame by Gehenna.

⁷ For every nature, of wild beasts as well as flying creatures, reptiles as well as of the salt sea, is being tamed and has been tamed by human nature. Yet the tongue can no man tame, a turbulent evil, distended with death-dealing venom. With it we are blessing the Lord and Father, and with it we are cursing

It seems almost incredible to find such a low moral standard in this epistle, especially as works are demanded for salvation. The untamable tongue, cursing, jealousy, strife, battles and fighting are all spoken of as common amongst the twelve tribes. They are charged as being friends of the world, sinners, impure of heart and double souled. What a contrast is this with such epistles as Philipians and Thessalonians, even though these are written to those who, but a short time before, were steeped in heathenism and idolatry! The pure grace of God, unaided by legal precepts or other inducements, is far more potent in producing conduct which is pleasing to God than all the efforts prompted by the desire for salvation or controlled by the terrors of the law.

⁹ Our conduct should accord with God's attitude. Now that grace reigns, we are told to bless and not to curse (Ro.12¹⁴). But James seems to have no such precept in his royal law. The law curses all who break its commandments, and did not forbid cursing, so we should not be surprised when James includes the saints, "we are cursing men."

¹² The fig, the olive, and the vine, are all symbols of Israel. The fig speaks of national righteousness. When our Lord saw a fig tree on the road He sought some figs, but finding none, He cursed the tree and it withered away. So He came seeking national righteousness. As there was none the nation has withered away. The olive, being the source of the illuminating oil in the holy places, is a symbol of the light of God's revelation, which comes through Israel. The olive tree is Israel, the nations are simply temporary grafts, while Israel is apostate. God's word is confided to our keeping only until Israel is restored. Israel was an empty vine. They did not cheer the heart of God or man. Christ came as the real Vine. In the kingdom, as in Cana of Galilee, there will be spiritual joy and gladness from the vine Jehovah planted.

⁴ There can be little doubt that the adultery here referred to is defined in the next statement. In the Hebrew scriptures, an alliance with the world men who have come to be in accord with God's likeness.

¹⁰ Out of the same mouth is coming forth blessing and cursing. There is no need, my brethren, for this to become thus. Is any spring venting out of the same hole the sweet and the bitter? Can a fig tree, my brethren, produce olives, or a grape vine figs? Thus neither does sweet water produce brine.

¹⁷ Now the wisdom from above is first, indeed, pure, thereupon peaceable, lenient, compliant, bulging with mercy and good fruits, indiscriminating, unfeigned. Now the fruit of righteousness is being sown in peace, by peacemakers.

⁴ Whence are the battles and whence the fightings among you? Are they not hence: from your gratifications warring in your members? You are coveting and have not. You are murdering and are jealous, and you cannot encounter it. You are fighting and battling, and you have not because you are not requesting. You are requesting and not obtaining because you are requesting evilly that you should be spending on your gratifications.

was often spoken of in this way. Its fullest and most fitting application will be in the time of the end. Israel, as a nation, was to be separate and holy to the Lord. Now that they are scattered among the nations they are not only in the world but of it. Their chief object is to get as much of this world's goods as possible, and they are ready to make any alliance to accomplish this end. There will be a strong temptation for the believers among them in that day to fall in with this prevailing apostasy. Some of them will be found in great Babylon when it is destroyed.

⁵ This passage has puzzled the commentators, and there are many and various explanations offered to solve what seems to be one of the most difficult passages in the scriptures. A simple explanation, which allows a literal translation, is that the natural spirit of the Jew is to be envious. They are jealous of others' possessions or welfare. God uses this trait of their character in bringing them back to Himself. He provokes them to jealousy by dealing out grace to the nations. It is this envying of others' good which tempts them to make friends with the world, so that they may possess themselves of what seems so desirable in others. The attainment of this longing produces pride.

⁸ When we are still sinners, Christ died for us (Ro.5⁸). The whole tenor of Paul's epistles is against the application of this term to the believer in Christ Jesus. The exhortation to cleanse their hands cannot but suggest that they have been employed in defiling pursuits.

¹⁵ The abbreviation D. V., from the Latin Deo volente, God being willing, probably had its origin in this passage. It is one of the most characteristically Jewish pictures in the whole epistle. Who are like them in going from city to city, trafficking and getting gain?

Are you not aware that the friendship of this world is enmity with God? Whoever, then, should intend to be a friend of the world is constituted an enemy of God. Or are you supposing that the scripture is saying for naught, the spirit which dwells in us is longing to envy? Yet He is giving greater grace. Wherefore He is saying, "God is resisting the proud, yet is giving grace to the humble."

⁷ Be subject, then, to God, yet withstand the Slanderer and he will be fleeing from you. Draw near to God and He will be drawing near to you. Cleanse your hands, sinners, and purify your hearts, double souled! Be wretched and mourn and lament. Let your laughter be converted into mourning, and joy into dejection. ¹⁰ Be humbled, then, before the Lord and He shall be exalting you.

¹¹ Do not be speaking against one another, brethren. He who is speaking against a brother, or judging his brother, is speaking against law and is judging law. Now if you are judging law, you are not a doer of law, but a judge. ¹² There is One Lawgiver and Judge, Who is able to save and to destroy. Now who are you who are judging an associate?

¹³ Come now, you who are saying, "Today or tomorrow we will be going into some city and should be spending a year there, and we will be trafficking and getting gain"

¹⁴—who are not versed in that which is the morrow's, for what is your life? For you are an exhalation, appearing briefly and thereupon ¹⁵disappearing—instead of your saying "Should the Lord be willing, and we shall be living, we also will

¹ This is a most unpopular passage, for the church, in its spiritual poverty, caters to the rich, and does not desire to offend them by pressing this denunciation. And, indeed, it is evident that it cannot be applied universally without great injustice to some. But if we apply it to the last days, and to the sons of Israel in the coming era of Jacob's affliction, its full force is readily seen, and its just condemnation can be easily conceded. The immense accumulations of the Jews are being continually augmented by pandering to the lowest passions of the gentile peoples. Almost all forms of diversion and amusement are in their hands. No wonder such riches are rotted! Their income from interest alone equals the world's production of gold, so that they receive, without any effort on their part, all the gold that is mined. Their grasping for gain has become a proverb. No other people, as a class, is as shrewd and unscrupulous in making money. This condition of affairs is continually growing, so that, at the time of the end, it will be the most prominent feature of Judaism. Hence, if James' epistle is especially designed for that day, as we believe, it is a striking confirmation to find this strong denunciation of the rich Israelites as a part of its message.

¹⁶ be doing this or that." Yet now you are vaunting in your ostentations. Every such boast is wicked.

¹⁷ Then to one perceiving to be doing the ideal and not doing it, to him it is sin.

⁵ Come now, rich ones, lament, howling for your wretchedness

² which is coming on you. Your riches have rotted and your garments have become food for moths.

³ Your gold and silver have corroded and their venom will be a witness to you, and the venom will be eating your flesh as fire. You hoard

⁴ in the last days. Lo! the wages of the workers who are mowing your country places, of which you have cheated them, are crying, and the imploring of those who reap has entered into the ears of the Lord Sa-

⁵ baoth. You luxuriate on the earth, and squander. You nurture your

⁶ hearts as in a day of slaughter. You convict, you murder the just. He is not resisting you.

⁷ Be patient, then, brethren, till the presence of the Lord. Lo! the farmer is awaiting the precious fruit of the land, being patient about it till he should be getting the first and late fruit. You, also, then, be patient, establish your hearts, seeing that the presence of the Lord has drawn near.

⁹ Be not groaning, brethren, against one another, lest you may be judged. Lo! the Judge stands before the doors.

¹⁰ Be taking, my brethren, the example of suffering evil and patience you have—the prophets who ¹¹ speak in the name of the Lord. Lo!

centive to continue, and those who are striving would lose heart. With us the emphasis is on believe. Faith in God is the ground of grace which allows of no admixture of works, so far as salvation is concerned.

¹² This prohibition is essentially the same as that given by our Lord (Mt. 5³⁴).

So, also, with the word "falter". In Heb. 12³, the only other occurrence, they rendered it "wearied", because it is evidently a synonym of "faint". But they were not willing to say "shall save the wearied". It may be that the confession of sins to one another here inculcated, as a condition for healing, is the text which originally led to the confessional. It has no appeal for those who realize their completeness in Christ and the exclusively spiritual character of God's transcendent grace in this economy.

¹⁷ Elijah prayed in his prayer. He did not apportion praise and blame to men, or seek to flatter men and dictate to God.

¹⁸ This epistle, in a vague way, seems to be a literary reversal, that is, each subject is considered once in the first half, and referred to again in the second half, but in reverse order. We have the request for wisdom in the beginning (¹⁵) and the prayer for healing near the end (5:13-16). But the correspondences are not sufficiently close or consecutive to create a real skeleton of the epistle.

¹⁹⁻²⁰ The peril of straying will be specially great in the last days (Un. 22²⁰; 12²⁰; 13¹⁴). The ministry of restoration will be necessary. A deceived is in a worse plight than a sick man. The elders may help the latter, anyone may help the former. The ministry is its own reward. It does not mean that one can cover his own sins by trying to correct other people—a too common practise, we fear.

we are counting those happy who endure. You hear of the endurance of Job, and you perceived the Lord's consummation, seeing that the Lord is very compassionate and pitiful.

¹² Now before all, my brethren, do not be swearing, either by heaven, or by earth, or any other oath. Now let your "yes" be "yes", and "no" be "no", lest you should be falling under judgment.

¹³ Is anyone suffering evil among you? Let him be praying. Is anyone cheerful? Let him be playing

¹⁴ [music]. Is anyone infirm among you? Let him call the elders of the ecclesia, and let them pray over him, rubbing him with olive oil in the name of the Lord. And the vow of faith will be saving the faltering and the Lord will be rousing him up, and, should he have done sins, they will be forgiven him.

¹⁵ Then be confessing sins to one another and be praying over one another, so that you may be healed.

The active petition of the just is ¹⁷ availing much. Elijah was a man of like emotions with us, and he prays in prayer for it not to rain, and it does not rain on the earth ¹⁸ three years and six months. And again he prays, and heaven gives a shower and the earth germinates her fruit.

¹⁹ My brethren, if anyone among you should be led astray from the way of the truth, and some one ²⁰ should be turning him back, let him know that he who turns back a sinner out of the deception of his way will be saving his soul from death and covering a multitude of sins.

PETER TO THE DISPERSION

PETER'S EPISTLES correspond with Peter's personal experiences. In contrast with Paul, he was a devout Israelite who accepted the Messiah at the beginning of His ministry, not a fierce persecutor after His ascension. His name was changed from Simon (Hearing), the son of John, to Peter (Rock), the son of Jonah (Dove). As such he becomes the foundation on which the Circumcision ecclesia is founded. He was the chief of the twelve apostles, yet was superseded by the Lord's brother, James, who was no apostle, when the Pentecostal ecclesia became apostate. He was given the keys to the kingdom—repentance and baptism—and he used them in opening its proclamation. He was chosen to open it to proselytes, as Cornelius, but obeyed only after receiving a special vision. His course was much criticised by the Jerusalem ecclesia.

If it were not for his epistles we would be much puzzled as to "what had become of Peter", for he (as well as the rest of the twelve apostles) vanishes from the history in the book of Acts soon after Paul becomes prominent.

The character of Peter's epistles is indicated by the personal commission given him by the Lord after His resurrection (Jn.20:15-19). They are based on his special fondness for his Lord. In these he carries out the command to graze the lambs and tend the sheep of His flock. And in these he reflects the sufferings with which he himself was about to glorify His Lord. These epistles are especially suited to the believing remnant in Israel who suffer and die in the terrible persecutions which precede the inauguration of the kingdom. They are in contrast with John's epistles, in that he and his writings are especially in point for those who (like himself, in spirit) live through the time of trial and enter the kingdom without dying.

The special occasion of Peter's writing seems to have been the great persecution of the Christians under Nero, because of the false charge that they had burned Rome. Not only were they put to terrible torture in the imperial city but the persecution spread to the provinces throughout the sphere of Roman rule.

Peter wrote to the expatriates of the dispersion in the upper provinces of what is now called Asia Minor. This conclusively confines it to the Circumcision, for the gentiles were never scattered there from their own land. This cannot, however, refer to the general dispersion of the Jews, for few of them were of the faith. It doubtless refers to the fact that, from the dispersion at the stoning of Stephen, continuous persecutions in the land had driven many Jewish Christians into exile. After seeking an asylum from their fierce fellow countrymen among the idolators, they now find that these, too, turn persecutors because of Nero's edict.

While these epistles can have no present interpretation, they doubtless will find their fullest application to the sons of Israel after the present economy of God's grace has passed by, and God deals once more with the Circumcision at the opening of the day of the Lord. Then judgment will begin at the house of God, and they will be beset with trials, such as these epistles foretell and provide for. Only in such an atmosphere and at such a time will the message Peter brings be fully appreciated and really understood. Just as it was difficult for him to apprehend the epistles of Paul (2 Pt.3:10), so it is only by an earnest effort to place ourselves in the position of those to whom these epistles are sent, that we shall be able to partially apprehend their message.

Peter received his commission to write these epistles from the Lord, after His ascension. On the shores of the sea of Tiberius, after the miraculous draught of fishes, he is charged to graze His lambkins and to tend His sheep (Jn.21:15,16,17). This is the ministry which he fulfills in these two pastoral epistles.

The people addressed, unlike "the church which is his body", are "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation".

¹ Note the contrast between Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, and Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus. Peter proceeds on the ground of His present rejection on earth, Paul on His exaltation in heaven.

⁴ The allotment of the Circumcision is heavenly in character and source, but will be enjoyed on earth. A concrete example is the heavenly Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven, all prepared for their dwelling on the new earth. The kingdom is called the kingdom of the heavens, not that it will be in heaven, but because the heavens will rule.

⁵ There are two distinct salvations brought before us in this passage, neither of which refers to what is usually intended by the term. The first one is the salvation which the faithful of Israel have long desired, that deliverance which comes to them at the advent of their Messiah. It is not salvation from sin, but from the nations and from Satan, and from the judgments of the time of the end. It ushers in the millennium. It was not a present possession, but is to be revealed at the unveiling of Jesus Christ.

⁹ The other salvation was a present experience. We seldom read of the salvation of the soul in Scripture. The soul is the sentient part of man, that which feels, that which suffers and enjoys. Ultimately all salvation will result in satisfying and delicious sensations. In the time of trial to which Peter refers, there seems to be little place for such a salvation, yet it is found in the joy and exultation of faith.

¹⁰ The prophets foretold the salvation proclaimed by Peter; the grace which has come to us was hid from them (Eph.3^{8,9}).

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the chosen expatriates of the dispersion of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, [the province of] Asia, and Bithynia, according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, in hallowing of the spirit, for obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ:

May grace and peace be multiplied to you!

³ BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to His vast mercy, regenerates us into a living expectation, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from among the dead, for the enjoyment of an allotment incorruptible and undefiled and unfading, having been kept in the heavens for you, who are garrisoned by the power of God, through faith, for salvation ready to be revealed in the last era, in which you are exulting: briefly, at present, if it must be, being sorrowed by various trials, that the testing of your faith, much more precious than gold which is perishing, yet, being tested by means of fire, may be found for applause and glory and honor at the unveiling of Jesus Christ, Whom, not perceiving, you are loving, in Whom, not seeing at present, yet believing, you are exulting with joy unspeakable and glorious, being requited with the consummation of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

¹⁰ Concerning which salvation the prophets seek out and search out, who prophesy concerning the grace which is for you, searching into what or what manner of era the spirit of Christ in them made evident, when testifying beforehand to the sufferings pertaining to

¹¹ The sufferings pertaining to Christ were clearly foretold in the Hebrew Scriptures, especially in such types as Joseph and Moses, David and Hezekiah. His earthly glories were also revealed, including His exaltation as the Son of Man and the Son of David. He receives the place supreme on earth, but there is no hint of heavenly headship. These are the traceable riches of Christ. The prophets knew nothing of "the untraceable riches". These consist in His heavenly exaltation, and were revealed to Peter and Paul. Peter tells us that He has "gone into the heavens, messengers and authorities and powers being made subject to Him" (322). Paul gives Him the place of universal supremacy, and tells of a time when all in the heavens as well as on the earth will be headed up in Him (Eph.1¹⁰). Of this the prophets are silent. It was a secret or "mystery" unrevealed until the heavenly destiny of the ecclesia which is Christ's body was made known.

¹³ The grace which is for us comes before the unveiling of Jesus Christ, at His presence in the air, previous to the apocalyptic judgments which accompany His manifestation. Not so with those to whom Peter writes. It is only after His unveiling that the blessings which they expect will become theirs. The unveiling itself is God's means of bringing in the kingdom and all its accompanying benefits.

²⁰ The fact that Christ's sacrifice was foreknown even before the disruption throws a marvelous light upon God's plan and purpose. It shows that sacrifice is not an afterthought intended to repair an unforeseen disaster, but that it precedes sin, and that sin was introduced to give it occasion. Speaking as a man, there never would have been sin unless God had previously prepared a Sacrifice, and neither should be considered by itself, but as one of the necessary factors in God's great purpose to reveal the deep recesses of His love and the boundless expanse of His affection.

²³ Regeneration is a requisite for entrance into the kingdom (Jn.3³). In spirit, we skip the kingdom and enter the new creation (2 Co.5¹⁷), which Christ and the glories after these.

¹² To whom it was revealed that, not to themselves, yet to you they dispensed them, of which you are now informed through those who are preaching the evangel to you by holy spirit dispatched from heaven: into which messengers are yearning to peer.

¹³ Wherefore, girding up the loins of your comprehension, being sober, expect perfectly the grace which is being brought to you in the unveiling of Jesus Christ. As obedient children, not configuring to the former desires, in your ignorance, but, according as He Who calls you is holy, you also become holy in all behavior, because it is written that "You shall be holy, seeing that I am holy."

¹⁷ And if you are invoking the Father, Who is judging impartially according to each one's work, you may behave, for the time of your sojourn, with fear, being aware that you were ransomed from your vain behavior, handed down by tradition from the fathers, not with corruptible silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a flawless and unspotted lamb, foreknown, indeed, before the disruption of the world, yet manifested in the last times because of you, who through Him are believing in God Who rouses Him from among the dead and is giving Him glory, so that your faith and expectation is to be in God.

²² Having purified your souls, by the obedience of truth, for unfeigned fondness for the brethren, love one another earnestly, out of a true heart, having been regenerated, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, through the word of will not become a physical reality until after the thousand years. There is a vast difference between the two. Paul does not proclaim the new birth. That is not nearly sufficient to describe the great change necessary for fitting us for our celestial destiny. In the resurrection we shall not only be renewed but changed (1 Co.15⁵²). As at present constituted we could not enter into our celestial allotment. Hence we are the subjects of a radical recreation. The Circumcision in the kingdom on the earth will need no such great change to adapt them to conditions as they will be in that day, so the figure used of them is that of regeneration. The Lord spoke of the kingdom as "the regeneration" (Mt. 19²⁸), during which the old creation will be renewed, the curse removed, the law observed, by a people who have a "change of heart" (Jer.31³⁶), and the old earth will enjoy its sabbath. So regeneration is not the creation of a new man but the regeneration of the old.

⁴ Our Lord, speaking to the chief priests and elders, told them that the kingdom of God would be taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth its fruits, in proof of which He also quotes Ps.118²²⁻²³. The parable of the vineyard was spoken to them on this occasion (Mt.21³³⁻⁴⁰). They fulfilled this parable in rejecting Him, and He takes the kingdom from them and gives it to those who receive Him, and who form the nucleus of the believing nation of that day.

⁹ When Jehovah brought His people to Himself on eagles' wings, He purposed that they should be His peculiar treasure above all peoples, and that they should be a kingdom of priests and a holy nation (Ex.19⁴⁻⁶). Hitherto, through unbelief, they have not realized this ideal, but those who receive Christ shall fulfill it in the coming kingdom. As kings they will then rule the nations for God and as priests bring the nations to God.

²⁴ God, living and permanent. Because

"All flesh is grass,

And all its glory is as the flower of grass.

The grass is withered

And the flower falls off,

²⁵ Yet the declaration of the Lord is remaining for the eon."

Now this is the declaration preached to you in the evangel.

⁵ held in honor, you, also, as living stones, are being built a spiritual house, into a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, most acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.

⁶ Wherefore it is included in the scripture,

"Lo! I am laying in Zion a corner capstone, chosen, held in honor;

And he who is believing on it may by no means be disgraced."

⁷ To you, then, who are believing is the honor, yet to the unbelieving "The Stone which the builders reject,

This came to be for the head of the corner,"

¹⁰ The phrases "not a people" and who "have not been shown mercy" are usually referred to the gentile nations, in contrast with Israel. This passage is then adduced in favor of applying Peter's epistles indiscriminately to all men at all times, especially to the present ecclesia which is Christ's body. But a closer consideration will show that this passage proves the very opposite, for it quotes from the prophecy of Hosea, who speaks of the sons of Israel, and cannot possibly be interpreted of any other people. One passage reads as follows (Hos.1⁹⁻¹¹):

And He is saying:
 "Call his name 'Lo Ammi' [Not My people],
 For you are not my people
 And I will not be yours,
 And the number of the sons of Israel
 Shall be as the sand of the sea
 Which shall not be measured
 And shall not be numbered.
 And it shall occur, in the place where it is being said to them
 'You are not My people,'
 It shall be said to them
 'Sons of the living Deity.'
 And the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel
 Shall be gathered together as one,
 And shall place over them one head,
 And ascend from the land,
 For great is the day of Jez-reel."

The companion passage is equally plain (Hos.2²³):

And I compassionate the uncompassioned,
 And I say to Lo Ammi [Not My People],
 'You are My people.'
 And he shall say, 'My God!'

By no means may these quotations refer to any people but the chosen nation.

¹² "Your behaviour among the nations," or gentiles, confirms our conclusion that Peter is addressing those of his own nation outside the land.

¹³ The word "creation" here is the same word which is always so rendered in every other occurrence. Possibly the idea that creation is a prerogative of God led our translators to alter to "ordinance" here. Yet such contexts as this are the very ones which the English reader needs to correct his conception of this word, for according to this passage, man can create, and the word does not mean to bring into being that which heretofore had no existence.

¹⁰ His marvelous light, who once were "not a people" yet now are "the people of God", who "have not been shown mercy", yet now are "being shown mercy."

¹¹ Beloved, I am entreating you, as sojourners and expatriates, to be abstaining from fleshly lusts, which ¹² are warring against the soul, having your behavior among the nations ideal, that in that in which they are talking against you as evil doers, being spectators of ideal acts, they should be glorifying God in the day of visitation.

¹³ Be subject to every human creation because of the Lord, whether to ¹⁴ the king, as a superior, or governors, as being sent by Him for vengeance on evil doers, yet for the ap-
¹⁵ plause of doers of good, seeing that thus it is the will of God, by doing good to be muzzling the ignorance
¹⁶ of imprudent men; as free and not as having freedom for a cover of ¹⁷ evil, but as slaves of God. Honor all; be loving the brotherhood; be fearing God; be honoring the king.

¹⁸ Domestics, be subject to your owners, with all fear, not only to the good and lenient, but to the ¹⁹ crooked also, for this is grace, if, because of conscience toward God, anyone is undergoing sorrows, suf-
²⁰ fering unjustly. For what credit is it if, sinning and being buffeted, you shall be enduring it? But if, doing good and suffering, you shall be enduring, this is grace with God.

²¹ For for this were you called, seeing that Christ also suffered for your sakes, leaving you a copy, that

²¹ Following in the footprints left by our Lord while He was on earth is often taken as the ideal of human deportment for believers in Christ. And so it is—for the Circumcision, to whom Peter writes. His path may be copied by them, for they find themselves in similar circumstances and under identical conditions. Not so with the nations in this economy of God's grace. In preparing Paul for his part as the channel through which the truth for today was to be revealed, God kept him from contact with Christ during our Lord's life on earth, both before and after His resurrection. It was only after His ascension into glory that He called Saul, and changed his name to Paul, and made him the medium for the special truth which is in force during the apostasy of Israel. Saul's call might have occurred long before, but it was deliberately deferred so as to conform to the truth with which he was entrusted. He, and we, know Christ only as ascended and glorified. If we were connected with His earthly life, then we, like the Syro-phenician woman (Mk. 7²⁶) could get nothing more than a few crumbs from Israel's board. He does not act in glory as He acted on earth. Now He makes no distinction between Jew and gentile, but lavishes unutterably greater grace on both than was possible when He was the Servant of the Circumcision (Ro. 15^a). The key to conduct which pleases God is to copy His present attitude toward us in our relations with our fellow men. It is not reasonable to follow in His steps when He came only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel and kept Himself from contact with the outside nations. His walk in the land is no model for our conduct outside the land. Hence we are exhorted to be imitators of Paul, as he is of Christ (1 Co. 11¹), for he knew Christ ascended and glorified. And we are exhorted to be imitators of God, as beloved children (Eph. 5¹). Such a place we, sinners of the gentiles, did not have when Christ confined Himself to the favored nation.

you should be following up in the ²² footprints of Him Who does no sin, neither was guile found in His ²³ mouth, Who, being reviled, reviled not again, suffering, threatened not, yet gave it over to Him Who
²⁴ is judging justly, Who Himself bears our sins in His body on the tree, that, having come away from sins, we should be living for righteousness; by Whose welt you
²⁵ may be healed. For you were as straying sheep, but now you turned back to the Shepherd and Supervisor of your souls.

3 Likewise wives are being subject to their own husbands, that, if any also are stubborn as to the word, they will be gained without a word, through the behavior of
² their wives, being spectators of
³ your pure behavior in fear, whose adornment, let it not be the outside, in braiding the hair and decking with gold, or putting on of
⁴ garments, but the hidden human of the heart, in the incorruptibility of a meek and quiet spirit, which is
⁵ costly before God. For thus once the holy women also, whose expectation was in God, adorned themselves, being subject to their own
⁶ husbands, as Sarah obeys Abraham, calling him "lord", whose children you became, doing good and fearing no dismay.

⁷ Husbands, likewise, are making a home with them according to knowledge, awarding honor to the feminine as to the weaker vessel, as to those who are also joint enjoyers

Christ and the church; Peter points back to Sarah and Abraham.

¹⁰ Like our Lord in His sermon on the mount, the apostle sets a much higher mark than the law for the conduct of those who are candidates for the kingdom. Compare Mt.5⁴⁸, etc., and Lu.6²⁷, etc. An eye for an eye, or strict justice, gives place to a forgiving spirit. This is carried even further in connection with the present grace. We are to vanquish evil with good (Ro.12²¹), and to heap embers of fire on the heads of our enemies and to bless those who persecute us (Ro.12¹⁴). In a word, we are to be walking in love (Eph.5²).

¹⁴⁻¹⁵ In view of the coming storm of persecution Peter quotes and varies a word from Isa.8¹²⁻¹³ spoken in similar circumstances, but with the significant substitution of "the Lord Christ" for "Jehovah of Hosts". Remembering Jewish reverence for the letter of scripture and the intense dread of having any God but one, we see how firmly Peter is convinced that Christ is the Jehovah of the Hebrew Scriptures.

¹⁸ A grasp of the apostle's argument here will help us through this difficult passage. The subject is suffering for doing good. The Example is Christ and those sufferings which came to Him as they come to His disciples, because of the sin which surrounded Him. The argument is that He, though put to death, has now been exalted, even over the messengers and authorities and powers of the spirit realm (²²), therefore those who suffer for doing good will also be exalted in due time.

With this in mind, it is evident that it is not the evangel which is proclaimed to the spirits in prison, for that would be entirely out of line with of the varied grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

⁸ Now the finish: Be all of a like disposition, sympathetic, fond of the brethren, tenderly compassionate, of a humble disposition, not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling—yet, on the contrary, blessing, seeing that you were called for this, that you should be enjoying the allotment of blessedness.

¹⁰ "For he who is wanting to love life and be acquainted with good days,

Let his tongue cease from evil
And his lips from speaking guile.

¹¹ Now let him avoid evil and do good.

Let him seek peace and pursue it,

¹² Seeing that the eyes of the Lord are on the just

And His ears are for their petition.
Yet the face of the Lord is on evil doers."

¹³ And who will be ill-treating you, if you should become zealous of good?

¹⁴ Yet if you suffer also because of righteousness, happy are you. Now you should not be afraid with their

¹⁵ fear, nor yet be disturbed, yet hallow the Lord Christ in your hearts, ever ready with a defense for everyone who is demanding from you an account of the expectation in you.

¹⁶ but with meekness and fear, having a good conscience, that, in what they are talking against you as evil doers, those traducing you may be mortified by your good behavior in Christ.

¹⁷ For it is better to be suffering for doing good, if it be the will of God,

¹⁸ than for doing evil, seeing that Christ also, for our sakes, once died concerning sins, the just for the sake of the unjust, that He may the argument. It would imply that, as a result of their sufferings, their enemies will be evangelized. Such grace is foreign to Peter's epistles. The word here used is not evangelize, but proclaim. It tells us, not that they were blessed, but that He was exalted. And what is more likely than that, after His ascension, He should be proclaimed the universal Suzerain to all creation, obedient or rebellious?

¹⁹ Who are these imprisoned spirits? Are they not the same that Peter mentions in his second epistle (²⁴) who were thrust down to the gloomy caverns of Tartarus, and the messengers of Jude's epistle (⁶), who kept not their own sovereignty and left their own habitation, and sinned in like manner as Sodom and Gomorrah? This seems to identify them with the sons of God of the sixth of Genesis. It seems that, to avoid a repetition of their crime, they are kept from further connection with humanity.

The fact that they are called spirits, assures us that they are not human. The proclamation was not made to them during our Lord's death, but after He had been made alive. It was a token of His exaltation.

²¹ Baptism, with repentance, are the two essentials for entrance into the kingdom (Ac.2³⁸).

⁶ This difficult passage depends, for its interpretation, on the force of the interjected "indeed", which is usually omitted in translation. Even when present in the English, its force is not readily perceived. It must be evident to all that there is a turn in the argument, for the evangel is not the precursor of judgment from God, nor is it according to men. This judgment, then, is not God's but man's. Men judged them according to their own standards. They are judged, "indeed", but not in the judgment of the living and the dead just mentioned (⁵). The next statement, that they should be living according to God, makes it evident that the evangel was not preached to them after they had died. Men could not judge them, in flesh, nor could they live according to God, in spirit, after they had died. They are dead now, but the preaching and judging and living were all a part of their experience before they fell asleep.

be leading us to God; being put to death, indeed, in flesh, yet vivified ¹⁹ in spirit, in which, being gone to the spirits in the jail also, He ²⁰ proclaims to those stubborn at one time, when the patience of God awaited in the days of Noah while the ark was being constructed, in which a few, that is eight souls were conveyed safely through water, the representation of which, baptism, is now saving you also—not putting off the filth of the flesh, but the inquiry of a good conscience to God, through the resurrection of Jesus ²² Christ, Who is at God's right hand, being gone into heaven, messengers and authorities and powers being made subject to Him.

4 Christ, then, having suffered for our sakes in flesh, you also arm yourselves with the same thought, seeing that he who is suffering in ² flesh has ceased his sins. by no means still to spend the rest of his time in the flesh in human desires, ³ but in the will of God. For sufficient is the time which has passed by to have effected the intention of the nations, having gone on in wantonnesses, lusts, debauches, revelries, drinking bouts, and illicit idolatries, in which they are thinking it ⁴ strange of you not to race together into the same puddle of profligacy, ⁵ calumniating you: who shall be rendering an account to Him Who is in readiness to judge the living ⁶ and the dead. For for this an evangel is preached to the dead also, that they may be judged, indeed, according to men in flesh, yet should be living according to God, in spirit.

⁷ Now the consummation of all has drawn near. Then be sane and sober ⁸ for prayers, before all, having ⁸ The human love that covers over the sins of those on whom it is placed is but an intimation of the divine love which is the source of all affection. But human love is limited, both in its ideals and its performances. There is a striking similarity, however, between the expression of divine love under the law, before the sacrifice of Christ, and the love here spoken of. In both cases sin was covered, not put away or pardoned, much less justified. As we hide the misdeeds of our loved ones, so the blood of slain animals served to cover over the sins of Israel. Propitiation is not for us. Paul refers to it but once, and then in reference to the sins of the past (Ro.3²⁵). It is for the Circumcision and the nations in the day of the Lord (1Jn.2²).

¹⁵ Paradoxical as it may seem, only Jews are Christians in the Scriptures. The term is never applied to the nations, but only to Jews or proselytes. Paul never uses the name in his epistles. It occurs only in Acts, which is concerned with the past rejection of the kingdom, and in Peter, which looked forward to its future realization. It is a notable example of the manner in which Scriptural terms have been utterly perverted from their original use.

The beautiful picture of a shepherd with his flock is peculiarly appropriate to God's earthly people. Even in ancient times they alone were the flock of His pasture. In the wilder-earnest love among yourselves, seeing that love is covering a multitude of sins. Be hospitable to one another without murmuring. Each, according as he obtained the gracious gift, be dispensing it among yourselves, as ideal stewards of the varied grace of God; if anyone is speaking, as the oracles of God; if anyone is dispensing, as out of the strength which God is furnishing, that God may be glorified in all, through Jesus Christ, to Whom is the glory and the might for the cons of the cons. Amen!

¹² Beloved, do not think the conflagration among you, which is becoming a trial to you, strange, as something strange befalling you, but be rejoicing, according as you are participating in the sufferings of Christ, that you may be rejoicing, exulting in the unveiling of His glory also. If you are being reproached in the name of Christ, happy are you, seeing that the spirit of glory and power, and that of God has come to rest on you.

¹⁵ For let not any of you be suffering as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as an interferer in other's affairs, yet if as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, yet let him be glorifying God in this name, seeing that it is the era for the judgment to begin from the house of God. Now if first from us, what is the consummation of those who are stubborn as to God's evangel? And "If the just one is hardly being saved, where will the irreverent and sinner appear?" So that, let those also who are suffering according to the will of God, commit their souls to a faithful Creator, in the doing of good.

ness He guided them like a flock (Ps. 78⁵²). When the Lord came Israel was as a flock having no shepherd (Mt. 9³⁶). He is the Great Shepherd of the sheep (Heb. 13²⁰; 1 Pt. 2²⁵). As the Good Shepherd He laid down His soul for the sheep (Jn. 10¹¹). As the Chief Shepherd He will reward the under shepherds for their work when He comes again in the day of His manifestation (5⁴). It must be remembered that, in the East, a shepherd does not drive his flock, but leads them. He does not send a dog after them, but calls them each by name. His care and protection is symbolized by his crook and his club, the former for the sheep and the latter for their enemies. The nearest that Paul ever comes to including the nations in this figure is the single occurrence of the word "shepherd" or pastor (Eph. 4¹¹), but its context shows that it is there a faded metaphor and has lost its figurative meaning, just as its Latin equivalent "pastor", which once also meant a shepherd. A pastor is not now a literal shepherd.

⁵ The apron was a part of a slave's uniform which distinguished him as a slave and which he put on when he meant work. Humility serves (Jn. 13¹⁻¹⁰), and service tests humility.

⁷ The writer was loth to lose this precious promise when he began to see his place in Paul's epistles. How restless to toss all his worries on Him, and confide all to His care! But he soon found that he forfeited nothing by "losing" this passage, for the truth found in Paul's epistles eclipsed it and made it inoperative. Paul takes higher ground, and says, "Let nothing be worrying you, but in every prayer and petition let your requests be made known to God with thanksgiving, and the peace of God, being superior to every mental state, shall garrison your hearts and your apprehensions in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4⁷). If, then, I allow nothing to worry me, how can I toss all my worries on Him? This is a specimen of the constant differences between the ministries of Peter and Paul.

¹⁰ The grace of God is indicated by the short seasons of suffering and the long eons of glory to which they are the preparation and the prelude.

⁵ The elders then among you I am entreating (who am a fellow elder and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and a participant of the glory about to be revealed),
² shepherd the flocklet of God among you, supervising, not of compulsion, but voluntarily, according to God, nor yet avariciously, but
³ eagerly, nor yet as lording it over the allotments, but becoming models
⁴ for the flocklet, and, when the Chief Shepherd is manifested, you will be requited with an unfading wreath of glory.

⁵ Likewise, younger men, be subject to the elder, yet all wear the servile apron of humility with one another, seeing that God is resisting the proud, yet is giving grace
⁶ to the humble. Be humbled, then, under the mighty hand of God, that He may be exalting you in ⁷ season, tossing your entire worry on Him, seeing that He is caring concerning you.

⁸ Be sober! Watch! seeing that your plaintiff, the Slanderer, is walking about as a roaring lion, seeking some one to swallow up:
⁹ whom withstand, solid in the faith, having perceived the same sufferings completed in your brotherhood in the world.

¹⁰ Now the God of all grace, Who calls you into His eonian glory in Christ, while briefly suffering, will Himself be readjusting, establishing, firming, founding you. To Him be glory and might for the eons of the eons. Amen!

¹³ Peter in Babylon is exceedingly suggestive of the apostasy of Israel. He should have been ruling in Jerusalem. Instead, we find him in the great world capital which has always been the enemy of God's people, yet which, at the time of the end, will be the center and stronghold of Israel in their final and most fearful stand against Jehovah.

¹ The Introduction of the name Simeon, before Peter, and slave in addition to apostle, gives us a clue to the character of this second epistle. The emphasis is laid on practise rather than precept. It is concerned with living rather than learning.

² The recognition of God and of Jesus Christ, our Lord, is the source of grace and peace, as well as all that tends to life and devoutness. This is indicated by beginning the epistle proper by "So . . ." and by the repetition of the thought: "through the recognition of Him Who calls us to His own glory and virtue." The word "recognition" probably includes the wider range of realization and appreciation. It is a favorite word in this epistle, for it occurs again in verse 8, and again in 2nd. Standing, as it does, at the threshold of an epistle devoted to conduct, it teaches the important lesson that knowledge is essential to good deportment. Those who refuse to recognize God are given over to a disqualified mind to commit the whole catalogue of crime (Ro.1st). The only salvation from these things is a vision of His glory and virtue, in this manner becoming a participant of the divine nature which flees from corruption. Consequently, the most powerfully practical course to pursue is to gain a grasp of God's glories and virtues, so that they may operate in us to produce their like.

⁴ Faith is the radical virtue. By it all others are possible. In the repeated groupings of graces found in the epistles, faith is invariably assigned the first place, being made to stand nearest the Source of every virtue.

⁵ Peter, like James, is apt to present the human side of redemption. Calling and choice are purely divine, yet their confirmation in the eyes of men depends on the evidence of ideal acts. The divine side is hidden to all but the one who is called. His conduct should

SIMEON PETER, a slave and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who are chancing upon equally precious faith with us, in the righteousness of our God and Saviour, Jesus Christ:

² May grace and peace be multiplied to you in the recognition of God and of Jesus Christ our Lord!

³ So His divine power has presented to us all that tends to life and devoutness: through the recognition of Him Who calls us to His own glory and virtue: through which have been presented to us the precious and greatest promises, that through these you may become participants of the divine nature, fleeing from the corruption which is in the world by lust.

⁵ Now for this very thing also, employing all diligence, in your faith supply virtue, yet in virtue knowledge, yet in knowledge self control, yet in self control endurance, yet in endurance devoutness, yet in devoutness brotherly fondness, yet in brotherly fondness love. For possessing these and increasing is constituting you that you are neither idle nor unfruitful in the recognition of our Lord Jesus Christ. For he in whom these are not present is blind, closing his eyes, getting oblivious of the cleansing from the penalty of his old sins.

¹⁰ Wherefore, rather, brethren, endeavor, through ideal acts, to confirm your calling and choice: for, doing these things, you should under no circumstances be tripping at any time. For thus an entrance into the eonian kingdom of our confirm his confession before the world.

¹⁴ In that marvelous resurrection scene in John's evangel, where our Lord commissions Peter for the ministry which he fulfills in writing these epistles, He also intimates the character of his death. Peter was to follow Him to the very end, and die like his Master, Who said, "Verily, verily, I am saying to you, when you were young you girded yourself and walked whither you would, yet, whenever you may be decrepit, you will stretch out your hands, and another shall be girding you and carrying you whither you would not" (Jn.21¹⁸). And it is immediately added, "Now this He said, signifying by what death he will be glorifying God."

¹⁶ Peter and James and John were especially chosen to accompany the Lord to the Mount of Transfiguration (commonly called the Transfiguration) to witness a foreglimpse of the coming kingdom and its power and magnificence. Thus they perceived undeniable evidence of its reality and glory. They heard the voice from heaven saying, "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I delight. Be hearing Him!" They saw the lowly Nazarene transformed so that His face shone as the sun, and His garments became white as light. They recognized Moses and Elijah talking with Him concerning His impending exodus (Mt.17¹⁻⁸, Mk.9²⁻⁷, Lu.9²⁹⁻³⁵). Here were all the elements of the kingdom. Moses might well represent the dead in Israel awakened from their sleep. Elijah may typify those who are living at His advent. His own face and form assume the glory which belongs to them. The power and glory of the kingdom are anticipated in this scene. It is at once a sample and an assurance of the magnificence and splendor of His millennial reign. There were seven persons present, Peter, James, and John are types of those believers on earth who shall witness the coming of the Lord and enter the kingdom. This reference to Christ's Transfiguration by one of the eyewitnesses is one of the internal proofs of the Petrine authorship of this epistle.

¹⁹ The day star is the coming of the Lord. The lamp is prophecy. No one

Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ will be richly supplied to you.

¹² Wherefore I shall ever be about to be reminding you concerning these things, though you are aware of them and have been established in ¹³ the present truth. Now I am deeming it just, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to be rousing you by a reminder, being aware that my tabernacle is to be put off swiftly, according as our Lord Jesus Christ
¹⁵ also makes evident to me. Now I shall endeavor to have you, after my exodus, to be reminded of these things, ever and anon.

¹⁶ For we make known to you the power and presence of our Lord Jesus Christ, not following out wisely made myths, but we became spectators of His magnificence.
¹⁷ For, getting from God, the Father, honor and glory, what a voice is being carried to Him by the Glory Magnifical: "This is My beloved ¹⁸ Son, in Whom I delight!" And this voice we hear being carried out of heaven, being with Him in the holy mountain.

¹⁹ And we are having the prophetic word more confirmed, which you, doing ideally, are heeding (as a lamp appearing in a dingy place, till the day should be breaking and the day-star should rise) in your ²⁰ hearts, knowing this first, that no prophecy of scripture is becoming ²¹ its own explanation. For prophecy was not at any time carried on by the will of man, but holy men of can find his way in this world without the illumination of the prophetic word. All is dark without it. But prophecies often seem obscure. The prophets themselves did not always know the import of their predictions. Now, however, that the word of God is complete, and some has been fulfilled, and each intimation may be sorted and compared with all of like tenor, the whole outline of prophecy may be readily perceived. Prophecy is not an attempt by the prophet to explain the purposes of God in current or future events. It is not the result of his observation and experience, or his interpretation of God's ways. Not the human will but God's spirit produced the words of the writers of prophecy.

The program of prophecy has gradually become clearer with added revelation. The pre-exile prophets, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah know only one advent. In the post-exile prophets the second advent is distinguished from the first, and Israel's dispersion comes in between. Ezekiel, however, sees still further, and predicts an end to the Messianic kingdom. This is also the farthest range of Peter in his epistles and John in the Unveiling. But Paul goes far beyond, and sees a conclusion to the post-Messianic eon, when kingly government is brought to an end and the Son abdicates because all need for rule has disappeared. Then God becomes All in all. This is the climax of prophecy. It explains its purpose and solves its enigmas.

⁴ The "gloomy caverns" of Tartarus are distinct from the unseen, from gehenna, and from the lake of fire. They are the temporary dungeon of spirits.

⁴ Peter recounts the ancient judgments of God with a view to establishing the certainty of the impending judgments of the end time. That, too, will be a judgment on spirit beings, for Satan will be bound. It will be visited on a world which has reverted to the wickedness which drew down the deluge, and which is guilty of the sins of Sodom and Gomorrah. Then, too, the righteous shall be delivered, as Lot out of Sodom, and as Noah through the flood.

God speak, being carried on by holy spirit.

² Yet there came to be false prophets also among the people, as among you also there will be false teachers, who will be smuggling in destructive sects, and disowning the Owner Who buys them, bringing on themselves swift destruction.

² And many will be following out their wantonness, through whom the glory of the truth will be calumniated, and in greediness, with suave words, they will traffic in you, whose judgment of old is not idling, and their destruction is not nodding.

¹⁰ No one acquainted with the world as it is, and especially the tendency of the times, but will conclude that Peter's epistles will have a very special fulfillment in the dreadful days that are to come. Even now, the revolt against authority has overthrown vast empires, and undermines all established government. Millions "despise dominion", and are drifting toward a worse despotism than any the world has ever seen. But this is most evident in the sphere of religion. The sovereignty of God is unknown and unrecognized. Whole nations defy the Deity and seek to deny His existence. And this leads to the second great sin of the end time. Loosed from the restraints of even formal religion, the world is plunging into the defilements of the flesh. The marriage bond is slack or slighted altogether. Divorces are becoming more and more frequent. The world is rapidly ripening for the time when these sins will have the sanction of religion and the worship of the wild beast will be encouraged by the gratification of the lowest lusts of the flesh.

¹⁷ This paragraph brings before us some of the same characters which are found in the sixth and tenth chapters of Hebrews. There were and will be apostates among the Circumcision who will go great lengths in following the Messiah, even as Judas did, yet finally they fall away and repudiate their profession. Our Lord had many such followers who left Him.

Recognition of the truth concerning Christ may prevail with men for a time so as to compel separation from defilements that still allure. The apostle is not contemplating such as have become participants of the divine nature, and so flee the corruption that is in the world by lust; but those whose inner malady is not healed, who have reformed under the influence of truth, and who are still curs and swine.

Audacious, given to self gratification, they are not trembling when ¹¹ calumniating glories, where messengers, being of greater strength and ability, are not bringing against them a calumniating judgment before the Lord. Now these, as irrational animals, born naturally for capture and corruption, calumniating in that in which they are ignorant, shall be corrupted also in their ¹³ corruption, being requited with the wages of injustice.

Deeming gratification by day a luxury, they are spots and flaws, luxuriating in their love feasts. ¹⁴ carousing together with you, having the distended eyes of an adulteress, and that do not stop from sin, luring unstable souls, having a heart exercised in greediness, children of a curse.

¹⁵ Leaving the straight path, they were led astray, following out the path of Balaam of Bosor, who loves ¹⁶ the wages of injustice, yet was exposed for his own outlawry. A voiceless donkey, uttering with a human voice, forbids the insanity of the prophet.

² Not only scoffers, but many who believe the Bible, have fallen into the error of supposing that all things have continued without change from the beginning. The great disruption chronicled in the second verse of the first of Genesis—"the earth becomes waste and sterile" (for it was not created so, Isa. 45¹⁸)—has been well nigh forgotten. What system of biblical cosmogony accounts for an earth "cohering out of water and through water"? This is more in accord with some of the theories of science than theology. It seems evident from this passage, as well as the accounts in Genesis and Job, that the earth has gone through much the same processes which we observe in the present condition of other planets. It probably was swathed in vapors like Venus or Jupiter, and once had rings like Saturn. The Hebrew "heavens" is dual, meaning a pair of heavens. We know that, in the new earth, there will be no seas, as on the moon or Mars. It has been and is subject to vast geologic changes, effected, in the past, by water. It is stored with fire, which will be one of the means of its next great cataclysmic renovation. Fire in the heavens (perhaps a nebula) and in the earth will form the crucible for the new creation.

ments of the world by the recognition of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, yet, being again involved in these, they are being discomfited, their last state has become worse ²¹ than the first. For it were better for them not to have recognized the way of righteousness, than, recognizing it, to go back again to what was behind, from the holy precept ²² given over to them. Now the true proverb has befallen them: "A cur turning back to its own vomit," and "A bathed swine to its wallowing in the mire."

3 This is already, beloved, the second epistle I am writing to you, in which I am arousing your sincere ² comprehension by a reminder to remind you of the declarations declared before by the holy prophets, and the precept of your apostles ³ of the Lord and Saviour, knowing this first, that, in the last days scoffers will be coming with scoffing, going according to their own desires, and saying, ⁴ "Where is the promise of His presence? For from what time the fathers were put to repose, all is continuing thus from the beginning of creation."

⁵ For they want to be oblivious of this, that there were heavens of old, and an earth cohering out of water and through water, by the word of ⁶ God; through which the then world, being deluged by water, was ⁷ destroyed. Yet the heavens now, and the earth, by the same word, are stored with fire, being kept for the day of the judgment and destruction of irreverent men.

⁸ Time, with God, has none of the limitations which it has with us. The events of a day are vivid in our minds for a brief period, then they vanish and are forgotten. We know nothing of the future. But past and future are alike to God. As the psalmist says, "A thousand years in Thy sight are as yesterday when it is past" (Ps.90⁴). We can readily recall the record of the previous day. It seems but a brief space of time. So a thousand years seems to Him. Since Peter penned these words nearly two thousand years have passed and His promise to Israel is not yet fulfilled, but there are indications that the time is near.

¹⁰ The day of the Lord, though it lasts for more than a thousand years, is treated as though its arrival is to be immediately followed by its end, in harmony with the preceding paragraph. It will come as a thief (1 Thes. 5²). It will close with the great cataclysm (Un.20¹¹; 21¹) which ushers in the day of God, in the new creation. Two great convulsions divide the history of the heavens and the earth into three grand divisions. One is found at the forefront of revelation, this one is near its finish. The heavens and earth were destroyed by water (Gen. 1²). In the future this will be effected by fire. The past was a physical regeneration. The future will be a chemical recreation. Water, in the form of seas, is found only on the present earth. It was not on, but about, the previous one. It will be absent in the third earth (Un.21¹). The changing character of the earth on which we live is due largely to the presence of water. It disintegrates the solid rocks. As glaciers, it grinds down the mountains. In streams, it washes the soil into the sea. This is undoubtedly a parable of the impermanent moral processes through which mankind is passing. The new earth will be unchanging, permanent. Having passed through the great crucible of the divine Alchemist, its stones will be precious gems, hard as flint, and indestructible. And this will also be a parable of the moral purity which has been purged by fire and abides. This chapter reveals the fact that the new creation will be the third earth and third heaven (2 Co. 12²).

⁸ Now of this one thing you are not to be oblivious, beloved, that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not tardy as to the promise, as some are deeming tardiness, but is patient because of you, not intending any to be destroyed, but all to make room for repentance.

¹⁰ Now the day of the Lord will be arriving as a thief, in which the heavens shall be passing by with a booming noise, yet the elements will be dissolved by combustion, and the earth and the works in it will be found. All these, then, being dissolved, what manner must you belong to in holy behavior and devotion, hoping for and hurrying the presence of the day of God, because of which the heavens, being on fire, will be dissolved, and the elements are decomposed by combustion! Yet we, according to His promises, are hoping for new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness is dwelling.

¹⁴ Wherefore, beloved, hoping for these things, endeavor to be found by Him in peace, unspotted and flawless. And be deeming the patience of our Lord salvation, according as our beloved brother Paul also writes to you, according to the wisdom given to him, as also in all the epistles, speaking in them concerning these things, in which are some things hard to apprehend, which the unlearned and unstable are twisting, as the rest of the scriptures also, to their own destruction.

¹⁷ You, then, beloved, knowing this before, be on your guard lest, being

¹⁵ It is evident that Peter, great apostle though he was, could not apprehend fully the ministry of Paul. He did see, however, that the seeming delay in the setting up of the kingdom was being used by God, through Paul, and that salvation was by no means dependent upon Israel's attitude. This subject, which is merely alluded to by Peter, is fully set forth by Paul in the eleventh chapter of his epistle to the Romans.

THE EPISTLES OF JOHN

PERHAPS no greater service can be rendered to students of the writings of John than to point out their inapplicability to the present secret economy. John, just as truly as Peter and James, ministered to the Circumcision, and referred to the nations as outside the sphere of fellowship (3 Jn. 7). Even when he widens the scope of blessing to include the whole world, he lays the heaviest stress on its relation to the favored nation. "He is the Propitiation concerning our sins (Israel's) yet not concerning ours only, but concerning the whole world also" (1 Jn. 2²).

Furthermore, while our present grace is based on the repudiation of all privilege which comes through the flesh (2 Co. 5¹⁶), since the nations have no physical connection with Christ, John commences his epistle by enforcing the physical evidence on which his ministry is founded. He knew Christ after the flesh for many years, and had rested in His bosom. This is the sphere into which he introduces us in his writings. In contrast to this, Paul never met Christ until He was glorified, and thus became the divine illustration of our relationship with Him.

The clue to the character and application of John's ministry, both personal and written, lies in the Lord's question to Peter (Jn. 21²²) "If I should want him to be remaining till I am coming, what is it to you?" The Lord did not say that he actually would remain alive until His return, but we have little room to doubt that, in spirit, this is true. His writings have special application to those who enter the kingdom without dying, and provide the doctrinal basis of the kingdom itself. This is further confirmed by the fact that, in his apocalyptic visions, John enters the kingdom, in spirit.

And this is the reason why his writings have made such an appeal to the saints of today. During the kingdom eon blessing will flow through Israel to the nations. So in John we have God's love for the world (Jn. 3¹⁶) and Christ's propitiation is world-wide in its scope. But never is there any hint anywhere of blessing for the nations during Israel's apostasy, as is the case in the Pauline epistles.

It is a fact but little realized that John's writings were not penned until after the death of Paul and Peter and most of the saints who come before us in the Scriptures. They all preached and taught without having ever seen the gospel or the epistles of John. Paul's marvelous ministries were not only carried out without these writings, but he followed lines of truth decidedly distinct from that of John's record. They are ours to read and interpret in their true setting, but not to apply to a time for which they are neither fitted nor intended. John's gospel and epistles were written too late to be used by most of the Circumcision in the past, hence have their special sphere and application in the future. John has not yet come to his own, and will have to tarry for his fullest ministry till the Lord comes.

The subject of these epistles is life in the saints rather than life in Christ. This life manifests itself in conduct which must satisfy the severe tests applied for the exposure of a spurious spirituality. The professor is tested as to where he walks (1⁶), his profession of sinlessness (1⁸) and perfection (1¹⁰), his knowledge of God (2⁴), his remaining in Christ (2⁶), his love of the brethren (2⁹) and his love of God (4²⁰). John's "if we should say," is like James' test "If anyone should be saying." John sets God before the believer as Light, Love and Spirit, while Paul sets the believer before God in Christ.

John's teaching approximates that of Hebrews in many respects. It puts Jesus Christ as a Entreater between the Father and His children as Hebrews puts the Son of God as Priest between God and believing Israelites.

John says very little about himself. In his gospel there is only one John—the Baptist. He speaks of himself as one whom Jesus loved (Jn. 13²³; 21²⁰). A single page of Paul is more self-revealing than all John has written, and this picture of our pattern (1 Ti. 1⁶) is given for our imitation.

¹ The first few verses are a condensed summary of John's account of our Lord's life. In it, as here, the Lord is presented under the figure of the divine Expression, or Word. In Paul's epistles He is set forth as the Image of God (2 Co.4⁴; Col.1¹⁵). John appeals to our ears, Paul to our eyes. Job contrasts the two, when he says to God: "I heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear, yet now my eye sees Thee" (Job 42⁵). As in nature sight is a much higher sensation than sound, so we have a much loftier revelation of God through Christ as His Image than as His Expression. The Expression, or Word, became flesh (Jn.1¹⁴) in order to declare God.

³ Jesus Christ is the title of our Lord's humiliation, the time to which John refers. Christ Jesus is the title of His exaltation, which, as viewed in John's writings is still future, but which, for us is His present place. So that our fellowship is not with Jesus Christ but with Christ Jesus.

⁵ God is spirit. God is light. God is love. The first is a fact. The last two are figures, but they reveal His heart to our hearts.

⁶ The Circumcision evangel demands repentance, baptism (Ac.2³⁸) and works (Ja.2¹⁴), and good conduct, and conferred a probational pardon, calling for continual cleansing. They knew nothing of the justification by faith which is ours in Christ Jesus (Ro.8¹), in which all possibility of condemnation vanishes and leads to an experience altogether above that here set forth by the apostle. We have sinned, but are justified or vindicated, without reference to our own conduct, which is based upon this favor.

THAT which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we gaze at, and which our hands handle, is concerned with the word of life. And the life was manifested, and we have seen and are testifying and reporting to you the eonian life which was toward the Father and was manifested to us.

³ That which we have seen and heard we are reporting to you, that you also may be having fellowship with us, and yet this fellowship of ours is with the Father and with His Son, Jesus Christ. And these things we are writing that our joy may be full.

⁵ And this is the message which we have heard from Him, and are informing you, that God is light, and darkness in Him there is none.

⁶ If we should be saying that we are having fellowship with Him and should be walking in darkness, we are lying and are not doing the truth. Yet if we should be walking in the light as He is in the light, we are having fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus, His Son, is cleansing us from every sin.

⁸ If we should be saying that we have no sin we are deceiving ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we should be avowing our sins. He is faithful and just that He may be pardoning us our sins and should be cleansing us from all injustice.

¹⁰ If we should be saying that we have not sinned we are making Him a liar, and His word is not in us.

2 My little children, I am writing these things to you that you may

⁸ Fellowship with God as the Light leads to the discovery of all that is of the darkness. Sin in the saint is made manifest by the light. Away from the light sin may not be detected; it may be unknown. The Circumcision have constant recourse to the pardoning and cleansing virtues of the blood. Under the present reign of grace sin is always submerged by God's favor, so that no pardon is required or possible. Some will say that this puts a premium on sin. This is the very objection which is discussed and refuted in the sixth chapter of the epistle to the Romans. But it works out the very opposite in practise. Man is a contradiction. When the law says "Thou shalt not" it awakens in him a desire to do the very thing that God prohibits. And it is a blessed fact that, when the sluice gates of grace are opened wide so that there is no condemnation no matter what he does, he loses the desire to sin and finds in the very grace which guarantees immunity a latent power which enables him to rise above it.

¹ The rendering "Advocate", in the sense of an attorney before a judge, is not at all in keeping with the character God assumes here. An advocate does not practise before a Father. The Revisers recognized this, and put "Comforter", "Helper", and "Paraclete" in their margin as alternatives. It is rendered "Comforter" four times in John's evangel. The verb covers the territory which we assign to the two words "entreat" and "console". A paraclete is either an entreater or a consoler. The latter hardly seems possible in connection with sin. We have made it an Entreater in this passage and a Consoler in John's evangel.

² The strong contrast indicated by the emphatic "ours" should be noted. It is between Israel, the favored nation, and the whole world. Under the law propitiation was confined to them, but in the great antitype it embraces all mankind.

¹⁵ John speaks of the world oftener than all other writers of the Greek scriptures put together. It means to him the prevailing system lying in the wicked one (5¹⁹) which knows not God, hates His children, and is filled with lust and vanity. Fellowship with not be sinning. And if anyone should be sinning, we have an Entreater with the Father, Jesus Christ the Just. And He is the propitiation, concerned with our sins, yet not concerned with ours only, but concerned with the whole world also.

³ And in this are we knowing that we know Him, if we should be keeping His precepts. He who is saying that "I know Him" and is not keeping His precepts, is a liar, and the truth of God is not in him. Yet whoever may be keeping His word, truly in him the love of God has been perfected.

In this we are knowing that we are in Him: he who is saying that he is remaining in Him ought also himself to be walking according as He walks. Beloved, I am not writing a new precept to you, but an old precept, which you had from the beginning. The old precept is the word which you hear.

⁸ Again, I am writing a new precept to you, which is true in Him and in you, seeing that the darkness is passing by, and the true light already is appearing. He who is saying that he is in the light and is hating his brother is a liar and is in darkness hitherto. He who is loving his brother is remaining in the light, and there is no snare in him. Yet he who is hating his brother is in darkness and is walking in darkness, and is not aware whither he is going, seeing that the darkness blinds his eyes.

¹² I am writing to you, little children, seeing that your sins have been forgiven you through His name. I am writing to you, fathers, seeing that you know Him Who is from the beginning. I am writing

God is forfeited by attachment to it, and the proof of evil is that it comes into competition with the love of God. In spirit on Patmos he has seen this world pass away and give place to one which will be in harmony with God.

¹⁸ The term "antichrist" occurs only in John's epistles. The prefix "anti" now has the meaning of "against", and antichrist signifies one who is against Christ. But "anti" originally meant "instead of", and this is its significance in "antichrist". An antichrist is one who takes Christ's place, a substitute or counterfeit christ. John speaks of them as coming out from amongst the circle of the saints.

The indiscriminate use of this term for the coming prince of Daniel (Dan. 9²⁶), the lawless one of Paul (2 Thes. 2⁸), and the first wild beast of the Unveiling (Un.13¹) is to be deplored. No clear conceptions can come of confusing these titles. Antichrist, as a substitute for Christ, is probably to be identified with the second wild beast which had horns like a lambkin (Un. 13¹¹). This one only has a likeness to Christ and deceives those dwelling on the earth.

The antichrists are probably identical with the false christs which were foretold by our Lord (Mt.24²⁴; Mk.13²²) who would deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. The spirit of antichrist is already in the world and may be known by certain definite characteristics. One is the denial that Jesus is the Christ. The second is the disowning of the Father as well as the Son. The third is the disavowal of the flesh of Christ, that He has come in flesh in the past (1 Jn.4³) and that He is coming in flesh in the future (2 Jn. 7). Only those who definitely deny these things are in reality possessed of the spirit of antichrist. It should not be applied to all who oppose Christ, or who teach false doctrine, but rather to those who deceive by pretending to take the place of Christ. The term is never associated with open opposition but rather with secret deception. Whoever, and whatever, displaces Christ is imbued with the spirit of antichrist. It will culminate in the future manifestation of one who will be received by Israel as their long desired Messiah.

to you, youths, seeing that you have
¹¹ conquered the wicked one. I write to you, little children, seeing that you know the Father. I write to you, fathers, seeing that you know Him Who is from the beginning. I write to you, youths, seeing that you are strong and the word of God is remaining in you and you have conquered the wicked one.

¹⁵ Be not loving the world, neither what is in the world. If anyone should be loving the world, the love of the Father is not in him, seeing that everything in the world, the desire of the flesh, and the desire of the eyes, and the ostentation of living, is not of the Father, but is of ¹⁷ the world. And the world is passing by, and its desire, yet he who is doing the will of God is remaining for the eon.

¹⁸ Little children. it is the last hour, and, according as you hear that the antichrist is coming, now also there have come to be many antichrists, whence we know that it
¹⁹ is the last hour. They come out from us, but they were not of us, for if they were of us, they would have remained with us. But it was that they may be manifested that ²⁰ they are not all of us. And you have an anointing from the Holy One, and all are aware.

²¹ I write not to you seeing that you are not acquainted with the truth, but that you are acquainted with it, and that no lie is of the truth. Who is a liar, if not he who is denying, [saying] that "Jesus is not the Christ"? This one is the antichrist, who is disowning the ²³ Father and the Son. Every one disowning the Son neither has the Father. He who is avowing the Son has the Father also.

²⁵ The life eonian is life for the course of the eons. It will last during the millennial kingdom and the following eon, up to the consummation, when death is abolished. It would be of little import to promise "eternal" life, for this will become the portion of all when there is no death. The special portion of the saints is life up to the consummation, during the eons, for it is only during the times of the eons that death has any place in God's universe. Moreover, this eonian life is not for this eon, but for the last two eons. It does not commence now, or God's saints would never die. It is impossible to speak of being in present possession of "eternal" or "everlasting" life without claiming immunity from death. None of the saints who have died had "everlasting" life, or they would not now be dead. All had eonian life, which will be enjoyed by them in the resurrection at the presence of Christ.

¹ Relationship to God is expressed by various figures of speech. The Father has children by regeneration and sons by the new creation. Entrance into the kingdom on earth for the Circumcision is aptly figured by a new begetting. They will go through a process corresponding to a birth to fit them for the millennial kingdom (Jn.3³). Such a change would not be radical enough to fit us for the heavenly realms, so Paul speaks of a secret connected with the resurrection, by which we are to be changed from terrestrial to celestial creatures (1 Co. 15⁵¹). Hence we are not in the regeneration, but in a new creation in Christ (2Co.5¹⁷). As in John three sixteen, John stresses the manner of God's love. It is not sons here, but children. It is the affection of the family circle. God is known as Father.

²⁴ Let that which you hear from the beginning be remaining in you. If that which you hear from the beginning should be remaining in you, you also shall be remaining in the Son and in the Father. And this is the promise which He promises us: the life eonian.

²⁶ These things I write to you concerning those who are deceiving you. And the anointing which you obtained from Him is remaining in you, and you have no need that anyone should be teaching you, but as His anointing is teaching you concerning all, and is true, and is no lie, according as it teaches you also, be remaining in it.

²⁸ And now, little children, be remaining in it, that, should He be manifested, we should be having boldness and not be put to shame before Him in His presence. If you should be perceiving that He is just, you know that everyone also who is doing righteousness has been begotten of Him.

3 Lo! what manner of love the Father has given us, that we may be called children of God! And we are! Therefore the world is not knowing us, seeing that it knew

² Him not. Beloved, now are we children of God, and it was not as yet manifested what we shall be. We are aware that, if He should be manifested, we shall be like Him.

³ seeing that we shall see Him according as He is. And every one who has this expectation on Him is purifying himself, according as He is pure.

⁴ Every one who is doing sin is doing lawlessness also, and sin is lawlessness. And you are aware that He was manifested that He should be taking away our sins, and

* The title "Slanderer" has far more aptness than is at first apparent. Satan is known to us only through his work. He never appears otherwise than as the evil creature indicated by his titles. From his very beginning his work has been to oppose and destroy. In Eden's garden he is seen as the Slanderer of God. He imputed a false motive to the commandment not to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. He aimed directly at the character of God and brought in the estrangement. On the other hand, he is also the Slanderer of the saints (1 Pt. 5^s). As such, he accused Job falsely (Job 2^s).

Sin was introduced and is being perpetuated by his slanders. Wrong thoughts and mistaken notions concerning God are at the root of all lawlessness, and lawlessness is sin. God is misunderstood, misjudged and hated because of the Slanderer's lies. Hence the Son of God has come to annul his acts by making God known.

The work of the Slanderer is really one of the essential factors for a true knowledge of God. Sin is a necessary prelude to salvation, and estrangement precedes reconciliation, and it is only through these that God's heart could be bared and His affections shared by mankind. But the office of sin and estrangement is not effected until they are annulled and replaced by righteousness and peace.

The purpose for which the Son of God was manifested was to undo what the Slanderer had done. We do not see this purpose accomplished yet. It will have a partial fulfillment in the next eon, when the Slanderer will be bound. Its complete culmination will not be seen until the consummation when death, the Slanderer's crowning success, is abolished, and he himself, together with all creation, will be reconciled to God (Col. 1²⁰). Thus it is that the Son of God will completely annul the acts of the Slanderer.

¹⁰ Two spiritual paternities are indicated by conduct, righteousness and love on the one side and unrighteousness and hate on the other. The latter tendency reaches its goal in murder (¹²) and the former in self-sacrifice (¹⁴).

⁶ in Him is no sin. Every one who is remaining in Him is not sinning. Every one who is sinning has not seen Him, neither has known Him.

⁷ Little children, let no one be deceiving you. He who is doing righteousness is just, according as ⁸ He is just. Yet he who is doing sin is of the Slanderer, seeing that the Slanderer is sinning from the beginning. For this was the Son of God manifested, that He should be annulling the acts of the Slanderer.

⁹ Every one who is begotten of God is not doing sin, seeing that His seed is remaining in him, and he cannot sin, seeing that he has been ¹⁰ begotten of God. In this are apparent the children of God and the children of the Slanderer: every-one who is not doing righteousness and who is not loving his brother.

¹¹ is not of God, seeing that this is the message which you hear from the beginning, that we may be loving ¹² one another, not according as Cain was of the wicked one and slays his brother. And for what does he slay him? Seeing that his acts were wicked, yet his brother's just.

¹³ Marvel not, brethren, if the ¹⁴ world is hating you. We are aware that we have proceeded out of death into life, seeing that we are loving our brethren. He who is not loving is remaining in death.

¹⁵ Every one who is hating his brother is a man-killer, and you are aware that no man-killer has eternal life remaining in him.

¹⁶ By this we know love, seeing that He lays down His soul for our sakes. We also ought to lay down our souls for the sake of the brethren.

²³ This precept seems almost an anticlimax, for believing is usually put down as entirely outside the category of practical virtues. Yet believing is the most practical exercise in the world. All action is dependent on belief; all effort is qualified by it. Eve believed the serpent and opened the sluice gates of sin. Christ believed God and secured salvation. The fall resulted from lack of faith in God and every phase of the return to Him is founded on faith.

Take the practical precepts of the preceding paragraphs. One who heartily believes God has the most powerful incentive possible to please Him by relieving the distress of his needy brother, for his faith would find an impelling motive in the love which belief has engendered. True faith is not idle: it acts. But the important point is the fact that the quality of its acts meets the approval of God.

Furthermore, as is implied in the second part of the precept, true faith is the most fertile field of love. It is only as the love of God is realized that it is possible to display it to others. It is intensely practical to recognize this, for every effort to cultivate love apart from faith will be fruitless. If, then, more and greater love is needed, it is to be found in the fuller appreciation of God's love, not in the contemplation of our own.

¹⁷ Now whoever may be having the world's living, and may be beholding his brother in need, and should be locking his compassions from him—how is the love of God remaining in him? Little children, we should not be loving in word, neither in tongue, but in act and truth.

¹⁹ And in this shall we be knowing that we are of the truth and shall be persuading our hearts in front of Him, seeing that, if our heart should be censuring us, God is greater than our heart and is knowing all. ²⁰ Beloved, if our heart should not be censuring us, we have boldness toward God, and whatever we should be requesting, we are obtaining from Him, seeing that we are keeping His precepts and are doing what is pleasing before Him.

²³ And this is His precept, that we should be believing in the name of His Son, Jesus Christ, and may be loving one another according as He gives us a precept. ²⁴ And he who is keeping His precepts is remaining in Him, and He in him. And in this we are knowing that He is remaining in us, by the spirit which He gives us.

4. Beloved, be not believing every spirit, but be testing the spirits, if they are of God, seeing that many false prophets have come out into the world. In this you are knowing the spirit of God: every spirit which is avowing Jesus Christ having come in flesh is of God, and every spirit which is not avowing Jesus the Lord having come in flesh is not of God. And this is of the

3 The spirit of antichrist is the spirit of the world. It does not want the Christ of the Scriptures, but prefers some substitute more suited to its taste. This spirit has come to pervade, not only the world, but the nominal church, which has become largely a religious world. In its rites and ceremonies are substituted for the salvation of Christ, the energy of the flesh takes the place of the power of the spirit, and the wisdom of men displaces the wisdom of God. The world is to be saved by social service and sanitation and reconciled by reform. Everywhere are signs that the majority of the churches have lost faith in God's Christ and are attempting to find some better means of carrying on God's work than through the power of His Son.

5 We are never told that God is justice, or God is power, or God is wisdom. These are His attributes, not His essence. The distinction is of vital import, in the conflicting maze of reasoning concerning God's ways and words. Justice and power and wisdom are relative, but love is absolute. He is never so just as when He justifies the unjust, for that is in line with love. He is never so strong as when His weakness overpowers human strength, for that links it to love. He is never so wise as when His foolishness confounds the wisdom of men, for that glorifies love. All His attributes appear and withdraw at the beck of love. All serve it, and never go counter to its commands. We cannot reason that God will do thus and so because He is just, or strong or wise. Love may not give leave. But we can safely lay our heads on the bosom of His love and there learn the great lesson that He IS love, and has both the power and wisdom to carry out the dictates of His affection. What clearer proof can be given that all that He has done and is doing is leading up to that grand ultimate when He will be All in all, and love will rest in being loved?

9-10 Consistently with the era for which John writes he does not mention grace. The design of the incarnation is the manifestation of God's love, which proves to be no idle display but a transforming energy.

antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming, and is now already in the world. You are of God, little children, and you have conquered them, seeing that greater is He Who is in you than he who is in the world. They are of the world, therefore they are speaking of the world and the world is hearing them. We are of God. He who is knowing God is hearing us. He who is not of God is not hearing us. By this we are knowing the spirit of truth and the spirit of deception.

7 Beloved, we may be loving one another, seeing that love is of God, and everyone who is loving God has been begotten of God, and is knowing God. He who is not loving knew not God, seeing that God is love. In this was manifested the love of God among us, that God has dispatched His only begotten Son into the world that we should be living through Him. In this is love, not that we love God, but that He loves us, and dispatches His Son, a propitiation concerned with our sins.

11 Beloved, if God loves us thus, we also ought to be loving one another. No one has ever gazed upon God. If we should be loving one another, God is remaining in us, and His love is perfected in us. In this we are knowing that we are remaining in Him, and He in us, seeing that He has given us of His spirit. And we have gazed [upon Him], and are testifying that the Father has dispatched the Son, the ¹⁷ The day of judgment here spoken of is not the so-called "general judgment", of which the Scriptures know nothing, but one of the many judgments which it makes known. It is difficult to imagine this judgment in some far-off future day. It is spoken of as a time when love will give boldness and cast out fear. As the believer of this present economy cannot by any means come into condemnation, and shall not enter any judgment, we shall do well to leave this experience with the Circumcision, to whom John wrote. They will enter the day of judgment which precedes the day of the Lord. They will pass through the terrible tribulations portrayed in the Unveiling. Heaven above will conspire with the earth beneath to pour out God's hoarded wrath upon the earth. The earth will reel, the stars will fall, the elements will be charged with death. In such a time there will be much meaning to the passage we are considering. Nothing but perfect love, that is, love in the maturity of its powers, will be able to stand unshakable in that day.

¹⁸ The inculcation of love to God is of little avail, unless first of all His love has been expounded and finds a place in our hearts. It should be the aim of the evangelist and teacher to elaborate God's love in the gift of His Son, in the salvation which He has provided, in the mercy or grace which attends it, and in the future bliss which it will provide, and the nearness to Himself which it involves. The power of such a presentation will produce a responsive love in all who believe, such as could by no means be provoked by exhortations or commands.

¹⁵ Saviour of the world. Whoever should be avowing that Jesus is the Son of God, God is remaining in him and he in God. And we know and have believed the love which God is having in us. God is love, and he who is remaining in love is remaining in God, and God is remaining in him.

¹⁷ In this has love been perfected with us, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment, seeing that, according as He is, so are we also in this world. Fear is not in love, but perfect love is casting out fear, seeing that fear has chastening. Now he who is fearing has not been perfected in love. We are loving God, seeing that He first loves us. ²⁰ If anyone should be saying that "I am loving God", and should be hating his brother, he is a liar, for he who is not loving his brother whom he has seen cannot be loving God. ²¹ Whom he has not seen. And this precept have we from Him, that he who is loving God may be loving his brother also.

5 Everyone who is believing that Jesus is the Christ has been begotten of God. And everyone who is loving Him Who begets is loving him also who has been begotten by Him. In this we are knowing that we are loving the children of God, whenever we may be loving God and may be doing His precepts. For this is the love of God, that we may be keeping His precepts. And His precepts are not heavy, seeing that everyone begotten of God is conquering the world. And this is the

⁹ It is a remarkable fact that the word testify is used concerning the Lord's baptism in water (Jn.1³⁴), and concerning His crucifixion (Jn.19³⁵), and here again of the spirit (¹⁰). This is confirmed by the statement of the seventh verse. Three are testifying, the spirit, and the water and the blood. First there was His baptism in water accompanied by the testimony of John the Baptist as well as the descending dove and the voice from heaven, saying, "This is My Son, the Beloved in Whom I delight" (Mt. 3¹⁷). At His crucifixion one of the soldiers punctures His side with a lance head, and immediately blood and water came out (Jn.19³⁴). After His glorification, the spirit which He poured forth testified to His exaltation. So that we have testimony to His anointing, to His death, and to His exaltation. These three unite to prove that Jesus is the Son of God. This threefold testimony concerning God's Son is stronger than any mere human evidence. It was given at the very commencement of His ministry, and again at its close. Nothing in between these two points contradicts this testimony, but much that He did and said confirmed it. Only the Son of God could deal with the demons and eject them. He alone could command the elements. The quaking earth at His crucifixion convinced the centurion, who exclaimed "Truly this was the Son of God!"

¹¹ John, the beloved disciple, is dead. How then could he insist so strongly that he had "everlasting" life, and that all who are not believing this have made God a liar? It is evident that he did not have what we would understand by "everlasting" life or he would still be living. The rendering "eonian" avoids this difficulty. This life does not commence until the resurrection and lasts until death is no longer in action, at the consummation at the close of the eonian times. It will be, in effect, without end, but it would be foolish to predicate life when there is no death.

¹³ As in his gospel (20³¹) so here John states his purpose in writing. The epistle aims to confirm the faith of believers, to deepen in their hearts a knowledge of security, and to establish that peace and confidence in God conquest which conquers the world: our faith.

⁵ Now who is he who is conquering the world if not he who is believing that Jesus is the Son of God?
⁶ This is He Who is coming through water and blood and spirit—Jesus Christ—not in the water only, but in the water and in the blood. And it is the spirit which is testifying, seeing that the spirit is the truth,
⁷ seeing that there are three that are
⁸ testifying, the spirit, and the water, and the blood, and the three are for the one thing.

⁹ If we are obtaining the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater, seeing that this is the testimony of God, that He has testified concerning His Son. He who is believing into the Son of God has the testimony in himself: he who is not believing God has made Him a liar, seeing that he has not believed into the testimony which God has testified concerning His ¹¹ Son. And this is the testimony, that God gives us eonian life, and ¹² this life is in His Son. He who has the Son has the life. He who has not the Son of God has not the life.

¹³ These things I write to you that you who are believing into the name of the Son of God may be perceiving that you have eonian life. And this is the boldness which we have toward Him, that if we should be requesting anything according to which is essential to unselfish service. Such assurance belongs of right to all "who are believing in the name of the Son of God". Knowledge of God's gift translates itself into confidence toward God, which asks great things of God, so releasing his power and becoming the agent of his purposes.

¹⁶ The sin to death is probably the same as that of the sixth and tenth of Hebrews—apostasy from the faith of Christ, or, in view of the times for which this is written, the reception of the emblem of the wild beast (Un. 14¹⁰). That this is the setting in which this passage is to be interpreted is further suggested by the phrase in the nineteenth verse, "the whole world is lying in the wicked one". This will be especially true in the time of the end. Furthermore, we have the striking conclusion of the epistle, which can hardly be understood in any other light. "Little children, guard yourselves from idols." What idols? Does it not seem clear that the apostle, with prophetic eye, is anticipating that marvelous image, which all will be compelled to worship under pain of death? (Un. 13¹⁶).

¹⁶ If anyone should be perceiving his brother sinning a sin not to death, he shall be requesting and He will be giving life to him—to those sinning not to death. There is a sin to death: I am not saying that he should be asking concerning that. All injustice is sin, and there is a sin not to death.

¹⁸ We are aware that everyone who has been begotten of God is not sinning, but he who is begotten of God is keeping himself, and the wicked ¹⁹ one is not touching him. We are aware that we are of God, and the whole world is lying in the wicked ²⁰ one. Yet we are aware that the Son of God is arriving, and has given us a comprehension, that we are knowing the True One, and we are in the True One, in His Son, Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eonian life.

⁴ The main characteristics of the Circumcision epistles reappear in this brief letter. There is the emphasis on conduct and the physical aspect of truth. The very brevity of the letter tells us that the elder much preferred to convey his message in person. Even if we should take the lady as a type of Israel, the tie which is recognized is a physical one. In all this there is a great contrast with the latest ministry of Paul.

⁶ The difference in viewpoint between John and Paul is seen in their attitude toward the law. In one case "he who is loving another has fulfilled law" (Ro.13⁸). In the other love is the motive that they may be walking according to His precepts. In one case there is emancipation from law. In the other there is ability to fulfill law. God will write the law on their hearts, under the new covenant (Heb. 8¹⁰). We are not under law, but under grace (Ro.6¹⁵). We were exempted from the law . . . so that it is for us to be slaving in newness of spirit and not in oldness of letter (Ro.7⁶).

⁷ The principal object of this letter seems to be a warning against those who spiritualize the coming of Christ, and deny His physical appearance in the future. In the first epistle it is "having come" (4²). Here the present participle is used—"coming"—and can refer only to His manifestation in the day of the Lord. (See Mt.16²⁸, 24³⁰, 26⁶⁴, Mk.13²⁶, 14⁶², Lu.21²⁷.) This involves the great truth of His physical resurrection and ascension, and confirms the literal understanding of the prophecy that "And His feet stand in that day on the mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem from the east" (Zech. 14⁴).

Truth is emphasized in this as love is emphasized in the third epistle. The many deceivers cause grave con-

THE ELDER to the chosen lady and her children, whom I am loving in truth, and not I only, but all also, who have known the truth, because of the truth which is remaining in us, and shall be with us for the con.

³ With us will be grace, mercy, peace from God, the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

⁴ I WAS OVERJOYED that I have found of your children walking in truth, according as we obtained a
⁵ precept from the Father. And now I am asking you, lady, not as writing a new precept to you, but the precept which we have from the beginning, that we may be loving
⁶ one another. And this is love, that we may be walking according to His precepts. This is the precept, according as you hear from the beginning, that you may be walking
⁷ in it, seeing that many deceivers came out into the world, who are not avowing Jesus Christ coming in flesh. This is the deceiver and ⁸ the antichrist. Be looking to yourselves, lest you should be destroying your work, but that you may be getting full wages.

⁹ Everyone who is taking the lead and not remaining in the teaching of Christ has not God. He who is remaining in the teaching, this one has both the Father and the Son.
¹⁰ If anyone is coming to you and is not bringing this teaching, be not taking him into your home, and say
¹¹ not to him "Rejoice!" For he who is saying to him to be rejoicing is participating in his wicked acts.

¹² Having much to be writing you, I resolved not to do it with paper and cern. Truth is imperiled and is now to be made a test of fellowship and a condition of offering hospitality (10). It will not be a time of recovery of truth but of its perversion. The test of fellowship in the present is conduct and not doctrine.

² The prosperity of the soul must not be confounded with spiritual prosperity. Like the salvation of the soul (1 Pt.1⁹), it refers to that physical enjoyment and satisfaction which will be fully known in the coming kingdom. The Circumcision are promised all physical blessing on the earth; we are blessed with every spiritual blessing among the celestials (Eph.1³). Such a salvation as this is not at all suited to our calling above in Christ Jesus.

Much of the confusion today is the result of mingling truth intended for one church into that which belongs to the other. The truth found in the Circumcision epistles will come into play again after the present administration of grace has come to an end.

⁹ It is significant that any man would dare to oppose an apostle. Diotrephes evidently did it in order to secure for himself the highest place in the ecclesia. There is no suggestion of any difference in doctrine. This spirit, which was severely condemned by our Lord, has been the cause of much harm to the saints. True servants of the Lord are taught by His example, and do not desire to exalt themselves, knowing well that He will abase such, and will Himself exalt all who truly deserve it in that day. Diotrephes exalted himself and, as a result, his name has been a by-word down the centuries since. Demetrius does not seem to have thought of himself yet his name is honored and his place a permanent one in the annals of the good.

Three typical characters, Gaius, Diotrephes, and Demetrius supply the topics of the letter. "The elder, Gaius", showed fidelity and hospitality. Pride

THE ELDER, to Gaius, the beloved, whom I am loving in truth:

² BELOVED, concerning all I am wishing that you be prospered and sound, according as your soul is prospered. For I was overjoyed at the coming of the brethren and your testimony to the truth, according as you are walking in truth. I am having no greater joy than this, that I am hearing of my children walking in the truth.

⁵ Beloved, you are doing a faithful thing whatever you should work for the brethren, and strangers at that, who testify of your love before the ecclesia, to whom you will be doing ideally by sending them forward worthily of God, for they come forth for the sake of the Name, getting nothing from the nations. We, then, ought to be taking up with such, that we may become fellow workers in the truth.

⁹ I write somewhat to the ecclesia, but Diotrephes, who is fond of being foremost among them, is not receiving us. Therefore, if I should be coming, I shall be reminding him of his acts which he is doing, babbling about us with wicked words, and not being sufficed with this, he is not receiving the brethren besides, and is forbidding those who are intending to, and is casting them out of the ecclesia.

¹¹ Beloved, do not be imitating the evil, but the good. He who is doing good is of God. He who is doing evil has not seen God. ¹² Demetrius has been testified to by all, and by the truth itself. Now we also are testifying, and you are aware that our testimony is true.

¹³ I had much to write to you, but do not want to be writing to you with ink and pen.

THE EPISTLE OF JUDE

JUDE, the last of the epistles to the Circumcision, is the prelude to the apocalyptic judgments. Its framework reveals the fact that the central theme is the coming of the Lord in judgment upon the irreverent (14,16). Indeed, it seems to suggest that Enoch himself will prophesy, as one of the two witnesses (Un.11³⁻¹²), to (not of) these, in the Lord's day. As Peter's second epistle is especially concerned with this same judgment period, it contains many parallel passages. Compare Jude 3 with 2 Pe.15, 4 with 21, 6 with 24, 7 with 28-10, 8 with 210, 9 with 211, and 10 with 212, 11 with 215, 12-13 with 213-17, 16 with 218, 17-18 with 31-3.

As Jude speaks of the apostles (17), he is not the apostle of this name (Jn. 14²²). Neither was James, his brother, an apostle, for James and John were the two sons of Zebedee (Mt.26³⁷). The other James was not prominent enough to be referred to in this way. So Jude was evidently the brother of James, the Lord's brother, who occupied by far the most prominent place among the saints of the Circumcision, although he was not an apostle. This makes Jude himself a brother of the Lord.

This fact throws much light on the character of its teaching, its harmony with the other Circumcision epistles, and its strong contrast with the later teaching of the apostle Paul. Paul repudiates even the distant physical bond existing between him and the Lord, and bases all on a spiritual relationship in grace. Jude deals with the judgment of those who are closely united to Him in the flesh.

While the apostasy here set forth is not to be applied to the Uncircumcision during the present period of grace, its beginnings can be clearly seen among the Jews, as God is gathering them from the nations and restoring them to their own land. As in the exodus from Egypt, He will deal with the nation of Israel as a whole, yet destroy the apostates among them during the era of His indignation. With this in view, Jude addresses this epistle to the faithful, lest they, too, become involved in the apostasy.

Unlike those to whom Paul writes these will not have justification, but only a pardon of sins, which can be revoked. Hence even believers among the Circumcision may fall away, especially during the fearful afflictions of the time of the end.

The framework shows that the main theme, the judgment of apostasy, is presented, as usual, from the divine side first and then reviewed, in inverse order, from the human aspect.

From verse fifteen, as shown by the framework, we return over the same ground as we came, but from a different viewpoint. In the former division all was viewed in its Godward aspect: then we look on the manward side. First we have the mercy from God (2), lastly the mercy shown to man (21-23). And so with each subject.

The closing ascription is in close harmony with the epistle. Glory, majesty, might and authority belong to God when He is executing His strange work of judging the earth and inaugurating the reign of His Christ, as is set forth in detail in the book of His unveiling.

GODWARD

¹ Jude's stress on human relationships is very strong, especially as James, his brother, gained the ascendancy among the Circumcision because of his physical relationship to the Lord. Even Peter and John were eclipsed by James, in the latter part of Acts, though he was not even an apostle.

² The absence of grace from this salutation is very striking. As it will have its prime fulfilment in an era of divine indignation, nothing higher than mercy is possible.

⁵ The present day decadence of morals and contempt for government is but an index of the trend of the apostasy in Israel in the last days. As in the exodus, where all Israel was re-deemed out of Egypt, yet nearly all bleached their bones in the wilderness, so it will be again. Only a remnant will enter the kingdom, for lack of faith and following the flesh.

⁷ The destruction of Sodom and the surrounding cities is still apparent to all who visit the region. In this way these cities are experiencing the justice of eonian fire. The fire has long ceased but its effects will remain and testify to God's judgment until the close of this eon, after which Sodom shall return to her former estate (Ezek.16^{53,56}).

JUDAS, a slave of Jesus Christ, yet a brother of James, to those who are called, beloved in God the Father, and kept by Jesus Christ.

² May mercy and peace and love be multiplied to you!

³ BELOVED, while giving all diligence to be writing to you concerning our common salvation and life, I have had the necessity to write entreating you to be contending for the faith once given over to the saints.

⁴ For certain men slip in who long ago have been written beforehand for this judgment; irreverent, bartering the grace of our God for wantonness, and disowning our only Owner and Lord, Jesus Christ.

⁵ Now I am intending to remind you, you who once are aware of all, that the Lord, when saving the people out of the land of Egypt, secondly destroys those who believe

⁶ not. Besides, the messengers who keep not their own sovereignty, but leave their own habitation. He has kept in imperceptible bonds under gloom for the judgment of

⁸ Howbeit, these dreamers also, likewise are indeed defiling the flesh, yet are repudiating dominion,

⁹ and calumniating glories. Now when Michael, the chief messenger, doubting the Slanderer, argued concerning the body of Moses, he dares not bring a calumniating judgment.

¹¹ The way of Cain is the bloodless religion which offers the fruit of its own cursed toll (Gen.4³;3¹⁷), yet, for all its abhorrence of sacrifice, does not hesitate to shed fraternal blood. They will work for God's favor, but will not debase themselves so as to receive it as His gift, through the blood of His Anointed.

¹¹ The temptation to profit by the priestly or prophetic office seems to be the ruling principle of all religions. Balak, when he wished Israel cursed (Nu.22¹⁷), was told by Balaam that he would require great wages for the work. So the religion of the end time will be a popular vocation, affording a good opportunity for money making.

¹⁴ The designation of Enoch as the seventh from Adam (Gen.5¹⁸) is significant of the end of the first cycle of human history and corresponds with the seven earthly economies which precede the judgment. These are, Adam in Innocence, Seth with Conscience, Noah with human Government, Abraham with Promise, Moses with Law, the Incarnation (the Pentecostal, Transitional and Secret economies are parenthetical) and the day of Indignation. After this an entirely new cycle of human history commences under the reign of the Son of Mankind.

¹⁴ The statement that Enoch "prophecies" is indefinite as to time. It does not necessarily recognize the so-called "Book of Enoch" which has been found in an Ethiopic translation, and contains a passage substantially the same as the one given by Jude. The indefinite form of the verb allows the possibility that Enoch, as one of the two witnesses (Un.11³) may yet deliver this prophecy to the irreverent in the great crisis at the time of the end.

but said, "May the Lord rebuke you!" Yet these indeed are calumniating whatever they are not acquainted with, yet in whatever they are instinctively adept, as the irrational animals, in these things they are being corrupted.

¹¹ Woe to them! seeing that they were gone in the way of Cain, and in the deception of Balaam's wages they were poured out, and they were destroyed in the contradiction of Korah.

¹⁷ Yet you, beloved, remember the declarations which have been declared before by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, that they said to you, "In the last time there will come scoffers, going according to their own irreverent desires."

¹⁹ These are they who seclude themselves, soulish, not having the spirit.

²⁰ Now you, beloved, building yourselves up in your most holy ²¹ faith, praying in holy spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, anticipating the mercy of our Lord
²² Jesus Christ for eonian life. And to some, indeed, who are doubting,
²³ be merciful, yet others be saving, snatching them out of the fire, yet to others be merciful with fear, hating even the tunic which has been spotted by the flesh.

²⁴ Now to Him Who is able to guard you from tripping and to stand you flawless in sight of His ²⁵ glory, in exultation, to the only God, our Saviour, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, might and authority before the entire eon, and now, and for all the eons. Amen!

THE UNVEILING OF
JESUS CHRIST
COMMONLY CALLED THE REVELATION

THE PURPOSE AND SCOPE OF THE UNVEILING

THE title of this scroll, "THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST," is an epitome of this whole prophecy. Hitherto Christ has hid Himself. Here He is about to throw off the covering and take His public place in the affairs of mankind. He must be unveiled. His name and title are the clue to the character of this unveiling.

Our Lord's personal name, JESUS, means Jehovah the Saviour. Jehovah is the God of Israel. Hence Christ is presented in this prophecy as the Saviour of the people of the covenant. The name Jehovah is emphasized by its translation into "Him Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming" (14).

Our Lord's official title, CHRIST (the Anointed), is the key to His unveiling, for it contains within itself the three characters in which He appears. Just as our realization of the beauties and blessings of light is greatly enhanced when we see it refracted into its three primary colors, yellow, red and blue, so the three-fold elements of the title CHRIST are presented to us separately, yet mingled now and then, that we may get a clear and cordial appreciation of the blessings and beauties which will be seen when He rises as the Sun of Righteousness upon this dark and dismal world. Of old three classes were anointed: prophets, potentates and priests. Each of these received the holy anointing oil upon entering his office. Samuel the prophet, David the king, and Aaron the priest, were all "christs" by virtue of their anointing. JESUS CHRIST combines these three offices in Himself. In this prophecy He is first unveiled as Prophet to His people (11³²), then as King (41-111⁸) and as Priest (111⁹-201⁵). After the climax is reached at the new creation (211) these titles are rehearsed in reverse order in the concluding division. The Temple (211-27) and the Throne (221-5) occupy us first and then the Prophet reappears with His closing message (226-17).

The literary structure divides this book into two grand divisions, one staged on this present earth and the other on the next. The first deals with the day of Jehovah, the second with the day of God.

The time occupied by this prophecy is called the eons of the eons—the two final eons or ages. The first division covers the first of these eons, the second is in the last, which is called the eon of the eons. The second division may last a long time, but is very briefly told; while the first division, if we except the thousand years, of which little is said, occupies the bulk of the book, though it is a very short period. This is the great judgment era which prepares the earth for the advent of Messiah.

The judgments of this book are for the purpose of enforcing the right of Christ to be its Potentate and Priest. Judgment must begin at God's house, hence He first presents His claims as Prophet among the synagogues of His own people Israel in the messages to the seven ecclesias.

Then heaven's throne is set and His regal rights are established. The world He ransomed as the Lamb will be redeemed by the Lion. The Throne Judgments are divided into three closely related yet distinct sections; the Seals, the Trumpets and the Thunders. The opening of the Seals gives us a general record of the whole period right up to the establishment of the kingdom. The judgments, especially the first four, are providential in character and affect saint and sinner alike. The fifth seal calls for vengeance on Israel's foes. The Trumpets are the answer to this cry. The intervening section makes provision for the protection of the saints during the sounding of the trumpets, the 144,000 being sealed and shielded from them. These judgments result in the kingdoms of this world coming under the sovereignty of our Lord's Anointed.

The Temple Judgments are twofold. First God's covenant with Israel is in view and Jerusalem is shielded from the wild beast. Then the law is exposed and its curses are poured out, especially upon those of the apostate nation who enjoy a false sovereignty over the earth in Babylon. This is followed by the marriage of the Lambkin, and the millennium. The section ends with the Great White Throne judgment, which winds up the affairs of this present earth.

In the last grand division God is reconciled to all mankind. Priesthood vanishes but rule continues to the consummation.

DAY OF GOD

THE TIME PERIODS OF THE UNVEILING

The chart is designed to give, at one glance, all the time periods mentioned or referred to, from the grand eons or ages down to the days of Daniel's visions. In order to accomplish this the short era of judgment at the inception of the Lord's Day is expanded, as indicated by the oblique lines. In this era most of the events in this scroll occur.

The Eons or Ages are five in number. This scroll is a prophecy covering the last two, which, as they spring out of the first three, are called "the eons of the eons" (10,184⁹,10513712100111514111571932010225).

The first of these two eons includes the day of the Lord, the second the Day of God. The present is Man's Day (1 Co.4³).

The Seventy Heptads, or "Weeks", are foretold in Daniel (9²⁴). From the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (Neh.21⁵), to Christ's entry into Jerusalem (Lu.19^{37,44}) was a period of exactly 173,880 days, or 69 heptads of years, counting 360 days to a year. The seventieth heptad is still future (Dan.9²⁶). Daniel divides it in half by the breaking of a treaty when the sacrifice and gift offering are stopped (Dan. 9²⁷). This leaves us the period often referred to in this scroll of 42 months (11² 13⁵), 1260 days (11³12⁸), and "season, seasons and half a season" (12¹⁴). These are principally in the last half of the heptad. The middle of the heptad is the beginning of most of the movements in this scroll and the end closes them.

This prophecy is not given in chronological order, but gives a general view under the Seals, expands the seventh seal under the Trumpets, and probably expands the seventh Trumpet under the Bowls. The end of the seventieth heptad is reached at least five times, and the narrative goes back again to fill in further details.

The days after Christ's epiphany are taken from Daniel's prophecy.

THE DAY OF JEHOVAH

The day of the Lord, or Jehovah (Isa. 13⁹), is a day of destruction, a cruel day with wrath and anger (Isa.13¹³Zeph.2³), in which the stars and constellations, and the sun and moon will be darkened (Joel 210,30,31315cf.Un.612), in which He punishes the inhabitants of the world for their evil, in which Babylon will be overthrown (cf.Un.18), and when Jehovah sets His people Israel in their own land and gives them rest (Isa.141³). It is a day of battle (Eze.13⁵), a day of famine (Joel 116cf.Un. 6⁸), and fire (Joel 110cf.Un.87), a day of thick darkness and subterranean horrors (Joel 22,4cf.Un.917), a great and terrible day (Joel 211), when He roars out of Zion (Joel 310), a day of woe (Amos 518,20cf. Un.813). It will judge the nations (Obad. 15,21Eze.30³), and in it He will take the kingdom (Un.1115). It is a day of wrath (Zeph.114,15cf.Un.617), of trouble and distress (Zeph.115cf.Un.714). In that day Jerusalem will be besieged and taken by an army from all nations (Zech.142cf.Un. 1614), and His feet shall once more stand upon the Mount of Olives (Zech.14Ac. 110,12). In it

"The haughtiness of human eyes is lowered,
And the height of men prostrated.
And Jehovah alone is an inaccessible retreat in that day" (Isa. 211,12).

This is in contrast with the present, which is "man's day" (1 Co.4³), when men are haughty and high and self-sufficient.

The day of Jehovah will come as a thief in the night (1 Thes.5² 2 Pt.3¹⁰). It cannot come until after the apostasy (2 Thes.2³). It closes with the dissolution of the heavens and the earth (2 Pet. 310,13 cf.Un.2011) and the creation of a new heavens and a new earth (Isa.65¹⁷ 2 Pt.313cf.Un.211-5).

Those under Paul's preaching were promised deliverance from that day of wrath (1 Thes.11051-11 2 Thes.22Ro.5⁹). Before it comes they will be assembled together to the Lord at His presence (2 Thes.2¹).

At the end of Jehovah's day the heavens will be dissolved and the elements will melt with heat because of the presence of the day of God (2 Pt.312). Then there will be a new heavens and a new earth (2 Pt.313cf.Un.211).

MAN'S DAY

THE DAY OF GOD

The Commencement of the Lord's Day may be expanded as follows:
Seen Years
The Era of Indignation

¹ This is the unveiling of a Person—Jesus Christ—not merely a prediction revealed through Him. God gives it to Him as a reward for His sufferings.

³ Near denotes a conditional proximity. The kingdom of the heavens was near during the early part of our Lord's ministry. It was postponed by His rejection. It was near again when proclaimed by the apostles but once more rejected by the nation of Israel. Peter writes "the consummation of all things is near" (1 Pt. 4⁷), yet nearly twenty centuries have passed and the consummation or end is still future.

THE PROPHETIC SECTION

⁴ The Divine Name, JEHOVAH, is a union of the three tenses of to BECOME.

יהו	יהוה	יה
HE-WILL-BECOME	BECOMING	HE-BECAME

The reverse arrangement of this is used once (46) by the four animals. Here and in 1⁸ the present tense is put first to emphasize the fact that He is now present:

Ο ΩΝ Ο ΗΝ Ο ΕΡΧΟΜΕΝΟΣ
THE BEING THE WAS THE COMING-ONE

In 11¹⁷ and 16⁵ the phrase "Who is coming" is omitted, because He is regarded as having come at that time. The Name is flexible and adapts itself to times and conditions.

THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST, which God gives to Him, to show to His slaves what must occur swiftly: and He signifies it, dispatching through His messenger to His slave, John, who testifies to the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ, whatever he perceived.

³ HAPPY is he who is reading and they who are hearing the word of the prophecy, and who are keeping that which is written in it, for the era is near.

⁴ JOHN, to the seven ecclesias which are in the [province of] Asia: Grace to you and peace from Him Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming, and from the seven spirits which are before His throne, and from Jesus Christ, the Faithful Witness, the Firstborn of the dead, and the Suzerain of the kings of the earth.

To Him Who is loving us and looses us from our sins by His blood and makes us a kingdom and priests to His God and Father, to Him be glory and might for the eons of the eons! ⁷ Amen! Lo! He is coming with clouds, and every eye will be viewing Him—those, also, who stab Him—and all the tribes of the land will be grieving over Him. Yea! Amen!

⁸ "I am the A and the Z", the Lord God is saying. "Who is, and Who was, and Who is coming, the Almighty."

⁹ I, John, your brother and joint participant in the affliction and kingdom and endurance in Jesus Christ, came to be in the island which is called Patmos, because of the word of God, and because of the testimony of Jesus Christ.

The Prophetic Section

¹⁰ In spirit, John is transported into the future day of Jehovah of which the prophets have often spoken. The Hebrew phrase "the day of the Lord" is changed to "the Lord's day" in order to shift the emphasis from the character of the day to the time, which is the important point in this passage. This is done in three ways, by changing the grammatical form, the rank, and the order of the words. The direction of the thought is altered by putting "Lord" in the dative instead of the genitive case, so that it locates rather than describes the day. Its force is further weakened by making it an adjective rather than a noun, and by shifting it from its prominent place at the end of the sentence and giving that striking location to "day".

¹³ Seven lampstands stand for a scattered Israel, as the one seven-branched lampstand in the tabernacle and temple stood for a united nation. These ecclesias are all in the "dispersion".

¹⁶ Stars stand for those whose spirits are in touch with God (Dan.12³, C. V.). Abraham's seed was to become as the stars of heaven. His physical progeny are like the sand upon the seashore.

¹⁷ First and Last (Isa.41⁴⁴48¹² Un.2⁸ 22¹³) is a title of Jehovah, the King of Israel, and his Redeemer.

¹⁹ The word "are" must be given the same sense here as in verse ²⁰ "the seven stars are," and "the lampstands are." It is a metaphor.

¹⁰ I came to be, in spirit, in the Lord's day, and I hear behind me a voice, ¹¹ loud as a trumpet, saying: "What you are observing write in a scroll and send to the seven ecclesias: to Ephesus and to Smyrna and to Pergamos and to Thyatira and to Sardis and to Philadelphia and to Laodicea."

¹⁷ And when I perceived Him, I fall at His feet as dead. And He places His right hand on me, saying, "Fear not! I am the First and the Last, and the Living One: and I became dead, and lo! I am living for the eons of the eons. (Amen!) And I have the keys of ¹⁹ death and of the unseen. Write, then, what you perceived, and what they are, and what is about to be ²⁰ occurring after these things: the secret of the seven stars which you

OF-THE SEVEN GLEAMERS which

The Prophetic Section

²⁰ The vision is figurative. The explanation is literal. It must not be further "explained". The seven stars are seven messengers. The seven lampstands are seven ecclesias. These will be found at the places indicated at the opening of the Lord's day. They are God's luminaries in the dense darkness of that judgment era.

THE SEVEN LETTERS

These letters fall into two groups. In the first three the injunction to hear precedes the promise. In the last four this order is reversed. In the former the wilderness experiences of Israel are recalled: their first love in Ephesus, their trials in Smyrna, Balaam in Pergamos. The latter recall their history in the land—two for Israel and two for Judah; Jezebel in Thyatira, Israel's blotting out in Sardis, the temple in Hezekiah's reign in Philadelphia, and the declining days of the Minor Prophets in Laodicea.

EPHESUS

⁴ Their "first love" is an allusion to Israel's espousals in the wilderness (Hos.11¹ Jer.2² Eze.16^{8,10} Ex.19^{4,9}).

⁷ The "tree" of life is, literally, the wood or log of life, for the wood is dead, and, in this phrase, always speaks of life out of death, or resurrection.

⁷ The promise reminds us of the tree of life in Eden and has its consummation in the new Jerusalem (22²). Our destiny is heaven (Eph.1³).

SMYRNA

⁸ In each message the Lord alludes to such particulars of the preceding vision as meet the case of the ecclesia. His resurrection life is a pledge of the wreath of life He promises to those who are faithful until death.

⁹ What force can there be to the claim to be Jews unless the Smyrna ecclesia was composed of Jews? Their allegiance to Satan's (or the Adversary's) synagogue would have no point if the Smyrnaites did not belong to God's synagogue.

perceived on My right hand, and the seven golden lampstands. The seven stars are messengers of the seven ecclesias, and the seven lampstands are seven ecclesias.

² To the messenger of the ecclesia in Ephesus write: 'Now this He is saying Who is holding the seven stars in His right hand, Who is walking in the midst of the seven golden lampstands.

² "I am aware of your acts, and your toil, and your endurance, and that you can not bear evil, and you try those saying that they themselves are apostles, and are not, and you found them false, and you have endurance, and you bear because of My name, and are not wearied. But I have against you that you desert your first love.
³ Be remembering, then, whence you have fallen, and repent, and do the former acts. Otherwise, I am coming to you, and shall be moving your lampstand out of its place, if you should not be repenting.
⁶ But this you have, that you are hating the acts of the Nicolaitans, which I, also, am hating.

⁷ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias.

To the one who is conquering, to him shall I be granting to be eating of the tree of life, which is in the center of the paradise of God."

⁸ And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Smyrna write: 'Now this He is saying Who is the First and the Last, Who became dead, and lives.

⁹ "I am aware of your acts and affliction and poverty (but you are rich) and the calumny of those professing themselves to be Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. Be fearing naught of what

The Prophetic Section

¹⁰ The ten days' affliction alludes to Israel's trial in the wilderness. That lasted forty years. This will be brief. Jews often suffer from anti-Semitic riots.

¹⁰ A wreath or garland, often of laurel, was awarded the successful contestant in the ancient games. This was the trophy of victory. It is not the symbol of rule, but the reward of faithful effort. The wreath of life will be worn by all who gain life as a reward of their deeds. It is given to the one who endures trial (Ja.1¹²). The life we have in Christ is a gratuitous gift, in no sense the reward of our efforts, so it cannot be figured by a wreath.

¹¹ The allusion in this promise is to the entrance of death when Adam sinned. The fulfillment of the promise will wait until the great white throne judgment (20¹¹). This promise cannot be applied now, for all in Christ are beyond judgment.

PERGAMOS

¹⁴ Balaam (Nu.25). The sorry scene at Shittim will be repeated in the day of Jehovah. In ancient times sacrifices to the gods were accompanied by ceremonial prostitution, which will also characterize the worship of the wild beast. Compare 2^{co}9²⁰, 2¹¹4²¹8²²1⁵Jude 1^{5,16}, 2³. Balaam was killed with the sword (Nu.31⁸Josh.13²²). The Nicolaitans are threatened with a similar fate. This is put in execution when the followers of the wild beast are "killed by the saber which is coming out of the mouth of Him Who is sitting on the horse" (19²¹).

¹⁷ Unless they worship the image of the wild beast they will not be able to obtain food, unless God gives it as He gave the manna. So the star-crowned woman will be nourished in the wilderness (12¹⁴). Then they will pray as He taught them: "Be giving us today our dole of bread" (Mt.6¹¹), for every other source is cut off.

The white pebble was used in allotting the land. Each man's name was written on a pebble, and these were put into a bag. As each allotment is called, a pebble is withdrawn. The allotment is given to the man whose name is on it. Thus the white pebble will be an earnest of their allotment in the kingdom. This is for Israel, not for the body of Christ.

you are about to be suffering. Lo! the Slanderer is about to be casting some of you into jail that you may be tried, and you will be having affliction ten days. Become faithful until death, and I shall be giving you the wreath of life.

¹¹ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias.

The one who is conquering may under no circumstances be injured by the second death."

¹² And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Pergamos write: 'Now this He is saying Who has the sharp two-edged saber. .

¹³ "I am aware where you are dwelling—where Satan's throne is—and you are holding My name, and do not disown My faith in the days in which Antipas, My faithful witness, was killed among you, where Satan is dwelling. But I have a few things against you, that you have there those holding the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a snare before the sons of Israel, to be eating idol sacrifices, and to commit prostitution.

¹⁵ Thus you, also, have those holding the teaching of the Nicolaitans, likewise. Repent then! Otherwise, I am coming to you swiftly and shall be battling with them with the saber of My mouth.

¹⁷ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias.

To the one who is conquering, to him shall I be giving of the hidden manna, and I shall be giving him a white pebble and on the pebble a new name written, which no one is aware of except the one who is obtaining it."

¹⁸ And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Thyatira write: 'Now this the Son of God is saying,

THYATIRA

¹⁸ Tertullian and Epiphanius say that there was no ecclesia in Thyatira when John wrote these letters. On this ground many rejected this prophecy in early times. There is no difficulty in this if we recognize the fact that, in spirit, John was transported into the day of Jehovah. Then there will be an ecclesia in Thyatira which will correspond perfectly with the epistle addressed to it.

²⁰ This is an allusion to the period of the Kings (1Ki.16³¹). The error of Balaam (2Pt.2¹⁵ Jude 10,13) becomes the state religion (cf.9²⁰,2117²,418³). The fact that Ephesus (29) and Pergamos (214) and Thyatira are all warned against this evil shows that the worship of the wild beast will revive the seductions of idolatry.

²³ Plague—literally death (cf. black death). See 6⁸.

²³ "Kidneys and hearts" is a Hebrew phrase signifying purity of motive.

²⁷ The shepherd's mace was a heavy club with a thong to hold it securely to his wrist, and a large head, bristling with spikes, at the end. He carried a crook for the sheep and a club for their enemies (12³19¹⁵). He will rule with rigor. Israel, not the body of Christ, will rule the millennial earth.

²⁷ In the East pottery was crushed into bits to make a kind of cement.

²⁸ The Morning Star is especially appropriated by the Son of David (22¹⁶). He is the Herald of approaching day. A place in the earliest phase of the kingdom is awarded the conqueror.

Who has His eyes as a flame of fire, and Whose feet are like white bronze.

¹⁹ "I am aware of your acts and love and faith and service and your endurance; and your last acts are more than the former. But I have much against you, seeing that you pardon that woman of yours, Jezebel, professing herself to be a prophetess, and she is teaching and enticing my slaves to commit prostitution and to be eating idol sacrifices. And I give her time that she may be repenting, and she is not willing to repent of her prostitution. Lo! I will be casting her into a couch, and those committing adultery with her into great affliction, if they should not be repenting of her acts. And I shall be killing her children with the plague, and all the ecclesias will know that I am He Who is searching the kidneys and hearts. And I shall be giving to each of you in accord with your acts. Now to you I am saying—to the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this teaching, those who do not know 'the depths of Satan,' as they are saying—I will be casting on you no other burden. Moreover, hold what you have until I should be arriving.

²⁶ And the one who is conquering and keeping My acts until the consummation, to him shall I be giving authority over the nations; and he shall be shepherding them with an iron club, as vessels of pottery are being crushed, as I also have obtained from My Father. And I shall be giving him the morning star.

²⁹ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias."

SARDIS

¹ The seven spirits of God are literal. They are seen under various figures, according to the connection. Before the throne they appear as torches of fire (4⁵). On the Lambkin they are seen as seven horns and seven eyes (5⁶). They are commissioned for the entire earth. The stars are limited to the ecclesias. ² Christ's coming is presented under various figures. He comes as a thief in the day of the Lord (1 Th.5² 2 Pt.3¹⁰ cf. 16¹⁵). The Lord warned His disciples of this aspect (Mt.24^{42,44} Lu.12³⁹). When they shall say "peace and security" then sudden destruction will come upon the unwatchful (1 Th.5³). But we are not in darkness that it should overtake us as a thief (1 Th.5^{4,11}).

³ Any man, woman, family or tribe who turned from Jehovah to worship the gods of the nations was to be rubbed out (Deut.29^{18,20}). David rubs out the names of some of his mighty men because they did not remain true to him (2 Sa.23³⁹). Joab, once over all the host (2 Sa.20²³), and Ahithophel were also erased. Here too, life and position depend on conduct. Our life is hid with Christ in God (Col.3³). ⁴ The scroll of life is referred to seven times in this book. It contains the names of those who do not worship the wild beast (13¹⁷). It is opened at the great white throne (20¹²) and any whose names were not found written in it were cast into the lake of fire (20¹⁵). Those enrolled in it may enter the new Jerusalem (21²⁷). Those who take from the sayings of this prophecy will have their part taken from the scroll of life (22¹⁹).

PHILADELPHIA

⁷ David's key (Isa.22^{15,23}) refers to the deposing of Shebna and the raising up of Eliakim to be the treasurer of the temple, or minister of the court (See Isa.36²²). This letter moves in the temple, where the treasures are, where safety is found, and where worship is carried on.

⁸ It is impossible to escape the inference that the Philadelphian ecclesia is composed only of Jews and are members of God's synagogue. As every other consideration points in this direction we may conclude that all of these ecclesias are Jewish. Each will worship in a synagogue, which has a "messenger" who will read to them.

3 And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Sardis write: 'Now this He is saying Who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars.

"I am aware of your acts, that you have a name that you are living and are dead. Become watchful, and establish the rest who were about to be dying; for I have not found your acts complete before My God. Be remembering, then, how you have obtained, and hear, and be keeping and repent. If ever then, you should not be watching. I shall be arriving on you as a thief, and under no circumstances will you be knowing at what hour I shall be arriving on you. But you have a few names in Sardis which do not pollute their garments, and they shall walk with Me in white, seeing that they are worthy.

⁵ The one who is conquering, he shall be clothed in white garments, and under no circumstances shall I be erasing his name from the scroll of life, and I shall be avowing his name in front of My Father and before His messengers.

⁶ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias."

⁸ "I am aware of your acts. Lo! Before you have I granted an open door which no one is able to lock, seeing that you have a little power, and you keep My word and you do not disown My name. Lo! I have granted to those of the synagogue of Satan, (who are professing themselves to be Jews and are not, but are lying)—Lo! I shall be mak-

¹⁰ Endurance will be a cardinal virtue in that day of stress and distress. Seven times are we reminded of it (1922, 3, 10, 13, 10, 14, 12). He that endures to the end shall be saved (Mt. 10:22, 24, 13 Mk. 13:13). In the present economy salvation depends entirely on faith in Christ.

¹⁰ The English idiom to keep out, conveys a false impression to many. Here it does not mean to keep from, but to keep those who are in the trial so that they come out victoriously.

¹² The conqueror with but little power who hides in the temple during the hour of trial will be openly acknowledged in the kingdom by giving him a place of prominence and power like the great pillars, Jachin and Boaz. It may be that they will have a special place of authority over the vast crowd who serve Him day and night in His temple (7:15).

¹² The 144,000 are sealed on their foreheads (73) which exempts them from the judgment of the locusts (94). This seal is probably the Father's name. In the new earth the slaves of the Lamb-kin are thus sealed (224). On the other hand, the false prophet causes all to receive the emblem of the wild beast (13:10), marking them for God's indignation (149). Only those who refuse this symbol live and reign with Christ the thousand years (204).

LAODICEA

¹⁴ God's creative Original. See Col. 1:15 note. He is called the Origin or Beginning three times in this scroll in the phrase "Origin and Consummation" (21, 22, 13).

¹⁶ To spew as the result of an emetic.

¹⁷ Naked in the sense of scantily clad, not necessarily nude.

²¹ The promises to the conquerors increase in proportion to the apostasy with which they contend. In Ephesus they are promised a place in the paradise of the new earth. This will doubtless be shared by all the other conquerors as well. In Laodicea, the nauseating ecclesia, the conqueror is promised a place with Christ on His millennial throne. This is the highest place to which an Israelite could aspire (Mt. 20:21). This is fulfilled when the wages are paid (11:18) and the saints reign with Him the thousand years (204).

ing them that they will be arriving and worshipping before your feet, and they may know that I love you.

¹⁰ Seeing that you keep the word of My endurance, I, also, shall be keeping you out of the hour of trial which is about to be coming on the whole inhabited earth to try those who are dwelling on the earth. I am coming swiftly! Be holding to that which you have, that no one may be taking your wreath.

¹² The one who is conquering, him shall I be making a pillar in the temple of My God, and he may be coming out nevermore, and I shall be writing on him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which is descending out of heaven from My God, and My new name.

¹³ Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias."

¹⁴ And to the messenger of the ecclesia in Laodicea write: 'Now this He is saying Who is the Amen, the Faithful and True Witness, and God's creative Original.

The Prophetic Section

²² A low state of spirituality is denoted by the hearing ear. Job said "I heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear, but now my eye sees Thee (Job 42⁵)."

THE THRONE SECTION

CHRIST AS KING

This section deals with the establishment of the kingdom of Christ and His saints (Dan. 7^{14,18}) over the whole earth, as the Temple Section (11¹⁹⁻²⁰) breaks down all opposition to the worship of Jehovah and the priesthood of Israel. There are three distinct divisions in this section: the Seals, the Trumpets, and the Thunders. Each of these is preceded by a preparatory vision, the Seals by the Throne, the Scroll and the Lambkin, the Trumpets by the 144,000 and the Vast Multitude, the Thunders by the Messenger and the Open Scroll.

¹ The "openings" of this prophecy should be given careful consideration. They are like the rising curtain which reveals the next act in this great tragedy. There are four pairs of "openings", each of which should be studied together. They are as follows:

HEAVEN—A Door (41) Presidential Judgments.

Heaven (1911) Public Judgments.

THE EARTH—A Well (92) The Terrible Calvary.

Its Mouth (1216) Swallows the Flood.

THE SCROLLS—Seven Seals (5234596135791281).

The Scrolls (2012) Individual Judgment.

THE TEMPLE—The Temple (1119) Ark, Covenant.

Tent of Testimony (155) Law Exposed.

³ The emerald rainbow assures us that God will remember His covenant with every living creature (Gen. 9^{9,17}). There shall not be another deluge. These days will be like the days of Noah in many other respects (Mt. 24³⁷ Lu. 17²⁶).

⁴ Elder, or senior or presbyter, is a title of honor and respect implying authority rather than advanced age, as in our "alderman". These elders follow the living creatures in worshipping the Creator (41⁰). An elder assures John that the Lion will break the seals (5⁵) and when He takes the scroll they celebrate (5^{8,11}). They fall and worship in unison with all creation (51⁴). They echo the worship of the vast crowd (711) and one of them tells John who they are (714).

to anoint your eyes, that you may be observing.

¹⁹ As many as I should be fond of, I am exposing and disciplining. Be zealous, then, and repent! Lo! I stand at the door and am knocking. If ever any one should be hearing My voice and be opening the door. I shall also be coming in to him and dining with him, and he with Me.

²¹ The one who is conquering, to him shall I be granting to be seated with Me on My throne as I, also, conquer, and am seated with My Father on His throne.

²² Who has an ear, let him hear what the spirit is saying to the ecclesias. " " "

² Now immediately I came to be in spirit, and lo! a throne, located in spirit, and lo! on the throne One sitting. And He who is sitting is, to sight, like a jasper stone and a carnelian. And a rainbow surrounding the throne is, to sight, like an emerald.

⁴ And surrounding the throne are twenty-four thrones, and on the twenty-four thrones elders are sitting, clothed in white garments, and on their heads are golden wreaths.

⁶ And before the throne it is as a glassy sea, like crystal.

Throne Section—The Scroll

At the seventh trumpet they fall and worship, the tenor of their words showing that they are not included among His slaves the prophets or the saints (11¹⁶). They hear the song of the 144,000 (14³) and join the hallelujahs at the destruction of Babylon (19⁴). David patterned the twenty-four courses of the priesthood after them (1 Chr.24³, 5 Heb.8⁵9²³). They lead heaven's worship and combine the offices of prophet, priest and king, for they sit on thrones, present the worship of others, and speak for God. Their "crowns", however, are not regal, but wreaths of victory.

6 The throne attendants of the Divine Majesty vary according to the character and title which He assumes. Jehovah is attended by the Living Ones, or Cherubim. These are intensely animate and are incorporated into the very throne itself. All creation is represented in this august session. The heads of the heavenly hosts sit on thrones. The messengers attend. All of these are heavenly spirit beings.

The realm of earth is represented by the heads of the animal kingdom, including man. These are the divisions of creation (Gen.1) except fish and creeping things. With these only God established His covenant after the flood (Gen.9^{9,10}). They are living souls, rather than spirits. They conform to the scene about them. When we first see the cherubim, guarding the way to the tree of life (for this tree was a source of the life they represented) no wings are mentioned (Gen.3²⁴). When they form part of the mercy seat, they seem to have had two wings (Ex.25²⁰). When Ezekiel sees them they have four wings (Eze.1⁶). Here they have six wings each. Ezekiel tells us they looked like living coals of fire. Here they are full of eyes. Ezekiel calls them by the same name they are given here when he says: "It is the animal which I saw under the God of Israel at the stream Chebar: and I know that they are cherubim" (Eze.10²⁰). According to these passages they do not seem to be confined to a set physical manifestation, but conform to their spiritual activity and environment. Isaiah calls them Seraphim or Burning Ones in connection with the title Adonai.

11 The elders worship the Creator rather than a Redeemer.

And centering in the throne and around the throne are four animals replete with eyes in front and 7 behind. And the first animal is like a lion, and the second animal is like a calf, and the third animal has a face like as a human being, and the fourth animal is like a
8 flying vulture. And the four animals—each one of them has six wings apiece. Around and inside they are replete with eyes.

And they have no rest day and night, saying,

"Holy! holy! holy!
Lord God Almighty,
Who wast and Who art
And Who art coming!"

9 And whenever the animals should be giving glory and honor and thanks to Him Who is sitting on the throne, Who is living for the 10 eons of the eons (Amen!), the twenty-four elders, also, will be falling before Him Who is sitting on the throne and will be worshipping Him Who is living for the eons of the eons (Amen!), and they are casting their wreaths before the throne, saying,

11 "Worthy art Thou, O Lord, our Lord and God,
To get glory and honor and power;
For the universe Thou dost create,
And because of Thy will it is created and was."

5 And I perceived on the right hand of Him Who is sitting on the throne a scroll, written in front and on the back, and sealed up with
2 seven seals. And I perceived a strong messenger proclaiming with a loud voice: "Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to loose its

Throne Section—The Lambkin

1 The scroll is not a "book". It was applied to a legal document (Mt.19⁷ Mk.10⁴). This is its probable meaning here, for it is endorsed on the back and sealed like a mortgage "according to the law and custom" which obtained in Israel in ancient times (Jer.32⁸⁻¹⁴). What the breaking of the seals involves is clear from the new song of the animals and elders (5⁹) when the Lambkin gets the scroll. The sovereignty of the earth, which is Israel's, has passed from them. It is held by alien powers which must be dispossessed. It is Jehovah's purpose that Israel shall reign over the whole earth. The redemption of their lost heritage is the subject of this section. Nothing could more aptly portray the process of this redemption than the gradual breaking of the seals of the scroll. When all are broken the incumbency is removed—the sovereignty of the earth becomes our Lord's and His Messiah's for the eons of the eons (11¹⁵).

6 Lambkin, the diminutive form, is used to distinguish it from the usual word lamb (Jn.12⁹, 3⁸ Ac.8³² 1Pt.1¹⁹). It is used only once elsewhere (Jn.21¹⁵), in contrast to a full grown sheep. This tender and delicate form adds much to the loving pathos of this prophecy. The utter weakness of a very young Lamb is in striking antithesis to His character as the Lion and to the mighty acts which He performs as a result of His suffering and death. It is in beautiful accord with the new name of His wife, who is now called the bride. Youth is renewed in resurrection.

8 The ancient "harp" was shaped like the lyre and was used in prophecy (1Sa.10⁵ 1Chr.25¹) and thanks and praise (1Chr.25³ Ps.92¹⁻³ 149³), which are seen in this new song which they sing.

9 The prayers of the saints may be summed up in one word: "Thy kingdom come!" (Mt.6¹⁰). How fit that these should find remembrance when He is about to fulfill their request!

9 The elders and animals are bought, not redeemed. They celebrate Israel's deliverance. The failure to note this distinction and the consequent attempt to reconcile the two parts of this song, has led to much confusion in the manuscripts.

3 seals?" And no one in heaven, nor on earth, nor underneath the earth, was able to open the scroll, neither to look at it. And I lamented much that no one was found worthy to open the scroll, neither to look at it. And one of the elders is saying to me, "Do not be lamenting! Lo! He conquers! The Lion out of Judah's tribe, the Root of David, is to open the scroll and to loose its seven seals!"

6 And I perceived, in the center of the throne and of the four animals and in the center of the elders, a Lambkin standing, as though slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, commissioned for the entire earth.

7 And It came and has taken it out of the right hand of Him Who is sitting on the throne.

8 And when It took the scroll, the four animals and the twenty-four elders fall before the Lambkin, each having a lyre and golden bowls brimming with incenses, which are the prayers of the saints. And they are singing a new song, saying,

"Worthy art Thou to be taking the scroll and to open its seals,
For Thou wast slain and dost buy us for God by Thy blood.

Out of every tribe and language and people and nation

10 Thou dost also make them a kingdom and a priesthood for our God,
And they will be reigning on the earth."

11 And I perceived, and I hear a sound as of many messengers around the throne and the animals and the

Throne Section—The Seals

¹³ It has been suggested that the Syriac version preserves the true reading here. After "bliss" it goes right on and gives every creature to the Lambkin, rather than getting praise from them, thus:

And every creature which is in heaven

And on earth and under the earth
And in the sea and all those in them.

And I hear Him Who sits on the throne, Who says,

"To the Lambkin be given blessing and honor and glory and might
For eons of eons!"

¹ The first four seals correspond with the opening words of our Lord's address on the Mount of Olives (Mt.24-25 Mk.13 Lu.21³⁻³⁶).

² Compare Mt.24⁵. The false messiah comes forth on a white horse after the manner of the real Messiah.

² The horse is prepared against the "day of battle" (Prov.21³¹ cf. Job 39¹⁹⁻²⁵). Its absence denotes peace (Zech. 9¹⁰10³). They were not in common use in the land of Israel. The king was forbidden to multiply horses (Deut.17¹⁶). They were used chiefly as cavalry and for drawing chariots.

² The bow is a symbol of distant warfare. It is probable that these four seals describe the time when the great western nondescript monster (Dan.7⁷) tramples upon and devours the three eastern beasts (cf.13¹). This will provoke wars all over the earth.

⁵ Compare Mt.24⁷, "There shall be famines."

The Greek word zugon was used of two different Hebrew words: ol, a yoke, and maznim, balances, scales (Lev.19³⁶ Job 31⁶ Dan.5²⁷ Chaldees). It may mean either a yoke or a pair of balances, according to the context. Here it seems to stand for the weighing of food in time of famine. Thus Ezekiel was given ten ounces of food and a pint of water each day (Eze.4⁹⁻¹²).

elders, and their number was ten thousands of ten thousands and thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice,

"Worthy is the Lambkin which has been slain

To get power and riches and wisdom and strength

And honor and glory and bliss!"

¹³ And every creature which is in heaven and on the earth and underneath the earth and on the sea, and all those in them, I hear saying,

"To Him Who is sitting on the throne—

To the Lambkin—
Be bliss and honor and glory and might

For the eons of the eons!"

¹⁴ And the four animals said, "Amen!" And the elders fall and worship.

6 And I perceived when the Lambkin opens one of the seven seals; and I hear one of the four animals saying, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!"

² And I perceived, and lo! a white horse, and he who is sitting on it has a bow, and to him was given a wreath. And he came forth conquering and that he should be conquering.

³ And when It opens the second seal, I hear the second animal saying, "Come!" And another horse, fiery red, came forth, and it was given to him who is sitting on it to take peace out of the earth, and that they should be slaying one another. And a huge sword was given to him.

⁵ And when It opens the third seal, I hear the third animal saying, "Come!" And I perceived and lo! a black horse, and he who is sitting on it has a pair of balances in his hand. And I hear as it were a voice in the midst of the four animals saying, "A chenix

⁸ The fourth horse is the ghastly greenish tinge of young or sickly vegetation.

⁸ The Unseen is, literally, the Unperceived, or Imperceptible. It corresponds with the Hebrew shool (shaul), from shal, to ask. The unseen powers of evil which come before us in this scroll, the dragon and its messengers (12:3,4), are called "the gates of the unseen" (Mt.16:18) because the rulers of an eastern city sat in its gate.

⁸ Plague is, literally, death. This Greek word stands for two Hebrew words, one of which is dbr, plague. In the LXX famine and plague are joined nine times (1 Ki.8:37 2 Chr.20: Jer.21:7,24:10,44:13 Eze.6:11,17:15,18), in all of which they translate "plague" by "death". We also speak of the "black death".

⁹ The soul is the seat of sensation. As the spirit is associated with the breath and the body with the soil, so the soul (not the life) is in the blood (Gen.9:4, Lev.17:11,14,14). Christ poured out His soul unto death. It represents the suffering and anguish which He endured. The blood of the sin offering was poured out at the foundation of the altar (Lev.47). In Solomon's temple there was a vast pit under the altar to receive the blood of the sacrifices. Abel's blood cried from the ground, where it had been poured. So these martyrs are accounted by God as sacrifices on the altar. Their sensations of suffering called for vengeance on those who had sacrificed them because of their testimony. This event marks the middle of Daniel's seventieth heptad.

Compare Mt.24⁹. These martyrs are mentioned often (2:10,12:10,12:204).

¹⁰ We bless those who persecute us (Ro.12:14). In the days of the seals the "acceptable year" will have given place to "the day of vengeance" (Isa.61:2 Lu. 4:18,19). The parable of the importunate widow (Lu.18:1-8) is applicable at this time.

"For He will avenge the blood of His servants,
And will return vengeance to His foes"
(Deut.32:43).

[1½ pints] of wheat a denarius [15.7¢, 7d 3f], and three chenix of barley a denarius—and you should not be injuring the olive oil and the wine!"

⁷ And when It opens the fourth seal, I hear the voice of the fourth animal saying, "Come!" And I perceived, and lo! a greenish horse, and the name of him who is sitting upon it is Death, and the Unseen followed him, and jurisdiction was given them over a fourth of the earth to kill with the saber and with famine and with the plague and by the wild beasts of the earth.

⁹ And when It opens the fifth seal, I perceived underneath the altar the souls of those who have been slain because of the word of God and because of the testimony which they had. And they cry with a loud voice, saying: "Till when, O Owner, holy and true, art Thou not judging and avenging our blood on those who are dwelling on the earth?" And to each of them was given a white robe, and it was declared to them that they should be resting still a little time, till their fellowslaves, also, and their brethren, who are about to be killed as they also were, should be completing them.

¹⁴ And heaven recoils as a scroll being rolled up, and every mountain and island was moved out of its

¹² Compare Mt.24²⁹.

¹² This cataclysm affects heaven as well as earth. There will be many quakes at the time of the end (8⁵11¹³,¹⁹ 16¹⁸). Compare Hag.2^{6,7} and Heb.12²⁶. See also Hag.2²¹Zech.14^{4,5}.

¹² Before the great and terrible day of Jehovah comes manifestly "The sun shall be turned into darkness and the moon into blood" (Joel 2³¹Ac.2²⁰). Compare Isa.2¹⁰, 11¹³, 13¹⁰, 24²⁰, 23³⁴.

¹⁶ Our Lord quoted Hos.10⁸ in referring to this time (Lu.23³⁰). Compare Joel 2¹⁰, 11³⁰, 31¹⁵.

¹⁷ Two classes will be able to stand: the 144,000 and the vast multitude.

⁴ Twelve is the number of government and the kingdom. There were twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes, etc. The Lord chose twelve commissioners who will rule the twelve tribes. The twelve times twelve thousand sealed will administer the kingdom. Here they are seen as slaves. Later they are seen as worshipers. Just as Jehovah reserved seven thousand for Himself in Ahab's days (1 Ki.19¹⁸), so He keeps these for Himself during this judgment era. Just as 1000 were taken from each tribe to go against the Midianites and none were lacking at the close (Nu.31⁴⁹), so with this chosen company. The full 144,000 will enter the kingdom unscathed.

¹⁵ place. And the kings of the earth, and the magnates, and the captains, and the rich, and the strong, and every slave and freeman, hide themselves in the caves and in the rocks

² And I perceived another messenger ascending from the orient, having the seal of the living God. And he cries with a loud voice to the four messengers to whom it was given for them to injure the land and the sea, saying, "You shall not be injuring the land, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we should be sealing the slaves of our God on ⁴ their foreheads." And I hear the number of those who have been sealed: a hundred forty-four thousand who have been sealed out of every tribe of the sons of Israel.

⁵ Out of the tribe of Judah twelve thousand have been sealed; out of the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Gad twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Asher twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Nephthalim twelve

Throne Section—The Vast Multitude

7-8 Levi and Joseph appear here as tribes in place of Dan and Ephraim, who are "blotted out" because they introduced idolatry into Israel. Jehovah threatened to blot out the name of any tribe that served other gods and worshiped them (Deut.29:18-24). The accounts of their apostasy will be found in Judg.18, 1 Ki.12:29-30. Ephraim, later, was joined to his idols (Hos.4:17). They will, however, be restored to their allotment in the land (Eze.48) when the kingdom comes. But none of these are protected by God's seal during this time of affliction.

9 Palm branches were used in celebrating the feast of tabernacles (Lev. 23⁴⁰). It was a sign that they had come into the land. Here it is the assurance of entrance into the kingdom. The 144,000 are the first fruits (14⁴). These correspond to the feast of ingathering after the full harvest (Lev. 23³⁹). The fact that they come out of every nation and all tribes and peoples and languages does not forbid their being Israelites, for Jews are scattered among all the peoples of the earth. The fact that they keep this feast is sufficient evidence that they, like the 144,000, are out of the sons of Israel. These are those of the dispersion who conquer through the blood of the Lambkin (7:14:12:11) and do not love their souls until death. They are the martyrs needed to complete those slain before the great affliction (6:11) seen under the altar under the fifth seal.

14 Literal washing under the law was always in water, not in blood (Lev.11:25 Nu.8:21). The literal sense of this passage is that they cleansed themselves by their behavior, and faith in the sufferings of the One Sacrifice fitted them for God's presence. Such mingling of deeds and faith can have no place in this day of grace. Grace refuses to be mixed with deeds without losing its essential character (Ro.4:11b). God will deal differently in the coming era of vengeance.

15 This great affliction was foretold by our Lord (Mt.24:21). It will be unexampled in the annals of the race. It will be shortened, or not even the elect would be saved. It is essentially an anti-Semitic outbreak on the part of the nations of the earth, in a last attempt to wipe out the name of Jehovah from the earth.

thousand; out of the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Levi twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand; out of the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand have been sealed.

9 After these things I perceived, and lo! a vast throng which no one was able to number, out of all nations and the tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lambkin, clothed in white robes and palms in their hands. And they are crying with a loud voice, saying,

*"Salvation be our God's,
Who is sitting on the throne,
And of the Lambkin!"*

11 And all the messengers stood around the throne and the elders and the four animals. And they fall on their faces before the throne, and worship God, saying:

*"Amen!
The bliss and glory and wisdom and thanks
And honor and power and strength be our God's
For the eons of the eons.
Amen!"*

13 And one of the elders answered, saying to me, "These who are clothed in white robes—who are they, and whence came they?"

14 And I have declared to him: "My lord, you are aware." And he said to me, "These are they who are coming out of the great affliction. And they rinse their robes, and they whiten them in the blood of

Throne Section—The Trumpets

¹⁶ This description of millennial blessing is in accord with many passages in the prophets, notably the description of Jerusalem by Isaiah (45,6).

¹ The hush is occasioned by the intense expectation which accompanies this, the last seal, just as the crowd who clamored for Paul's death hushed when he was about to speak (Ac.21⁴⁰). Hitherto there have been cries for vengeance and bursts of praise, but now the crisis has come and all hold their breath, as it were, to see the outcome. The delay shows that the inflictions are deliberate, not vindictive.

² The seven messengers may be identical with the seven who pour out the seven bowls (15¹), and the seven spirits before the throne (1⁴), one of whom is Gabriel (Lu.1¹⁹).

⁵ Compare the action of the messenger with the tenth of Ezekiel (10^{5,8}), where fire is taken from between the Cherubim and strewn over Jerusalem in token of its doom.

¹⁵ the Lambkin. Therefore they are before the throne of God and are offering divine service to Him day and night in His temple. And He Who is sitting on the throne will be tabernacling over them. They shall be hungering no longer; nor shall they be thirsting any longer; no, nor should the sun be falling on them, nor any heat, seeing that the throne-centered Lambkin shall be shepherding them, and shall be guiding them to living springs of water, and every tear shall God be brushing away from their eyes."

8 And when It opens the seventh seal, a hush occurred in heaven as it were half an hour.

² And I perceived the seven messengers who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

³ And another messenger came and was standing at the altar, having a golden thurible. And much incense was given him that he will be imparting to the prayers of all the saints, on the golden altar before the throne. And the fumes of the incense with the prayers of the saints ascended out of the messenger's hand before God. And the messenger has taken the thurible, and he crams it with the fire of the altar and casts it into the earth. And thunders and voices and lightnings and an earthquake occurred.

⁶ And the seven messengers who have the seven trumpets make themselves ready that they should be trumpeting.

⁷ And the first trumpets. And there came to be hail and fire mixed with blood, and it was cast into the

Throne Section—The Trumpets

⁹ If we believe that the river of Egypt was turned into blood and the fish in the river died (Ex.7^{20,21}) when Moses smote the waters, what reason is there why we should not look for a similar judgment in Jehovah's day? (Ps.78⁴⁴ 105²⁰). But under no circumstances may these judgments be found in this day of grace.

¹⁰ The "star" seems to be a gaseous comet which will be readily absorbed by water. Absinthin, a yellow, crystalline compound, is the bitter principle of wormwood, which is highly poisonous when taken in large doses.

¹² Signs in the sun, moon, and constellations precede the coming of the Son of Mankind (Lu.21²⁵), though the usual reference is to the final cataclysm (6¹²). Compare Amos 8⁹ Jer.4²³.

¹³ The vulture is noted for its swiftness (Deut.28⁴⁹ Jer.4¹³ Hab.1⁸). Unlike the eagle, it goes in company, seldom alone. Hence the significance of one vulture. It feeds on the carcasses of the dead, and is foraging for prey.

THE WOE TRUMPETS

The last three trumpets, because of the unexampled and terrible nature of their inflictions, are called the three woes.

¹ The "well" is not a mere pit but is used of Jacob's well from which water is still drawn. This is in line with the meaning of abyss.

earth, and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up, and all the green grass was burned up.

⁸ And the second messenger trumpets. And as it were a huge mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea, and a third of the sea became blood, and a third of the creatures which are in the sea, which have a soul, died, and a third of the ships decayed.

¹⁰ And the third messenger trumpets. And a large star falls out of heaven, burning as a torch. And it falls on a third of the rivers and ¹¹ on the springs of water. And the name of the star is said to be Absinth. And a third of the waters became absinth and many of mankind died of the waters, seeing that they were made bitter.

¹² And the fourth messenger trumpets. And a third of the sun and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars were eclipsed, that a third of them may be darkened, and day should not be appearing for a third of it, and night likewise.

¹³ And I perceived, and I hear one vulture flying in mid-heaven saying with a loud voice: "Woe! woe! woe! to those dwelling on the earth as a result of the rest of the soundings of the trumpets of the three messengers who are about to be trumpeted!"

⁹ And the fifth messenger trumpets. And I perceived a star fallen out of heaven into the earth. And to him was given the key of ² the well of the abyss. And he opens the well of the abyss, and

Throne Section—The Locusts

³ The detailed description of these locusts forbids our taking them in any way but as literal creatures just as they are described. Their time limit is the same as natural locusts—five months—but they differ from them in many ways. Common locusts are harmless to mankind. They devour only the vegetation (Ex.10¹²). These are designed to torment mankind without killing them, yet do no damage to the grass or the herbs or the trees.

They are a fourfold combination of the horse, the lion, the scorpion and the human. They are swift as horses, terrible as lions, intelligent as human beings and malignant as scorpions. It will be a far more terrible scourge than anything which has preceded it. There is good reason for calling it a woe!

Locusts have no king over them (Prov.30²⁷), but these are the subjects of the messenger of the abyss. His name is given in both Greek and Hebrew. Both Apollyon and Abaddon signify "Destroyer".

Defensively they are armed with iron cuirasses, an armor covering the entire trunk with both breast and back plates. Their offensive power lies in their tails, which are like scorpions. The sting of the scorpion is very painful, much more so than that of the hornet. Men have been known to die of its effects.

Just as Satan was licensed to torment Job, but forbidden to take his life, so these locusts are limited to their work of torment and cannot take life. Their sting is so terrible, however, that the votaries of the wild beast would be glad to die, if they could, to escape it.

All of this is in direct contrast and actual opposition to God's dealings in the present economy of grace. Hence it is worse than futile to seek any fulfillment in the history of the past. Such scenes as this can come only once in the history of the race and must necessarily be of brief duration. Those who have God's seal will escape.

The locusts in the introduction to Joel's prophecy represent the four Assyrian invasions which devastated the land in the four generations referred to. Two of these, involving Judah, are the immediate subjects of Joel's prophecy.

fumes ascended out of the well as the smoke of a large furnace, and the sun and the air are darkened
³ by the fumes of the well. And out of the fumes came forth locusts into the earth, and license was granted them as the scorpions of the ⁴ earth have license. And it was declared to them that they should not be injuring the grass of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, except those of mankind who have not the seal of God on their fore-
⁵ heads. And it was granted to them, not that they may be killing them, but that they shall be tormented five months; and their torment is as the torment of a scorpion, whenever it should be striking a man.
⁶ And in those days mankind will be seeking death, and under no circumstances shall they be finding it. And they will be yearning to die, and death is fleeing from them.
⁷ And the likenesses of the locusts are like horses made ready for battle, and on their heads are as it were wreaths like gold, and their faces are as it were human faces.
⁸ and they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth are as if
⁹ they were lions'. And they had cuirasses, as it were iron cuirasses, and the sound of their wings is as the sound of many chariot horses
¹⁰ racing into battle. And they have tails like scorpions, and stings, and their license is to injure mankind
¹¹ five months with their tails. They have a king over them—the mes-

Throne Section—The Horses

THE SECOND WOE

The second woe is even more terrible than the first and, like it, cannot be understood otherwise than literally.

¹⁴ These are probably the messengers who were delivered into chains of darkness to be reserved for the judgment (2Pt.24), or, as Jude says, reserved in imperceptible [everlasting] chains under darkness, for the judgment of the great day (^o). Now that the specific hour and day and month and year has come, they are sent about their work of killing a third of mankind. The detailed description of these creatures is necessary because no one has ever seen such monsters. It is difficult to imagine two hundred million cavalry such as these, in which the horses themselves are provided with death-dealing mouths and tails. This is certainly one of the marvels "which are not created in all the earth, nor in all the nations" (Ex.34¹⁰).

None of men's instruments of destruction can compare with these. They combine the latest methods of warfare, flame projectors and poison gas, with the serpent's sting.

Preceding judgments may have reduced the population of the earth to about six hundred million. A third of this is two hundred million, which will allow every horse a human victim. None of man's armies can kill so effectively.

¹⁷ Amethystine, the ancient hyacinth, corresponds to our amethyst, a transparent, violet colored gem, or our sapphire, of purple hue. The context here suggests the amethyst.

¹⁷ Sulphur was much used as a purifier in the religious rites of the nations, hence its name in the Greek is "divine". Fire and sulphur were regarded as the divine lustrations or purifying agents.

²⁰ That such a judgment should not change the minds of those who are spared seems incredible. Yet such is man. The most terrible trials but harden his heart instead of producing repentance. They continue as before in their idolatry and sin. We may learn from this that men do not change their minds from compulsion or fear, even in the proclamation of the kingdom. This will be accomplished by milder means.

senger of the abyss. His Hebrew name is Abaddon, and in Greek he has the name Apollyon.

¹² One woe passed away. Lo! Two woes still are coming after these things.

¹³ And the sixth messenger trumpets. And I hear one voice out of the horns of the golden altar which

¹⁴ is before God, saying to the sixth messenger who has the trumpet:

"Loose the four messengers who have been bound at the great Euphrates river."

¹⁵ And the four messengers were loosed, who have been made ready for the hour and the day and the month and the year, that they may be killing a third of ¹⁶ mankind. And the number of the troops of cavalry was two hundred millions—I hear their number.

¹⁷ And thus I perceived the horses in the vision, and those who are sitting on them, having fiery and amethystine and sulphurous cuirasses; and the heads of the horses are as the heads of lions, and out of their mouths are issuing fire and

¹⁸ fumes and sulphur. By these three calamities the third of mankind were killed: by the fire, and the fumes and the sulphur, which is

¹⁹ issuing out of their mouths. For the license of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails, for their tails are like serpents, having heads, and with them they are in-

²⁰ juring. And the rest of mankind who were not killed in these calamities repent not of the acts of their hands—that they will not be

Throne Section—The Seven Thunders

² The planting of the messenger's feet on the sea and on the land is a token of possession. "Every place on which the soles of your feet shall tread shall be yours" (Deut.11²⁴Josh.1³).

The opened scroll shows that the incumbrance has been lifted, just as the sealed scroll was a sign of the bond which burdened it. Were it not for the fact that this opened scroll is, according to the best readings, always called a little scroll (biblaridion) while the closed scroll was the usual diminutive (biblion), we would be tempted to identify these two scrolls. It seems best to take this as a still smaller scroll which deals with the deliverance of Israel as the larger scroll dealt with the whole earth. It is evident from the messenger's acts and his words that the earth and the sea are no longer under bond, and that there will be no further delay in ejecting the usurpers out of the sovereignty which is Christ's.

³ Bellowing—not roaring after its prey (1 Pt.5⁸), but the sound lions use when calling to one another. Applied to cattle this word is used for their lowing.

⁶ The delay commences under the fifth seal (6¹¹).

worshiping demons and idols of gold and silver and copper and stone and wood, which are not able to be observing nor to be hearing ²¹ nor to be walking—and they repent not of their murders, nor of their enchantments, nor of their prostitution, nor of their thefts.

10 And I perceived another strong messenger descending out of heaven clothed with a cloud, and the rainbow on his head, and his face as the sun, and his feet as pillars of ² fire, and having a tiny opened scroll in his hand. And he places his right foot on the sea, yet the ³ left on the land. And he cries with a loud voice, even as a lion is bellowing.

And when he cries, the seven thunders speak with their own
⁴ voices. And when the seven thunders speak, I was about to be writing. And I hear a voice out of heaven saying: "Seal what things the seven thunders speak", and "You should not be writing them."

⁵ And the messenger whom I perceived standing on the sea and on the land lifts his right hand to ⁶ heaven and swears by Him Who is living for the eons of the eons. Who creates heaven and that which is in it, and the earth and that which is in it, and the sea and that which is in it, that there will ⁷ be no longer delay, but in the days of the seventh messenger's voice, whenever he may be about to be trumpeting, the secret of God is

Throne Section—The Two Witnesses

⁷ Surely Adonai Jehovah will do nothing but He revealeth His secret unto His servants the prophets (Amos 3⁷).

⁹ Compare this action with Eze.2³³⁻¹⁴.

⁹ The eating of the scroll, corresponding to the digesting of its contents, was very sweet to John, for it assured the ejection of the usurpers and the establishment of the kingdom. But it also involved much more bitter judgment which he had not yet apprehended.

¹¹ Concerning, literally on (Lu12⁵²⁻⁵³).

¹ The temple seems to be a sanctuary for the faithful. The period of forty-two months (measured by the moon, a symbol of the powers of darkness, 12¹) measures the career of the "wild beast" (13⁵). The same length of time expressed in days (measured by the sun, a symbol of God's glory, 12¹) marks the duration of the ministry of the two witnesses (11³) and the period during which the star-crowned woman is nourished in the wilderness (12⁶). The same period is called, after the Hebrew of Dan.12⁷, "a season, seasons, and half a season" (12¹⁴). This period is probably the last half of Daniel's seventieth heptad (Dan.9²⁷). The prince that shall come makes a treaty with the majority of the Jews, but breaks it after three and a half years, causing the sacrifice and gift offering to cease, leaving the period here spoken of, in which he insists that all worship must be directed to him.

It appears from this that the worship of Jehovah will be stamped out of the earth except in the temple in Jerusalem, which will be preserved with divine power, and in the wilderness, where the woman (the faithful inhabitants of Jerusalem) is sustained by miraculous means.

consummated also, as He evangelizes to His own slaves and the prophets.

⁸ And the voice which I hear out of heaven speaks again with me, and is saying: "Go, get the tiny scroll which is opened in the hand of the messenger who stands on the sea and on the land." And I came away to the messenger, saying to him to give me the tiny scroll. And he is saying to me, "Take it and devour it; and it will be making your bowels bitter, but in your mouth it will be sweet as honey."

¹⁰ And I took the tiny scroll out of the messenger's hand, and devoured it. And in my mouth it was sweet as honey. And when I ate it, my bowels were made bitter.

¹¹ And they are saying to me: "You must prophesy again as to peoples and nations and languages and many kings."

¹¹ And a reed like a rod was given me, saying: "Rouse and measure the temple of God and the altar and those worshiping in it. And the court outside of the temple cast outside—and you should not be measuring it, seeing that it was given to the nations, and they will be treading the holy city forty-two months. And I will be endowing My two witnesses and they will be prophesying a thousand, two hundred sixty days, clothed in sackcloth. These are the two olive trees, and the two lampstands which stand before the Lord of the earth. And if any one is wanting to injure them, fire is issuing out of

⁴ The two olive trees remind us of Joshua the high priest and Zerubbabel (Zech.3:4), who witnessed for Jehovah in a former apostasy.

The ministry of the two witnesses has much in common with the ministry of Elijah. Both cause a great drought for three and a half years (1 K1.17¹). Both kill their enemies by miraculous fire. The prophet Malachi predicts this ministry (⁴⁵): "Lo! I send you Elijah the prophet before the great and fearful day of Jehovah comes." John the baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah, but they did not receive him (Mt.17^{10,13} 11¹⁴ Lu. 11⁷), hence he is still to come as was foretold. As he did not die, but was taken up into heaven in a whirlwind (2 K1.2¹¹), and as he appeared with Moses on the Mount, speaking of the Lord's exodus which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem (Lu.9^{30,31}), he would make an excellent witness to the Lord's life and death. Some think that Moses, because his place of burial is unknown (cf. Jude⁹) and because he, too, appeared on the mount, is the other witness. Others prefer Enoch (Gen.5²⁴).

⁶ These judgments are just and salutary, for men reject the testimony to the blood of Christ and the blessing that it brings. They are taught that their souls depend upon the abiding efficacy of His death.

⁷ Just as the two witnesses will be invulnerable until their testimony is complete, so it is with every slave who is doing God's will. Nothing in heaven or on earth can hinder the witness which has God back of it. And when it is finished the enemies of God will be confounded even in their death.

¹¹ The short space of time—three and a half days—allowed for the news of the death of the two witnesses to travel over the earth, besides giving time for them to celebrate and send gifts, would seem to be a great difficulty to early students of this prophecy. It would take months and years to do this a century ago. Yet we have come to a time when this would be a matter of course. Everything will move with incredible swiftness when the judgments of God are in the earth. Let us not doubt God or judge His word by our own ignorance.

their mouth and is devouring their enemies. And if any one should be wanting to injure them, thus must ⁶ he be killed. These have authority to lock heaven, that there may be no showers of rain for the days of their prophecy. And they have authority over the waters to be turning them into blood, and to smite the earth with every calamity
⁷ whenever they will. And whenever they should be finishing their testimony, the wild beast which is ascending out of the abyss will be doing battle with them and it will be conquering them and killing
⁸ them. And their corpse will be at the square of the great city, which, spiritually, is being called Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord, also,
⁹ was crucified. And those out of the peoples and tribes and languages and nations are observing their corpse three days and a half, and they are not letting their corpses
¹⁰ be placed in a tomb. And those dwelling on the earth are rejoicing over them and are making merry, and will be sending oblations to one another, seeing that these two prophets torment those dwelling on
¹¹ the earth. And after the three days and a half the spirit of life out of God entered into them and they stand on their feet. And great fear falls on those beholding
¹² them. And they hear a loud voice out of heaven saying to them: "Ascend here!" And they ascended into heaven in a cloud, and

Throne Section—The Kingdom Comes

¹³ This earthquake, coming so near the end of the judgment period, may be a precursor of the one under the seventh bowl (16¹⁸). It seems to affect Jerusalem principally—the city in which the two witnesses testify and where they will be killed.

¹⁵ The details of the events under the seventh trumpet are not given here, but in connection with the Temple Section. That there is some terrible infliction is certain, for it is the worst of the woes. We suggest that it includes the bowls (15⁷) and the battle of the great day when the armies of the entire earth are arrayed against Jerusalem and are slain by the Rider on the White Horse (19¹¹⁻¹⁷). It certainly ends with His coming in glory and taking over the governments of earth.

¹⁵ This completes the Throne Section. Christ is King! He reigns! This brings us to the era of the resurrection and the thousand years, which is detailed in the early part of the twentieth chapter.

¹⁸ The "judgment of the dead" here refers to the former resurrection and the awards given to those who have lost their lives for His sake. It corresponds with the word "judgment is granted them" (20⁴).

THE TEMPLE SECTION

CHRIST AS PRIEST

The "opening" of the temple (4¹ note), giving a view of the covenant, is the key to the first division of the Temple Section (11¹⁹⁻¹⁵⁴). The covenant and the divine ritual are the exclusive prerogatives of one nation, Israel (Ro.9⁴, etc.). Jehovah remembers His covenant with them, to fulfill it. In awful contrast with this is the opening of the second division of the Temple Section (15⁵). There the tabernacle of the testimony is opened and the law is exposed. The first division is filled with blessing for the faithful in Israel, the second with terrible judgments for those of them who apostatize. This division centers around the faithful city Jerusalem; the next division is much concerned with unfaithful Babylon.

This section gives us the religious aspect of judgment, as viewed from the standpoint of the temple. Just as the books of Kings and Chronicles present ¹³ their enemies behold them. And in that hour occurred a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city falls, and there were seven thousand names of the men killed in the earthquake. And the rest became affrighted, and give glory to the God of heaven.

¹⁴ The second woe passed away. Lo! the third woe is coming swiftly!

¹⁵ And the seventh messenger trumpets. And loud voices occurred in heaven, saying: "The world kingdom became our Lord's and His Christ's, and He shall be reigning for the eons of the eons! Amen!"

¹⁶ And the twenty-four elders who are sitting on their thrones before God fall on their faces and worship God, saying, "We are thanking Thee, Lord God Almighty, Who art and Who wast, seeing that Thou hast taken Thy great power and dost reign. And the nations are angered, and Thy indignation came, and the era for the dead to be judged, and to give wages to Thy slaves the prophets, and to the saints and to those who are fearing Thy name, the small and the great, and to blight those who are blighting the earth."

¹⁹ And the temple of God which is in heaven was opened, and the ark of God's covenant was viewed in His temple, and lightnings and voices and thunders and an earthquake and a great hail occurred.

the same historical events from two sides, Kings from the human, Chronicles from the divine, so this section reviews the period which has already been presented in its relation to the throne. These two sections correspond to the two great missions of the chosen nation (Ex.19^o). They were to be a royal priesthood (1 Pt.2^o). The Throne Section gives them the sovereignty of the nations. This section recovers their priestly functions. In that they will rule the nations for Jehovah: in this they bring them to Jehovah. The theme is no longer the political redemption of the earth. The dragon, the wild beast and the false prophet demand divine honors. They want worship. This is refused by the faithful in Israel. The apostates, especially those in Babylon, with all the rest of mankind, join the great confederation to blot out the worship of Jehovah from the face of the earth.

⁶ The times of God's saints are measured by the sun—twelve hundred sixty days. The same period, when concerned with the wild beast is measured by the moon—forty-two months.

12 And a great sign was viewed in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon underneath her feet, and on her head a wreath of twelve stars. And, being pregnant, she is crying, travailing, and being tormented to be bringing forth.

³ And another sign was viewed in heaven, and lo! a great fiery-red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on its heads seven diadems. And its tail is dragging a third of the stars of heaven, and cast them into the earth. And the dragon stands before the woman who is about to be bringing forth, that it should be devouring her child whenever she may be bringing forth. And she brought forth a son, a male, who is about to be shepherding all the nations with an iron club. And her child is snatched away to God and to His throne. And the woman fled into the wilderness, there where she has a place made ready by God, that there they may be nurturing her a thousand two hundred sixty days.

⁹ And the great dragon was cast down, who is the ancient serpent called Slanderer and Satan, who is deceiving the whole inhabited earth. It was cast into the earth, and its messengers were cast with it. And I hear a loud voice in

Temple Section—The Dragon and its Messengers

7 When the dragon attacks Jerusalem it comes into conflict with Michael, one of the chief princes (Dan.10¹³), who is Israel's prince (Dan.10²¹) in God's government. Prince Michael and his messengers eject the dragon and its messengers out of heaven.

8 Satan is now in heaven (Job 1⁹Eph. 6¹²) and will not be ejected until about the middle of Daniel's seventieth week.

9 Satan is Hebrew, meaning adversary. This is a common term applied to the angels of Jehovah (Nu.22^{22,32}), David (1Sa.29¹), the sons of Zeruiah (2Sa.19²²), etc. Later, when used in its untranslated form in Greek, it always seems to refer to the personality whose appellations are gathered together in this passage.

10 Michael's victory over the dragon secures the final overthrow of its power, though it continues for a short period, concentrated on the earth. Those still on the earth are warned that the fury of the Slanderer will be bitter because brief.

11 Compare Mt.24¹⁶. Our Lord counsels them to flee into the mountains of Judea, which are a wilderness, when they see the abomination of desolation (Dan.9²⁷) standing in the holy place. This fixes the time as the middle of the last heptad. The season and seasons and half a season (counted by harvests, as their sustenance is in question) corresponds to the last half of the seventieth heptad.

12 The great griffon vulture of Palestine has enormous strength and swiftness of wing. Unlike the eagle, it is bald (Mic.1¹⁰), and it congregates in flocks. It was held in highest esteem by the ancients. Assyria and Persia and Rome adopted it for their ensign. This has been followed by some modern nations.

The aptness of this figure lies in the fact that these vultures inhabit the inaccessible cliffs (Jer.49¹⁰) where no human hand can touch them. Thus the inhabitants of the city of Jerusalem will find an asylum in the impenetrable fastnesses which abound in the vast mountainous wilderness not many miles from the city. There they will be sheltered and sustained until their Messiah is manifested in power.

heaven saying: "Now came the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of His Christ, seeing that the accuser of our brethren was cast down, who was accusing them

11 before our God day and night. And they conquer him through the blood of the Lambkin, and because of the word of their testimony, and they love not their soul, unto death.
12 Therefore, make merry, O heavens, and those who are tabernacled in them! Woe to the land and the sea, seeing that the Slanderer descended to you having great fury, being aware that the season he has is brief."

13 And when the dragon perceived that it was cast into the earth, it persecutes the woman who brought forth the male. And the two wings of a large vulture were given to the woman that she may be flying into the wilderness into her place there, where she is nurtured a season and seasons and half a season from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast water as a river out of its mouth behind the woman that she should be carried away by its current. And the earth helps the woman, and the earth opens its mouth and swallowed the river which the dragon cast out of its mouth. And the dragon is angry with the woman, and came away to do battle with the rest of her seed, who are keeping the precepts of God and who have the testimony of Jesus.

Temple Section—The Wild Beast

¹⁸ The dragon, not John, was stationed so as to bring up the wild beast.

¹ The beast from the sea (which is the equivalent of the abyss) has hitherto enacted the rôle of a deceiver and is known as the false christ (Mt.24 cf. Un.61²) and the white horse rider. That was in the political sphere. This is the religious section. Here the figure is a wild beast and corresponds to the antichrist.

The wild beast is a composite of the four beasts of the seventh of Daniel:

1. Lion.....	1 heads	0 horns
2. Bear	1 " "	0 "
3. Leopard	4 " "	0 "
4. Nondescript ...	1 " "	10 "
<hr/>
The Wild Beast..	7 " "	10 "

Here we have the same wild beasts seen by Daniel after the nondescript has devoured the other three.

The Chaldee k'd'm, before, refers to position, not time (Dan.7,10), and may have the sense of cast as in Hebrew. In that case the ten-horned beast is a confederacy of western powers and the other three beasts are eastern powers.

It will be noted that worship rather than rule is the dominant note here. These beasts bring before us kingdoms and confederacies bound together by a common religion. The western beast will be confederate Christendom. The ten horns will be ten Christian military powers. There are, in the East, three great religions, Brahmanism in India, Buddhism in Japan and China, Islamism or Mohanmedanism in Turkey and the adjacent countries. These will form three great eastern combinations which will be, in time, conquered by Christendom, and absorbed into the one great world religion which will worship the dragon and the wild beast. Thus a confederacy of the whole world's religious powers will be concentrated against the few Jews who remain faithful to Jehovah.

⁷ This world empire will not be limited to any ancient boundaries but will include every tribe and people and language and nation—all who dwell on the earth—not only the Roman empire.

¹⁰ As the beast is to conquer the saints during its period of forty-two months,

And it was standing on the sand 13 of the sea. And I perceived a wild beast ascending out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on its horns ten diadems, and on its heads blasphemous names.

² And the wild beast which I perceived was like a leopard, and its feet were as a bear's, and its mouth as the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gives it its power and its throne and great authority. ³ And one of its heads was as it had been slain to death, and its death blow was cured, and the whole earth marvels after the wild beast.

⁴ And they worship the dragon, seeing that it gives authority to the wild beast, and they worship the wild beast, saying, "Who is like the wild beast?" and "Who is able ⁵ to battle with it?" And to it was given a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies. And to it was given authority to do what it ⁶ wills forty-two months. And it opens its mouth in blasphemies toward God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, and those tabernacles in heaven. And to it was ⁷ given to do battle with the saints and to conquer them. And authority was given to it over every tribe and people and language and ⁸ nation. And all who are dwelling on the earth will be worshipping it, everyone whose name is not written in the scroll of life of the Lambkin Which has been slain from the disruption of the world.

*Temple Section—The Second

the saints are warned not to commit any acts of violence during this period. They are exhorted to endure to the end.

¹¹ The second wild beast emphasizes the religious character of the first. It is called a prophet (16¹³), and makes every effort to get worship for the beast. The calling down of fire from heaven was the test of deity in Elijah's day: "the God Who answers by fire, He is God" (1Ki.18²⁴). Hence this will be a "strong delusion" (2 Th.2¹¹) like the giving of life to the image.

There is a marked similarity between the career of the first beast and Christ. As the Lord was crucified and raised again, so the wounded head descends into the abyss and is recalled to life by the dragon. Before that he will be a deceiver. The second beast is also patterned after Christ, for it points to the first, even as Christ points to the Father.

¹² Spirit is the source of life. "The spirit is that which is vivifying" (Jn. 6⁶³). So that, giving spirit to the image results in its manifesting signs of life. This is man's poor imitation of Christ, Who is the Image of God (Col. 1¹⁵). But God's Anointed was given God's spirit, not only to speak, as this image, but to give life. This image cannot give life, but causes all who do not bow to it to be killed. After centuries of civilization and culture and religion, mankind will actually descend to the worship of an image because it has miraculous powers!

¹⁶ The "mark" of the wild beast will be the emblem or flag or symbol of the world confederation. It must be worn, or be branded, in a most conspicuous place so that any one may be able to tell at a glance if any one is not a worshiper of the beast. Such a mark or badge has often been used to indicate political or religious affiliations, and usually consists of some appropriate and significant design expressive of the character or purpose of the unity which it represents. As all who belong to the body of Christ will be in heaven by this time, all the world will gladly receive this badge as the pledge of their allegiance to the world federation of religion, except the few Jews who will be faithful to Jehovah.

⁹ If any one has an ear, let him
¹⁰ hear. If any one is for captivity, into captivity he is going. If any one will be killing with the sword, he must with the sword be killed. Here is the endurance and the faith of the saints.

¹¹ And I perceived another wild beast ascending out of the land, and it had two horns like a lamb-kin, and it talked as a dragon.

¹² And it is exercising all the authority of the first wild beast before it, and making the earth and those dwelling in it to be worshiping the first wild beast whose death blow was cured.

¹³ And it is doing great signs, that it may be causing fire, also, to descend out of heaven into the

¹⁴ earth before mankind. And it is deceiving those dwelling on the earth because of the signs which were given it to do before the wild beast, saying to those dwelling on the earth to make an image to the wild beast which has the blow of the sword and lives. And it was given to it to give spirit to the image of the wild beast, that the image of the wild beast should be talking also, and should be causing that whoever should not be worshiping the image of the wild beast may be killed.

¹⁶ And it is causing all, small and great, and rich and poor, and free and slaves, that an emblem may be given them on their right hand, or on their forehead, and that no one may be able to buy or sell except the one having the emblem of the wild beast, or its name, or the number of its name.

Temple Section—The 144,000

¹⁸ All will be obliged to have one of three marks to indicate their worship of the wild beast: either its symbol, its name, or its number. The number, we are told, is the number of humanity. This has nothing to do with its name. The number seven, which is used throughout this scroll, is significant of sufficiency, completion. This is its meaning in Hebrew. The number six comes one short of this. It is significant of insufficiency. This entire era is marked by man's supreme attempt to attain perfection apart from God. All his achievements fall short of the divine standard. He accomplishes the federation of mankind—except a few Jews. He unites all the world under one religion—except a handful in Judea. He conquers all who oppose—except Christ. In everything humanity falls one step short of its goal. Hence its number is 666. This is the summit of all man's efforts.

⁶ The eonian evangel is not for this day. It is for the hours of judgment. In the midst of wrath He remembers mercy. But it does not call upon them to believe, as the gospel does today, for that is adapted to a time of undiluted grace (Ro.4¹⁶). It is not even repent, for that is the door into the kingdom before the hour of judgment has struck (Ac.2³⁸). It is fear—fear for God in His most elemental character as the Creator. It is a demand that no one be worshiped but the One Who created the universe. This is His answer to the demands of the false prophet that all worship the wild beast and the dragon (cf. Ac.17²⁴⁻³¹).

⁸ This notation fixes the time of Babylon's overthrow, which is greatly

¹⁸ Here is wisdom. Let him who has a mind calculate the number of the wild beast, for it is the number of mankind, and its number is six hundred sixty-six.

¹⁴ And I perceived, and lo! the Lambkin standing on mount Zion, and with It a hundred forty-four thousand, having Its name and Its Father's name written on their

² foreheads. And I hear a sound out of heaven as the sound of many waters and as the sound of loud thunder, and the sound which I hear is as lyre singers playing on

⁴ These are they who were not polluted with women, for they are celibates. These are they who are following the Lambkin wherever It may be going. These are bought from mankind, a firstfruit to God

⁵ and the Lambkin. And in their mouth falsehood was not found, for they are flawless.

⁶ And I perceived another messenger flying in mid-heaven, having an eonian evangel to preach over those situated on the earth, and over every nation and tribe and language and people, saying with a

⁷ loud voice, "Fear ye God and be giving glory to Him, seeing that the hour of His judgment came; and

The Temple Section—The Emblem of the Wild Beast

expanded in the next division of this section, where God deals particularly with the apostates of the chosen nation. It falls just before the final judgments which usher in the priestly kingdom. This makes it clear that the Harvest and the Vintage follow Babylon's destruction and that, when we take up the next division of the Temple Section we must go back in time to a period prior to these announcements.

¹¹ The torment spoken of in this prophecy is of various lengths and limited to specific classes. All of mankind who have not the seal of God on their foreheads will be tormented five months by the locusts, under the fifth trumpet (9⁵). Satan and the wild beast and the false prophet will be tormented (20¹⁰). The fumes of the torment of those here spoken of last for the eons of the eons. These are the supreme sinners from among mankind, hence suffer the severest doom. No others will share this fate with them.

¹² "Happy are the dead who are dying in the Lord henceforth" can only be applied to this particular crisis. The reason is clear. No one, unless especially protected by God, can remain true to Him when they cannot buy or sell, or have any intercourse with their fellow men unless they have the emblem of the wild beast. It will mean certain death to accept the eonian evangel and worship the Creator.

THE HARVEST

¹⁴ The One like a son of mankind is, most probably, Christ Himself, hence the words "son of mankind" do not refer to Him directly but indirectly, for He is like him.

The harvest is the result of the eonian evangel. The darnel has been gathered into bundles; now the wheat is to be gathered into His barn (Mt. 13³⁰). This division of the Temple Section is based on the covenant with Israel, hence ends in the blessing of His people and the destruction of their enemies. These are accomplished in the Harvest and the Vintage.

worship the Maker of heaven and the land and the sea and springs of water."

⁸ And another, a second messenger, follows, saying, "It falls! It falls! --Babylon the great has made all nations drink of the furious wine of her prostitution!"

⁹ And another, a third messenger, follows them, saying with a loud voice, "If any one is worshipping the wild beast and its image, and is getting the emblem on his forehead or on his hand, he, also, is drinking of the wine of God's fury, which has been blended undiluted in the cup of His indignation, and he will be tormented in fire and sulphur before the holy messengers

¹¹ and before the Lambkin. And the fumes of their torment are ascending for the eons of the eons. And they are having no rest day and night—those worshipping the wild beast and its image, and if any one is getting the emblem of its name.

¹² Here is the endurance of the saints, who are keeping the precepts of God and the faith of Jesus."

¹³ And I hear a voice out of heaven, saying, "Write: 'Happy are the dead who are dying in the Lord henceforth! "Yea," the spirit is saying, "that they will be resting from their toil, for their acts are accompanying them." " " "

Temple Section—Harvest—Vintage

THE VINTAGE

²⁰ A stadium was 600 Greek feet, 625 Roman feet, or 125 paces, or one-eighth of a Roman mile. This is about 606¾ English feet. The race course at Olympia was this length. From this standard length, it became the usual name for a race course (1 Co.9²⁴).

From Harmageddon down through the valley of Jehoshaphat (Joel 3^{1,2}, 9-10) to Bozrah (Isa.34⁸-36³¹⁻⁶) is a line about this length. It is likened to an enormous trough for treading grapes such as was found in almost every vineyard in Palestine. The grapes were cast in and trodden with the feet, the juice running into the vat below.

The Vintage is referred to again in the next division, when the Rider on the white horse treads the wine trough of the furious indignation of God the Almighty (19¹⁵). Joel seems to fill in many details of this scene (Joel 3^{9,10}). After a proclamation inviting the nations to battle in the valley of Jehoshaphat, the account proceeds:

"Send forth the sickle, for the harvest is ripe:
Come, descend, for the wine trough is full,
The vats run over;
For their evil is much,
Throngs, throngs in the vale of decision!
For the day of Jehovah is near in the vale of decision!"

It is called The Vale of Decision, for here the controversy between Jehovah and the nations is finally decided.

Compare also Zeph.3⁸Isa.34^{1,8}.

THE SEVEN BOWLS

Before the seven bowls are poured out we are given a vision which is the counterpart of the souls under the altar (6⁹). They are bidden to rest until their number is completed. Here we have all those who suffer on account of their loyalty to God standing on a glassy sea. This is the laver. Only the altar and the laver stood in the temple court. Instead of cleansing, the glassy sea speaks of their permanent purity for resisting the worship of the wild beast and its image, and refusing to wear its emblem.

¹⁵ sharp sickle in His hand. And another messenger came out of the temple crying with a loud voice to Him Who is sitting on the cloud, "Thrust in Thy sickle and reap! for the hour came to reap, for the harvest of the earth is dried."

¹⁶ And He Who is sitting on the cloud cast His sickle on the earth and the earth is reaped.

¹⁷ And another messenger came out of the temple which is in heaven, he, also, having a sharp sickle.

¹⁸ And another messenger came out of the altar, having jurisdiction over the fire, and he shouts with a loud voice to him who has the sharp sickle, saying: "Thrust in your sharp sickle and pick the clusters of the earth's grapevine, for its grapes are dead ripe." And the messenger cast his sickle into the earth, and picks the grapevine of the earth, and he casts them into the great trough of the fury of God.

¹⁵ And I perceived another sign in heaven, great and marvelous, seven messengers having the last seven calamities—seeing that in them God's fury is consummated.

² And I perceived as it were a glassy sea, mixed with fire, and those who come off conquerors from the wild beast, and from its image, and from the number of its name, standing on the glassy sea, having

Temple Section—The Bowls

³ That these are saints out of Israel is evident, for they sing the song of Moses (Deut.32:43), which rehearses God's dealings with Israel throughout their history, and forms the ground upon which the judgment of the bowls is based. The song testifies against them. It vindicates God in pouring out the judgments upon them. To this they add the song of the Lambkin, which anticipates the results of His just awards.

⁵ The temple of the tent of the testimony must be carefully distinguished from the temple of God with the covenant in view. The covenant calls upon God to fulfill His obligations, which He does in the judgments of the Harvest and the Vintage. These are directed against the confederation of the nations who oppose the worship of Jehovah and the priesthood of His people. In this section the testimony or law is in view. These judgments are specially directed against the apostates of the nation, especially the city of Babylon.

⁷ The bowls were shallow basins used in the service of the temple. Before they are poured out those who are faithful in Israel have been killed or are in refuge. While they follow the same general course as the trumpets, being poured out upon the land, the sea, the water and the sun, they differ from them in intensity and character, corresponding to the different objects to be attained. The trumpets are usually limited in their effects to a third; the bowls seem to have no such limitation. The trumpets are a political measure and close with the sovereignty of the earth in the hands of Christ. The bowls are distinctly religious. They are poured out on the worshippers of the wild beast and on those who shed the blood of the saints and His prophets. The seven messengers who trumpet "stand before God" (82). Another messenger is at the altar (83). The seven messengers who have the bowls come out of the temple. A voice out of the temple bids them perform their duty. No worship is possible while these judgments continue.

There is no reason why these inflictions should not be as literal as the plagues of Egypt, which they resemble (Isa.11:10).

² Compare Ex.9:8-11 Job 27 Deut.28:27.

they are singing the song of Moses, the slave of God, and the song of the Lambkin, saying,

"Great and marvelous are Thy acts,
Lord, God Almighty!

Just and true are Thy ways,
King of the eons!

⁴ Who ne'er may fear Thee, Lord,
And glorify Thy name?

For Thou only art benign,
For all the nations will arrive
And worship before Thee,

For Thy just awards were made manifest."

⁵ And after these things I perceived, and the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony was

⁶ opened in heaven. And the seven messengers, who have the seven calamities, came out of the temple, dressed in clean, resplendent linen, and girded about the chest with

⁷ golden girdles. And one of the four animals gives to the seven messengers seven golden bowls brimming with the fury of God, Who is living for the eons of the eons.

⁸ (Amen!) And the temple is dense with the fumes of the glory of God and of His power. And no one was able to enter into the temple until the seven calamities of the seven messengers should be consumed.

16 And I hear a loud voice out of the temple, saying to the seven messengers, "Go and be pouring out the seven bowls of God's fury into the land."

² And the first came forth and pours out his bowl into the land. And an evil and malignant ulcer came upon those of mankind having the emblem of the wild beast, and those worshipping its image.

Temple Section—The Bowls

³ This corresponds very closely with the second trumpet (8^e). That was limited to a third and affected the ships. The blood here is "as of the dead".

⁴ The third trumpet (8¹⁰) affects a third of the rivers and springs in the same way as the third bowl. The first plague of Egypt (Ex.7¹⁷⁻²¹) is a limited sample of this very judgment.

⁶ The fourth bowl, like the fourth trumpet (8¹²) affects the sun, but in an opposite way. Then a third of the sun and the moon and the stars were eclipsed. Now the heat of the sun is greatly intensified. This is one of the signs in the sun foretold by our Lord (Lu.21²⁵). This is the day that burns as an oven (Mal.4¹) and its inhabitants are burned (Isa.24⁴²). Yet they do not obey the evangel and repent (14⁷).

³ And the second pours out his bowl into the sea. And it became blood as if of the dead, and every living soul died which is in the sea.

⁴ And the third pours out his bowl into the rivers and the springs of water. And they became blood.

⁵ And I hear the messenger of the waters saying: "Just art Thou, Who art, and Who wast, Benign One, seeing that Thou judgest these, seeing that they shed the blood of saints and prophets and Thou dost give them blood to drink —they deserve it!" And I hear one from the altar saying: "Yea, Lord God, Almighty, true and just are Thy judgments!"

⁸ And the fourth messenger pours out his bowl on the sun. And it was given to him to scorch mankind with fire. And men are scorched with the great heat, and they blaspheme the name of God, Who has the jurisdiction over these calamities, and they do not repent, to give glory to Him.

¹⁰ And the fifth pours out his bowl on the throne of the wild beast. And its kingdom became dark; and they gnawed their tongues for misery and blaspheme the God of heaven for their miseries and their ulcers; and they do not repent of their acts.

¹² And the sixth pours out his bowl on the great river Euphrates. And its water is dried up in order that the road of the kings of the orient may be made ready. And I per-

The Temple Section—Harmageddon

¹³ The best text reads "I am coming". The reference seems to be to the watchers in the temple at Jerusalem, in view of the great army coming against it. The inspector of the guard was wont to take away the cloak of any one found napping. Christ is not coming for us as a thief (1 Th. 5⁴). He is coming with a shout (1 Th. 4¹⁶).

¹⁶ Har Megiddo, the mountain district of Megiddo, overlooks the great plain of Esdraelon, about forty miles north of Jerusalem. Here Barak defeated the Canaanites (Jud. 5¹⁰), Gideon the Midianites, and the Egyptians Josiah (2 Ki. 23²⁹). There will be no battle of Armageddon. It is the place where the armies of the earth will mobilize for the battle with the Rider on the White Horse (19¹⁹). The battle line will extend from Esdraelon down to Bozrah, a distance of about 184 miles. The battle which follows is described later (19¹¹⁻²¹) when the Rider on the White Horse mobilizes His heavenly army and fights them with the sword which issues out of His mouth. This battle is also referred to in the Vintage (14¹⁷⁻²⁰), where the battle line is compared to a long winetrough and the blood to the juice of grapes.

¹⁸ Does not this imply that there have been such seismic disturbances before mankind was on the earth, thus confirming the facts of geology? And do not the very strata of the earth's surface prove the possibility of such upheavals? There have been violent local earthquakes during the tenancy of mankind, but this one will be far more destructive and terrible than any in the experience of the race hitherto.

²¹ This hail is like one of the plagues of Egypt (Ex. 9¹⁸⁻²⁶). The stones will weigh over eighty-five pounds each. The effect of the earthquake and the hail will be like the springing of a mine beneath and a bombardment from above. It will be terrific.

ceived, out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the wild beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits, as if frogs (for they are spirits of demons doing signs), which are going out to the kings of the whole inhabited earth, to be mobilizing them for the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

¹⁵ ("Lo! I am coming as a thief! Happy is he who is watching and keeping his garments, that he may not be walking naked and they may not be observing his indecency!") And they mobilized them at the place called, in Hebrew, "Harmageddon".

¹⁷ And the seventh messenger pours out his bowl on the air. And a loud voice came out of the temple of God, saying, "It has occurred!"

¹⁸ And lightnings and voices and thunders occurred. And a great earthquake occurred such as did not occur since mankind came to be on the earth, a quake prodigious, it is so great. And the great city came to be divided into three parts; and the cities of the nations fall. And Babylon the great is brought to remembrance before God, to give her the cup of the wine of His furious indignation.

²⁰ And every island fled, and the mountains were not found.

²¹ And hail large as a talent weight is descending out of heaven on men. And men blaspheme God as a result of the calamity of hail, seeing that great is its calamity—tremendous!

The Temple Section—The Scarlet Woman

¹ The following chapters (17-19^a) are a detailed expansion of the announcement of Babylon's fall in both the first and second divisions of the Temple Section (14^a 16¹⁹). We know the fact and the time; now we are told the reason and the circumstances which lead up to it.

² The false woman is in contrast with faithful Jerusalem (12¹). The true woman is arrayed with heavenly splendor, ready to take her place in the kingdom of God. The false is decked with earthly ornaments and is supported by the wild beast (13¹), which is a composite of all the false religious powers of the world, organized and energized by Satan.

The secret consists in the fact that the unfaithful woman—apostate Israel—attains to world supremacy and blessing altogether apart from Jehovah or His Christ. By their own efforts the Jews have amassed untold wealth. When their capital is combined they will be able to dictate to any government on earth. Covetousness is idolatry. They worship wealth, and all the world has bowed down at the same shrine. The love of money leads to every other form of evil. It has been a fruitful source of earth's ills.

³ Babylon is the only city which has been the capital of a world empire in the past. Here Nebuchadnezzar had his capital, Medo-Persia made it theirs, and Alexander of Greece made it his after conquering the world. No other city has ruled the whole earth. The decree of Cæsar Augustus, that the whole inhabited earth should be registered (Lu.2¹) was a vain pretense. It could not be enforced in Babylon itself, for the Romans could not conquer it.

The present ecclesia is nowhere called the "bride of Christ", so present apostasy is not presented under the figure of marital unfaithfulness.

⁴ Babylon is supported in her ascendancy by the united religions of the earth. No wonder John marvels that, while God's saints are being slaughtered, the unfaithful should attain to almost millennial bliss!

⁵ This is a note of time. After the wild beast is recalled from the abyss by the dragon (13¹) it no longer supports the woman.

⁶ 17 And one from among the seven messengers who have the seven bowls came, and he talks with me, saying: "Hither! I shall be showing you the sentence of the great prostitute who is sitting on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth commit prostitution, and those dwelling in the earth are made drunk with the wine of her prostitution." And he carries me away, in spirit, into a wilderness. And I perceived a woman sitting on a scarlet wild beast, replete with blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed with purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stone[s] and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, brimming with the abominations and uncleannesses of the prostitution of her and the earth. And on her forehead is written a name:

THE MOTHER OF THE PROSTITUTES

AND THE ABOMINATIONS

OF THE EARTH

⁷ 6 And I perceive the woman drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus.

And perceiving her, I marvel at the great marvel. And the messenger said to me: "Why do you marvel? I shall be declaring to you the secret of the woman and of the wild beast which is bearing her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns. The wild beast which you perceived was, and is not, and is about to be ascending out of the abyss, and to be going away into destruction. And those dwelling on the earth, whose names are not written on the scroll of life from

The Temple Section—The Wild Beast

¹² In Daniel's vision (7) the western wild beast had ten horns, hence the ten horns probably stand for ten western military powers in Christendom. In a federation of many governments it is easily seen how they could temporarily delegate their powers to the head of the world league. When the call goes forth for an international force to destroy the rebellious Jews in Jerusalem the federation of the West as well as the kings of the East will mobilize at Armageddon. There they will be slain by the Rider on the White Horse (19¹⁹⁻²¹). This is their end. But before this they are used in the destruction of Babylon.

¹⁵ The Jews in Babylon will be supported principally by the toil of the great masses in the western nations. The enormous interest on the national debts will make the people comparative slaves of those to whom the interest is paid. When it becomes known that the greater part of this money is used by the Jews in Babylon for their luxurious magnificence, it will arouse the hatred of the peoples and the governments who are under a perpetual tribute, as there is no possibility of paying off the principal. This hatred will lead to the unanimous opinion that Babylon must be destroyed. The wild beast upon which Babylon rests, after being obsessed by the dragon, becomes her implacable enemy. This is God's means of destroying the apostates in Israel.

¹⁷ By a bold figure of speech God is said to have an "opinion". The ten horns pride themselves in forming their own opinion and in carrying it out, when, as a matter of fact, they are obliged, by the purpose of God, to think and act as they do. Man is moved by ulterior motives. God provides these and men, conscious only of their own selfish aims, accomplish His end. God wants Babylon destroyed; they gladly do it for their own sakes, not for Him.

the disruption of the world, will be marveling, observing the wild beast, seeing that it was, and is not, and will be present.

⁹ Here is the mind which has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains where the woman is sitting on them, and they are seven kings. Five fall, one is, the other came not as yet: and whenever he may be coming, he must remain briefly. And the wild beast which was, and is not, it is the eighth, also, and is from among the seven, and is departing into destruction.

¹² And the ten horns which you perceived are ten kings—those who obtained no kingdom as yet, but are obtaining authority as kings at one hour with the wild beast. These have one opinion, and they are giving their power and authority to the wild beast. These will be battling with the Lambkin, and the Lambkin will be conquering them, seeing that He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with Him are called and chosen and faithful."

¹⁵ And he is saying to me, "These waters which you perceived, where the prostitute is sitting, are peoples and throngs and nations and languages. And the ten horns which you perceived, and the wild beast, these will be hating the prostitute, and they will be making her desolate and naked, and they will be eating her flesh, and they will be burning her up with fire, for God imparts to their hearts to form His opinion, and to form one opinion, and to give their kingdom to the wild beast, until God's words will be accomplished.

The Temple Section—Babylon's Fall

¹⁸ The basic law which underlies all figures of speech pleads with us to make this city a literal fact. No one presumes to make the woman literal. She must be figurative. The city, however, explains to us what the woman represents, and must be taken as a literal city. If not, there is no end to the "explanations" which may be offered, each of which may, in turn, be further explained.

¹⁸ The city is Babylon, on the Euphrates, which will be rebuilt in due time. But, instead of being a gentile city, as in time past, it will become a Jewish city, composed of the apostates of Judaism. When the Jews return to Palestine, many will find that place unsuited to their genius for trade and commerce, or for the beautiful city which they plan for themselves, so they move over to the plains of Shinar and build Babylon, making it the commercial and financial center of the world. At this time the vision of the Ephah (Zech.5⁵⁻¹¹) will have its fulfillment. The ephah was a measure used in commerce. This is a symbol of the Jews throughout the earth. They are merchants. A woman was cast into the ephah and swiftly borne to the land of Shinar, as Babylonia was called. There she will be established and take her toll of the traffic of the West with the East.

² Babylon has never fallen as is predicted in the prophets (Isa.13,47,Jer.50-51). Its final overthrow will be sudden (Isa.47¹¹) and it will become a desolation without any inhabitants (Jer.51²⁹). No Arabian will pitch his tent there. Yet hitherto it has gone into gradual decay until, of recent years, it is being restored. Peter lived there (1 Pt. 5¹³). To this day there has always been a considerable town in the center of its site. Moreover, its destruction is to be in the day of Jehovah (Isa.13⁶), when there are signs in the heavens (Isa.13¹⁰Un.6¹²), and when the sons of Israel and Judah come and seek the Lord their God (Jer.50⁴).

⁴ Some of God's true saints will be in the city before her destruction. These are warned to come out of her.

⁶ These sentiments are quite foreign to the present display of God's grace, for this is not a day of vengeance.

¹⁸ And the woman whom you perceived is the great city which has a kingdom over the kings of the earth."

¹⁸ After these things I perceived another messenger descending out of heaven, having great authority. And the earth is illuminated by his ² glory. And he cries with a strong voice, saying, "It falls! It falls! Babylon the great—and became the dwelling place of demons and a jail of every unclean spirit and a cage of every unclean and hateful ³ bird, seeing that all nations have fallen as a result of the furious wine of her prostitution. And the kings of the earth commit prostitution with her and the merchants of the earth are rich as a result of her ability to indulge."

⁴ And I hear another voice out of heaven, saying, "Come out of her, My people, lest you should be participating in her sins, and lest you should be getting her calamities,
⁵ seeing that her sins are piled up to heaven, and God remembers her injuries.

⁶ Be paying as she also pays, and double the doubles, in accord with her acts. In her cup in which she blends, blend double for her.
⁷ As much as she glorifies herself and indulges, so much torment and mourning be giving her, seeing that she is saying in her heart. 'I am sitting a queen, and am no widow, and mourning I may never see.'

⁸ Therefore in one day her calamities will be arriving—death and mourning and famine—and she

Temple Section—Burning of Babylon

¹¹ Because of their enormous wealth the Jews in Babylon will import every luxury which their heart desires, so that it becomes the best market for the most valuable commodities of all kinds. This will employ ships and merchants who will make large profits. They will mourn and lament, not out of sympathy with the suffering city, but because their means of gain is gone.

Babylon is not on the sea coast, but the Euphrates can easily be made navigable for large ships as far up as the site of the ancient city. It is notable that most of the great ports of the world have been inland on a river or bay. London, Antwerp, Hamburg, and New York, are all some distance from the open sea. The greatest maritime centers are on sheltered inland waterways to an open roadstead on the coast. Engineers are already at work on vast irrigation enterprises, to control the waters of the rivers. When there is a market, the Euphrates can easily be dredged to Babylon.

¹² This is a list of the luxuries and necessities of a large city. Any attempt to "spiritualize" these items cannot fail to impress us with the futility of any but a literal interpretation of this marvelous metropolis of the end time.

¹³ Ginger, or amomum, is a genus of aromatic herbs from which the "grains of paradise" of commerce are obtained.

¹⁴ Fruition, literally the "juice hour", is an expressive term denoting the time when fruit is fully ripe. Figs are insipid and the white juice which exudes from them is poisonous but a few hours before it becomes sweet as honey. There is typical teaching in this. Israel is the true fig tree. Babylon seeks to take her place and establish the kingdom and thus realize the blessings promised by the prophets, which is suggested by the delicate sweetness of the fig's syrup. Instead they eat the bitter, unpalatable poison, but a little while before the true kingdom is established.

shall be burned up with fire, seeing that strong is the Lord God Who is judging her.

⁹ And the kings of the earth who commit prostitution and indulge with her will be lamenting and grieving over her whenever they may be observing the smoke of her conflagration, standing afar off because of the fear of her torment, saying, "Woe! Woe! that great city! Babylon, the strong city! seeing that in one hour your judgment came."

¹¹ And the merchants of the earth are lamenting and mourning over her, seeing that no one is buying their cargo any more—a cargo of gold, and silver, and precious stone[s], and pearls, and cambric, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and every kind of citron wood, and every ivory utensil, and every utensil of the most valuable wood, and of copper, and of iron, and

¹³ marble, and cinnamon, and ginger, and incense, and attar, and frankincense, and wine, and olive oil, and flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and coaches, and bodies, and human

¹⁴ souls. "And the fruition for which your soul yearned passed away from you, and all that is sumptuous and splendid perished from you, and they will be finding them

¹⁵ nevermore." The merchants of these things who are rich through her will be standing afar off because of the fear of her torment, lamenting and mourning, saying,

Temple Section—Babylon's Destruction

¹⁶ "Gilded" seems to be a figure for all mere outward show, for it is with gold, and precious stones and pearls.

²¹ In the East the millstone is used to grind the meal for the daily bread.

²² The ancient harp was in the form of a lyre. It was used to accompany solo singing. "Entertainers" denoted those devoted to the arts of the muses, history, poetry, tragedy, astronomy, dancing and song. A flageolet is a flute blown from the end, as anciently.

²³ Enchantment comes from the word drug, but is used in this sense in the LXX as the equivalent of k'sh'ph, usually rendered sorceries or witchcraft (Ex. 7:11-17 Deut. 18:10 2 Ki. 9:22 Isa. 47:9 Jer. 27:9 Dan. 2:2 Mic. 5:12 Nahum 3:4).

²³ The rapid rise of the power and influence of wealth has made it possible for riches to rule. Not only locally does the man of means control the government, but the policies of nations are determined by their financial obligations. In this way will the merchants of Babylon become the great men of the earth. Holding its wealth in their hands, being the creditors of many nations, they will be able to dictate to them in any matters which affect their interests. By means of their capital they will conquer all nations. Kings will cringe before them, for they alone will be able to buy their bonds. Nations will slave for them, for they must pay the interest. The world will be theirs in spite of Jehovah's frown. He purposes to bless His people by making them a blessing to the nations. They obtain the desire of their souls by becoming a curse. They are the head of the new despotism—the autocracy of capital. Money rules the world far more really than emperors or kings or the public. The great confederacy which seems certain to arise out of the present world crisis, will have all political power, but will preside over a bankrupt world. Above them will be this woman—faithless, apostate Israel—and she will have dominion over the kings of the earth. No wonder they conspire to slay her rather than pay her the enormous tribute which her bonds demand!

²⁴ Just as the Jews of our Lord's generation were held guilty of crimes committed long before (Mt. 23:35), so Babylon is charged with all previous bloodshed.

and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stone[s] and pearl, seeing that in one hour so much riches were desolated."

And every navigator, and every one who is sailing to the place, and mariners and as many as are working on the sea, stand afar off, and, observing the smoke of her conflagration, they cried, saying, "Is there any like the great city?"
¹⁹ And they cast soil on their heads, and cried, lamenting and mourning, saying, "Woe! woe! the great city, by which all who have ships on the sea are rich, as a result of its preciousness, seeing that, in one hour, it was desolated."

²⁰ Make merry over her, O heaven, and ye saints and apostles and prophets, seeing that God passes your sentence upon her.

²¹ And one strong messenger lifts a stone, as large as a millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying that "Thus Babylon, the great city, will be hurled down, and she may be found in her nevermore. And the sound of the lyre singers and entertainers, and flutists and trumpeters shall be heard in you nevermore; and every artisan of every trade may be found in you nevermore; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard in you nevermore; and the light of a lamp may be appearing in you nevermore; and the voice of the bridegroom and bride shall be heard in you nevermore; seeing that your merchants were the magnates of the earth, seeing that by your enchantment all nations were deceived."

²⁴ And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints and of all

Temple Section—Marriage of the Lambkin

¹ Hallelujah, Greek alleluia, is the Hebrew Hallelu Jah, "praise ye Jah". This exclamation is used only in the "Hallelujah Psalms" (Ps.104:^{3,6,105,46,106,1,48,111,112,113,1,9,115,18,116,19,117,135,1,3,21,146,1,10,147,1,20,148,1,14,149,1,9,150,1,9}) and always in response to the execution of judgment. It occurs only in this passage (19:^{1,3,4,9}) in celebrating the destruction of Babylon. It should never be used in rejoicing or worship in the present dispensation of God's grace.

⁷ We are first introduced to the bride of the Lamb by John the baptist (Jn. 3:²⁸⁻³⁰). She was composed of those in Israel who acknowledged Him to be Jehovah's Lamb for their sins. Just as the water blushed into wine at Cana of Galilee (Jn.2:¹⁻¹¹), so He will transform the law into brimming cheer when this marriage comes. It was the custom for the festivities to last for seven days or a fortnight. The wedding of the Lambkin will last for a whole millennium.

Israel is often presented under the figure of the wife of Jehovah. At Sinai He became her Husband (Jer.31:³²). He puts His comeliness upon her (Eze. 16:⁸⁻¹⁴). But she forsook Him to go after other lovers (Hos.2:⁸⁻¹³). So He gave Israel a bill of divorce (Deut.24:¹⁻⁴). They were sent into captivity. According to the law they can never be His again. Nevertheless He invites her to return (Jer.3:¹). He promises to wait for her and to keep her for Himself until the latter days. "You shall not have a husband, moreover I also am for you" (Hos.3:³). He will call them back. "'Return, sons of returnings,' avers Jehovah, 'for I own you,'" says Jeremiah (31:⁴). When our Lord came He called them a wicked and adulterous generation, for they had forsaken Jehovah. But those who received Him became a part, not of the wife of Jehovah or the Lamb, but the bride of the Lambkin. Not a sad reunion in old age, but with youth renewed. The eastern bride was arrayed in the most gorgeous manner possible. Hence the prophet's question:

"Shall a virgin forget her ornaments?
A bride her ribbons?" (Jer.2:³²)

who have been slain on the earth.

¹⁹ After these things I hear as it were the loud voice of a vast throng in heaven, saying, "Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power is of our God, for true and just are His judgments, for He judges the great prostitute who corrupts the earth with her prostitution, and avenges the blood of His slaves at her hand." And a second time have they declared, "Hallelujah!" And her smoke is ascending for the cons of the eons.

⁴ And the twenty-four elders and the four animals fall and worship God, Who is sitting on the throne, saying, "Amen! Hallelujah!" And a voice came out from the throne, saying, "Be praising our God, all His slaves, and those who are fearing Him, small and great."

⁶ And I hear as it were the voice of a vast throng, and as it were the sound of many waters, and as it were the sound of strong thunders, saying, "Hallelujah! for the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns! We may be rejoicing and exulting and will be giving glory to Him, seeing that the wedding of the Lambkin came, and Its bride makes herself" ⁸ ready." And to her it was granted that she should be clothed in clean, resplendent cambrie. for the cambrie is the just awards of the saints.

⁹ And he is saying to me, "Write, 'Happy are they who have been invited to the wedding dinner of the Lambkin.' " And he is saying to me, "These are the true sayings of ¹⁰ God." And I fall in front of his feet to worship him. And he is say-

Temple Section—The Great Dinner

¹¹ Contrast this scene with His entry into Jerusalem (Mt.21:1-9 etc.). There He presented Himself as their King, lowly, and mounted as any poor peasant would ride. Now He comes seated on a white horse. In the East it is a mark of dignity to ride on a white animal, especially a horse. This is allowed only to those of high rank. There is another contrast between this Rider and the false messiah under the first seal (6²), whose conquests were followed by war, famine and pestilence. This battle is followed by a thousand years of peace and plenty and prosperity. The pseudo-messiah will be unfaithful and false, this Rider is Faithful and True.

¹¹ This opening is in contrast with the open door (4¹) with which the Throne Section begins. Today there is no communication between heaven and earth. When the judgment begins it is still restricted, as is suggested by the figure of a door, but when this Rider comes forth, heaven itself is opened, showing that, at last, the barriers between heaven and earth are removed.

This is the glorious coming for which all His earthly people have longed, and concerning which the prophets have often spoken. Compare the passage in Isaiah (63:1-6), which reminds us of the Vintage (14¹⁷⁻²⁰), which seems to be another aspect of this same scene, for they are combined in the question:

“Wherefore is Thy clothing red
And Thy garments as the tread-er in the wine trough?”

¹¹ The armies in heaven have already expelled the dragon out of heaven (12:7-9). Now they are about to finish the judgment of the earth. This was foretold as early as the days of Enoch: “Behold, the Lord is coming with ten thousands of His holy ones to execute judgment upon all” (Jude 14,15).

This is the full end of all man's misrule and the prelude to the reign of Christ and His saints. The so-called second psalm finds its fulfillment in this battle. He meets the vast international army which worships the beast and the dragon, and, by vanquishing it, establishes His own rule and the worship of Jehovah. Then He takes His true place at the head of all earthly sovereignty.

ing to me, “See! No! I am a fellow-slave of yours and of your brethren who have the testimony of Jesus. Worship God! for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.”

¹¹ And I perceived heaven opened, and lo! a white horse. And He Who is sitting on it is called “Faithful and True,” and in righteousness is He judging and ¹² battling. Now His eyes are a flame of fire, and on His head are many diadems, having names written of which no one except Himself is ¹³ aware, and He is clothed in a cloak dipped in blood, and His name is ¹⁴ called “The Word of God.” And the armies in heaven followed Him on white horses, being dressed in ¹⁵ cambrie, white and clean. And out of His mouth a sharp saber is issuing, in order that with it He should be smiting the nations. And He will be shepherding them with an iron club. And He is treading the wine trough of the furious indigna-
¹⁶ tion of God, the Almighty. And on His cloak and on His thigh He has a name written: “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

Temple Section—The Thousand Years

¹⁷ God's great dinner after the battle shows how terrible will be the slaughter. The battle referred to in Ezekiel (39:17-22) is probably after the thousand years (20th).

¹⁹ The name "wild beast" is given both to the world empire and to its last head. This head and the false prophet are evidently superhuman—the "supermen" for whom the world is already looking. Their fate is in accord with their deeds. The fact that the wild beast was once slain but was recalled to life by the dragon, and the fact that the false prophet imparted life to the image, seem to indicate that they cannot be killed as the rest, hence suffer in the lake of fire during the thousand years. Their fate is unique, and must not be taken as the lot of all who die out of Christ.

²¹ This is like the destruction of Sennacherib's army on a grander scale (2 Ki.19³⁵).

² Satan, the Hebrew for Adversary, is, as his name implies, the great adversary of Christ. Here he is given all his various appellations. In Eden he was seen under the guise of the serpent (Gen.3:1-5). In this scroll he is seen under the figure of a dragon (12³). As the Slanderer (usually translated "devil" cf. 1 Ti.3:11 2 Ti.3: Tit.2³) he misrepresents God, as witness his attempts to seduce our Lord in the wilderness (Mt.4:1-11 Lu.4:2-13).

⁴ Judgment here, as often, refers to awards rather than punishment. This "judgment" of the saints consists in granting to each one the place in the kingdom which he deserves. It is to be deplored that there is no good English word for judgment, which calls for the setting of matters right, whether the action be favorable or the reverse. God judges His saints as well as sinners—all get their due, whether their title to it is based on their own acts or on His promises.

From the usage of this word it is clear that even the condemnation of the unbeliever is no mere exhibition of aimless rage, but is carefully calculated to right the wrongs of all concerned. The claims of God and Christ, and of the sinner himself are all as conscientiously considered as in the first judgment in Eden (Gen.3:14-19), where the very curse put upon the ground was for man's sake.

flesh of the strong, and the flesh of horses and of those who are sitting on them, and the flesh of all free-men as well as slaves, and of small and great."

¹⁹ And I perceived the wild beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered to do battle with Him Who is sitting on the horse and with His army. And the wild beast is arrested, and with it the false prophet who does signs before it, by which he deceives those getting the emblem of the wild beast, and those worshiping its image. Living, the two were cast into the lake of fire burning with sulphur. And the rest were killed by the saber which is coming out of the mouth of Him Who is sitting on the horse. And all the birds are satiated with their flesh.

²⁰ And I perceived a messenger descending out of heaven, having the key of the abyss and a large chain in his hand. And he lays hold of the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is the Slanderer and Satan, and binds him a thousand years. And he casts him into the abyss and locks it, and sets a seal upon it (lest he should still be deceiving the nations) until the thousand years should be finished. After these things he must be loosed a little time.

⁴ And I perceived thrones, and they are seated on them, and judgment was granted them. And the souls of those who have been executed because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of

Temple Section—The Former Resurrection

⁴ Those who have suffered death for their loyalty during the great persecutions of the end time are especially included in the former resurrection. This is the time spoken of by Daniel (7²²) when "the saints safeguard the kingdom". This is the resurrection of the just (Lu.14¹⁴) and the resurrection of life (Jn.5²⁰), in contrast to the resurrection of judgment (20¹²). But those who suffer martyrdom or who endure to the end will have the added privilege of reigning with Him and will be His priests for the thousand years. Their trials have wrought an eonian weight of glory for them. They will be happy and holy indeed.

⁵ The statement that "the rest of the dead do not live until the thousand years may be finished" was omitted in the best manuscript. As the same codex also omits the tribes of Gad (7⁵) and Simeon (7⁷) from the hundred forty-four thousand, too much stress must not be laid on any such omission. These tribes must go in to make up the required number (144,000) in that manuscript. If we accept the insertion of the tribes we must also accept the insertion of this statement, for it rests on the same evidence. It could easily have been overlooked by a copyist, for the preceding sentence ends with the same words as this one does—"the thousand years" (see the Greek text). It is easy, in copying, to skip from the first "thousand years" to the next, and thus omit the intervening statement.

⁶ The thousand years limits their reign as priests. As kings they reign for the eons of the eons (22⁵)—a much longer period.

⁷ The loosing of Satan finds mankind as a whole unregenerate after the thousand years of peace. They are ready as ever to follow the deceptions of Satan and oppose the Christ of God. But they are given short shrift, for fire descends from heaven and devours them. The lake of fire was prepared for the Slanderer and his messengers (Mt.25⁴¹). Now he receives his doom.

¹¹ The Great White Throne judgment has no place for those who are Christ's, for they have all been made alive and have been enjoying eonian life for more than a millennium.

God, and those who do not worship the wild beast or its image, and did not get the emblem on their forehead and on their hand—they also live and reign with Christ a thousand years. (The rest of the dead live not until the thousand years should be finished.) This is the former resurrection.

⁶ Happy and holy is he who is having a part in the former resurrection; over these the second death has no jurisdiction, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will be reigning with Him the thousand years.

⁷ And whenever the thousand years should be finished, Satan will
⁸ be loosed out of his jail. And he will be coming out to deceive all the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to be mobilizing them for battle, their number being as the ⁹ sand of the sea. And they ascended over the breadth of the earth, and surround the citadel of the saints and the beloved city. And fire descended from God out of ¹⁰ heaven and devoured them. And the Slanderer who is deceiving them was cast into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the wild beast and where the false prophet are also. And they will be tormented day and night for the eons of the eons.

¹¹ And I perceived a great white throne, and Him Who is sitting upon it, from Whose face earth and heaven fled, and no place was found for them.

Temple Section—Jerusalem

¹² This is not a "general" judgment, though it approaches nearer to it than any other. Only the dead appear before this throne. Those who are Christ's will have been made alive at His presence more than a thousand years before (1 Co.15²³). Those who are His will not die during the thousand years, nor can they be hurt by the second death. Hence only those who have not believed in Christ appear in this judgment. They will all receive their just deserts, according to their acts, during the period between their resurrection and second death. Hence they are condemned, for all fall short of God's standard. They are not vivified, or made alive, as the saints are, by a better resurrection, hence they die again.

¹³ Thus all evil is segregated in the lake of fire, where Satan and the wild beast and the false prophet already are (20¹⁰). "This is the second death" defines the lake of fire. Those who have been raised from death return to the same state in the second death. The only immunity from condemnation lies in having a place in the scroll of life.

SECOND TEMPLE SECTION

¹ In this section we enter a new eon. Peter, in his second epistle (3⁷) tells us that the present heavens and earth are a storehouse of fire, and that they will pass away with a rushing noise and the elements be dissolved with fervent heat. The earth and the works in it shall be burned up by reason of the coming of the day of God. Isaiah (65¹⁷) has promised a new heaven and a new earth. Righteousness rules during the thousand years. It dwells in the new creation.

² The new Jerusalem is heavenly as to character, but will be located on the earth. It comes down "out of heaven". The present heavens and earth are not the first. There was an earth before the present (2 Pt.3⁵). The world that then was perished by water (Gen. 1²). The present is the second earth. The one in this vision is the third.

³ That these are not final scenes is indicated by the temporary nature of God's habitation (Heb.11⁹). Though all are His peoples, and He comforts all. He does not as yet, dwell amongst His creatures.

¹² And I perceived the dead, great and small, standing before the throne. And scrolls were opened, and another scroll was opened, which relates to life. And the dead were judged by that which is written in the scrolls, in accord with their acts.

¹³ And the sea gives up the dead in it, and death and the unseen give up the dead in them. And they were condemned, each in accord with their acts. And death and the unseen were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death—
¹⁵ the lake of fire. And if any one was not found written in the scroll of life, he was cast into the lake of fire.

21 And I perceived a new heaven and a new earth, for the former heaven and the former earth pass away, and the sea is no more.

² And I perceived the holy city, new Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having been made ready as a bride adorned for
³ her husband. And I hear a loud voice out of the throne saying, "*Lo! God's tabernacle is with mankind, and He will be tabernacling with them, and they will be His peoples, and God Himself will be with them. And He will be brushing away every tear from their eyes. Second Temple Section—The Holy City

⁶ This is written from the standpoint of the time when John wrote, at Patmos, hence all is put in the future tense. This is vital to a true understanding of this section.

⁸ "The Origin and the Consummation" gives Him His true place in creation and redemption. God begins with Him and He brings all God's purposes to fruition.

¹⁰ This is the city for which Abraham looked (Heb.11¹⁰). Since the capture of Zion by David (2 Sa.5), Jerusalem has been God's choice to rule over the nation and over the whole earth. The city descends out of heaven to the earth and seems to be shaped like an enormous mountain. Jerusalem and Zion are almost always described as a mountain. The contrast with Sinai (Ga.4²⁴⁻²⁶He.12¹⁸⁻²²) implies as much, while Ezekiel's vision of a very high mountain (40²⁴³12) may refer first of all to the millennial city, yet it is suggestive of the shape of the new Jerusalem.

No other shape could very well have its length and breadth and its height equal and be surrounded by a wall much lower than the city itself. The millennial city, as measured in Ezekiel, will be about twelve times as great as Jerusalem in the past, while the new Jerusalem of this vision will raise it to the seventh power. Ezekiel's city has twelve gates, named after the twelve tribes (48³¹⁻³⁴). There is a river, flowing from Jehovah's house, descending about three and a half feet per mile. If the throne be at the summit of this glorious city, such a river could wind about it with no greater descent than that in the millennial scene.

¹¹ The word here used for luminosity, or light bearer, is applied to the sun and the moon (Gen.1^{14,16}). It is used figuratively of believers (Phil.2¹⁵). But the sun and moon are not needed, for the glory of God illuminates the city (21²²⁻²³) and its Lamp is the Lambkin (21²³). Natural light was excluded from His habitations.

¹¹ The jasper is probably the most valuable variety, called plasma, a translucent green stone. Like the gold of the city, its Luminosity will be crystalline in its translucent radiance. The Enthroned One looks like a jasper gem (4³).

for these sayings are faithful and true." And He said to me: "I have become the A and the Z, the Origin and the Consummation. To him who is thirsting I shall be giving of the spring of the water of life gratuitously. He who is conquering will be enjoying these things and I shall be his God and he will be a son of Mine. Yet the timid, and unbelievers, and the abominable, and murderers, and paramours, and enchanters, and idolaters, and all the false—their part is in the lake burning with fire and sulphur, which is the second death."

⁹ And one of the seven messengers who have the seven bowls brimming with the last seven calamities came and talks with me, saying, "Hither! I shall be showing you the bride, the wife of the Lambkin." And he carries me away, in spirit, on a mountain, huge and high, and shows me the holy city, Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God; having the glory from God; her luminosity is like a stone most precious, as a crystalline jasper gem; having a wall, huge and high; having twelve portals, and at the portals twelve messengers, and their names inscribed, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel. From the east are three portals, and from the north three portals, and from the south three portals, and from the west three portals. And the wall of the city has twelve foundations, and on them the twelve names of the twelve apostles

¹⁶ Gold, if subjected to intense heat, may be made permanently transparent. When the city has passed through the fiery crucible which introduces the new earth (2 Pt.3¹⁰), the gold which now exists in considerable quantities in a diffused state, will be precipitated and refined and emerge with crystalline clarity.

¹⁷ A cubit was the length from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger.

¹⁸ Josephus applies the term "in-building" to a mole or breakwater.

²⁰ Chalcedony is probably a waxy, translucent gem, from white to bluish grey in color (Plin. xxxvii, 8).

²¹ Sardonyx (a variety of onyx, so-called from its resemblance to the substance of a finger nail or claw) consists of alternate layers of light-colored onyx between reddish layers of carnelian or "sard".

²² Carnelian, or sardius, is used for the Hebrew ohdem, red (Ex.28¹⁷ 39¹⁰ Eze. 28¹³) and for the onyx (Ex.25⁷35⁹).

²³ The gold stone, or chrysolite, of the ancients is our topaz, while their topaz is our peridot.

²⁴ The best beryl is of a sea green color.

²⁵ Chrysoprase is the palest of the green beryls of a golden cast.

²⁶ Amethyst, the ancient hyacinth, resembles the flower of this name. It is a transparent gem of violet color (cf. 9¹⁷). The amethyst of the ancients is now called garnet (9¹⁷).

¹⁵ of the Lambkin. And he who is talking with me had a golden measuring reed, in order that he should be measuring the city, and its portals, and its wall. And the city is lying four-square: and its length is as much as the breadth. And he measures the city with the reed—twelve thousand stadia [1378.97 miles]. Its length and breadth and height are equal. And he measures its wall, a hundred forty-four cubits [about 200 feet] of a man, which the messenger's measure is. And the buttress of its wall is jasper, and the city is clear gold, like clear glass. The foundations of the city's wall have been adorned with every precious stone, the first foundation with jasper, the second lapis lazuli, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald, the fifth sardonyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh topaz, the eighth beryl, the ninth peridot, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh amethyst, the twelfth garnet. And the twelve portals are twelve pearls. Each one of the portals was respectively of one pearl. And the city square is gold, clear as translucent glass.

²² And I perceived no temple in it, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lambkin are its temple. And the city has no need of the sun nor of the moon that they should be appearing in it, for the glory of God illuminates it, and its Lamp is the Lambkin.

SECOND THRONE SECTION

²⁴ The vision has ended. John now is back again in Patmos and tells what will be in the days of the vision. It is not that the common and abominable will be outside the city, unable to enter. Then all will be God's people and misery will be no more (21:3,4). But those who are false before—these have no hope of entering into the city. In Israel, this is a reward.

¹ The river of living water can be traced from the laver of the tabernacle (Ex.30:18) through the ten lavers and the molten sea of Solomon's temple (2 Chr.4:2-6) and the waters which flowed from the threshold of Ezekiel's house (Eze.47) to the crystal stream here described.

² Ezekiel describes the trees which line the millennial river (47:12).

² The square, or common, or plaza, was a wide open space which had corners (Mt.6⁵) and a center. The streets of eastern cities could not be denoted by this word, which means wide, broad, for they have always been exceedingly narrow, and were called by a distinct name (Mt.6² Lu.14²¹ Ac.9:11 12:10).

³ At this point the seer changes his viewpoint back to Patmos. What was present to his gaze is now put in the future. His slaves will minister; they will reign. Hence their reign is for the eons of the eons. This would present a difficulty if John spoke from the standpoint of the last eon, for only one eon will then remain in which they can reign (1 Co.15:24).

³ The "curse" is not yet gone or the leaves of the trees were useless. But there is no more anything devoted to God for destruction. His way with men has changed.

⁵ Though the temple and priesthood are gone, they continue to reign for the eons of the eons. This corresponds with the Hebrew scriptures, for the temple with its ritual lasts "for ever" (for the eon) but the kingdom continues "for ever and ever" (for the eons of the eons).

SECOND PROPHETIC SECTION

⁶ This section should not be referred to the far future which John has been describing. He reverts to the time when the prophecy was given to him. Hence the era is impending, the Lord is still to come, the sayings of the prophecy may still be kept.

²⁴ And the nations will be walking by means of its light, and the kings of the earth are carrying their glory into it. And its portals should under no circumstances be locked by day (for there will be no night there). And they will be carrying the glory and the honor of the nations into it, and under no circumstances may anything contaminating, or one who is making an abomination and a lie be entering into it, except those having been written in the Lambkin's scroll of life.

22 And he shows me a river of water of life, resplendent as crystal, issuing out of the throne of God and the Lambkin. In the center of its square, and on either side of the river is the tree of life, producing twelve fruits, rendering fruit appropriate to each month. And the leaves of the tree are for the cure of the nations. And there will be no more any doom, and the throne of God and the Lambkin will be in it. And His slaves will be offering divine service to Him. And they will be viewing His face, and His name will be on their foreheads. And night will be no more, and they have no need for lamp light and sun light, seeing that the Lord God will be illuminating them. And they will be reigning for the eons of the eons.

⁶ And He said to me, "These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, commissions His messenger to show to His slaves what must occur swiftly. And lo! I am coming swiftly! Happy is he who is keeping the sayings of the prophecy of this scroll."

Second Prophetic Section

¹⁰ It is God's will that this prophecy should be known by His slaves. Daniel was commanded to seal up his vision because much was to intervene before its fulfillment. As this era is impending—there is nothing between the present and this prophecy—it is time for it to be studied and understood.

Nothing (except a knowledge of the special epistles written for the present) will help us more in estimating the true trend of present day movements than a clear conception of their outcome in the great judgment period just ahead. All of the factors of the end time are rapidly taking on the form which they will have in that day. Israel is going back to the land. The nations are forming the great confederacy. The religions of the earth are uniting. In it all God is given no place.

¹² As in the first chapter (1st), the Lord Jesus suddenly intervenes and closes the prophecy with His own august declarations. The three-fold title, the A and the Z, the First and Last, and the Origin and the Consummation, are most appropriate after the revelation of the marvelous jeweled city and the glories of the new earth. At present He has only begun; then He will finish. The A and the Z suggests that He is the whole alphabet of God's revelation, the First and the Last, His place in the times in which it is accomplished, and the Origin and Consummation, His place in the purpose which underlies it.

¹⁶ The night is darkest just before the dawn. His earthly people will long for the Morning Star to herald the approach of day. Then He, from Whom David sprang and Who descended from David, will fulfill all the promises which God made to Him.

¹⁷ Come! All who know Him and His will cannot but obey this last request. The hearts of all saints should well up into one grand shout to urge His speedy return. There is no other help, no other hope. Come! Lord Jesus!

'Come, then, and, added to Thy many crowns, Receive yet one, the crown of all the earth. Thou Who alone art worthy! It was Thine By ancient covenant, ere Nature's birth; And Thou hast made it Thine by purchase since And overpaid its value with Thy blood. Thy saints proclaim Thee King; and in their hearts Thy title is engraven with a pen Dipped in the fountain of eternal love.'
COWPER, in The Task

⁸ And I, John, am the hearer and observer of these things. And when I hear and observe, I fall to worship in front of the feet of the messenger who is showing me these things. And he is saying to me: "See! No! I am a fellowslave of yours and of your brethren the prophets, and of those who are keeping the sayings of this scroll: worship God!" And he is saying to me, "You should not be sealing the sayings of the prophecy of this scroll, for the era is near. Let him who is injuring, injure still; and let the filthy be filthy still; and let the just do righteousness still; and let the holy be hallowed still."

¹² "Lo! I am coming swiftly, and My wage is with Me, to pay each one as his work is. I am the A and the Z, the First and the Last, the Origin and the Consummation. Happy are those who are rinsing their robes, in order that it will be their license to the tree of life, and they may be entering the portals into the city. Outside are curs, and enchanters, and paramours, and murderers, and idolaters, and everyone fondling and fabricating falsehood."

¹⁶ I, Jesus, send My messenger to testify these things to you in the ecclesias. I am the Root and the race of David, the resplendent Morning Star. And the spirit and the bride are saying, 'Come!' And let him who is hearing say 'Come!' And let him who is thirsting be coming. Let him who is wanting it take the water of life gratuitously.

¹⁸ I am testifying to everyone who is hearing the words of the prophecy

Conclusion—Warning—His Coming

¹⁸ It is one of the saddest commentaries on the frailty of mankind to find that this warning has about seven variant readings in the three manuscripts we consult. Who would not suppose that these lines would be most anxiously and scrupulously copied by the scribe? Surely no transcriber would dare to add or subtract a single letter! Yet there is not only one transposition, but four additions and three omissions in a passage fearfully denouncing such a practise. May God forgive if we, unwittingly, have failed to restore or expunge these mutilations!

²⁰ The desire for the coming and presence of the Lord is the truest test of spiritual condition. The saints long for Him, not merely for their own happiness but for the manifestation of His glories and the blessing of all creation.

of this scroll: If ever any one may be appending to them, God will be appending to him the calamities which have been written in this scroll. And if ever any one should be eliminating from the words of the scroll of this prophecy, God will be eliminating his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, which are written in this scroll.

²⁰ He Who is testifying these things is saying: 'Yea, I am coming swiftly.'

"Amen! Be coming, Lord Jesus!"

²¹ The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all the saints! Amen!
